"At last I determined to take it myself. I knew I had no business leaving the office, but I considered it a chance to win recognition that I might never have again. It was before the time of the bicycle, and as there was no horse to be had I started out afoot. There was a train leaving about 1 o'clock in the morning, and I had figured it out that the anxious father would take that train for the city, and that I would be able to get a ride back to the station with him, and have at the same time a chance to create a good impression.

"It was in the fall of the year and raining as hard as it could pour, with good prospects that it would turn to snow before I got back. I was a little bit hazy just where the party was staying, but after braving any number of dogs and arousing any number of farmers, I found the right place and delivered the message. The man, with a white face, hastily tore the envelope open and read the contents, while I waited for him to say: 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant!'

"But he didn't. He said things that I would not care to repeat, and called me any number of names that were not the least bit complimentary. It made me mad to see such an exhibition of unconcern over such a serious matter, and I was about to say so when he broke in with another torrent of strong words, of which I caught 'fool woman,' 'pug dog,' 'glad of it.'

"Then I comprehended, and as I tramped wearily back to the office I had deserted I had plenty of time to take a solemn vow to never again bother my head about what might come over the wire."

When Ice Cream Was New.

When ice cream was first introduced many funny stories were told about it. It was first offered in the national capital, according to an authority on the subject, by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, who had had it in her home in New York. She used to tell with amusement of the delight with which President Jackson first tasted it, and how he promptly decided to have ices at the Executive mansion.

"Accordingly," says the historian, "guests at the next reception were treated to the frozen mystery, and afforded considerable fun to the initiated by the reluctance with which they tasted it. Those from the rural districts especially first eyed it suspiciously, then melted each spoonful with breath before consuming it. Their distrust was soon removed, however, and plates were emptied with great rapidity.

"The man who made the ice cream was, oddly enough, a negro by the name of Jackson, who in the early part of the present century kept a small confectionery store in Washington. Cold custards, which were cooled by setting them on a cake of ice, were very fashionable, and Jackson, at Mrs. Hamilton's suggestion, froze them by placing the ingredients in a tin bucket and completely covering them with ice. Each bucket contained a quart and was sold for $1."

Most Exclusive Club on Earth.

The Diamond Club of London is the most exclusive, richest and, in some respects, the oldest club in the world. Its members are such of the great diamond dealers of London as can qualify. Each candidate for admission is examined by a committee, which inquires minutely into his past.

The club is primarily an eating place and a place of business. The members meet daily at the luncheon hour in the dingy little cafe in Hatton Garden, occupying a private room. Although these dealers in diamonds do not care for dress they do care a great deal for good dinners. Their 1 o'clock repast is famous for its excellence. It is said to be the finest in the world.

The doors of the club-house are opened at 10 a. m. and the place is deserted before 7 p. m., about the time when the West End clubmen are beginning their day. One of the features of this curious club is the displaying of diamonds by its members. Often bags full of rare gems of exceeding size and lustre are emptied onto the dining-room tables for inspection, and numbers of them are passed around the room and handled by as many men as wish to look them over. The owner has no fear, for he confides implicitly in any man whose character is good enough to allow him to become a member.

The Chinese Invitation.

When a Chinaman gives a grand party he sends three invitations to each guest—one two days before the event, another on the day itself, and the third just before the hour has struck, to signify how impatient he is for his visitor's arrival.

A simple and safe way to clean costly and easily-injured articles is to make a suds of hot water and Ivory Soap, and allow it to cool until lukewarm. This solution, while very effective, is perfectly harmless.

Ivory Soap contains no alkali. It will not destroy the surface or texture of any material, however delicate.

Ivory Soap differs from other soaps. It is more carefully made, and the materials used in its manufacture are the purest and best.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

GIRL DRIVEN CRAZY.

took the strait jacket off Sadie her arms were completely paralyzed. After Sadie had been in the dungeon twenty-four hours she told me that she was penitent, sorry for losing her temper. I reported this to Mrs. Eyler, who said that Sadie was in a very good place where she was and refused to remove her.

"I reported the girl many times, but Mrs. Eyler never visited the dungeon. After six days in the dungeon Mrs. Eyler allowed me to take Sadie to the board room, and there she was kept for four days, bread and water still being the diet. The child became so weak on this diet that Mrs. Eyler became alarmed and finally allowed me to give Sadie some hot milk, but her stomach was so weak by this time that she could not retain it.

"I nursed her and she gradually grew strong enough to take substantial food. Then I was allowed to give her one meal a day. But this was served by Mrs. Eyler's order at 5 o'clock and was placed on the plate at 12, so that it was cold when Sadie got it. Occasionally she got a cup of tea or coffee.

"From the board room Sadie was taken to the hospital room, and here she was kept under lock and key until she was taken to the lunatic asylum. During all this time, from April to June, Mrs. Eyler only saw the child once. Dr. Ward, of the asylum, examined Sadie just before she was taken to the asylum and pronounced the child a fit subject."

Cut Her Wrist.

Mrs. John Q. Adams, of East Second street, cut her left wrist severely yesterday noon, by falling upon a bottle at her home. Dr. Jenkins rendered surgical aid.

MR ACKERMAN WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE

Will Positively Not Enter the Race For Senator.

EVEN IF CROSS WITHDRAWS.

PLAINFIELD'S STRONGEST CANDIDATE IS B. FRANK CORIELL.

He Wants to be Republican Nominee for County Clerk—J. Martin Roll Has no Chance for Shrievalty Nomination the Knowing Ones Say—Clerk Howard's Mistake at Last Convention.

With the announcement that Senator Cross might not look for a renomination to the Upper House of the New Jersey Legislature, but was quietly gunning for a judicial appointment instead, Union county Republicans are wondering who is likely to be the party choice if Cross is out of the race. With that announcement was a vague rumor that Plainfield would try to capture the plum for which it unsuccessfully fought at the county convention last fall.

The name of Ernest R. Ackerman was mentioned for the nomination for which he was a candidate last fall. There is, however, no truth in that rumor. Mr. Ackerman is very positive in his statement that he will not make any attempt to secure the Senatorial nomination, and that he will under no circumstances allow his name to be presented to the coming Republican convention this fall. Mr. Ackerman's time is too much occupied with his business duties to allow him to devote any of it to politics at present.

J. Martin Roll, of Springfield, is mentioned for the place and is known to be willing to accept the nomination could his friends secure it for him. Those who stand high in county affairs, however, are positive in their statements that whoever may be nominated for Senator, it will not be the former Assemblyman from Springfield. The same influences that worked for his defeat for renomination to the Assembly would appear again should he attempt to win a seat in the Senate. His stand in regard to corporations and trolley roads in particular has, they claim, given Roll a political black eye that it will take him long to recover from.

So far, Plainfield has no candidate in line for the Senatorial nomination. Judging from the present situation in Plainfield, the strongest candidate from this city will be B. Frank Coriell in the race for sheriff. The Elizabeth politicians pretend that it amounts to nothing and class it as a scheme to aid the present incumbent, Clerk Howard, to secure a nomination. In that they are far from the truth. Plainfield owes Rahway nothing after the decidedly shabby way in which the Rahway delegation deserted the standard of Mr. Ackerman at the last county convention and went over to the enemy. Rahway practically defeated Mr. Ackerman and the Plainfield politicians haven't forgotten that fact. If Clerk Howard did not clinch the renomination for himself by that deal, he made the mistake of his life.

NO TRACE OF BULLMAN.

His Family Have Given Up Hope of Ever Hearing From Him.

Thus far no word has been received regarding George Bullman, who disappeared from his home in the borough over two months ago. Relatives have spent time and money in a fruitless search for Mr. Bullman, but not a trace of him cannot be found. Mrs. Bullman and her family have about given up all hope of learning of his whereabouts. The family have received letters from all parts of the country making inquires about the missing man, but no clew has been secured.

Asbury Park, Aug. 12—Founder Bradley's prohibition fetish is as absorbing as his rules regulating bathing costumes are rigorous, and his latest order to the beach policemen, given today, commands them to keep the board walk clear of band programmes, because they contain liquor advertisements. Near Asbury Park are several licensed saloons and road houses that make a practice of advertising their business and some of the advertisements are in the beach programmes.

MAYOR SMALLEY'S ECONOMY UNPOPULAR.

Borough People Complain of Inadequate Police Force.

WANT ANOTHER MARSHAL.

SAY THAT PRESENT SITUATION INVITES EVIL DOING.

Mr. Smalley's Failure to Appoint a Man to Fill the Vacancy on the Police Force is the Cause of Much Grumbling—A Dangerous Way to Try to Make a Good Record for His Administration.

There is a great deal of adverse criticism regarding the action of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, in not appointing a marshal to take the place of John H. Schenck, who resigned to take a position as engineer at the Plainfield Water Works. Some of the people of the borough do not feel that they are adequately protected. They say that the fact that there have been so few arrests is no reason why the police force should be reduced, and thus invite evil-disposed people to come to the borough and make trouble for them.

It has been said that if Mayor Smalley is holding back an appointment until he can find someone who will earn the salary, $50 per month, his motive is a good one, but if he is adopting his course out of a desire to follow up his idea of an economical government and administration, he is doing that which is against the best interests of the borough.

That for some time past there has been trouble in the police department cannot be gainsaid. There is a committee on marshals in the Council, but they do not govern. It is said that the chairman of the committee is nothing more than a figure-head, while the running of that department is looked after by someone else.

In point of seniority ex-Marshal George Wise should have been appointed chief under the present administration after Chief Wilson resigned, and it is claimed that he has every qualification for the position. He was turned down and another appointed in his place. Mr. Wise recently had an opportunity of doing something better than police duty, and he quickly resigned. At the last meeting of the Council Marshal Schenck resigned to accept a better position, and thus it can be seen that the force is in a weakened condition.

A representative of The Daily Press in conversation with a prominent borough official, recently, was informed that certain ordinances are not enforced as they should be. As an instance he remarked that often cyclers are allowed to ride in the borough at night without a light; in fact, a Councilman not long ago rode his wheel home and his lamp was not lighted. This same official contended that instead of one marshall doing day duty there should be two, one for each side of Somerset street. He also claims that not one per cent. of the Council stands with the Mayor in his position on the marshal question. They claim false economy is an expensive luxury and they think that the Mayor is practicing false economy. It is also stated by those opposed to Mayor Smalley on the marshal question, that he is trying to make a record this year, and as few arrests as possible will be made, and what the administration don't see there is no use bothering with. It is affirmed that violations of the borough ordinances occur continually, and yet no attempt is made to prevent them, and it is these things that make certain people object to the present method in vogue.

A Fraternal Time.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, at their meeting last night, accepted one candidate, and had a pleasant time in the good and welfare, vocal and instrumental solos being rendered. Ice cream was served to the Brethern and all were so pleased that it was voted to have it every meeting. Next meeting on the 25th inst.

Step Up to the Collector's Office.

Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, is now issuing notices to all persons affected, that all assessments on property affected by the opening of Watchung avenue remaining unpaid on September 1st, will be included in advertised list to be sold during the first week in October.

How to Avoid It.

We may envy the "man behind the gun," or the "man behind the hoe," but not one of us cares to be the "man behind the times," and no one ever will be who has his time-piece regulated at Collier's, where all work is guaranteed.

BUILT FIRE UNDER LIGHTED OIL STOVE

LIVELY BLAZE RESULTED.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD TO BE CALLED TO EXTINGUISH FLAMES.

Morning Fire at Home of John Ryan, 1024 West Third Street—Small Boy Wanted to Get Breakfast—His Method Had Disastrous Consequences—Loss Will Amount to $700—Only House Was Injured.

Little eight-year-old Johnny Ryan tried a combination that wouldn't work this morning. He lighted the oil stove and then started a fire in the cook stove on which the oil stove rested. The result was rather disastrous. The home of his father, John Ryan, 1024 West Third street, corner Manson place, was partially destroyed by fire. The total loss will reach $700, which is only partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Ryan had just finished the breakfast operations for her husband, who works in the foundry at the Pond Tool Works. She had been up with a sick child nearly all night and lay down in the bed room on the second floor to take a nap. Little Johnny, who is the oldest boy, decided to begin breakfast preparations on his own account.

He lighted the oil stove which stood on the regular coal burning cook stove. Then he built a fire in the latter and set about getting himself some breakfast. But the combination didn't work. As the cook stove grew hotter and hotter it caused trouble in the oil stove. When Johnny looked again, the oil was bubbling over on the floor and the flames were spreading rapidly. Johnny fled without loss of time and yelled as loud as his little lungs would permit.

The neighbors saw the flames burst out of the kitchen window and started the cry of "fire." The cries awoke Mrs. Ryan. She seized her baby and sick child and, with the aid of Mrs. William Hewitt, carried them to a place of safety. Meanwhile Sam Robinson ran down to fire alarm box 47, on South Second street, opposite the Pond Tool works, and sent in an alarm at 8:35 o'clock.

The No. 3 hose company was the first on the scene and laid in two lines of hose. They found the rear of the house all ablaze. The flames were fast spreading to the front of the house. Neighbors had saved part of the furniture and bedding which was heaped up in the street opposite. While the firemen were at work the oil stove exploded, and the rush of smoke drove them back. In a short time, however, the fire was extinguished.

The house was a two-story and small attic frame structure. The kitchen was gutted and the other rooms were badly damaged. The fire was under such headway that it was necessary to flood the house before the flames were extinguished.

Mrs. Ryan places their loss at $200, on which there was no insurance. The house is the property of Dr. Daniel H. Thickstun. His loss will reach $500, and is covered by insurance.

FIRE IN A CLOSET.

Harold Phillips Had His Hands Burned Putting Out the Flames.

A fire was discovered in a closet on the second floor of the home of Percy F. Phillips, 921 Madison avenue, Thursday evening. It was a spontaneous combustion in a heap of oily rags. The contents of the closet were ruined. The loss will amount to $50, which is covered by insurance. On a shelf in the closet was a leather bound book containing an inventory of the contents of the house. The cover was burned off.

The fire was discovered by Miss Margery Phillips and was extinguished by Mr. Phillips and his son Harold. The latter had his hands badly burned and his eyebrows singed.

To Preserve the Trees.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Aug. 11—The Women's Club of this place intends to put a stop to the practice of nailing posters and bills on the shade trees of the town and to accomplish this purpose, several bulletin boards have been made and placed at the most prominent street corners. Westfield is blessed with beautiful shade trees, which the Women's Club desires to preserve in this way.

TROLLEY ROUTE IN WESTFIELD.

Application Acted on by the Township Committee.

FORECASTED IN THE PRESS.

REQUEST OF TROLLEY COMPANY A SURPRISE TO MANY.

Line to Go Up Elm Street From Broad Street and Then Over Private Property to Prospect Avenue, Brightwood Avenue and the Morse Road to Fanwood—Work to Begin Now.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 12.—The application of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company for a franchise to build a trolley road on Prospect and Elm streets and Dudley avenue, was held in the town rooms last evening. So many of the residents of the town, many being women, wanted to hear what was said, that the room was packed to the doors, many having to stand outside. The trolley people, through Col. E. W. Hine, sprung a surprise on most of those present, except those who read The Press, as he asked for a franchise on Elm street, when the residents of Prospect street thought sure that the company wished to build in front of their properties.

The route as asked for will go up Elm street from Broad street, and through private property belonging to the company and thence on property of Richard M. French and Robert N. French for a distance of about 1,300 feet, when it will turn and go through private property to Prospect street and thence along that street to Brightwood avenue and the Morse road, which it will follow to the Fanwood Township line.

There were a few who spoke in opposition, but they had no real reason for having the trolley blocked. The committee placed the franchise on its first reading and then adjourned to Monday evening.

Col. Hine in an address stated that the line from Plainfield to the Elizabeth line would be running within six weeks, and that as soon as the main line was completed the men now employed would be put to work on the line from Milburn to Rahway, which it was hoped to have running by December 1st.

INSPECTING TAX BOOKS.

BOROUGH COUNCIL PROSECUTED THE WORK IN PRIVATE.

Few Changes Made in the Figures—Unable to Finish the Work in One Night and Another Meeting to be Held.

The Borough Council met last evening and commenced their examination of the books of Assessor E. M. French. As was to be expected they were unable to complete the work in one evening and another meeting will be necessary. So far as the books were examined they were found to be all right, and very few changes were made in figures.

Mr. French exercised great care in his work this year, desiring to give general satisfaction so far as it was possible. The meeting last evening was an executive one, and reporters were excluded.

When the Council's work is completed the result of their deliberation will be made known.

The Council succeeded in passing upon one half of the work, and adjournment was taken till next Monday evening when the work will be completed.

SENATOR REED EXPLAINS.

He Says New Law Does Not Relieve Banks of Just Taxation.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

Your editorial Wednesday entitled "An Unfair Burden," and critizing the Legislature for providing that real estate held by banks shall be free from taxation, lacks the spirit of fairness which we have come to look for in the "Press." The first part of the statement is true enough but the impression conveyed that the object of the law was to relieve banks of payment of taxes is another matter. Under the old law the assessors is fixing value of bank stock deducted the value of real estate held by the bank because that was seperately assessed. This law simply provides that no such deduction shall be made, but the stock shall be assessed for its full value. The result is that as the stockholder pays the assessment on full value on the stock, the real estate is really taxed. If the real estate also were taxed it would be double taxation.

COST $25 TO KEEP DECAYED VEGETABLES

Wm. Ross Severely Punished By the City Judge.

STENCH AROUND HIS PLACE

HE HAD NOT HEEDED WARNINGS OF HEALTH INSPECTOR.

The Restauranter and Vegetable Dealer Hauled to City Court This Morning—He Pleaded Guilty, But Was Given Full Penalty of the Law—He Was Very Indignant Over the Treatment.

The odor of decayed vegetables that issued from the basement under the Delmonico Oyster and Chop House on Park avenue, near Front street, has been so strong that all the tenants of the neighboring buildings have been complaining to City Judge Runyon and the Health Board. Yesterday Health Inspector Wm. Addis made a complaint against the proprietor, Wm. Ross, who was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning.

Ross not only runs his little restaurant, but deals in vegetables. He displays them along the sidewalk and stores them in his basement. Ross sometimes forgets to dispose of his remaining stock when business isn't good, but the vegetables do not forget to decay. Ross was arrested during the late Judge DeMeza's term of office. He has been warned repeatedly by the health inspector, but apparently it didn't do any good.

Ross was very indignant when he appeared before the Judge this morning and insisted upon talking. He pleaded guilty, but tried to argue that he wasn't to blame, and that the neighbors exaggerated the stench.

Judge Runyon declared that Ross's establishment was a nuisance, and that he deserved the full penalty of the law. He consequently fined him $25, the extreme limit under the health ordinance. Ross left with the intention of getting a rebate on the fine from the President of the Health Board.

ACCUSED HIS WIFE.

Barber Mann Takes Sudden Leave of the City in Fear of Arrest.

A warrant was issued by City Judge Runyon yesterday for Charles Mann, a colored barber whose establishment is on East Fifth street, near Watchung avenue. The complaint was made by Mrs. Mann who charged her husband with abusing and cruelly assaulting her. She said the trouble was over another woman. The Manns live at 927 Arlington avenue. Mann has run his barber shop for several years and has always appeared to be a quiet and peacefully disposed negro.

One of Mann's colored friends reported to the police last night that he saw Mann riding his wheel in the direction of Elizabeth with two grips strapped to his wheel. It is supposed that he heard of the warrant and departed suddenly. His shop is closed today.

Fireman Found Floor Missing.

Howard Manning, a call man in the No. 3 hose company from the West End engine house, had a narrow escape this morning from injury. He was on duty at the fire at the home of John Ryan, 1025 West Third street. He was instructed to take the stream into the kitchen. He sprang through the window expecting to land on the floor. The floor had been burned away and he fell into a shallow cellar. He was badly shaken up but escaped serious injury.

Bit Gave Way in Horse's Mouth

David S. Dunavan, foreman of Hose Co. No. 1, had a peculiar experience this morning when on the way to the fire, accompanied by Burt Little. When opposite the hospital the bit gave way, allowing the headstall to slip back to the horse's neck. Fortunately the horse is well trained and at the word of command from his driver when he called sharply "whoa!" the faithful animal came to an abrupt stop.

Burial in Plainfield.

The body of Mrs. Nellie Voorhees-Veitch, wife of Charles Veitch, who died at the home of her father, Wm. H. Voorhees, Bergen Beach, yesterday morning, will be brought to Plainfield on Monday on the train leaving New York at 12 o'clock, noon, and be interred in the family plot at Hillside cemetery. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Bergen Beach.

Miss Anna M. Reed, sister of Senator Reed, and Miss Laura Gill, of New York, are in Cuba, assisting in establishing an orphanage for destitute children of the reconcentrados. Two orphanages in Havana and two in Remados have been established by the ladies.

"CACK" CARTER HAS RETURNED AT LAST.

Came in the Grip of Police Sergeant Kiely.

WAS WANTED BY THE POLICE

HE DISAPPEARED MYSTERIOUSLY ON NIGHT OF LEWIS BURGLARY.

"Cack" Carter is One of Plainfield's Characters—Has Had a Remarkable Career—Left Town Suddenly January 30th—Is Charged With Breaking and Entering House of His Stepfather.

There wasn't a man in the Tenderloin that could beat "Cack" Carter when it came to crap shooting. For the last six months "Cack" has been frequenting that district of the great metropolis and living on what his skill in the game could net him.

"Cack" left Plainfield suddenly on the night of Jan. 30th. It is alleged that his stepfather's watch and chain, pocketbook and the pick of the latter's wardrobe accompanied "Cack" on his departure. Yesterday afternoon he returned to Plainfield. This time he was escorted by Sergeant Kiely, of the Plainfield police force.

"Cack," or more properly Walter Carter, is one of Plainfield's characters. His experiences with the police would fill a volume. He has found it necessary on several occasions to absent himself from this city. Once a mob of angry New Brunswickites of color set upon him at a ball in that city and "Cack," who had been making violent love to another man's lady, was compelled to flee for his life.

The last episode, in which he was charged with figuring, was the robbing of the home of his stepfather, Silas, of 428 East Third street. Lewis now lives on Paradise alley. At that time, the night of January 30th, Lewis was coachman for the Pittis family on Central avenue. "Cack" brought word to Mrs. Lewis that her husband wanted to see her at Pittis'. So she departed locking the door while "Cack" apparently departed likewise. She found that her husband did not want to see her. Returning, she found that some one had broken the lock to the front door with a hammer and had gained entrance to the house. Mr. Lewis' watch and chain were gone So was his pocketbook containing $5 in cash. Several suits of clothes, an overcoat, a hat and an assortment of shirts, underclothing and collars and cuffs were among the missing.

They never saw "Cack" again until word came to the police that he was in the Tenderloin plying his trade of crapshooter. A warrant for Carter on the charge of burglary was issued by Justice Nash.

Yesterday afternoon Sergeant Kiely was walking along Broad street, Elizabeth, when he spied the familiar visage of "Cack" approaching from the opposite direction. After seeing the officer, Carter appeared somewhat in a hurry. The Sergeant followed him and "Cack" after reaching a side street near the railroad broke into a run. The Sergeant ran also.

Life in the "Tenderloin" is not conducive to fast running. After a short dash it began to tell on the fleeing negro and the officer of the law began to gain. The Sergeant is a heavy man and the day was warm, but he got over the ground in great shape and rapidly overhauled "Cack." After a run of several blocks, "Cack" felt a powerful arm on his collar and decided that the time had come to capitulate. He did so and the Sergeant put him under arrest and trotted him back to the station and home to Plainfield.

"Cack" was locked up over night. It was expected that he would have a hearing this morning, but the necessary witnesses could not be secured in time and "Cack" was held until this afternoon when his hearing will take place. As Justice Nash is absent, he will appear before Justice Moffett.

Killing Unmuzzled Dogs.

Chief Marshal Campbell, following out instructions, killed a number of dogs yesterday, whose owners did not comply with the law, by having them muzzled and registered. There are still a large number that will be put out of the way, unless the law is adhered to. Mayor Smalley is determined that the letter of the law is lived up to.

MISS SMITH'S WEDDING DID NOT COME OFF.

She Did Not Approve of Her Fiance's Selection of Ushers.

ONE CHOSEN IS A HEBREW.

QUEER END OF A TRENTON HOSPITAL ROMANCE.

The Bride-to-be was a Former Resident of Plainfield and the Groom a Physician and a Former Mayor of Trenton—The Latter Now on Her Way to Europe for Indefinite Time.

(Special to The Daily Press.

Trenton, August 12—The marriage of Miss Ada Smith, formerly a resident of Plainfield, but now a trained nurse at Mercer Hospital, this city, and Former Mayor Joseph B. Shaw, a visiting physician at the hospital, was to have taken place Thursday in Old St. Michael's church, but the invitations were suddenly canceled. No statements regarding the trouble have been made, but friends of Dr. Shaw admit that the wedding was postponed because of a difference of opinion between the contracting parties. In making up the list of ushers for the wedding Dr. Shaw selected Mr. Guld, a business man of this city, and a member of the Fellow Club, to which Dr. Shaw also belongs.

Miss Smith, it is said, objected to Mr. Fuld because he is a Hebrew. Last week the invitations were recalled. Some friends of Dr. Shaw say that the marriage may yet take place, but others say it has been indefinitely postponed.

Yesterday Dr. Shaw and Mr. Fuld sailed for Europe to be gone for an indefinite period.

Miss Smith resided in this city for several years. She is an orphan and was living in the family of A. M. Griffin. She took a liking for her profession and was graduated last month from Mercer Hospital, Trenton. She has many friends in this city who will be sorry to learn of the unpleasant affair.

Miss Smith came to Plainfield yesterday and is now stopping at the home of Morgan Turton, of East Front street.

DEATH OF A LITTLE GIRL.

Taken Suddenly Ill With Cholera Morbus at Kenoza Lake.

The sad news reached Plainfield this morning of the sudden death of Bessie May Addis, aged 3 years, 11 months and 19 days, only child of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Addis, of East Second street. The little girl was spending the summer at Kenoza Lake, N. Y., with her mother and was taken suddenly ill with cholera morbus. She lived a day and half and died last evening. At present Mr. Addis is convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever and is quarantined at his home on East Second street. The many friends of the grief-stricken parents will extend their sympathies in their bereavement. Funeral Director G. W. Cole left today at noon for Kenoza Lake to bring the remains to this city, and the funeral will probably be held Monday, and the body taken to Elizabeth for burial in the family plot.

Tried to Steal Chickens.

A few nights ago three men entered the premises of Mr. Brown on Verdon avenue and made a strong effort to walk away with his chickens. Neighbors were aroused by the noise made by the intruders and they called Mr. Brown, who assisted the men in making their escape by giving them a warning. The thieves were too far away for Mr. Brown to tell who they were, but still he has an idea, and if they come back everything will be in readiness to receive them.

Home From Central America.

J. J. Shafer, Burt Jacoby and his friend Mr. Spencer, have returned from Costa Rica, Central America, where they have been engaged in contract work. Mr. Jacoby says Costa Ricans are a shiftless class and that during the Spanish-American War their sympathies were with the Spaniards, although for business policy they assumed a neutral aspect.

Mr. Sloans' Threat.

Former President Sloan is said to have threatened that unless the new managers of the Lackawanna Railroad stopped discharging his friends he would strive to regain control of the road and discharge all the new men and reinstate all the old ones.

FILIPINOS ARE SCATTERED

The American Troops Occupy Santa Rita and Guagua Without Resistance.

HEAVY RAIN IS FALLING.

Destruction of Railroad Causes Delay in Americans Capturing the Town of Angeles.

Scouting Parties Fail to Locate the Enemy—General MacArthur Resumes Headquarters at San Antonio—Major Bell, With Three Officers, Enters Angeles.

Manila, Aug. 12.—Everything is quiet and a heavy rain is falling.

The towns of Santa Rita and Guagua have been occupied by the Americans without any resistence on the part of the enemy.

Gen McArthur reports that the town of Angeles is half deserted and that the natives are thoroughly scattered.

Owing to the fact that the natives had torn up three miles of the railroad track the town of Angeles is not occupied by the Americans, General Wheaton with the 12th and 17th Infantry and 51st Iowa remaining at Calulut.

The 9th Infantry and a battalion of the 22d Infantry scouted to the southwest, penetrating a distance of ten miles without finding the enemy.

Gen. McArthur with his staff has resumed his headquarters at San Antonio, taking with him Andrew's battery, and will join the other column at San Antonio, which will probably encounter the Filipinos beyond Santa Rica.

Major Bell, with three officers and a sergeant, entered Angeles, charging with pistols and shouting loudly. The Filipinos there, sixty in number, supposed that the Americans were attacking the town in force and were thoroughly routed. They rallied later, however, and Major Bell and his companions retired.

Reports corroborated by Filipino sources say that the enemy's losses in Wednesday's fighting were 60 killed and 200 wounded. The enemy's supply of ammunition was very short. Gen. Mascardo commanded the Filipino forces.

The Americans did the hardest kind of campaigning and hundreds of them were exhausted.

A Despatch From Otis.

Washington, Aug. 12.—This despatch has been received by the War Department:

"Manila, Aug. 11.

"Adjutant General, Washington.

"McArthur has taken possession of Santa Rica. Reconnoitered Porac, Angeles and other points. Filipinos driven north. One casualty yesterday, today, none.

"Condition roads makes movement troops difficult but considered necessary to open this section of country as it virtually gives control of province of Batann and relieves inhabitants there.

THE PENNSYLVANIANS' PAY

Matter Adjusted to the Satisfaction of the Soldiers.

San Francisco, Aug. 12.—The captains in the tenth Pennsylvania regiment have been worried for some time over the fact that the pay of each, up to the amount of $500 was likely to be withheld until some irregularities in the papers transferring state property to the federal authorities could be arranged. Learning that, the committee wired Senators Penrose and Quay requesting their assistance. A despatch has been received here saying that the matter had been satisfactorily adjusted.

Morrison Barclay of company I, who was wounded in the stomach in the Philippines, is in the general hospital here. The army surgeons are to operate on him.

The members of the regiment have voluntarily agreed to recognize the authority of their officers after they are mustered out until after the reception on thier arrival home.

Private Will J. Davis died of pneumonia at the general hospital Thursday night. His body is to be shipped to his home in Alliance, O.

Hobart's Brother Fatally Injured.

Lima, Ohio, Aug. 12.—C. T. Hobart of New York, brother of Vice President Hobart and chief engineer of the Columbus-Lima and Milwaukee Railroad, which is being built northward from this city, met with a probably fatal accident near Gomar, north of this city. The track was being ballasted and he was superintending the work, when, in passing between tracks and a heavy crane, an engine came along and caught him. He was squeezed frightfully and was picked up unconscious and carried to Gomar, where he received medical attendance. He is kept under the influence of opiates nearly all the time, owing to the intense pain he suffers. The doctors attending him say they are unable to determine the full extent of his injjries, but fear that he is fatally injured internally.

Had Their Fingers Blown Off.

Port Jervis, Aug. 12.—Elvin Sherwood and Arthur Berringer, two young men of Roscoe, Sullivan County, in company with Frank Beams, B. Weeks and Charles Gordon, started for Jeffersonville to play a return game with a bowling team of that village. When near North Branch Sherwood and Berringer produced several cannon fire crckers left over from the Fourth of July. Sherwood lit one, holding it in his hand. Young Berringer made a grab for the crcker and while the two were struggling for its possession it exploded, shattering their hands in a terrible manner and blowing off several fingers.

Fell Dead on Sampson's Ship.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Helen A. Sands of New York died suddenly on the steamship New York. She had just ascended the gangway and was about to grasp the hand of Admiral Sampson, who was waiting to receive her, when she fell to the deck and soon expired. Mrs. Sands was 55 years old. She had been spending the summer at South West Harbor, and came from there to visit Rear Admiral Sampson. The body was taken to New York, and the burial will take place in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Steamship's Cargo on Fire.

St. Michaels, Azores, Aug. 12.—The British steamship Cayo Mono, Capt. Friond, from Zaza via Kingston, Jamaica, July 26, for Genoa, has put in here for coal. She reports that on Aug 7, in latitude 35 north, longitude 40 west, she passed the Hamburg-American steamship Venetia, Capt. Schulke, from Hamburg via Grimsby July 27 for the West Indies and New Orleans, and that the Venetia had a fire in her cargo in the third hold, but declined assistance.

John V. Dahlgren Dies in Colorado.

Denver, Col., Aug. 12.—John Vinton Dahlgren, of New York, son of the late Admiral Dahlgren, died here of lung trouble. He arrived here some time ago, and for a time seemed to be improving in health. Weed, of Plattsburg, also called on the President in relation to affairs in the island of Santo Domingo, where Mr. Weed has property interests, which are endangered by the revolution.

Cane Given to Freed Convict.

Baltimore, Aug. 12.—When E. E. Brooks left the State prison here he carried a silver-headed cane, the gift of his admiring fellow convicts. He was a college man from England, who ran out of money and cashed a forged check for $80. He repented, and his example of cheerfulness and helpfulness in prison inspired the convicts.

Don't Die

when within your power to live on, in health and happiness. It is the duty of every man, woman and child to know, that Radam's Microbe Killer destroys every germ or microbe with which it comes in contact when introduced into the human system.

Microbes produce sickness, and, as they multiply in the blood and organs of the body, ptomaines appear also, and death frequently follows.

Radam's Microbe Killer, wonderful remedy that it is, though powerful in destroying microbes of every disease known, is perfectly harmless to humanity. It has cured others—it will cure you; and if you once try it, you will adopt it for every illness.

Should you be interested, or if any of your friends are sick, write for book containing testimonials and advice, mailed free.

Large Bottles, $1.00 and Gallon Jugs, $3.00.

WILL BLOW UP THE MINES

Destruction Threatened in the Event that Great Britain Forces War on Boers.

MAY DO GREAT DAMAGE.

The Mines to be Wrecked and Millions of Dollars' Worth of Machinery to be Destroyed.

Johannesburg Will be Razed if the Threatened Trouble Breaks Out—A German Steamship Arrives at Delagar With War Supplies For the Transvaal.

London, Aug. 12.—The Boer organ in London, the "Standard and Diggers' News," publishes a Johannesburg despatch threatening Great Britain in the event of war, saying the Boers are determined to wreck the mines and irretrievably ruin the general body of shareholders by blowing up millions of dollars' worth of machinery, adding that war will mean the absolute ruin of Johannesburg, both as a town and as a mining centre, and saying:

"While it will doubtless end in a victory for England, the price of that victory will be the ruin of thousands, who ought to consider the price they must pay before authorizing the government to declare war."

Another despatch from Johannesburg, however, predicts further concessions, and says:

"The reply of the Transvaal to the proposal for a joint inquiry is being delayed until the government has prepared a scheme granting the Outlanders immediate and substantial representation, as the Transvaal will make every effort to avert intervention in the internal affairs of the country."

Ready to Send Troops.

Bombay, Aug. 12.—Preparations have been almost completed for the despatch of 12,000 troops to South Africa. A number of transports are in readiness in Indian waters and in the event of war troops will be embarked simultaneously here, at Karachie and at Calcutta.

Has Cargo of Army Stores.

Lorenzo Marquez, Delagoa Bay, Aug. 12.—The German East Africa Line steamship Reichstag has arrived here from Hamburg, Naples and Mombasa with 400 cases of cartridges and other war stores for the Transvaal.

Spain Locks the Door.

Madrid, Aug. 12.—The "Gazette," publishes the verdict of the supreme court-martial, which, in addition to acquitting Generals Toral and Pareja of surrendering Santiago de Cuba without having exhusted all means of defense, orders an additional inquiry to discover the responsibility for the lack of means of defense, which necessitated the capitulation of that place.

Insurance Companies Pay Fines.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 12.—Sixty-eight of the seventy-three ousted insurance companies have paid their fines of $1,000 each. Sunday is the last day for the remaining companies to pay in order to keep from being ousted from the State under the provisions of the anti-trust law, which they can counter to in combining to fix the price of insurance.

Robert L. Walker Bankrupt.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—Robert L. Wlaker, of Poland, Mahoning County, Ohio, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States District Court here. The liabilities are placed at over $100,000 with no assets. President McKinley was formerly connected with Walker in a metal-stamping business.

Odd Fellows Have a Picnic.

West Chester, Pa., Aug. 12.—Two thousand members of the I. O. O. F. attended a picnic given at Lenape Park by Pocahontas Lodge, No. 316, of this place, coming from all portions of Chester and Delaware counties. There were sports of various kinds and many prominent members of the order were present.

Town May be in Darkness.

Marcus Hook, Pa., Aug. 12.—This place will be in darkness after Sunday night, unless the Borough Council and the Burgess can come to an agreement. The present contract has expired, and Burgess Burton has vetoed the resolution awrding a new one to the Pennsylvania Gas Company.

Woman Attacked by a Hog.

Shippenburg, Pa., Aug. 12.—While Mrs. G. W. Myers, a farmer's wife, residing near Bloserville, this county, was attempting to drive a hog into a pen, the brute attacked her and with his tusks terribly lacerated her thigh, from which she is suffering severely and it is feared that she will die.

Adirondack Hotel Burned.

Tribe's Hill, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The Henry Hotel at Blecler in the Adirondacks was burned with its contents. The fire also destroyed a barn and several head of live stock. The persons in the hotel escaped in their night clothes. The loss is $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

Circus Employe Killed.

Bordentown, N. J., Aug. 12.—William Street, an employe of La Pearl's Circus, whose home is at New Brunswick, N. J., was killed by a fall from a pole wagon at Newton, a few miles from here. The wagon was on a train running from Asbury Park to Burlington, where the circus exhibits.

Lynching in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 12.—William Chambers, colored, arrested on a charge of criminal assault, was lynched by hanging near Bell Buckle.

Judge Hilton is Better.

Saratoga, Aug. 12.—Judge Hilton's condition shows a perceptible change for the better.

PLANS FOR CUBAN MILITIA

Gen. Carlos Garcia Wants to Organize a National Guard.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Gen. Carlos Garcia of Cuba was engaged here in the presentation to army officials of plans for the organiztion of a Cuban militia. He had a long conference with Gen. Miles.

The plan presented by Gen. Garcia is to organize several regiments from among the soldiers who fought for Cuban independence into a force which shall constitute a national guard and at the same time perform duties similar to those of the gendarmes of Europe. He thinks the force could be utilized to maintain order and to relieve many of the American soldiers now employed there. It could be classed as a part of the auxiliary force authorized by the last session of congress, but the intention is that it have Cuban officers and be paid out of the Cuban revenue.

So far as he has been able to present the plan to officials in this city, Gen. Garcia says he has received encouragement.

Accident on Elevated Railroad.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A crowded car of the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad swung off the track at High and Adam streets, and the car slewed around until, when it stopped, it lay across the tracks and four feet of the rear end of it hung suspended over the street. At that point the elevated structure is very high, and if the car had not stopped just when it did much loss of live might have resulted. As it were there was a panic among the passengers. Women shrieked and men rushed pell-mell to the front of the end of the car, which was directly over the board walk down the centre of the tracks. The passengers were reassured by the trainmen and bundled out of the car in haste. All trains on both tracks were stalled for over an hour and all brooklynites that do business in New York via the elevated road were compelled to walk long distances and were greatly delayed in reaching their places of business. No one was injured.

Grounded in the Night.

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 12.—One hundred and fifty members of the Washington Club reached here on trolley cars after an exciting experience, the sequel to a moonlight excursion. They started out on the steamer Falcon and in returning grounded on a shoal, a half mile below Sayerville. The boat listed to port and seemed in danger of keeling over altogether. The steam launch Daisy and a number of small boats put off from the shore and after many trips brought all the passengers ashore. E. S. Radel, secretary of the Brunswick Traction Company, drove to Milltown and ordered several trolley cars to convey the w[illegible] party.

Victoria, B. C. Aug. 12.—The Count Festetics, of Austria, who, with his Countess, has been cruising in southern seas in the yacht Tolna, narrowly escped death at the hands of savages. The Tolna had been visiting the larger of the Solomon Islands, the Count taking many chances to secure photographs of head bunting battles and Cannibal feasts, when the savage models developed sudden and fierce hostility. The Count and his party became suspicious of them just in time and, returning to the yacht, were fortunate in getting a favorable wind. As it was, the canoes of the cannibals pursued them for many miles.

Plunged From Burning Balloon.

Binghamton, Aug. 12.—In the presence of twelve hundred people at Owego, N. Y., David McCabe plunged from a blazing balloon, half a mile in the air, and, clinging to a pastly unfolded parachute, landed in the river, slightly burned and badly scared. The mouth of the hot-air balloon was noticed to be smouldering as McCabe cast off. He struggled to free the parachute, but before he succeeded the bag was a mass of flames and had begun to fall. He took a chance jumping into space, and his weight broke the cord holding the parachute.

Clark is en Route to California.

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 12.—Intelligence came from Oval that Leslie T. Clark, who fooled the Willimsport police into dragging the river for his body, also wrote a letter to a young woman in Nippenose Valley, who refused to marry him, stating that he intended to commit suicide, and mailed it at the same time he posted his letter to Chief Stryker. He is en route to California.

Roosevelt Appoints Delegates.

Albany, Aug. 12.—Gov. Roosevelt has appointed the following delegates to the Conference on Trusts, to be held in Chicago beginning on September 13. Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, Hon. John G. Carlisle, Dr. Albert Shaw, Hon. W. Bourke Cockran, George Gunton, F. B. Thurber and Henry White. It is possible that this list may be added to at a later day.

To be Treasurer of Philippines.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Major Charles Kilbourne, Paymaster of the Army, has been appointed to duty as Treasurer of the Philippine Islanus and the Island of Guam. All moneys of the civil government of the islands will be placed in his hands.

KEEP THE WELL, WELL.

"I suspect that I may attribute my recent headaches to doing so much night-work of late," said a lady who earns her own living. "I had an order to address a large number of envelopes and as I was paid by the thousand and others wanted the work, too, I sat up pretty late and perhaps worked in a room not so well ventilated as it might be As a consequence I have more than once had a headache the next day. I have found, however, that if I swallow a Ripans Tabule just as soon as I have a premonition of the trouble, it staves it off and I escape scot free. That is why I say that Ripans Tabules are a medicine for well people, for I am certainly a healthy woman, but I use the Tabules now and then and would not like to be without them."

A new style packet containing TEN TABULES in a paper carton (to the [illegible] price for sale at some drug stores) FOR NEW CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended [illegible] the demand of the [illegible] (12 tabules) can be had by mail [illegible] RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK

Difficulties in Pennsylvania Are to be Arbitrated.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 12.—The 600 striking miners at the Exeter colliery, West Pittston, have resumed work pending an agreement with Mr. Connors, superintendent of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, to receive their committee and hear grievances and proposals and to concede everything demanded that was within bounds.

The Babylon colliery of the Temple Iron Company at Duryea and the Stevens colliery, also at West Pittston, where the men have been on strike for a week with similar complaints to those of the Exeter men, have also resumed work, and their difficulties are expected to be quickly adjusted. At these two mines nearly a thousand workmen were affected.

Miners employed by the Susquehanna Coal Company at Nanticoke and Glen Lyon, who recently struck, have removed all their tools from the mines and have evidently made preprations for a long strike.

The miners at the Delaware and Hudson colliery at Plymouth have, upon demand, been given an increase from $1.75 to $1.90 a day.

Shut up in an Icebox.

Greenport, L. I., Aug. 12.—Harry E. Doyle, a 14-year-old boy, had a narrow escape from being frozen to death. George Doyle, assisted by his brother Harry, were storing meat in a butcher shop. When the boy entered the refrigerator with the last piece of beef without a candle the proprietor, C. B. Higgins, closed the door, believing it left open through carelessness. The boy shouted but could make no one hear through the heavily lined door. About a half hour later one of the clerks had occasion to enter the ice box and found Harry nearly unconscious. His hands, feet, and ears were numb. Medical aid was summoned and the boy was treated and removed to his home. It is said he will suffer no permanent ill effects.

To Strike on New Haven Road.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12.—The telegraphers of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad have prevailed upon the engineers and firemen to join in their cause and to threaten to strike with them next week, if the order is given to go out. It is announced by members of the Order of Locomotive Fireman that they have formulated their demands for a higher schedule of wages. The firemen and engineers made an attempt to consult with the officers of the road and they failed to obtain recognition. They will make another attempt before deciding whether to strike or not.

Motorman Shoots Teamster.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—William T. Caple, a non-union motorman on the Central avenue line of the Big Consolidated Company, fired two shots at William Little, a teamster, both bullets taking effect. In return, Little picked up a hatchet lying on his wagon and hurled it at Caple, striking the motorman in the head and making a frightful wound. The motorman claims that Little called him a "scab" as his car was passing the wagon. This the teamster denies. Caple is in jail upon the charge of shooting to kill. Little was removed to a hospital. Neither of the men is fatally injured.

Dangerous Lunatic Escapes.

Matteawan, N. Y., Aug. 12.—F. W. Cunestensen, an inmate, escaped from the State Criminal Insane Asylum. He had just been photographed and was being taken back to the asylum from the photograph gallery when he broke away from the guards and escaped in a cornfield. Cunestensen was transferred to the Matteawan Asylum from Elmira and is considered dangerous to be at large. He is six feet in height, weighs 180 pounds, and is about 25 years old. When he escaped he had on no coat or vest and wore one slipper. The asylum guards are searching the country for him.

Emperor Opens the Ems Canal.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—Emperor William attended the opening of the Dortmund-Ems Canal. Replying to an address of the Burgomaster, he said he regarded the canal as a work to form a part of a greater whole, which he himself and the Government had inflexibly determined to further, and he hoped the nation's representative would place him in a position to do so before the end of the year.

Murdered at Narragansett.

Narragansett Pier, Aug. 12.—A man's body, bound hand and foot and weighing 200 pounds, was found on the shore off a point three miles from here. He was well dressed, had a blond mustache and was evidently a person of refinement and means. Thirty-five cents, three handkerchiefs and a pair of eyeglasses were the only articles found on him.

Kronman Admitted to Bail.

New York, Aug. 12.—Nathan Kronman, accused of murdering his wife, has been addmitted to bail in the sum of $10,000. At the close of the inquest the Coroner stated that there was not a single circumstance that pointed to the guilt of the prisoner, and said that he did not think it right or just to hold him a prisoner simply on suspicion.

Vengeance on Pirates.

Vancouver B. C., Aug. 12.—Recently a British cargo boat on the Canton was robbed by pirates. The British gunboat Sandpipes chased the pirates to the village of Kamchkat. The robbers refused to restore the goods and the warship destroyed the place.

Rain Stops a Famine.

London, Aug. 12.—Specials from Bombay report rain in Allahabad, Madras, the Deccan and Bengal and showers in Bombay. The Government's anxiety in regard to the possibility of a famine is therefore relieved.

Secret Sessions Are Over.

Rennes, France, Aug. 12.—The Dreyfus court-martial concluded its secret sessions, when M. Chaleologue, of the Foreign Office, completed his explanations of the secret dossier. The court met again this morning.

500 BODIES RECOVERED.

Believe That 6,000 Persons Lost Their Lives in the Porto Rico Storm.

OVER 100,000 DESTITUTE.

Appeal for Aid for Those Who Lost All Their Possessions by the Terrible Hurricane.

Bodies of Men, Women and Children Float Through the Streets in the Rushing Torrents—Cisterns Flooded With Salt Water—The Situation Appaling.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 12.—It is now plain that Ponce was the greatest sufferer by the destructive hurricane. The rivers Portugues and Canas flowed through the city, drowning thousands of people.

Five hundred bodies have already been recovered.

An eye witness, who was on the top of a large stone building in the Alambra Plaza saw the bodies of men, women and children floating in the water in the streets. Every one was paralyzed with fear and unable to render any assistance. The Southern coast was swept clean as far as Yanco, eighteen miles. The towns of Tallaboa and Juan Diaz were destroyed. Only the large church edifices are left standnig.

There is not a drop of water in Ponce to drink. The cisterns are full of salt water from the ocean, and the stench arising from the dead bodies is dreadful.

It is thought that the total death list in consequence of the storm will reach fully 6,000 and it is known that over 100,000 persons are homeless and in need of assistance, which must come without delay or many will necessarily die of starvation and exposure.

The peons have gone to San Juan and its vicinity, which are comparatively uninjured.

The railroad between Ponce and Yauco has been destroyed, and the military road is impassable. The river is flowing over the road for two miles. Mayaguez escaped serious injury.

The water supply of San Juan has been stopped. The Coamo Springs Hotel has been wrecked. It belonged to the Porto Rico Company of Philadelphia.

Practically all of the houses on the outskirts of the city, and those between the city and the port, were of wood, and, of course, would fall quickly before the hurricane or flood. At the port the large tobacco and coffee and fruit warehouses are of stone, as are the hotels and houses of the rich residents of the city. These escaped destruction.

Thus far little detail has been had of the experience of the American troops, but as they have been accustomed to seek the high ground for barracks and tents, it is believed they only have suffered from the wind and not from the flood.

Secretary Root Appeals for Aid.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The following telegram has been sent out by Secretary Root to the Mayors of all cities of 150,000 inhabitants or more:

"August 11.

"The Governor General of Porto Rico confirmes the report that upon the 8th inst. a hurricane swept over that island, entirely demolishing many of the towns, destroying many lives and reducing, so far as can estimate, not less than 100,000 of the inhabitants to the condition of absolute destitution, without homes or food. Unless immediate and effective relief is given, these unfortunate people will perish of famine.

"Under these conditions the President deems that an appeal should be made to the humanity of the American people. It is an appeal to their patriotism also, for the inhabitants of Porto Rico have freely and gladly submitted themselves to the guardianship of the United States and have voluntarily surrendered the protection of Spain, to which they were formerly entitled, confidently relying upon more generous and beneficient treatment at our hands. The highest consideration of honor and good faith unite with the promptings of humanity to require from the United States a generous response to the demand of Porto Rican distress.

This department has directed the immediate distribution of rations to the sufferers by the army of Porto Rico, so far as it is within the power of the Executive; but in the absence of any appropriation we must rely largely upon private contributions.

"I beg that you will call upon the public-spirited and humane people of your city to take active and immediate measures in this exigency. The Government transport McPherson will be sent directly from the port of New York to Porto Rico on Monday, the 14th inst., to carry all supplies of food which can be obtained. Further transports will be sent at future dates, of which public notice will be given.

"Any committee charged with the raising of funds will receive full information and advice upon communicating with this department.

"ELIHU ROOT,
Secretary of War."

Storm Coming This Way.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Reports received by the Weather Bureau indicate that the West Indian tornado will strike the United States coast. Judging from its present path it will centre off Georgia.

It will probably increase in intensity as it passes the Gulf Stream. All ships in Southern ports have been warned not to put out to sea and Northern ships are warned not to sail South.

Pitiable Appeal to Gen. Schwan.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The following despatch addressed to Gen. Schwan was received at the War Department:

San Juan de Porto Rico, Aug. 2.

"My country is devastated. For God's sake, help us. Capt. Lugovina."

Capt. Lugovina is one of the Porto Ricans whom Gen. Schwan met during the campaign.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 13—Rev. M. H. Pogson, D. D., will address the men's rally at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:14 p. m. Good music.

Good Place to Experiment.

To even casual observers of things politicial in New Jersey the determination of Chairman Gourley, of the Democratic State Committee, to secure a more effective organization in the party recommends itself in the light of filling a long felt want.

While the Republicans seem to be in pretty good fighting trim in nearly every section in the State—barring Hudson, possibly—their friends, the enemy, are far from it. From a party standpoint it matters not what has contributed to this condition of affairs; the idea to grapple with is how to remedy it with good effect. In his work at the head of the State organization last fall Mr. Gourley was in a position to realize more than anyone else the need of better political machinery in his party, and he would be a short-sighted and shiftless politician not to take the initiative to put the party into a better organized state.

We presume that it is the intention of Mr. Gourley and his immediate assistants to formulate a general plan of organization, leaving it to the leaders in the various localities to put in operation. From a fairly intimate knowledge of the situation hereabouts it is suggested that there will be no better place to commence a trial of the scheme than in Union county. Once a powerful Democratic county Union has prifted away from the "unterrified" until now it is regarded as assuredly belonging to the G. O. P.; and with the Democratic votes has gone, practically, the Democratic organization.

It is true that in Elizabeth there is a very fair Democratic organization with Major Collins, a genial fellow and a hard party worker, at the head. But Elizabeth—as much as she would like to be undoubtedly—is not the whole county. There is Plainfield, Rahway and Summit, cities of importance, with scarcely a vestage of organization among the Democrats, which results, of course, in the almost the undisputed sway of the Republicans in these communities. And then there are other towns of minor importance that are void of organized Democrats and consequently contributing to put the party at a disadvantage at every election.

Mr. Gourley and his assistants will find a worthy and large field in Union county for experimenting in reorganizing the party on a firm basis.

The Governor Must Act.

No matter what political considerations there may be at stake in the matter of the Girl's Industrial School scandal at Trenton, Governor Voorhees will evidence a cowardly and wrong spirit if he attempts to smother a thorough enquiry into the serious charges that now fill the air in connection with the management of that institution.

It would seem that the affidavit sworn to by Miss Day, in which she charges the most extreme cruelty and brutality on the part of Mrs. Eyler, the superintendent, towards the helpless girls committed to her care, would make it impossible for the Governor to do anything but conduct a searching investigation.

To read the story told by the nurse fairly makes one's blood boil with mingled pity and indignation at the brutal practices visited upon the harmless young being who had excited the unreasonable ire of the superintendent. The story may be slightly exaggerated, but even giving Mrs. Eyler the benefit of this doubt there is an air of truthful narration about the affidavit that stamps it as worthy of the most serious consideration by the Governor and the people, whom he represents.

If Mrs. Eyler is the monster that she is painted in the statement of Miss Day her punishment should not consist simply of retirement from her official position, but it should be followed up with court proceedings that will place her liberty in the jeporady that the alleged offense demands.

The charges against her are sufficient, if proven, to send her to prison for a term.

A Set-back to Thrift.

The discouraging of thrift is not the least of the harmful effects of a bank wreck, if the following story, told by the Perth Amboy Norwegian, is true:

The fellow had been in this country a few years and had been employed at the smelting works. He was thrifty and frugal and had a few hundred dollars saved up. He kept them in an old sock in his bureau drawer. Shopmates learned of his treasure. One morning he awoke to find that he had been robbed. He profited by his experience, and thereafter put his money in the Middlesex County Bank. He had a few more hundred dollars saved when the bank collapsed. Now he is reported as soliloquizing: "Eat all you want; drink all you want; raise hell. Saving money no good."

Referring to the fact that Somerset County Board of Freeholders has increased the total of appropriations for the maintenance of the county government $5,000 over that of last year, the Somerville Unionist-Gazette seems to be in a doubting mood as to the expediency of the increase. The Gazette says: "It does seem as though the expenses of the county in other ways are increasing more rapidly than is warranted. It is the little things that tell in every business and the same is true in public matters. The increases in each department last year were not large, but altogether they counted up to several thousand dollars. Every taxpayer is interested in the increase of the county ratables. We believe that the expenditure for better roads is a good investment, but the Freeholders should be careful not to let other expenses run away with the people's money."

Elizabeth will not lose the official services of Controller Carlton, who for the last sixteen years has had charge of the finances of Elizabeth. Mr. Carlton, who is president of the Union Electric systems of New Jersey, resigned on July 29, but Mayor Mack and other city officials urged Mr. Carlton to remain in office, so he has withdrawn his resignation.

The Union Democrat at Rahway celebrates its sixtieth birthday with its issue this week. It is the oldest weekly in the county, but keeps up its pace with this day and age quite as well as some of its younger contemporaries.

—At an early date the Plainfield Electric Light Company will begin the work of placing their wires underground where the conduits have been laid.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

New Jersey will soon eclipse the State of Maine as a ship-building centre. Camden and Elizabethport are already famous in that line, the former to become more so through the establishment of the great New York Shipbuilding Company's plant, now in course of erection. Two large ship-building concerns are now negotiating for the purchase of a small plant at Perth Amboy, where it is proposed to establish yards for the building of steel ships. The industrial prosperity of New Jersey, it is plain, continues to grow in volume.—Camden Courier.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The wife of a Mr. Moon presented him with a fine boy. This was a new moon. The father celebrated the event by drinking himself full. This was the full moon. When he awoke from his drunken stupor all he had left in his pocket was 25 cents. This was the last quarter. His mother-in-law beat him over the head with a club, thus giving him a total eclipse.

* * * * *

There is a yellow jacket that is the sworn enemy of the members of the Park Golf Club and all who play on the course owned by that popular club. The yellow jacket haunts the neighborhood of the third hole, commonly known as the "Spring." He takes up his abode in the high grass on the right of the course and lays in wait for the unwary. A sliced ball dropped into the grass brings many an unsuspecting golfer within stinging distance of the naughty insect. Then he enters upon his campaign and immediately thereafter the golfer can be seen going through all sorts of wierd gyrations while the air takes on a surphurous tinge. No one has yet been able to capture Sir Yellow Jacket although several have offered considerable money to see him dead before them. The caddies have so far escaped but they shun the dreaded spot with much care.

THEATRICAL.

There is no mistaking the quality of George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels. It naturally comes under that dry goods generalization, "All wool and a yard wide!" That the quantity is generous will also be made evident to any person who glances through this list of comedians, singers, dancers and specialists which have been gathered together for this season's tour. The comedy element in the first part includes George Thatcher, Dan Waldron, Billy Martin, Dan Riley, Fred Price, John Quinn and others. The vocal corps number several of world-wide fame, and many who will certainly become famous. Special attention has been given to the selection of specialists for the olio. Heading this list comes the Famous Big Four, who are the originators of pantomine in black-face, followed by the world's greatest clay modeler and pastel artist, Allen Wightman. The Four Musical Avons, the justly conceded kings of harmony; the singing and dancing comedy duo, Niblo and Riley; The Four Singing Rochleys in an up-to-date act, and last but not least George Thatcher, the world's greatest monologue artist. The performance will be given all in black-face, not an uncorked face being seen from the rise to the fall of the curtain. At the Stillman Music Hall Friday, August 18th.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Reuick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

STORE NEWS AT Woodhull & Martin's.

This is the so called "Dull Season!" and news of startling character are just a little scarce. We have been telling you from day to day of the low prices we are making on all Summer Goods, and you may be tired of the subject, nevertheless the closing out sales are of paramount interest to those who find it neccessary to make a dollar go as far as possible. Shirt Waists, for instance, may be had for about ½ half the price of a month ago. Styles the best, and goods in perfect condition. Many are buying wash goods at the sadly cut prices, with the view of using them next season. Wise people they are too. Pique Skirts, Crash Skirts, Lawn Dressing Sacks, etc., are being lamentably sacrificed, but our policy is no goods to be carried over, and we take our medicine without campaint.

ABOUT RIBBONS.

We seldom mention our Ribbons because our sales in this department are constantly growing, still in justice to the public in general we should like to say that we sell only good Ribbons, and carry regular lines so that shades may be matched perfectly from time to time, a wonderful convenience as may of our customers can testify. Narrow Velvet Ribbons in both Satin Back and Linen Back.

Our Gent's Furnishing Department is a store in itself, and an important adjunct to an establishment like ours. It is an established fact that Department Stores can and do undersell Specialty Stores, and it does seem especially true of Gent's Furnishings.

.... DOWN STAIRS ....

Our Basement is a panorama of Furniture, Bedding and Housefurnishing goods of every kind Not a day passes but new goods are placed on Sale and others are closed out. THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug. 12.—The exhibition of trained horses at New Market Thursday attracted a large crowd. The trick horse "Mascott" was very clever. The animal's feat of catching a ball pleased the crowd immensely. But not more so than did the efforts of Master Willie Clark and "Howdy" Logan, who endeavored to imitate the pony. The horse caught the ball in its mouth four times out of five, but the boys could not do as well. Master Clark succeeded in catching the ball but once in his mouth, while his efforts to repeat the performance proved as ludicrous as they were awkward.

Rev. Martin Sindall, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will preach at the Methodist church tomorrow in the absence of Rev. Mr. Jamieson. Sunday, August 20th, J. H. Manning, general secretary of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., will give a short talk, and on the 27th, morning and evening, Rev. Thomas McDonald, of Hackettstown Seminary, will supply the pulpit.

Miss Emma L. Pizie, the postmistress at New Market, is enjoying her vacation. The New Market Board of Education will meet in the school house next Tuesday evening.

The Lincoln Realty Company has accepted the offer of H. Dugan for the foundry property on the south side of the railroad, and he will soon take possession.

Rev. A. S. Phelps will hold services at Holy Innocents' church tomorrow. There will be Holy Communion at 8:45 a. m. and service and sermon at 3:30 p. m.

The bid of W. H. Cole to furnish 30 tons of coal for the use of the public schools of the borough at $5 per ton has been accepted by the Board of Education.

"A nickel a week society" has been organized at the Methodist church. Its object is to attempt to cancel the floating debt of the church within a year.

H. H. Camman, watchman at the Lincoln steel works, has moved into town with his family and taken the Kenyon house.

The incubator works at Lincoln are running on full time. A shipment was made this week to a party in New Bedford, Mass.

An eye glass case was left at the post office, and the owner can reclaim it by calling upon Miss Gaskill, the postmistress.

The recently organized band of New Market will meet for practice at Day's printing shop next Tuesday evening.

The friends of Miss Margaretta L. Egel will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from a severe illness.

Peter Polhemus, of Princeton, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Polhemus this week.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 12.—The young people of the Baptist church are arranging for a trolley party over the entire line of the Plainfield road Wednesday evening next. The pleasant affair is being arranged by the young people but this does not exclude their friends who would like to enjoy the outing with them.

Rev Mr. Shott will preach Sunday morning from the text "Render and Take," and in the evening "Delivered From This Generation." Mr. Shott expects a delegation of young men from the North Baptist church, of New York city, who will visit him for the day for the purpose of worshiping with their old pastor.

Part of the large assembly room in the public school has been arranged as a class room to meet the growing demand for room in the building. Desks have been placed in position, and when school opens the new room will be used by Prof. Morey's pupils.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

To Receive Dewey at the Eden Musee.

When Admiral Dewey reaches New York, he will find that no amusement place has taken so great preparation to welcome him as the Eden Musee. For weeks the artists have been at work making new groups and remodelling old groups. The Musee will present a military appearance. They have a peculiar way at the Musee of making a group prominent by giving it a peculiar position. This will be done with the host of army and navy groups in the Musee for the celebration. There will be lots of other groups but the general impression will be that everything represents the army and navy. All the heroes of both will be represented. Some of the battleships will be shown in sections with paintings in the background to give effect, while the stars and stripes will be everywhere. In addition the Cinematograph will exhibit war views every hour and if Admiral Dewey visits the Musee he will have an opportunity of seeing familiar scenes in and around Manila. The Neopolitan Orchestra will present patriotic airs and sing patriotic songs both afternoon and evening.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

TOILET HINTS.

Suggestions With Regard to the Hair and Complexion.

The hair is worn upon the top of the head this year, and the fashionable coiffure is therefore particularly becoming to short women and stout faces. A fluffy style still prevails, but the hair may be parted, drawn straight back or rolled into a pompadour puff.

To prevent the complexion from being red and oily, nothing is better than to wash the face twice daily in very warm water to which has been added several drops of tincture of benzoin.

Dry, thin and brittle nails should be rubbed daily with vaselin. If this treatment is persisted in for a month, they will become flexible and brilliant.

RED COSTUME.

The habit of washing the hands very frequently tends to render them hard and dry. If the occupation is such as makes washing often necessary, instead of dipping the hands in water they may be rubbed with lemon juice, which will clean them and whiten them as well, without injuring the skin.

The cut shows a gown of red serge, having a double skirt trimmed with white mohair braid. The stretched bodice has a blouse front, with a quadruple sailor collar of white canvas embroidered with red. The plastron is of red striped with white. The cravat is white, and the close sleeves are trimmed with white braid at the wrists. The hat of white Manila straw is trimmed with a drapery of red tulle and with white feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TRIMMINGS.

Laces, Beading and the Narrowest of Narrow Ribbons.

When lace is the trimming employed, as it almost always is at present, it is more or less ruffled, according to its width and weight. If it is very wide and light, it is made very full, but if it has a heavy design or is narrow the fullness is scanty. There are certain thick laces which have so solid a pattern that they should always be used quite plainly and not gathered at all.

The muslins, lawns and nainsooks used for little girls' dresses have preferably a small design—a little dot, a fine stripe, a small flower—and are worn over white instead of above a colored underdress. The form of making is simple, the skirt being gathered all around at the waist and sewed to the bodice, which fastens at the back. Insertion and little ruffles with a heading are the trimmings most worn, and beading used as insertion, with the narrowest of black velvet or colored or white satin ribbons run through the holes, is extremely fashionable.

SUMMER GOWN.

The sketch shows a charming gown of foulard. The skirt, which has a red ground with white designs, is partly covered by a pointed tunic of plain red foulard. The figured bodice has a sort of yoke of the red foulard, encircling which is a scarf of the figured goods with short ends in front, simulating a capuchon. Buttons decorate the front of the yoke. The sleeves are of figured foulard, the collar of plain red, which is lined with the figured goods where it turns over. Red cuffs finish the sleeves.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

He Was "Venerables."

Dickens had a whimsical dislike to being called "grandfather" and to being "regarded in that light." In a letter to a friend he wrote: "I can never imagine myself grandfather of four. That objectionable relationship is never permitted in my presence. I make the mites suppose that my lawful name is 'Venerables,' which they piously believe."

SOME QUEER RINGS

ODD SUBSTITUTES FOR THE GOLD BAND WORN BY BRIDES.

One Titled Lady Married With a Curtain Ring—A Scarfpin Which Was Used in an Emergency—An Instance Where a Quoit Was Pressed Into Service.

Incidents in which the marriage service has to be temporarily suspended while bridegroom and best man tumble over one another and murmur strange nothings as they vainly search for a missing ring are by on means so uncommon as one might imagine. This fiasco is usually brought about through an excess of caution.

The groom, being afraid perhaps to trust to his own memory upon such a momentous occasion, hands over the precious circlet to the best man for safe custody. The latter, who, by the way, is no more in the habit of carrying loose wedding rings about than is the groom himself, places the ring for safety in as out-of-the-way place as he can possibly think of in the brief time at his disposal. Before he has had time to properly commit the hiding place to memory he is seized by half a dozen importunate small fry and hurried off to attend to something else.

The consequence is that the admonitory stage whisper of the officiating minister to "have the ring ready" falls upon him like a bolt from the blue. Where the dickens did he put it? It was somewhere close handy, he is sure of that. But where, oh, where?—and a cold perspiration breaks out all over him as he realizes that the service has stopped, and the reproachful glances of the whole company are turned upon him, the rascally culprit who has mislaid the ring.

It is useless to pursue the scene further. Any one possessed of the slightest fund of imagination will readily picture to himself the frantic scene of flurry which inevitably follows, more especially if the contracting parties are sufficiently well known to secure a large and fashionable attendance at the church. Suffice it to say that it is a position in which not a few best men find themselves in the course of a year, and many are the expedients by which they endeavor to extricate themselves from what is at the best of times a particularly unpleasant dilemma.

The duchess of Hamilton is said to have been married at Mayfair with a curtain ring; while, a bridal party at Colchester were forced to fall back upon the ring of the church key. Even this case, however, was capped by one which occurred at Stratford when the only ring obtainable was an extempore one of kid, cut upon the spot from the bridegroom's glove.

Some couples are particularly improvident in this respect. One couple who were at their wits' end what to do for a ring, were considerably relieved by an inspiration of the best man. Gallantly plucking forth a huge horseshoe scarf pin from his tie of many colors, he broke off the pin, bent the soft metal shoe round his finger, and, with the air of an Angelo admiring his chef d'oeuvre, handed the brazen circlet to his pal. Another couple got over the difficulty by using a coin from which the center had been removed, and which curiously enough, the groom was carrying in his pocket at the time.

The most curious ring of all, however, was that employed by a dock laborer, who by some means or other, had mislaid the more conventional article on his way to church. Casting about in his perplexity for a suitable object wherewith to embellish the finger of this charmer, his eyes suddenly fell upon one of the quoits with which he and the best man were subsequently matched to play for the price of the dejeuner at a neighboring tavern.

Despite the protests of the lady and the guffaw of his companions, the groom insisted upon going through the ceremony with the aid of this ponderous plaything; and, since the only alternative was to indefinitely postpone the event, the lady put the best face on the matter by accepting the quoit—and the docker.

Where Women Propose.

In the Ukraine, Russia, the woman does all the courting. When she falls in love with a man she goes to his house and informs him of the state of her feelings. If he reciprocates all is well, and the formal marriage is duly arranged. If, however, he is unwilling, she remains there, hoping to coax him to a better mind. The poor fellow cannot treat her with the least discourtesy, nor has he the consolation of being able to turn her out, as her friends in such a case would feel bound to avenge the insult. His remedy, therefore, if determined not to marry her, is to leave his home and stay away as long as she is in it. A similar practice to that in the Ukraine exists among the Zuni tribe of Indians. The woman does all the courting and also controls the situation after marriage. To her belong all the children, and descent, including inheritance, is also on her side.

In the island of Banquey there is a tribe of Dusuns differing widely in language, religion and customs from other tribes bearing that name. Marriages are performed in the forest in the presence of two families. There is no public gathering or feast. The rite consists in transferring a drop of blood from a slight cut in the calf of the man's leg to a similar cut in the woman's leg. After marriage the man takes the bride to her home, where he resides in future as a member of the family.

Washing the Hair.

Hair should be washed once in three or four weeks, and then not in borax or soda, but with a well-beaten egg, rinsing the scalp and long locks in many waters to remove all stickiness. Some advise brushing, others think it is not good for the hair, but all agree that the tresses should be loosened at least once a day, and allowed thoroughly to air.

Pearl Thimbles.

An exchange tells us that the wealthiest Chinese ladies have thimbles carved from enormous pearls, with bands of fine gold, on which are engraved all sorts of fantastic things. The etchings serve for catching the needle. These thimbles have cases of mother of pearl.

HOW TO BANISH TROUBLES.

Make Them Known to the Lord and He Will Find a Way.

Hannah Whitehall Smith once knew a woman who carried a heavy burden that was driving sleep away and undermining her health. She has told the following incident of how it was banished:

"One day when it seemed especially heavy, she noticed lying on the table near a little tract called "Hannah's faith." Attracted by the title, she picked it up and began to read it, little knowing that it was to create a revolution in her whole experience.

"The story was of a poor woman who had been carried triumphantly through a life of unusual sorrow. She was giving the history of her life to a kind visitor on one occasion, and at the close the visitor said feelingly, 'Oh, Hannah, I do not see how you could bear so much sorrow!'

"'I did not bear it,' was the quick reply; 'the Lord bore it for me.'

"'Yes,' said the visitor, 'that is the right way. We must take our troubles to the Lord.'

"'Yes,' replied Hannah, 'but we must do more than that; we must leave them there. Most people,' she continued, 'take their burdens to him, but, they bring them away again, and are just as worried and unhappy as ever. But I take mine, and I leave them with him, and I come away and forget them. If the worry comes back, I take it to him again; and I do this over and over until at last I just forget I have any worries, and am at perfect rest."

Lift Christ Up.

"And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

That is not so much a promise as a description of how righteousness works.

We could afford to spend less time persuading men, and more in illustration of Him. The genuine thing draws, and does not need editing. All men want to be saved, but they would rather be damned than be fooled.

Obversely, the Scripture is just as true: And I, if I be cheapened and belittled, will repel all men from Me.

Everybody turns away in disgust from a "little" man in a "big" place, and in this wrong-headed but clear-headed old world a cheap and nasty Christianity will not go. Men do not reason in the abstract. They go by their eyes and ears, mostly, and the average Christian is the vulgar definition of Christ.

Until Christianity shows more power over Christians it can make no strong appeal to "the world." If Christ save not the found, what message has He for the lost?

If all men are not drawing to Christ, it is because He is not being "lifted up." That proposition seems unanswerable.

—John G. Woolley, in The Voice.

—The trolley came to a standstill. "What is the matter?" "The power is off!" Exactly! That is what is the matter with many a gospel car. "The power is off." Connect quickly with the "power" and move on as aforetime. —Christian Standard.

The Safest Bank.

"When I am a man," said Tom, "I intend to put my money in the safest bank in the world."

"Which bank is that?" inquired Tom's father.

Tom hadn't thought of the matter.

As he talked it over with his father, he found there were more things than he had dreamed of to render banks uncertain—fire, flood, burglars, panics, dishonest employees, so that even the strongest in the world might be compelled to suspend payment.

"But, papa," Tom asked in dismay, "isn't there one sure of keeping his promises?"

"There is One who has never forgotten or broken a promise. His promises are dated thousands of years back. They are scattered over the world. Not one of them has ever been refused redemption.

"O, that's the bank for me!"

He handed Tom a Bible.—Christian Endeavor World.

A Remarkable Record.

"I used to ask myself," said a resident of New York City a few years ago, "why a certain church was full of all sorts and conditions of people, listening earnestly to the gospel preached by a plain, unremarkable speaker. I learned afterward that this preacher had made it a rule for twenty-five years never to let a day pass without speaking to at least one unconverted soul on the subject of salvation by Jesus Christ." Think of that record—one a day for twenty-five years!—Forward.

It is not easy to ruin him with whom the pressure of Christ's hand yet lingers in the palm.—J. H. Shorthouse.

THE DAY OF REST.

O sweet, fair day of silence,
When echoes come and go,
Of voices praising him, the King,
Who died so long ago.

As though in benediction
It brought us nearer heaven,
His face to see, his own to be—
Day sweetest of the seven.
—Selected.

A LEGEND OF ST. NICHOLAS.

The Punishment of the Father Who Did Not Fulfil His Promise.

A certain man, who was very desirous of having an heir to his estate, vowed that, if his prayer were granted, the first time he took his son to church he would offer a cup of gold on the altar of St. Nicholas. A son was granted, and the father ordered the cup of gold to be prepared; but when it was finished, it was so wonderfully beautiful that he resolved to keep it for himself, and caused a silver one of less value to be made for the saint.

After some time, the man went on a journey to accomplish his vow; and, being on the way, he ordered his little son to bring him water in the golden cup he had appropriated, but in doing so the child fell into the water, and was drowned.

Then the unhappy father lamented himself, and wept, and repented of his great sin. And, repairing to the church of St. Nicholas, he offered up the silver cup; but it fell from the altar; and a second and third time it fell; and while they looked on astonished, behold! the drowned boy appeared before them, and stood on the steps of the altar, bearing the golden cup in his hand. He related how the good St. Nicholas had preserved him alive, and brought him there. The father, full of gratitude, offered up both the cups, and returned home with his son in joy and thanksgiving.—Mrs. Jameson's "Sacred and Legendary Art."

The Two Kinds of Self-Denial.

All life is a system of self-denial. The wicked man denies himself as much as the most conscientious Christian. The difference is in the kinds of things toward which the self-denial is applied. Daniel denied himself the wine and highly seasoned meats of the king's court in order that he might keep his head clear and his body strong and vigorous. Belshazzar, on the other hand, denied himself a clear head in order that he might have the present pleasures of wine-drinking. Daniel could not get along without prayer and reverent worship toward God, but he could get along without drunkenness. Belshazzar could not do without his sprees, but he could do without the prayer-meeting. The difference in destiny of the two men, the one coming to old age in honor and nobility, and the other going down in a drunken revel, was the logical outcome of the several paths of self-denial they had been pursuing from their youth.—Dr. L. A. Banks.

Perfumed Garments.

A very effective way of exalting Christ before the world is to live in such close friendship with him that we will gather in our own lives the sweetness and beauty of his character. There is a valley in Romania which is almost entirely given up to the cultivation of roses; for miles and miles on every side stretch the rose gardens. Their fragrance fills the air and scents everything that comes into the valley. It is said that travelers stopping over for a few days in this valley become so perfumed in their garments with the fragrance of the roses that it clings to them for days afterward. It will be like that if we associate intimately with Jesus Christ. The fragrance of his love and hope and sympathy will cling to us and make Christ seem lovable to those who know him not.—Dr. L. Albert Banks.

Be Clean First.

"That is an excellent expression of Stephen Grellet's: 'You have been starched, but not washed.' Anything to avoid the washing process! The main thing is to get the starched effect! Now the divine method goes deeper; it begins with the washing. Religion never polishes up an old corrupt life; it does not simply put stiffening into our soiled lives. It cleanses, it purifies, it whitens."—The American Friend.

—A man got in his wagon and found his horse could not move, because it was still "hitched at the mouth." For the same reason some of us cannot move on. No vessel can leave its dock until the last shore line is loosed or snapped.—Christian Standard.

Accept Jesus Now.

Procrastination is the great thief of souls.

The enemy of mankind endeavors first to persuade men that the Christian religion is nothing but a cunningly devised fable, and failing in that, his great cry is "Not now; some other time."

Many who are almost persuaded to accept Jesus as their Saviour, are deceived by the thought of a more convenient season, and say not to-night, seeming to forget that now is the accepted time and this is the day of Salvation. We should remember that to-morrow is not our's, and accept Jesus now.—The Religious News.

Do Your Duty.

All that you and I are responsible for is doing our duty. Ours is the seeding, and God alone beholds the end of what is sown. How do we know how much good we accomplish when we do any good thing or utter any truth in love? Eternity will be full of surprises to us. Wait and see. —Theodore L. Cuyler.

TREASURE STIL THERE

One Farmer That Was too Smart For the Bunco-Steerer.

"There are folks who imagine that every farmer is dead easy to swindle," said the broad-shouldered agriculturist while the lightning-rod theory was under discussion, "but they make a great mistake there. Any traveling swindler will find ten victims in town to one in the country. The farmer has to get his eyeteeth cut early in the game or lose his acres. There is hardly a day in the year that some one is not trying to get the better of him, and most of us can see through a stone wall as well as any other class. Lord save ye, but I'll bet I turn down more rascals in a month than any lawyer, doctor or merchant does in five years. Do you see these knuckles? Well, I bruised them against a fellow's head only four days ago, and it was rather a funny thing. He was a well-dressed, soft-talking stranger, and he drove up to my place and took me out to the barn for a private interview. I rather expected he wanted to sell me a gold brick, but he had a better thing. After a good deal of mystery he said:

"'Mr. Thimpson, there is a treasure of $100,000 in gold buried on your farm and if you'll give me $1,000 I'll locate the exact spot.'

"That trick is as old as the hills. I have turned it down twenty different times. You see, they always want their $1,000 in advance. Then they tell you not to dig until the moon is full, and so have time to get away. When they don't do it that way they have a box planted for you to dig up. There is no key to it, and while the farmer is taking it to town to have it opened the fakir is traveling the other way. They won't wait for their thousand out of the box, and always have a good reason why. This chap said the hundred thousand was stolen from a bank years before, and his conscience wouldn't let him touch a coin. My conscience didn't come into the deal at all you know.

"I was just getting over a boil on my neck and was still feeling angry, and I determined to give that chap a lesson. He was willing to go with me and point out the field in which the treasure was buried. He led the way across the pasture to a cornfield, and said it was somewhere under the ten acres of soil. He was asking me if I could raise the thousand when I let drive at him. He went end over end and got up and started on a run. There was a barbed wire fence around the lot, with my old dog holding the only gate, and we had fun for about an hour. At least it was fun for me. He had some spunk and was a good runner, but he'll never forget that hour as long as he lives. I had been swindled on a patent gate, Bohemian oats, a parlor organ, Leghorn chickens and other things, and I made him pay up for all. When I wanted a breathing spell the old dog kept him on the run, and I got his hat and pieces of his coat, trousers and shirt nailed up on the barn door as a warning to other chaps of his profession. He dropped a wallet with $60 in it and I don't hardly think he'll come back for it. I think he'll head for the West and a new set of people, and go out of the buried treasure business."

A Deceitful Fly.

Two men were standing outside a jeweler's window, admiring the gorgeous display of glittering gems that lay before them. Presently one of them, pointing to an object in a red plush tray, said:

"Just look at that scarf-pin representing a fly. Any one can tell that's not real."

"Well, I should think so," answered his friend. "Whoever saw a common fly with such a bright appearance? If I saw that on a man's scarf I could tell directly that it was enameled imitation."

At that moment the object of their condemnation moved across the tray, flew in the air and vanished. The two men looked at each other, gasped and moved away without a word.

A Crow Hatchery.

Brookville, Pa., has a crow hatchery, said to be the only one in the world. This bird's jet black head makes a handsome trimming for ladies' hats, and milliners are credited with paying 25 cents for each head. The eggs of crows hatch in an ordinary chicken incubator in fifteen days, and in eight weeks the birds are big enough to be guillotined.

Farm Hands Wanted.

Five thousand white farm hands are wanted by the Hawaiian sugar planters to meet the conditions imposed by the Hawaiian government upon the grant of a privilege to import more contract laborers from Japan, which conditions are that an equal number of Caucasians shall be induced to immigrate to the islands for every 5,000 Asiatics hereafter to be admitted.

TOMB OF ESTHER

Recent Explorations In Hamadan, Persia, Led to Its Discovery.

The tomb of Esther and Mordecai, the famous characters in the Biblical book of Esther, has been discovered in Hamadan, Persia, and the inscriptions on the sarcophagi and the tomb itself read and translated. This discovery is most timely, for some writers have tried to discredit the Biblical story and the festival of Purim, which goes back to it for a basis.

Every reader of Scripture is familiar with that strange tale of the Jewish maiden whose beauty so touched the King of Persia that he took her for his wife and placed her on his throne by his side. The Jews of Hamadan show this tomb of the hero and heroine of the Bible story to all travellers with no small pride, for in it lies their title to nobility, one of their own people having actually reigned with the king.

This tomb has evidently been added to at various periods, and is now sixty feet high. The entrance is to the left of the center, leading into an outer passage. To the left is the tomb of some ancient savage and to the right the tomb of an old physician, with a stand bearing lamps and oil in front of it.

A wall separates the sacred part from this outer section. At its wesern end a door leads to the principal part of the tomb. To the right is Mordecai's tomb and to the left Esther's, separated from each other by a corridor along which pilgrims pass going around the sarcophagi. In a niche is a scroll of the law, and an ostrich egg is suspended beneath the dome, as is the custom in all Persian tombs.

The sarcophagi are made of dark wood, evidently of great antiquity, and are covered with inscriptions in Hebrew. On Mordecai's sarcophagus is this inscription:

"Here is the holy ark of Mordecai the Righteous. May his merits protect us! Amen."

The same inscription is repeated on each side of the coffin, beside these verses from the Bible:

"Now, in Shushan, the palace, there was a certain Jew, whose name was Mordecai, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish, the Benjaminite, son of——"

TOMB OF ESTHER AND MORDECAI.

"Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily; and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy reward."

"Therefore, my heart is glad, and my glory rejoices; my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt show me the path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy, at thy right hand there are pleasures forever more."

On Esther's Sarcophagus are these inscriptions.

"Here is the ark in which is interred Esther the Righteous. May her merit protect us! Amen."

"Then Esther, the queen, the daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai, the Jew, wrote with all authority, to confirm this second letter of Purim."

"And the decree of Esther confirmed these matters of Purim; and it was written in the book. And the king, Ahasuerus, laid a tribute upon the land, and upon the isle of the sea."

Fac-similies of the inscriptions have been taken from plaster impressions now in the possession of Dr. Zadoc Kahn, chief rabbi of France.

The Woman Porter of Martinique.

At the age of nine or ten she can carry a heavy basket or tray containing a weight of from twenty-five or thirty pounds, says Chamber's Journal. She then begins to go on long peddling journeys with her mother, elder sister, or responsible female friend, walking barefoot as many as fifteen miles a day. At eighteen she is vigorous and tough as a mountain pony, and, like most mountain-bred women, she is comely. She carries now upon her head a tray and burden of from 120 to 150 pounds, earning less than 30s. a month by travelling fifty miles a day as an itinerant seller. Forty or fifty miles a day, always bearing a burden of over 100 pounds—for stones are added as the tray is emptied of merchandise, to maintain the customary weight—and this for an income of a franc a day! Out of this franc she has her food and sleeping quarters to procure, and her clothes to get. Twenty francs a year will keep her in clothes.

A brief chemise and a light calico robe constitute her travelling apparel. On her head she wears a soft toche, or pad, upon which the tait (tray) is placed. She wears no shoes; she needs none. The soles of her feet are toughened to something like india-rubber, feeling no asperities of surface, bidding defiance to the sharpest flints. Her food is simple—5 sous a day for bread or biscuits, a few sous for ragout, a few sous for some cheap liquor to mix with her drinking water; perhaps 15 sous in all. Her sleeping quarters might be expected to bring her daily expenses up to a franc; nevertheless, such is her ability to economize that she not only manages to live on her income, (which seems incredible,) but actually saves enough to set herself up in some simple business when her youth and physical powers decline.

"That man cheated me out of a cool million."

"Ah!—wouldn't let you marry his daughter, I suppose?"

"No; he let me marry her, and doesn't give us a cent."—Detroit Free Press.

THE JUDGE'S MISTAKE

Mr. Woodward Intends to Frighten the Guests, and He Succeeds.

Judge E. B. Martindale, of Indianapolis, Ind., owns one of the handsomest residences in that city—a large stone mansion hidden from the street by a thick grove of trees. It was in this house that one of the most exciting functions ever known in the Hoosier capital took place many years ago, for the first time. The Judge, who was one of the leaders of society and at the same time was a pillar in the Presbyterian Church, had issued invitations for a fancy dress ball, which at the last moment he had to withdraw because of the presence in this country of a large body of Presbyterian delegates from Great Britain on their way to an international conference in the West.

They were to be entertained at the Judge's on the night set for the ball. It so happened that every guest received his notice save one, a merchant named Woodward, who was on a trip through the Northwest. It also happened that Mr. Woodward had hit upon the most startling disguise of any planned. He had bought a complete costume of a Sioux war chief and intended making up as nearly like the original as possible.

Mr. Woodward did not return to Indianapolis until the evening fixed for the ball, and, therefore, to save time put on his costume at his office and drove to the Martindale residence in his carriage, which he dismissed at the gate. Through the trees and shrubbery he glided stealthily until he reached the house. Looking through the window, Mr. Woodward saw some presons whom he knew and many whom he did not, but every one was in ordinary evening dress.

"They've unmasked," soliloquized the war chief, "but I'll have my fun just the same." Thereupon, stepping on a ledge, he made one spring through the open window, and landed in the centre of a group of Scotch delegates, meantime brandishing a genuine tomahawk and uttering shrill and blood-curdling war-whoops.

The effect was astounding to the masquerader. Some of the guests fainted, others crept under the tables and sofas or fled to the upper stories of the house. It took only an instant for Mr. Woodward to discover that a terrible mistake had been made. In order to preserve his identity and make his escape he gave a few more whoops, executed a fearful dance, and darted out of the window into the darkness.

It was explained to the foreign guests that one of the Indianapolis Indian tribes was evidently restless, but that no further trouble need be feared. As for Mr. Woodward, his side of the story was not known for nearly twenty years afterward.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

New Paris Club.

Paris boasts of a new club—the "Sauvagistes," or "Savages." We have heard of the "Naturiens," who proposed a return to ancient pastoral life, but the "Sauvagistes" have gone a step further. They have such a horror of civilization, that, following the example of the men of the Stone Age, they intend to live in caves. While awaiting the realization of their desires, these Sauvagistes meet every week, not in the cellars and caverns of Montrouge, but in a very comfortable cafe in the Boulevard Magenta.

There they entertain each other with stories of the great times men of other days used to have in fighting with heavy axes, and their superior method of obtaining fire by rubbing two pieces of wood together, as compared to the modern sulphur match.

Wanted to Be Polite.

No one made any remark upon the temerity of the ladies who invited Ambrose Bierce to deliver a lecture befroe the members of the club. Bierce was so taken aback by the unexpectedness of the request that, to his surprise, he found himself weakly accepting the bid, and then humbly consulting his callers concerning the topic upon which they might desire him to speak.

The President, a dignified and very conservative lady, in reply to a novel sugestion of the lecturer elect, remarked somewhat loftily that they were not a club of new women.

"I am convinced of that," answered Mr. Bierce in a bland and deferential tone, which almost, if not quite, concealed his cynicism. "Shall I say you are a club of old women?"—News-Letter.

His Wedding Fee in Eggs.

A diminutive couple that ought to have been spanked and sent home were married at Stanford, Ky., by a preacher, who received 65 cents and two dozen eggs for his services. The groom was about fifteen and the bride a little over twelve years of age, wearing a dress too short by two inches to reach her knees. It looked like mockery of marriage. After the ceremony they drove their wagon up in a fence corner in the outskirts of the town and proceeded to dine, a basket of victuals having been brought along to save the unnecessary investment of five cents.

Snapshotting Church Sleepers.

A clergyman in England is advocating the use of a concealed camera in the pulpit, says, by showing these photographs to the backsliding ones they would become so shamed that they would not be liable to repeat the performance. The suggestion is ingenious, but it would seem the surest thing to keep the congregation awake would be an interesting sermon.

An Idle Question.

"Is there anything you wish to say before sentence is passed upon you?" asked the Judge.

Thereupon the bailiff laughed.

He couldn't help it.

He was a married man and the defendant was a woman.

"Such a question!" he chuckled to himself.—Chicago Post.

CONTRACTOR REPORTED MISSING.

Said to Have Taken Money Due His Employes and Disappeared.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, August 12.—It is said that Contractor Egbert, who had the building of the new brick structure for the Standard Paint Works, last week overdrew his payment due on that date, to pay his hands but neglected to do so and disappeared. Mr. Egbert's friends say he has been the loser on several contracts of late and they think his business troubles for the time have caused him to lose control over himself, but believe he will return and straighten everything up. In the meantime the Standard people have paid the hands and will go right on with the work.

ROBBED BY TRAMP FOOTPADS.

They Got Some Small Change, But Overlooked Hall's Wad.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Whitehouse, N. J., August. 12—Augustus Hall, of this place, was held up and robbed by highwaymen while returning home about 9 o'clock last night. The highwaymen approached Hall from behind and struck him with a sand bag, rendering him unconscious.

When Hall regained consciousness four hours afterwards he found that he had been robbed of $1.20 and a pair of shoes. The footpads overlooked $18 in his vest pocket. Hall thinks that his assailant were tramps.

—Next Monday the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school excursion will go to Asbury Park. Remember the train does not leave the Park until 7 o'clock in the evening.

SEES SON FATALLY INJURED.

Boy's Legs Cut Off by Coal Train in the Presence of His Mother.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 12.—On the Jersey Central Railroad a coal train last night cut off the legs of George Hinte, twelve years old, in the presence of his mother. The lad was playing on the tracks and did not see the train backing down on him. Thirty cars passed over his legs.

His mother, Mrs. Charles Hinte, was looking out of the window of her home in Schiller street at the time and saw the accident, but did not think it was her son. She hastened with others to the scene and when informed her boy was the victim, she screamed and fainted and was carried home. Young Hinte is dying in the Alexian Hospital.

WELCOME FOR SEWELL.

STEAMBOAT-LOAD OF FRIENDS MET HIM DOWN THE BAY.

Governor Voorhees Was on Hand—Senator Reed in Somerset County Delegation and Roger Murray With Union County

United States Senator William J. Sewell was given a royal welcome this morning upon his arrival from Europe on the American line Steamer St. Paul. General Sewell, who has been abroad about two months, was accompanied by his family. On the same steamer were Sheriff David Baird and State Tax Commissioner Henry J. West, of Camden. There were about 300 in the party welcoming, Gov. Voorhees and Senator Mahlon Pitney being in the vanguard.

The Steamboat Starin was chartered for the occasion. The St. Paul was met at quarantine and the party taken to the Pennsylvania depot at Jersey City, where Mrs. Sewell was landed and boarded a train for her home in Camden. After that the Starin with its distinguished passengers steamed up the Hudson.

Among those in the party were:

Somerset county.—W. H. H. Wyckoff, Frank W. Somers, George W. Cooper, W. H. Cawley, Edward E. Cooper, P. V. D. VauDoren, Hon. Charles A. Reed.

Union county—Hon. John Kean, Hon. Charles N. Fowler, Hamilton F. Kean, N. C. J. English, Charles A. Reed, Hon, Roger F. Murray, Hon Geo. Kyte.

Middlesex county—Hon. B. F Howell, Hon. Robert Carson, George H. Tice, John H. Conger, Theodore Strong, P. O. Stillman, Charles W. Russell, Henry Banker, Peter A. VanAnglen, Kenneth J. Duncan, J. E. Powelson, Major A. S. Church, William Kuhn.

FARMERS' PICNIC PLANS.

Governor Voorhees and Congressman Daly to Attend the Gathering.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, August 12.—The eighth annual Hunterdon county farmers' picnic will be held on the Flemington fair grounds Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The plans for the picnic this year have been greatly enlarged upon and it promises to be a record-breaker, both for attendance and interest. It has grown annually since the first geathering was held until now it presents the appearance of a good-sized country fair rather than a gathering of the sturdy sons of husbandry. Wednesday eight Sunday-schools from Warren county will hold their annual picnic on the grounds.

Governor Voorhees will be present to attend the first day's festivities and deliver an address. Among the others who will deliver addresses Wednesday are: John H. Crosby and Judge Cersan, of New York, and Senator William D. Daly, of Hudson county. Prof. E. B. Voorhees will deliver an address on "How the Farmers of the East Can Make Farming Pay." Among Thursday's corps of speakers are: Ex-Congressman Thomas McEwan, of Jersey City; A. L. Wilson, of Bound Brook; Mrs. William H. Boole, of Staten Island; Mortimer Whitehead and Franklin Quimby.

LEADER DAVIS SPEAKS.

Time to Cross Bridges of 1900 When That Year Rolls Round.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, August 12—Collector Robert Davis, the new leader of the Jersey Democracy, said in regard to the party's policy at the coming fall election:

"The Democratic party as a result of the conference at Asbury Park Monday is going to enter the fall campaign better organized than ever. The campaign next fall, as far the Democrats are concerned, will be fought on State issues. The currency question will play no part. Next year it will be time enough to decide what stand the Democracy shall take on the money question. No National officers will be chosen in New Jersey next November, and there will be no occasion to bring anything but State issues to the front. The Democrats will be kept busy exposing the failures of the Republican State administration."

—T. F. Graham, an evangelist, of Sing Sing, will address the Y. M. C. A. at Somerville tomorrow.

—Randolph's quinine-glycerine hair tonic prevents the hair from falling out and cleanses the scalp.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion build up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist. Guaranteed.

ALL BUT ONE ARE READY TO RESIGN.

Latest Developments in Industrial School Scandal.

GOVERNOR IS RETICENT.

TRUSTEE COOK SEEMS INCLINED TO HOLD ON.

Mr. Voorhees Declined to Say Anything Till All the Evidence Has Been Presented to Him—It is Thought Cook May Besign Eventually and Leave the Governor Free to Act.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 12.—Governor Voorhees was in the State House yesterday, but declined to indicate his intentions regarding the Girls' Industrial School scandal. He said he would wait until all the evidence was in and then would see what should be done.

The resignations of the Board of Managers of the school either are in or ready to be handed in, with the exception of that of Mr. Cook, the managing trustee, who has been the supporter of Mrs. Eyler, the principal, during the attack upon the school. Carter already has resigned. Edward H. Stokes placed his resignation in the Governor's hands yesterday morning, and the resignations of Fitzgibbon and Maddock are ready.

Cook, who was the active man of the board and pretty generally held as the sole supporter of the present administration of the school, is unwilling to get out. There is a belief that eventually the Governor will ask Mr. Cook to send in his resignation. This will permit him to name a full new board.

Mr. Backes, who has been appearing for the trustees who have been supporting the charges, took no new testimony yesterday, bnt says he will have a number of witnesses sworn later. He says Miss Day's statement Thursday was one of the best he has obtained.

Miss Day says that no reliance is to be placed in the records of the school as found in the "Punishment Book." She says that when she was clerk Mrs. Eyler frequently changed and altered the records in this book. She says that, while she was the clerk of the school, the entries were properly made, but later changed by Mrs. Eyler, so that the book at that period is worthless as a true record, and the presumption is that, after Mrs. Eyler's husband succeeded Miss Day as clerk, the records were kept for show purposes, and not as a true account of the punishments.

NAVAL RESERVE REORGANIZED.

Governor Voorhees' Orders to Be Carried Out.

The officers of the Battalion of the East, Naval Reserves, will carry out the order issued by the Governor, as Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard and will consolidate the First and Third Divisions. This is in accordance with the plan of reorganized which was devised by the military commission which the Governor appointed sometime ago. As this plan to a great extent destroyes the efficiency of the battalion as a ship's company, and as it was formulated by military gentlemen having as much knowledge of naval matters as a hen has of dentistry the Reserves petitioned the Governor to grant them an opportunity to show how disastrous the military scheme was. This the Governor promised to do and the matter of the consolidation was held in abeyance until the hearing had taken place. But as the Governor has evidently forgotten his promise, like the good sailors that they are, the officers will carry out the Commander-in-Chief's orders. The First and Third Divisions will be consolidated, and Lieutenant Charles Vreeland, commander of the First Division, will have command of the new division. Chief Engineer Hart, who commanded the Third division, will be made navigator.

Thieves in a Vacant House.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Aug. 12—Some time yesterday thieves entered the vacant house on South avenue at the corner of Lincoln avenue, owned by F. W. Hunter and stole all the lead pipe from the bath room and broke a large hole in the bath tub besides doing other damage to the wood work. The house has been vacant about a month and was entered through the cellar window.

Owing to the disregard by bathers of the warnings of guards not to venture beyond certain limits, and the large number of rescues, it has been decided by the Atlantic City Common Council to make it a misdemeanor to venture beyond certain limits.

The following well-known Republicans have been mentioned in connection with the Atlantic County Shrievaltry nomination: Ex-Sheriff Smith E. Johnson and ex-Alderman Robert Stroud, of Atlantic City; Deputy Factory Inspector L. H. Barrett, of Pleasantville, and Henry Scull, of English Creek.

MORE SUITS AGAINST ELIZABETH.

Much Litigation as the Result of Abolishing Grade Crossings.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth Aug. 12—Five suits for damages were started this week in the Union County Court by persons owning property in this city on the line of the New Jersey Central, who claim their holdings have been seriously injured by the changing of the grade of several streets which depressed and ran under the railroad so as to enable the grade crossings to be abolished. The work of depressing the streets was done by the railroad company, which claims, however, that the City Council assumed the responsibility for any suits for damages that might result from the improvement.

These suits will fully define the issue as to whether the city or the railroad company will have to pay the injured property owners.

The plaintiffs are Patrick Cullity, Mary Quinn, Joseph P. Brophy, and Sarah Wiles, all of whom sue for $10,000 each, while the Security Land and Improvement Company wants $20,000.

Seven more suits will be commenced next week against the Central Railroad Company.

Shipyard Strike Continues

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 12.—The strike at Lewis Nixon's Elizabethport shipyard continues. There was a four-hour conference at the shipyard office yesterday between Mr. Nixon and the striking iron-workers, but no settlement was reached. The men want nine hours. The shipyard patternmakers are on strike for eight hours.

The two hounds wandering in the vicinity of Frankfort and doing much damage in killing poultry, etc., have at last been dispatched. Harry Brokaw, of Millstone, succeeded in killing one of the dogs, while Jas. Sebring, of Neshanic, shot the other after it had killed 26 ducks belonging to Louis Bacorn.

HONORS FOR CUP TO NEW COMPETITORS.

George T. Rogers Made Low Score For Day.

AT PARK GOLF CLUB LINKS.

MANY LADIES IN EVIDENCE AT THE COURSE SATURDAY.

A Number of Members Entered Cup Competition, But Only Three Scores Were Handed In—Fred P. Taylor Played Round, But Did Not Compete—Cooley and Faber Were Absent.

The honors for the Mrs. C. W. McCutchen cup at the links of the Park Golf Club Saturday afternoon, were divided among new aspirants for the club championship cup. While there were many golfers out on the green, only three scores were handed in and they were all from members who have not heretofore figured in the contest for the trophy. First honers went to George T. Rogers who, although a very enthusiastic player, has hitherto played for amusement rather than points. The day was a pleasant one for golf and there was a large attendance at the course. The ladies went out in force and a number played round although Miss Elsberg was the only one to turn in her score for the ladies' trophy, offered by Mr. Buttfield.

Fred P. Taylor was the only one of the crack players present and he took no past in the competition. Even if he had, it would have made very little difference in the result as Taylor plays from scratch now and Saturday he did not show his usual good form. Gifford W. Cooley and Charles E. Faber, who had everything their own way the week before and now stand at the head of the list of competitors for the McCutchen cup, were not present. Their lead for the trophy was not distured however. Meredith Dryden, the club secretary, who stands third in the competition, played the eighteen holes in company with Volney F. Green but did not record his scores although he entered for the cup. He has been absent from the course for several weeks and was off his usual form.

The members of the champion whist team of the Park Club have all turned their attention to golf. S. St. John McCutchen has been playing at the golf course at Belmar while the other three, George T. Rogers, Samuel Townsend and J. H. Howell, were constant players on the Park Club course. Now, however, Mr. Rogers is the only one of the four remaining in Plainfield, Messrs. Howell and Townsend having joined the Belmar settlement. During the last two weeks Mr. Rogers has been over the local course very often, and has showed a marked improvement every time.

Saturday Mr. Rogers was out and made his tournament round in company with Augustus VanDeventer. Mr. Rogers drives hard and with accuracy, and his iron shots are usually very clever. On the putting green he is fair. The greens committee have allowed him a generous handicap, which, with his good playing, enabled him to score three points for the McCutchen Cup.

After completing the tournamant round, Mr. Rogers played in company with Fred P. Taylor and James T. Scott. It was Mr. Scott's first appearance on the links for several weeks, and he did not enter in the competition for the trophy. He played his usual steady game.

Volney F. Green has not played before for over a month. Consequently his form was rather ragged and his score ran up correspondingly high. A few days play will put him back, and if he continues to play for the cup he is likely to be a strong competitor.

There were a number who entered for the McCutchen cup but the only scores to be handed in were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
George T. Rogers	122	21	101
Volney F. Green	134	18	116
Aug. VanDeventer	157	30	127

The official standing of the candidates for the cup follows:

Gifford W. Cooley	8
Charles E. Faber	7
Meredith Dryden	6½
G. W. Faber	6
W. de la R. Anderson	4½
Samuel Townsend	4½
E. T. Douglass	3½
H. D. Hibbard	3
Geo. T. Rogers	3
Arthur Peck	3
Fred P. Taylor	2½
S. S. Squires	2½
Wm. A. Townsend	2½
A. B. Lain	2
Volney F. Green	2
Fred S. Overton	1½
Clarence S. Boome	1½
Augustus VanDeventer	1
C. W. McCutchen	½

Miss Daisy Elsberg was the only competitor to hand in her score for the Buttfield cup. She made the nine holes in 89. Deducting her handicap

STOPPED BY BULLETS.

THE WILY COLORED "CACK" A HARD PRISONER TO TAKE.

He Outran Sergeant Kiely's First Attempt to Capture Him—Detective Then Took a Hand—Now in the County Jail.

The arrest of Walter, alias "Cack" Carter, at Elizabeth last Friday afternoon was more exciting than was reported to The Daily Press. It appears that when Sergeant Kiely saw the Negro the fellow dashed down a side street to the Pennsylvania Railroad and climbing up the elevation ran along toward North Elizabeth, when the Sergeant stopped. He did not give up hope of capturing his man, however. Securing the services of Detective Decker, of the Elizabeth police force, the officers started after their man. They soon spotted him lying on the bank in a shady spot near the railroad, and they surrounded him. The Negro saw them coming and again ran up the track.

Detective Decker, being the nearest, started in pursuit. A hot chase resulted. Finally Decker, who was getting winded, pulled his pistol and fired a couple of shots at the fugitive, who slackened his pace and then stopped running. He surrendered quietly when the detective overtook him. Carter was then taken to police headquarters in Elizabeth and later turned over to Sergeant Kiely.

He was arraigned before Justice Moffett Saturday afternoon and held to await the action of the Grand Jury. He is now resting in the Union county jail.

NOW REGULAR PASTOR.

REV. G M. SHOTT PERMANENTLY ENGAGED FOR THE 'PLAINS

Action Taken Yesterday by the Board of Trustees—Rev. Mr. Shott Announces the Conversion of an Italian Youth.

(Special to The Daily Press

Scotch Plains, August 14.—At the close of the regular morning service at the Baptist church yesterday a business meeting was held for the purpose of extending a call to Mr. Shott to become the pastor of the church. Dr. F. W. Westcott, president of the board of trustees, called the meeting to order and stated that the six months call of Mr. Shott to the pastorate of the church was about to expire and it would be necessaary for the church to take some action in the matter. George E. Hall, of Fanwood, made a speech in which he said it seemed to be the work of God the coming of Gideon M. Shott. During his work of the six months he had shown himself the right man in the right place and had endeared himself to the hearts of members and he moved that he be called as the regular pastor. It was seconded and unanimously carried.

Mr. Shott, in accepting the call, said: "It does not seem peculiar that the six months passed have resulted as they have. It has been God's work. From now on day to day I will be your pastor and you who have endeared yourself to me will be my people and may God bless the union. We may have our little differences, but true love does not always run smooth and sometimes it is all the sweeter for that."

Mr. Shott then said the first word he wished to speak about as the regular pastor was the work of the Italian mission connected with the church, and said he would like to bring before the church an application for church membership from one of the converts of the mission. It was decided to accept the young man into the membership of the church after baptism.

CYCLES BROKEN, RIDERS UNHURT.

Thomas Chamberlain and Wm. Elvery Came Together With Force.

Saturday afternoon a somewhat serious accident occurred on Park avenue, when Thomas Chamberlain, who was riding his wheel, ran into Wm. Elvery, also on a wheel. Both men were thrown from their bicycles, but the latter's wheel suffered the greatest damage. Twelve spokes were broken and other parts of the bicycle wrecked. Fortunately neither rider suffered any injury. The other wheel was damaged to some extent, necessitating both riders to walk home, a distance of a mile.

Baptised In The Brook.

Services and baptism were held at Green Brook near Water street, yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Second Christian church. The services were conducted by the pastor.

WOMAN AT MERCY OF A VICIOUS COW.

Animal Had Been Made Mad By the Terrific Heat.

"BIG JIM" WENT TO RESCUE.

AFTER A STRUGGLE HE DROVE OFF THE BEAST WITH A CLUB.

The Animal Seriously Bruised the Woman—Took Place in Sight of Park Avenue—A Young Woman Who Had Witnessed the Struggle Fainted Away From Excitement and Fright.

Mrs. George Becker was seriously injured yesterday and came within an ace of being killed by a mad cow. To the fact that she is alive today she has a man of iron courage to thank. The brave man who saved her life is James Hennessy, who when he is at home in Staten Island is known as "Big Jim," because of his large stature and immense strength.

The cow in question was tied to a large stake in a lot at Avon Park, in the vicinity of Becker's home. The heat was intense and as the sun climbed higher the cow felt its hot rays upon its back.

The heat became unbearable and the poor animal become thoroughly excited. Its excitement grew to nervousness and from nervousness to frenzie.

By afternoon the cow had worked herself into a perfect rage and made desperate struggles to break the rope which held her in bondage and to the tortures of the hot sun's rays.

The poor creature bellowed and pawed the earth with its hoofs and made desperate efforts to break loose.

The pitiful bellowing of the cow finally attracted the attention of Mrs. Becker who went to release the critter. Mrs. Becker approached the cow without fear of any trouble. She had approached to within a few feet of the excited animal, and was about to stoop to unfasten the rope, when the cow made a dash for her.

Lowering its horns and pawing up the earth the cow came headfirst toward the unsuspecting woman. Mrs. Becker did not have time to realize her danger before the infuriated cow, mad from the torturing of the terrible heat which had been pouring upon its back for several hours, was upon her. The poor woman was caught on the cow's sharp horns and tossed like a ball into the air.

She immediately screamed for help, but before assistance reached her the mad cow had again tossed her about tearing her clothing and inflicting severe gashes to her body. Mrs. Becker's heartrending screams finally attracted the attention of "Big Jim" Hennessy, who with his lady friend were spinning along on a tandem wheel. It took but a moment for Hennessy to realize the woman's peril, and he did not hesitate. Dismounting from his wheel, which he left in charge of his friend, Hennessy secured a club from some trees which have recently been cut down and vaulting the fence went to the woman's rescue.

By the time he reached the scene the cow was goring and trampling Mrs. Becker. Fearing the woman would be killed before he could drive off the cow, Hennessy cried lustily for helf, at the same time sailing into the mad creature with all his might. He lashed and pounded the cow all the time keeping up persistent cries for help.

The terrible beating Hennessy gave the cow finally had the desired effect and the maddened animal was driven off.

Hennessy's vigorous cries for help had attracted the attention of three young men from Plainfield who were riding their wheels in the vicinity.

The young men were about to go to Hennessy's assistance when one of then noticed that his lady friend had fainted from the excitement.

One of the men held the young woman in his arms and while another was securing water to dash in her face his companion used his cap to fan her back to consciousness. By the time the young woman had been looked after the Plainfield young men had assumed sufficient courage to go to Hennessy's aid.

Mrs. Becker was helped to the house, considerably bruised but not dangerously injured.

PERMANENT PAVEMENT MAY NOT BE LAID

Change of Sentiment Among Some of the City Officials.

MAYOR IS FOR ECONOMY.

BELIEVES GOOD MACADAMIZING WILL DO JUST AS WELL.

Rumor Has It That the Proposed Permanent Pavement in the Centre of the City Will Not Materialize—Mayor Rockfellow Points to Park Avenue Macadamizing With a Great Deal of Pride.

Apropos the establishment of a permanent pavement in the business part of the city, it is said that a change of ideas and methods have entered the minds of the Mayor and some of the Councilmen, and the prospect of asphalt or block asphalt is not as sure as was thought. It is also stated that Mayor Rockfellow objects strongly to the issuance of bonds to do the work.

It was given out early in the year that as soon as all the pipes and wires in the centre of the city were under ground a permanent pavement would be laid on those streets, and everyone was given to understand that the work would be done before cold weather set in.

Mayor Rockfellow is credited with the idea that macadamizing these streets in the same manner that Park avenue, between Fourth street and the Park Avenue Baptist church, has been treated, will be far better and less expensive. His Honor is highly pleased with Park avenue. Considering expense and result, he has been led to think that Plainfield can stand such improvements much better than it can the laying of a permanent pavement, and it is understood that he has a number of Councilmen with him on the subject.

On the other hand many people are tired of expending large sums of money each year for macadamizing streets, only to be patched up and repaired sooner or later.

A member of the Council, who has been investigating the subject, saw block asphalt that had not been touched in thirteen years, and he says it looks far better than some sheet asphalt that has been down only five years. He claims to speak by the book when he says that the cost of repairing block asphalt is nominal and it can be removed and put back very easily.

Judging from public opinion the people will not be satisfied unless the Mayor and Council put down permanent pavement.

A GOOD DAY AFTER ALL.

TRINITY'S EXCURSION LUCKY IN THE WEATHER LINE TODAY.

Eleven Coaches Filled With Sunday-school Scholars, Who are Enjoying the Day in a Pleasant Way at Asbury Park.

Dame Nature was kind this morning and gave the excursionists from the Trinity Beformed church a delightful day for their postponed outing to Asbury Park. The morning was cool and lacked the humidity of the past few days. There was a good turnout, not as large, perhaps, as it would have been had the excursion not been postponed. The excursion was to have gone last Thursday but the rain came and the excursionists stayed at home. The committee had their choice of today or a date late in the month. They chose today.

A train of twelve passenger coaches and a baggage car awaited the excursionists on the third track and pulled up to the station as the 7:55 New York express was leaving. The young people seemed to predominate. Eleven of the coaches were well filled and the empty car was probably dropped off at Roselle. The train started at the appointed hour without any exciting happenings to mark the departure. As far as is known, no one was left behind.

In Rev. Dr. Yerkes' Place.

Rev. Mr. Geismer, pastor of the Baptist church at Haddonfield, Camden county, preached two strong and impressive sermons at the First Baptist church yesterday. The attendance at both the morning and evening service was excellent. G. W. Smith had charge of the music and Howard Case presided at the organ as usual. Next Sunday Rev. Frank Smith, pastor of the Somerville Baptist church, will preach at the First Baptist church. Mr. Smith is a talented preacher, and large congregations should greet him.

Miss Addie Fenner, of this city, is spending a portion of her vacation with her parents at Pluckamin.

BURGLARS VISITED A DUNELLEN FAMILY.

Broke Into Gus Warden's House and Stole $58.

ALSO ENTERED A STORE.

CARRIED OFF CONTENTS OF TWO DINNER PAILS.

Acted in a Bold Manner in the House of Augustus Warden, Where it is Thought That They Were After the Pension Money of Mr. Smith—The Check Had Not Yet Been Cashed and They Did Not Disturb it.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 14.—Burglars visited Dunellen early this morning. They are not believed to be professional cracksemen but local "talent," familiar with the citizens and their affairs.

The first house visited was that of Augustus Warden on Prospect street. Entrance was effected by raising an L window in an outside kitchen apartment.

The burglars then lighted a lamp and went up stairs and proceeded to help themselves to the cash in Mr. Warden's clothing. Securing also the trousers of Robert B. Smith, an uncle, the burglars carried them to the foot of the stairway and rifled the pockets. In Mr. Warden's trousers they found a roll containing $33, while in Mr. Smith's pockets was but $26. The burglar was generous enough to leave one dollar, which they placed in the pocket of Mr. Warden's waistcoat. They also carried away Mr. Warden's silver watch. A check for $200—Mr. Smith's pension—was not taken.

The robbery is believed to have taken place about 3 o'clock, as about that hour Mrs. Warden awoke and thought she heard a noise. It is believed that the intruders realizing that Mrs. Warden was awake suddenly left the house without visiting the sleeping apartments of Miss Lillian Warden, where they could have secured a gold watch and other valuables that were conspicuous about the room.

The store of Mrs. David Kuldosche of Lincoln avenue was also entered early this morning, presumably by the same party who entered Mrs. Warden's house. The only thing disturbed at Mrs. Kuldosche's was two pails containing the dinners of her two sons which were in the dining room. The thief or thieves carried off the contents of the dinner pails.

Chief Grant visited the scene of the burglaries this morning. He is of the opinion that the Warden house was entered by parties who are familiar with the premises and affairs of the Warden family. It was known to several residents of the borough that Mr. Smith received his pension check last week. Chief Grant is of the opinion that the burglars believed that he had got it cashed and that they would secure the cash.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLAMBAKE.

The Great Event Arranged to Be Held August 30th.

The Plainfield Advancement Association has decided to hold the "business men's clambake" Wednesday, August 30th, commencing at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. One hundred invitations have been issued to business men, and stages will be engaged to take them to the scene of the festivities, which will be in Vail's Grove, near Mountain Park Inn. The committee in charge of the bake consists of City Judge Wm. N. Runyon, W. F. Williams and Assessor Elston M. French, and they will leave no stone unturned in making the affair a great success. Of course Mayor Smalley will have general supervision of the affair and will see that everything passes off smoothly.

A meeting of the Advancement Association will be held tomorrow night to perfect all necessary arrangements. A full attendance of all members is requested.

Third Mauch Chunk Excursion.

Next Wednesday, the Jersey Central will run the third of its low-rate excursions to the well known resorts in the Blue Ridge mountains of Pennsylvania. The special train, as usual, will make a stop at Plainfield to take on passengers. No lunch car will be attached to train, so the patron will have to take along a basket lunch, or dine at Mauch Chunk. In addition to the delightful ride the trip includes an exploration of Glen Onoko and a salubrious ride on the Switchback Gravity R. R. Full particulars are given as to time of departure, rate of fare, etc., on the big red posters at station and elsewhere.

Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, of East Second street, has gone to Williamsport, Pa.

VISITED WITH THE DUKE.

ENTERTAINING EXPERIENCE OF REV. MR. MURPHY AT WESTMINSTER.

Talked With the Titled Foreigner on the Latter's Estate, but it was Sometime Before They Knew His Highness.

Lawyer Clarence Murphy, of West Front street, received a letter today from his father, Rev. T. Logan Murphy, who is traveling with Mrs. Murphy and daughter, Miss Anna Murphy, through foreign countries. The letter was written from Westminster Hotel, Chester, Eng.

Mr. Murphy relates an interesting incident which happened while they were sight-seeing in Westminster chapel. They were looking about for a guide to show them about, when they noticed a fine-appearing gentleman approaching. Miss Murphy caught a glimpse of a fine portrait on the wall, and inquired if that was the Duke of Westminster. The stranger spoke up and remarked: "Yes, that's my picture." The Americans then enjoyed a social time with the Duke, and he expressed pleasure in meeting the travelers. Later they met the guide who expressed surprise that they were able to meet the Duke, as he rarely discloses his identity.

The party left Liverpool Saturday, July 29th, and are now in London. They are enjoying good health, and Mr. Murphy is rapidly regaining his strength and is beginning to feel like himself again. They report that thus far they have had fine weather.

PARALYSIS WAS FATAL.

JAMES H. SHARP PASSED AWAY WITHOUT MUCH WARNING.

Stricken Soon After Arising Saturday Morning—Unable to Speak—Had Resided in Plainfield for Many Years.

James H. Sharp, aged about fifty-two years, a well-known painter, died at his home on Harmony street this morning at 3 o'clock from a stroke of paralysis which he suffered last Saturday. Mrs. Sharp was waiting for her husband to come down stairs to breakfast. He seemed late, and she went upstairs to learn what the trouble was. She was startled to find her husband lying on the floor in a helpless condition, and unable to speak. He retained his senses and knew all that was said to him, but could make no reply. As quickly as possible a physician was sent for and the man was given proper treatment. He did not, however, get any better and gradually grew worse until he passed away at 3 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Sharp has been a resident in this vicinity for many years, and has always followed the trade of a painter. He held his last position with Marsh, Ayres & Co., but he has been unable to work for about three months past.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the residence, 11 Harmony street.

BORROWED J. A. SMITH'S WHEEL.

So Lou, the Bookblack, was Invited to See City Judge.

Louis Randolph, the little colored bootblack, paid a visit on City Judge Runyon this morning by special invitation. Lou incurred the wrath of J. A. Smith, the West Front street grocer, Saturday morning. Smith left his wheel on Park avenue and asked Lou to look after it. The fire-alarm blew and Lou jumped on the wheel a moment to investigate. He took the wheel back to the store. The owner of the wheel was very indignant and told Chief Grant about it. Hence Lou's visit to the court. Judge Runyon warned Lou to take better care of wheels left in his charge and then suspended sentence.

CLAMBAKE AT GLENSIDE PARK.

Quoit Match Between Veterans Was an Exciting Feature.

Joseph Miller, who gave a clambake to several score of his friends yesterday afternoon at a pleasant little camp near Glenside Park. A delightful repast was spread and the clams were an appetizing part of it. During the afternoon there was an exciting quoit game between veterans of the 3d N. J. Vols and the 22d N. Y. Vols. Dan Shea and Herbert Overbaugh represented the 3d New Jersey, while M. Kane of Plainfield, and A. H. Evans, of New York, pitched for the 22d New York. The latter team won by a score of 21 to 4.

Miss Tillie Schenck, of Elmwood place, starts today on her vacation at Asbury Park in company with Miss Messerole, of Crosby & Hill's dry goods store.

Mrs. M. Weinberger, of this city, who has been spending two months in Germany, sailed for home last Saturday on the Steamer Saale, and Mr. Weinberger received a cablegram notifying him that she had left Bremen on Saturday.

TRACK RECORD DROPS QUARTER OF SECOND.

"Rattler" Did a Mile in 2:17 Flat Saturday Afternoon.

SOME FINE MATINEE RACING

NEARLY 500 PEOPLE WERE AT THE DRIVING PARK.

"Rattler's" Owner, S. D. Kelly, Was in the Sulky When He Made the Fast Mile—Exhibition Mile Trotted By Handsome Team Formerly Owned By Bank Wrecker George Vallentine.

Nearly five hundred people, by far the largest number for this season, visited the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association Saturday afternoon and witnessed one of the best programmes presented in a long time. The trottting events were all interesting and in addition to the fact that excellent time was made, the track record of 2:17¼ was reduced to 2:17, by "Rattler," owned by S. D. Kelly, of Woodbridge. The race was in competition against Thomas Brantingham's "Myrtle Twig," and was trotted in two heats. "Rattler," won the first heat in 2:23 and the second in 2:17. Mr. Kelly drove his horse and it was one of the prettiest exhibitions witnessed.

Another great event was the exhibition mile trotted by the handsome team, "Tom" and "Charlie," formerly owned by George Vallentine, the defaulting cashier of the Perth Amboy bank. The team is now in other hands. They trotted the mile in 2:28½ and the race brought out plenty of enthusiasm from the crowd. The team did not break once and gave as fine an exhibition as one would care to see.

A fine race was given in the 2:35 class in three heats and good time was made, the horses all being evenly matched. Four horses entered as follows: "Chas. Green," John Taylor, Wheatsheaf; "Sunday," D. Darby, Alton; "Fairmount Maid," C. L. Wright, Plainfield; "Viola F," Robert Fairbairn, Westfield. The result of the race follows:

"Chas. Green"	4	3	4
"Sunday"	2	4	3
"Fairmount Maid"	1	2	2
"Viola F"	3	1	1

Time—2:34; 2:30; 2:29½.

A very interesting race in the 2:30 class was given by J. W. Johnson's "Barney Williams," A. I. Smalley's "Belle," N. B. Smalley's "Kittie Rue," and Chas. Brower's "King," which resulted as follows:

"Barney Williams"	2	1	1
"Bell"	4	2	4
"Kittie Rue"	1	3	2
"King"	3	5	3

Time—2:31; 2:31; 2:29½.

The last race was a "make-up" between "Andy," owned by Andrew Hayes; "Sampson," F. S. Emmons; "Prince," J. M. Smalley; "Jeanness," David Smalley, and horses owned by Harry Gwynett and Fred Suydam. The first heat was won by "Jeanness" in 2:30. This so aroused the indignation of the other contestants that they refused to go the next heat if this horse entered. They claimed she was out of their class. This horse was ruled out and in the second heat "Prince" won in 2:47½, with "Sampson" second in 2:48.

The final event of the day was an exhibition mile by "Viola F," and it was a pretty race. She made the mile in 2:25½ and won the admiration of all.

Robt. Fairbairn was in charge of the races and he was ably assisted by J. W. Johnson, C. L. Wright and several others, all of whom occupied places in the judges' stand.

DEMANDED MONEY.

Fred Pittis Met With Two Highwaymen in the Borough.

Fred Pittis, who is employed as an electric light inspector for the borough by the Plainfield Electric Light Company met with a lively experience Saturday night while in the performance of his duty on Willow avenue, near Magnolia avenue. He was fixing one of the lamps that did not work properly, when he was accosted by two strange men. They demanded that he give up his money. The young man protested, and said that he did not have any money. The highwaymen proceeded to go through the man's clothes. They discovered that he did not have any money and after using some strong language, disappeared in the darkness, and were not seen afterward.

S. A. Ginna and family, of Watchung avenue, have returned from Watch Hill, R. I. They will leave the city again in a short time and will remain away till fall.

Miss Mabel Van Middlesworth, of Elmwood place, will leave tomorrow for Jersey City, where she will visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster.

PLOT AGAINST REPUBLIC.

Eighteen Leaders of Nationalists Seized by the French Officers in Paris.

PEOPLE MUCH EXCITED.

Believed That a Plot For the Overthrow of the Government Was Discovered by Officials.

Police Are Everywhere and Conflicts Are Frequent—The Belief Expressed That General Mercier's Testimony as Good as Acquitted Captain Dreyfus.

Rennes, Aug. 14.—Just as the dramatic session of the Dreyfus court martial was ended news was received that Paul Deroulede, Marcel-Habert, Jules Guerin and fifteen other Nationalist leaders had been arrested in Paris and its suburbs, and will be arraigned before the High Court, accused of plotting against the state.

Hearing this, excited people filled the streets, shouting, "Vive l'Armee!" or uttering counter cries, "Vive la Republique!"

Police are everywhere, conflicts are frequent, and more collisions between the partisans are expected.

The news is regarded as so important that many prominent men are hurrying to Paris. Telephone and telegraph offices are besieged.

These arrests follow the attempted overthrow of the Republican Government, to accomplish which Deroulede's coup on the day of President Faure's funeral was unsuccessful. Despite the verdict acquitting Deroulede and Marcel-Habert of that attempted coup, Waldeck-Rosseau has conducted a secret investigation since he came into power. It has been rumored several times that a Bonapartist plot was discovered, but until now no action by the government showed it had proof of a revolutionary plot.

The Nationalists here regard Deroulede's sensational arrest as the final effort of the Dreyfusards to dictate the decision of the court martial. Men of other parties think the Ministers must have obtained evidence that a second coup was in preparation, aimed to stop the trial of Dreyfus, and so to escape revelations otherwise inevitable.

It is generally conceded here that the Captain was as good as acquitted at the second public session of the revision trial, and the day's events only bore out predictions. Gen. Mercier, the prisoner's most bitter enemy, took the witness stand to give in detail his alleged proofs of the Captain's guilt. Dreyfus listened calmly until the witness was through, and then turned on him with such a roar of pent-up anger that it moved those present to cheers. It was an exciting and dramatic scene.

Mercier, who was Minister of War when Dreyfus was convicted, stands in the shadow of the arm of justice, and that arm is expected to fall. He had no proofs to offer, and his attitude and brutal manner toward the accused brought curses and hisses from those present. Soldiers were forced to escort him from the room to prevent his being mobbed. Mercier's testimony was the last card of the anti-Dreyfusites and it was trumped by a stronger one.

It was evident from the manner of Casimir-Perier that Mercier was not telling the truth, and the former President will refute the testimony of his former minister.

Ready to Crush the Yaquis.

Hermosillo, Mexico, by the way of Nogales, Ariz., Aug. 14.—Information received from the headquarters of Gen. Luis Torres, in the Yaqui Valley, indicates that he may decide to precipitate an engagement with the Yaquis at once. When Gen. Torres learned that his nephew had been killed by the Yaquis he promptly ordered that 40 prisoners who had fallen into his hands in the engagement of three weeks ago be put to death, and they were taken out and shot. Only 20 Indians were killed in the battle, but the official reports gave it as 60, accounting for the 40 prisoners as killed.

Commission Hands in Its Report.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The report of the Samoan Commission has been received at the State Department. Its essential features include the abolition of the kingship and the substitution of an administrator or governor general agreed upon by the three powers. The report was accompanied by a private letter from United States Commissioner Bartlett Tripp, summing up what had been done and giving light on personal phases of the inquiry. Now that the report is in hand, it remains for the three governments to determine whether or not the recommendations of the commision are to be accepted.

Heirs Will Divide $32,000,000.

Springfield, O., Aug. 14.—J. W. James, of this city, has received word that the Lloyd estate in Scotland has been settled, and that the heirs will receive a draft for their share within the next month. Mr. James' mother was one of the original heirs. James Lloyd, of Dayton, is another. Among the subheirs are Mrs. Joseph Bragg, of Columbus, and Mrs. D. J. Ryder, of this city. The estate is valued at $32,000,000, and the original heirs will get $8,000,000 each. Mrs. Ryder will receive about $50,000 from her father.

Black Streak Formed With Death.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 14.—The 2-year-old child of Charles Reitz, while running barefoot in the grass was bitten, probably by a snake. As dissolution neared a well defined dark streak appeared on the child's body running from the bitten toe to a point in the region of the heart. The streak grew rapidly darker, and at the moment of death was a jet black.

Tom Burns to Resign.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Manager Thomas Burns, of the Chicago Baseball Club, will retire from that position at the close of the present season. The unsatisfactory showing made by the Chicago team this year is given at the reason. Tom Loftus, manager of the Grand Rapids team, has been considered as his successor.

K. K. K. Revived in Old Kentucky.

Louisville, Aug. 14.—The Ku Klux Klan has been revived in Spencer County for the benefit of Mormon elders who persist in their efforts to win women and girls to the creed of polygamy. A meeting was broken up and the elders driven away with switches.

No New Cases in Soldiers' Home.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Official advices to Surgeon General Wyman are to the effect that there are no new cases of yellow fever and no deaths in the Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va.

PRESIDENT PAYS HIS WAY

He Doesn't Use Any of the Secret Fund of $50,000.

Hotel Champlain, N. Y., Aug. 14.—President McKinley's stay at this hotel will have cost him a pretty penny by the time his vacation ends. He has been here more than two weeks already and the prospects are good for a further stay of a fortnight at least. When the President goes on a pleasure jaunt he foots the bills out of his private purse, although there is a secret fund of more than $50,000 placed at the President's disposal, out of which he could pay his personal expenses if he should see fit.

A large room on the ground floor of the annex is used as a temporary office. Here Secretary Cortelyou and the stenographer dispatch official business and attend to all general correspondence. All important communications requiring the President's attention are forwarded from Washington, and each day the President comes down to the big airy apartment and looks over his mail.

Vice President Hobart's health is still somewhat impaired by his long illness, but his brief stay here has been of inestimable benefit to him. Already he has taken on two pounds of flesh; he sleeps better, eats more and is much stronger than when he came here a week ago.

Murdered on Board Walk.

Belmar, N. J., Aug. 14.—A coldblooded murder and suicide on the boardwalk caused intense excitement here. The walk was crowded with promenaders, when repeated pistol shots created a panic. William Carson, of Camden, assistant prosecutor of the Court of Pleas for Camden County, was the victim. He was walking with his wife and her sister, the latter the wife of Albert Sheets. The shooting took place at the foot of Ninth avenue, the most crowded part of the walk.

Sheets confronted Carson while he was talking to the two women and slapped his face. Sheets then drew a pistol and fired three shots. Carson droped dead at his feet. Sheets walked deliberately toward Ninth avenue. Presently other shots were heard, and the crowd rushing to the spot found Sheets lying on the ground with three bullets in his head.

He was taken into an ambulance, which was started for the Memorial Hospital at Long Branch, but died on the way.

Mrs. Sheets separated from her husband some time ago owing to his dissolute habits, and had made application for a divorce.

Carson, her brother-in-law, had charge of the case. He prepared the papers and had filed them in the Chancellor's Court.

Connecticut's Capitol Shaken.

Hartford, Aug. 14.—The Capitol was shaken by an explosion of gas which shifted fifty feet of the massive stone steps two feet from their anchorage and blew out many tons of masonry. One man was so seriously hurt that he is likely to die. This is James Keefe, the watchman of the Capitol, who caused the explosion by going in search of a gas leak with a lighted lantern. His assistant, George A. W. Cooper, whom he took with him on this perilous mission, escaped with a few trifling injuries. Keefe lives in this city, while Cooper is a New Haven man.

Food of All Kinds Needed.

Washington, Aug. 14.—In a dispatch received at the War Department from Governor Gen. Davis of Porto Rico, Mr. Davis says: "Food of all kinds is needed here, especially rice, beans and codfish, which has been the main support outside of fruit. Cheap cotton clothing also is needed, for thousands rushed naked from their dwellings at night when the gale broke. Medicines also are needed most pressingly, especially quinine and other simple medicines."

Identification Deepens Mystery.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 14.—There now seems to be no doubt that the body of the man found on the shore in Narragansett Pier on Friday is that of F. H. Shaw, who was in the employ of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company as an inspector, and lived with Robert H. Thomas, his brother-in-law, at Second avenue and Seventy-second street, Brooklyn. He has been identified positively by Mr. Thomas in Narragansett, but instead of the mystery being cleared, it is deeper than ever.

Natives Beaten in Lively Fight.

Manila, Aug. 14.—A reconnoissance by troops of General Samuel B. M. Young's brigade, with the obect of discovering the whereabouts of the enemy, near San Mateo, northeast of the San Juan reservoir, about ten miles from Manila, resulted in the occupation of San Mateo. The American loss was three killed and thirteen wounded, including a lieutenant of the Twenty-first infantry.

Cruiser New Orleans Safe.

San Domingo, Aug. 14.—The United States cruiser New Orleans and the gunboat Machias, the former vessel having put to sea on the morning of August 8 to avoid the expected hurricane, has returned. The gunboat has been at Punta Macoria. The steamer Carib, from New York July 28, has also arrived.

Drowned Trying to Save Friend.

Cortland, N. Y., Aug. 14.—John Sheridan, 15 years old, was drowned in a small lake in Elysium Park. With four companions he had been in bathing and attempted to get into a boat, which overturned, sending one boy to the bottom twice before he was rescued. Sheridan, in attempting to save the other boy, was seized withcramps.

The growth of the motor industry in France is shown in the fact that the new occupation demands the employment of 200,000 hands.

Twenty years ago American shoes were unknown in Germany. For five months the total value of the shoes imported from the United States was $59,500.

One reason why the export of cotton goods may expand to the Philippine islands is the fact that the yearly import of cottons from Spain amounted to more than $5,000,000. The United States heretofore sent less than $10,000 worth.

The most expensive tobacco ever imported to this country was sent to the New York public stores for appraisal last week. There were six bales, each weighing seventy-five pounds, and each bale was invoiced at $1,000, or at the rate of 13.33 a pound. It was Havana wrappers, the duty on which is $1.85 a pound.

WEDNESDAY, THE SIXTH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, A. D. 1899, at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises, hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying, and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at a point in the northeasterly side of McDowell street, distant in the southeasterly course four hundred and forty-seven and sixty-six one-hundredth feet from the southeasterly side of West Third street and the southerly corner of lot number nine; thence running in a northeasterly course one hundred and fifty feet to a stake and corner of lot number nine; thence running in a southeasterly course parallel with McDowell street thirty-seven and five-tenths feet to a point, and making a corner; thence running in a southwesterly course and parallel with the first line one hundred and fifty feet to the northeasterly side of McDowell street, and making a corner; thence running in a northwesterly course along the side line of McDowell street thirty-seven and five-tenths feet to the place of beginning.

Being a part of lot No. 10, in block C, as shown on a map of John C. Welsh's land at Evona; map 165 on file in Union county clerk's office; and a part of the premises conveyed to said Clarence J. Rice by deed of Charles H. Hand and wife, dated July 10, 1891, recorded in book 231 of deeds for Union county, pages 379, etc.

Filipinos Flee Upon the Appearance of the American Forces.

NO OPPOSITION SHOWN.

Troops Have a Hard March of Ten Miles, Being Obliged to Wade in Water Waist Deep.

Insurgents in Santo Domingo Win a Battle Over Government Forces—A Whole Province Ready to Rise in Favor of Jiminez—Garcia May Command Revolutionists.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 14.—Latest reports show that Fort Belen, the stronghold of Dajabon, has been taken by the revolutionists of Santo Domingo.

Evarist Rodrigues, commandant of the fort, was killed, and Richardo is in hiding.

The family of Isaac T. Petit, United States Consular Agent at Monte Christi, Santo Domingo, has arrived here. The members report general excitement and some firing in the neighborhood of Monte Christi when they left.

The Dominican colony here is very active in the insurrectionary movement against the existing Dominican government. Many men with arms and ammunition have joined the insurgents near Monte Christi.

A government convoy of arms and ammunition and dispatches for Governor Richardo of Monte Christi, was captured on Aug. 10. Among the letters was one from President Figuero and one from Teofilo Cordero, Minister of Agriculture and Public Works. The latter refers to the President as old and feeble, and declares his determination to support the constitution, although he might have made himself President.

The Insurgents Won.

Cape Haitien, Hayti, Aug. 14.—Twelve hundred insurgents crossed the Yaque River under the fire of mitrailleuses.

In the engagement the Government forces lost eighteen men killed, but no insurgent was killed.

A dispatch from Banica announces that the entire province of Neyba is ready to rise in favor of Gen. Jiminez.

Gen. Torribo Garcia is expected from Cuba to take command of the revolutionary movement.

War Preparations Proceeding.

London, Aug. 14.—The Anglo-Transvaal crisis continues at a highly acute stage. The war preparations both here and in India are steadily proceeding All the plans have been made by the British Government to launch an overwhelming force, both from Cape Town and Delagoa Bay, against the Transvaal within a month after a declaration of war, every precaution being taken against the possibility of another defeat by the Boers. Once the British troops are let loose against the Transvaal they will take dire revenge for Majuba Hill.

President Kruger, it is confidently believed, will give in when the alternative plainly means war, as it now does. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, will not budge from the position he has now taken up. The last day of the session of Parliament one of his supporters was condoling with him on his holiday being spoiled by the Transvaal crisis. Chamberlain replied:

"It's coming near to an end now. At any rate, when Parliament meets again in February, the Transvaal difficulty will be over."

The Americans Advance.

Manila, Aug. 14.—Further advices from Calulut, report that Gen. McArthur took the Ninth Regiment, a battalion of the Twenty-second and a detachment of the First Artillery from Calulut to Santa Rita, near Bacolon. The entrance of the troops into the town caused consternation and a general stampede, the Filipinos fleeing as the Americans approached.

The troops had a hard march of ten miles, in some places being obliged to wade waist deep in water. Many were exhausted.

Manila Hemp Rising.

London, Aug. 14.—Manila hemp has risen ten shillings in London, being quoted at £39 10s. Large quantities were bought at this price on the prospect of a further rise, in consequence of the resumption of hostilities and the belief that all the Philippine ports are closed or will be closed.

While the price in London is only £39 10s., owing to large stocks and the quantities now in transit, the price at Manila is £49, the highest on record.

The United States is said not to be buying largely.

Dolliver Speaks at Chautauqa.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Before an audience of 6,000 grangers gathered from various points in Western New York Congressman J. P. Dolliver delivered an address in defense of the President's policy of expansion, referring specifically to the Philippines. The address was listened to with marked interest.

Fire Burned Over Big Areas.

Berea, O., Aug. 14.—Fire which broke out in the paint department of the Cleveland Stone Company's plant destroyed a number of buildings filled with valuable machinery and a large quantity of lumber. The fire covered an area of nearly two and a half acres. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Trusts Alarm the Germans.

Berlin, Aug. 14.—A large and influential part of the German press is agitating for the legal regulation of syndicates, trusts and trade combinations. The government press says that the government intends to take up the matter soon.

Porto Rico Receipts for July.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The customs receipts for all of the ports of Porto Rico for July were $155,638; internal revenue receipts for the month were $40,616.

Death of Millionaire Slater.

Magnolia, Mass., Aug. 14.—Horatio Nelson Slater, the millionaire manufacturer of Boston and Webster, Mass., died at his summer home here after a short illness.

Senator Beveridge at Banff.

Banff Springs, N. W. T., Aug. 14.—Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, has arrived at this resort and is taking the hot baths.

FEVER BANS ARE LIFTED.

Newport News and Old Point Comfort No Longer Quarantined.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 14.—The Peninsula is now in communication with the entire outside world. Norfolk has raised her quarantine against Newport News, Hampton and Old Point, and Newport News has lifted its restrictions against Norfolk.

Soldiers' Home and Phoebus are the only points now quarantined, and it is expected that the cordon around Phoebus will be drawn in so as to include only the home after next Tuesday if Dr. White's second house to house canvass, begun to-day, reveals no suspicious cases.

At the end of the second week of the infection there are 20 in the hospital suffering from the disease. All of these have reached the convalescent stage, and it is said that several of them will be discharged as cured in a day or so. There were only 11 deaths. The work of fumigating the barracks of the old soldiers continues rapidly.

Confessed to a Murder.

Susquehanna, Pa., Aug. 14.—An investigation into the death of Joseph Kuhn, of Lanesboro, whose mangled remains were found on the Erie Railroad at Windsor Crossing, Broome County, N. Y., a few days ago, is being made, and it is reported here that Kuhn was murdered by two negroes. At the time his body was found it was supposed he fell from a train. Kuhn, who was a soldier in the Spanish war, wore his uniform and carried his gun and bayonet. It is said he was attacked by the negro tramps and they threw him from the train. In the scuffle Kuhn wounded one of the negroes. The wounded man made his way to a Jersey City hospital, where, it is said, he made a confession that he and his companion had murdered Kuhn. Officers from Broome County have gone to Jersey City to investigate the man's story.

Says Samoans are Fighting

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 14.—The trouble in the Samoan Islands did not end with the departure of the representatives of the powers from Apia, although they confidently thought that they had restored peace and brought the rival factions together. F. S. Meade, who arrived here on the Miowera after a trip through the islands of the South Seas, says the two factions were still at war very shortly after the commissioners left, and that they engaged in a pitched battle. The rival kings took no part, but the other leaders were engaged. Several were killed on both sides and a large number wounded.

Money Orders in Porto Rico.

Washington, Aug. 14.—According to a statement submitted to the War Department by Governor General Davis, of Porto Rico, there were issued from April 15 to June 30, 1899, 4,354 money orders in the island of Porto Rico, amounting to $56,628.78. During the first three weeks of July 1,427 local money orders were issued, amounting to $55,494.01, and 653 paid amounting to $20,949.55. During the same period 844 international money orders were issued amounting to $35,337.93, and international money orders paid amounting to $1,350.06.

Troops to Get Atkinson Tracts.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Government officers have received copies of a new Edward Atkinson circular, which he proposes to send to the returned and homecoming troops from the Philippines. In this he asks the opinion of each as to what ought to be the governmental policy, and promises to print them whether they coincide with his views or not. He intends to send with this circular his pamphlets, "The Cost of a National Crime," "The Hell of War and Its Penalties" and "Criminal Aggression; By Whom Committed."

Lynchers Held Without Bail.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 14.—The habeas corpus hearing for bail for the men charged with the lynching of James, John and George Humphries in Henderson County has been concluded before District Judge Lipscomb at Athens. Bail was denied to all the defendants except Ed Cain, accused of being an accomplice against his will. He was released on a $20,000 bond. Ten alleged lynchers are now in jail at Athens, including the three informers, John Greenhaw, Arthur Greenhaw and Polk Weeks.

Mysterious Brig Aground.

Riverhead, N. Y., Aug. 14.—A three-masted brig was sighted aground off Jericho Landing, near Baiting Hollow, this morning. Some of the farmers rowed out to the vessel, but the captain refused to allow them aboard or to give any information as to the identity of his vessel or how she came to run on the rocks. It is said the boat has been there for two days. Henry Talmadge and Merritt Smith, who went out to the vessel, say the crew consisted entirely of negroes, while the captain was a white man.

Havana's Suppressed Newspaper.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Secretary Root has considered the protest of Senors Ricardo Arunente and A. Cervantes, of Havana, publishers of the suppressed newspaper El Reconcentrado, and decided to have Gen. Brooke make a report on the matter. Secretary Root directed that Gen. Brooke be instructed to make a full investigation of Gen. Ludlow's action and report to the War Department the reason for the suppression of the paper.

Arsenic in the Buttermilk.

Baltimore, Aug. 14.—Dr. Thomas Algire, a dentist of Baltimore County, and the members of his household narrowly escaped death by drinking buttermilk supposed to have contained poison. The cause of the poisoning is mysterious. It is said that persons outside could have secured entrance to the milkhouse, but there is declared to be no motive for anybody to commit a crime of this character.

Soldier Deaths in Porto Rico.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The following dispatch has been received from Gen. Davis:

"San Juan, Aug. 11.—Adjt. Gen., Washington.—Private John G. Yoncy, Eleventh Infantry, Company D, killed by fall from Barracks; Corporal Andrew Petersen, Eleventh Infantry, Company F, died, Ponce, gastro-enteritis.
"DAVIS, commanding."

Christened in a Pine Grove.

Norwich, Ct., Aug. 14.—George Gibbs Mansfield, the young son of Richard Mansfield, the actor, was christened at Pinehurst, the country home of Edward N. Gibbs, of New York. The baptism was performed in a grove of pine trees.

Pensacola in the Track.

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 14.—A terrific storm struck this city and the wind increased in velocity, assuming the force of a hurricane. All shipping was securely tied up and no serious damage resulted.

TEETH.

If you have any to be extracted remember you will not be hurt in the slightest. My local anæsthetic is the best that can be obtained and is not known to the other dentists in this city. Gas strictly fresh administered by an expert if you want that. If you need artificial teeth you may rest assured that the greatest care will be exercised in selecting shape and color to harmonize with the face, also to restore the features to their natural expression and fullness. This is most important.

Don't trust your shoeing to any one who as not made a study of the horse's foot, it is too delicate in its construction to be handled by a carpenter or butcher. We are having great success in leveling and balancing horses that have been ungaited by being shod by inexperienced men and boys. Our reference is NOT to people who are out of the State, but to OUR CUSTOMERS, who can be found right here in the city and vicinity. Horses called for and delivered.

FIRE CAUSED A STAMPEDE

25,000 Persons were at Elks' Fair When Booths Burned.

Rochester, Aug. 14.—The Elks' carnival and street fair at East Main and Goodman streets, was the scene of the wildest excitement when fire broke out in one of the booths. In a few minutes the main thoroughfare was a mass of flames. The booths, which lined the streets on either side, were lightly constructed of rough hemlock lumber, and, being profusely decorated with bunting, were of the most inflammable character.

The fire originated in the stall occupied by the Post-Express. Flames spread with the greatest rapidity, and it was feared at first that the entire eastern section of the city was doomed. Fully 25,000 persons were on the grounds at the time the fire started. Those near the fire seemed crazed with fright, and their stampede to other parts of the grounds created a temporary panic. Had it not been for the police much loss of life would have resulted. As it was many persons were injured, but all were able to go to their homes with the exception of Patrolman Kelly, who was burned about the arms and face in his heroic attempt to extinguish the flames.

Sixty-two booths were destroyed in all. The loss is said to be about $50,000. In the exhibit of Ward's Natural Science Museum many valuable specimens were destroyed.

The part of the grounds swept by the flames was occupied by booths.

Forty Locomotives on Board.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—The British steamship Puritan cleared this port today for China and Siberia with the largest cargo of railway material that has ever been taken from any port of the United States. Her destination is Vladivostock and New Chwang. She takes out 40 Baldwin locomotives and tenders and 18 steel bridges for the Chinese Eastern Railroad, in addition to several tons of miscellaneous cargo. She will go first to the Russian port and then back to New Chwang to finish discharging her cargo. In a few weeks the British steamship Uplands will leave here with a cargo almost like that of the Puritan.

Free Mail Delivery Extended.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Four additional letter carriers have been allowed to the Newark (N. J.) postoffice for the extension of the free delivery service to Cramer's Hill and North Cramer's Hill.

Paris, Aug. 14.—The sessions of the Anglo-Venezuelan Boundary Arbitration Commission were resumed here. Prof. John R. Schley began his argument on behalf of the Venezuelan side of the case, treating of the period of the British possession of the Essequibo. He declared that up to 1856 Great Britain possessed only Moruca.

Fifteen Chinamen to be Deported.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 14.—United States Marshal George Seibrecht, of the western district of Texas, has left for San Francisco, accompanied by several armed guards, having in charge fifteen Chinamen sentenced to deportation to China for violation of the exclusion act. These Chinamen are members of a band of about 200 who were imported to Mexico to work on the Mexican Central Railroad, and quit their jobs to make their way into the United States.

Melligan Will Get It.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 14.—John C. Melligan, armorer of the Forty-first Separate Company of Syracuse, who joined the volunteer army as a lieutenant during the war with Spain, was refused his back pay by the Treasurer of Onondaga County for the period of his absence from May 1, 1898, to April 3, 1899. Melligan has received an opinion from the Attorney General saying he is entitled to back wages from the county.

Took His Life While Angry.

Rochester, Aug. 14.—Patrick Horan, 45 years old, while laboring under a temporary aberration of mind induced by intense anger brought on by a trivial family quarrel, committed suicide by cutting his throat from ear to ear. The impulse to end his life came on him like a flash, and, rushing to a closet, he seized a razor and nearly severed his head from the body. Death resulted almost instantly.

Kipling Barred Out Again.

Boston, Aug. 14.—Kipling's books have been excluded from the library of the Sunday-school of the North Cambridge Universalist Church. The Rev. Frank O. Hall, the pastor, says: "I found on inspecting one of Kipling's books that it held up before the boys who read it the most drunken, desperate sort of a character as an ideal, a hero."

$12,000,000 in Currency Taken.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The amount of gold certificates paid out at the several mints of the United States in exchange for gold, so far as reported, is $9,595,440. As San Francisco and New Orleans have not yet sent in their reports, it is estimated that the total issues to date amount to about $12,000,000.

Beaver to Defend Canada Cup.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14.—The Royal Yacht Club has received the report of the judges of the trial races for Canada's cup defender Beaver, the Payne sloop, was the boat recommended and the secretary of the club forwarded notice that Beaver would defend the cup against Genesee. The Beaver has been dry docked.

Was Murder, Not Accident.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The Coroner's jury in the case of George T. Decker, supposed to have fallen from the hotel window in Unionville, on the night of July 4, while asleep, returned a verdict of "Death due to foul means." The Grand Jury will investigate.

Boers' War Preparations.

Johannesburg, Aug. 14.—Active military preparations are in progress in the Transvaal. It is reported that the Boers are arranging with the railways for the mobilization of the Burghers. The Liverpool regiment has arrived at Durban and will proceed to Laingsnek.

Colonels' Grand Stand Burned.

Louisville, Aug. 14.—Fire destroyed the grandstand of the Louisville Baseball Club. The fire originated from an electric light wire during a severe electrical storm. A temporary stand will probably be erected. Loss, $15,000; insurance, $8,000.

Mrs. "Stonewall" Jackson Ill.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 14.—The widow of Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson, who has been at Buffalo Lithia Springs, during the summer, is reported to be in quite a critical condition. She will be brought to this city in a private car for special treatment.

Child Accidentally Poisoned.

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 14.—The 3-year-old grandchild of J. F. Bainbridge, of Philadelphia, a summer resident here, was killed accidentally by drinking from a bottle which had contained strychnine which it found about the house.

STORM HAVOC IN WEST.

Many Head of Stock Killed and Great Damage Done to Property.

LIGHTNING KILLS THREE.

Illinois, Indiana, Michigan Iowa and Wisconsin Suffer Severely From Wind and Rain

Twenty-Five Dwellings Moved From Their Foundations at Bessemer, Mich.—Five Ships Wrecked Off the Australian Coast—Relief Sent to Sufferers in Porto Rico.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—In the storm which swept this city Thomas A. Edwards was drowned. Stanley B. McGraw, his companion, was rescued from their overturned sailboat a mile out in Lake Michigan.

According to dispatches received from points in Illinois, Indiana, Michgan, Iowa and Wisconsin, a great deal of damage was done. In some places there was loss of life due to lightning and the loss in crops and destroyed buildings reaches a heavy figure. Those killed are Collins, a farm hand, near Harvard, Ill., struck by lightning, and Frank Stickney, aged seventeen, struck by lightning, near Janesville.

In many places stock was killed. A large party gathered in a new barn preparatory to dedicating it with a dance. Lightning demolished the structure and injured several of those inside. An icehouse belonging to the Knickerbocker Company, of Chicago, was burned by lightning at Elgin.

At Janesville, Wis., the house of L. C. O'Brien was demolished by lightning. All members of the family were absent at a picnic, and thus their lives were saved.

At Bessemer, Mich., 25 dwellings were moved from their foundations by the wind and flood. Corn and small grain in stack was flattened out everywhere, and the loss to farmers will foot up thousands of dollars.

Wind, rain and lightning caused an aggregate loss of many thousands of dollars in various parts of the State of Michigan, but no serious damage is reported from any one section.

Five Ships Wrecked at Sea.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 14.—Terrible havoc occurred during a hurricane off the Australian coast, according to advices recieved here.

Five ships foundered at sea or were wrecked and more than 100 lives were lost. The City of York, an iron ship of 1,170 tons, went ashore at Rottnest Island, and is a total wreck. Eleven lives were lost.

The wreck of the Carlisle Castle was the most frightful that occurred on the coast for two years. Thirty-three persons from among the passengers are missing, and while many were drowned many more were eaten by sharks.

The Augsburg was carrying a cargo of horses along the coast. The stalls were torn down by the great masses of water that came in over the deck and a large number of the animals were drowned.

Two other unknown ships were wrecked in the storm and a large number of passengers were lost.

Ships Sail with Relief.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The response to Secretary Root's appeal for assistance for the hurricane sufferers in Porto Rico has been of a more generous nature than the War Department had anticipated, and so many articles of food, clothing, etc., have been given that two transports will be required to take the donations to Ponce from New York. These transports left New York to-day and will proceed with all haste possible to the stricken country.

Money contributions have also been forwarded and more will be sent from time to time during the week. It is now believed that at least half a million dollars will be sent from this country to the unfortunate people in the West Indies before next Monday. The suffering there is reported to be of an indescribable nature, and the conditions are such that they appeal to the generosity of every one to give what they can to aid in relieving the distress of those fortunate enough to be spared from death by the terrible storm.

Steamer Sailing Toward the Storm.

Key West, Fla., Aug. 14.—A heavy wind prevailed here. The steamer Olivette, of the Plant line, did not leave on her regular trip for Havana and is still in port. The steamer Lampasas arrived from Galveston and sailed for New York. Fears are expressed that she will catch the West Indian hurricane which is reported off Jupiter.

Barge Sinks At Her Dock.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 14.—The barge Lizzie Crandall, loaded with coal, sank at the Wethersfield dock, several miles from this city, and Capt. F. M. Tuttle and his family barely escaped drowning. The boat was all right when the captain inspected her at midnight. He was awoke early and found water trickling into the cabin. He woke his wife and child and they reached the dock just as the barge sank. There is a suspicion the barge was scuttled.

Silver Safely Stored in New Mint.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—The last consignment of silver dollars from the old mint to the vault of the new building, Sixteenth and Spring Garden streets, was made this morning, so that now all of the 68,000,000 silver dollars that secure the silver certificates are safely stored in the receptacles from which it is probable they will not be taken for years.

Woman Cheated by Shell Workers.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Anna Nelson has sworn out a warrant in which she alleges she was defrauded out of $27 on an excursion steamer Gordon by "shell game" workers.

Kipling Now Carnegie's Neighbor.

London, Aug. 14.—Rudyard Kipling has taken his family to Scotland. His residence overlooks Andrew Carnegie's estate at Skibbo, so Kipling will find a desired seclusion.

Sing Sing Convicts Vaccinated.

Sing Sing, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Although there is no contagious disease in the prison here, Prison Physician Robert T. Irvine has vaccinated all of the inmates who seemed to need it.

Dewey Sailing Home.

Naples, Aug. 14.—The United States cruiser Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, has sailed for Leghorn.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

Welcome Here, William.

The report that Congressman Daly contemplates leaving the wily Hudson county for the prosaic baliwick of Somerset as a residential place, leads the New Jersey editor of the New York Press to soliloquize thusly:

Affairs in the Democratic household must be on edge when Representative Daly has expressed a desire to stamp the dust of Hudson off his feet and seek a residential section quite remote from Hoboken; in fact, in Somerset. Daly believes he will have more of a show among the farmers of the Third district than in Hudson, and we shall expect to hear more about him in the future if he settles in Somerset.

We have not heard where the Honorable William proposes to take up his residence in Somerset, but we would suggest that he will find no place half so pleasant or advantageous as North Plainfield. Here he will be able to rub elbows, not only with the simon pure of Somerset, but as well with the progressive and up-to-date Union county people, a combination that would prove a happy one for the Congressman.

It is an old adage that "it's a poor rule that won't work both ways," but the residents of Madison have gone the axiom one better by saying that it is a poor State law that doesn't work both ways, especially with a stubborn Board of Freeholders at one end. Very recently Union county witnessed the Board of Freeholders proclaiming themselves, under a State law, the custodians of certain streets and highways in municipalities for the purpose of furthering the scheme of John Kean to build a trolley road. But over in Morris county a different state of affairs prevails, where the refusal of the Morris County Board of Freeholders to grant the petition of the Madison Borough Council, which asked for the control of the county roads within the borough limits, is a keen disappointment to the citizens of Madison, who hoped by this means to prevent any possible attempt to use the main thoroughfare for a trolley road or permit a gaslight company to lay its mains.

A cicrular-letter has been issued by some justices of the peace of New Jersey, urging the organization of a State association for self-protection and advancement. In commenting upon this appeal The Hackensack Republican says: "If the intelligent justices will organize to protect the public from ignorant and incompetent justices, they will readily command sympathy. Nothing but the extreme leniency of judges of the higher courts saves some justices of the peace from being turned out of office." And The Bayonne Herald adds: "The Republican is right. The justice of the peace is not without his use; in communities where there are no district courts he can be of great service, but because so many justices were ignorant, incompetent, overbearing and unjust, public opinion demanded a change and it will be a difficult task now to revive the old system."

Plainfield colored political leaders—all of whom, of course, are Republicans—have been invited to participate in a conference at Bordentown Friday and Saturday of this week when plans will be laid for the Negroes to become more of a power in party councils this year. Presumably, one of the principal topics will be the prospect of division of spoils and the colored man's share in proportion to the vote of the race at the polls. When it comes to this phase of the situation the Plainfield gentlemen of color can undoubtedly give some very interesting stories of their treatment by the powers that be.

President Kruger recently refused an introduction to a well-known Englishman, who thereupon sent word that he must see "Oom" Paul; that he was no ordinary person, and that he was, in fact, a member of the House of Lords. The servant went away and returned with the message, "The President says he cannot see you, and adds that he is a cattle herder." Which would seem to indicate that "Oom" is quite up in all that constitutes the high art of sarcasm.

Orange does not propose to stand for any evasion of the terms it secures from corporations in return for the granting of public rights, as is shown in the notice served on the West Orange Electric Company, which contracted to light the public offices of Orange free of cost in return for a franchise, and hasn't done it, that it must pay the cost of illumination until its plant is ready.

Jacob Glazer, of Elizabeth, is the only Democrat in Union county who has announced himself as a candidate for office at the hands of his party this fall. From present appearances it looks as though Jacob might corrall all the plums, if he so desired, but the particular one he is after is the nomination for Sheriff. He seems in a fair way to secure it.

From the evidence in hand Mrs. Eyler, the superintendent of the Girl's Industrial School, ought to prefix the letter "W" to her cognomen in order to maintain the eternal fitness of things.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Mayor Silas Dewey Drake has received from the Countess of Aberdeen the following reply to a letter he recently addressed to her on the occasion of her presiding at the Women's Congress in London:

"Dear Mr. Dewey Drake—Allow me to thank you for your kind courtesy in sending me cuttings which you enclosed, and for letting me know the result that you have experienced in Lincoln from the fact that women have voted and have been elected in the Common Council. Hoping that these good results may be sustained, I remain faithfully yours, Isabel Aberdeen."

A friend at the writer's elbow has suggested that people afflicted with dyspepsia should take a ride on the Plainfield Street Railroad between this city and Dunellen. One would imagine he was going over a corduroy road instead of riding on a trolley car. The road bed is about the worst one in the State. The cars jolt and bob along. By the time passengers arrives at the end of the route they are well shaken up. If it's after dinner, perhaps a ride will be good for one's digestion. The road certainly needs thoroughly overhauling. In some places the rails are nearly an inch apart while in others the tracks has sunken beneath the road-bed from an inch to an inch and a half.

Peter Roehricht, who has earned the distinction of being the founder of Somerset Park, Washingtonville's new settlement, is an admirer of the automobile and enthusiastic as well regarding the future possibilities of the Park. Mr. Roehricht has an idea that unless the street railway can be induced to extend its line between the Park and Somerset street, automobile service could be made to pay. It certainly would prove novel and possibly might be the means of prevailing upon influential men of means to locate in the vicinity. Mr. Roehricht is sanguine that the success of the Park is assured.

Other improvements are contemplated and the advantages of the place for residential purposes will be fully appreciated by men of means seeking a delightful locality to establish homes.

THEATRICAL.

George Thatcher's visits to any city are always accounted pleasurable events to the world of amusements. He has endeared himself to thousands of theatregoers by reason of the many clever characterizations he has contributed to the minstrel and comedy stage of America—characterizations by the way that have always been carefully drawn and delicately, as well as artistically, handled by this excellent artist, whose followers have come to know that any minstrel performance to which he contributes his unique personality will be presented in a painstaking and praiseworthy manner. Therefore it is not extraordinary that the announcements which have been made during the past week relative to his forthcoming appearance at the Stillman Music Hall, Friday, August 18th, with George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels, are received with more than ordinary enthusiasm. The company in its entirety is a strong one throughout.

A splendid supply of standard vaudeville stars has been secured for next week by F. F. Proctor for his two continuous performance theatres, in New York, the Twenty-third Street Theatre, just west of Sixth avenue, and the Pleasure Palace, at fifty-eighth Street, and Third avenue. There are no better patronized theatres in Greater New York than Proctor's and the Pleasure Palace.

The attractions this week at the Pleasure Palace, where the summer price is still 10 cents in the afternoons to the ladies, are: Chas. T. Ellis & Co., Canfield and Carleton, Kingsley Sisters, Falke and Lillian, Earl and Wilson, and 20 others. At the Twenty-third Street Theatre, this week, an excellent programme is arranged. Some of these are: Frederic Bond, the favorite New York comedian, who will appear in the bright comedietta, "My Awful Dad," and he will have the support of Dallas Tyler, Eva Vincent, and others; Patterson Bros., gymnasts; Silvern and Emerle, on the aerial rings; Wesson, Walters and Simon, Gracey and Burnett and others.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

AMERICAN STEAM LAUNDRY,

122 East Front Street.

By our new process of ironing we are enabled to give you a perfect domestic finish, and to launder turn down collars without breaking them. Call and see how we do it; you are welcome to inspect our plant at all times; no mystery about our work.

Hand work on all shirt waists, cost a little more, but perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

"Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before."

Already our store begins to take on a more sombre hue, due to the arrival of large quantities of new goods for the approaching Fall business, a sort of advance guard for the coming campaign. Business methods have been revolutionized in the last few years, and wideawake merchants must lay plans far ahead of each season, if their customers are to have the best of everything the market can furnish. For months we have been actively preparing for what we hope shall be the busiest season in the history of our constantly growing business. Many lines of goods have been carefully looked over, in some cases entirely rejected, from some only the choice things selected. Mill orders for Blankets, Underwear and sundry winter goods have been placed, and goods are being made before the grand rush, insuring better values

We came to Plainfield to give its people an up-to-date store, and one that should be worthy of so fair a city. With your cordial support we are fast approaching our Ideal.

Fall Dress Suitings.

Double face plaid golf suiting will be almost universally worn Splendid, warm, durable and economical goods they are. Require no lining. We are showing some exceedingly choice patterns already, with many others to come as the mills are able to fill orders. Heavy Plaid Sackings also for Golf Capes. They make remarkably stylish garments and are not extravagantly expensive.

Black Crepons.

In our opinion no more beautiful goods were ever made from Mohair. Heavy, rich patterns, bright lustre, absolutely fast color elegant beyond description. The patterns we are showing were selected early and are the best obtainable. Prices 75c to $1 98, the last mentioned we will guarantee to be worth $2 50, or money will be refunded.

Black Goods.

Our line of Black Goods is always complete. Ladies who desire black goods should by all means see our goods. We have a special 46 in Black Henrietta at $1.00 per yard, that is exceptional value. French Serges, Broad Cloths, Cheviots, Cashmeres, Velours and Fancy weaves in variety.

Extreme Novelties in Colored Dress Goods we carefully avoid, but Broadcloths, Coverts, Cashmeres, Henriettas, Granite Cloths, Cheviots, Storm Serges, Diagonals, etc., we have in the best shades.

New Wash Goods.

Flanneletts. The very name is attractive, but the goods are far more so. Rich, warm colors, fine soft fabrics we predict for them a very large sale, certainly we know of nothing else so beautiful for inexpensive house dresses.

Outing Flannels.

more perfectly finished than ever, and too beautiful to describe. They are pre-eminently the goods for the masses, for everybody from the most humble to the grandest people use them.

About Table Linens.

The last large purchase of ours has served simply to whet the appetite of our people for more and has stimulated us to greater efforts along this line. Another large purchase of these goods includes 5 patterns of 70-in pure linen damask the actual value of which is 75c per yard. While they last we shall sell them at 50c per yard. We are not sure of being able to get more of the same. If interested BUY NOW. In the same purchase we secured 51 doz (all) Hemmed Huck Towels, 17 x 35. They are selling at 10 cents each They are worth 15 cents each. We show a line of Plaid Glass Towelings that rivals that of any we have seen

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Aug. 14.—A mass-meeting was held in the town rooms Saturday evening for the purpose of discussing the recent action of the Postmaster General in refusing Westfield a free delivery system when he gave that convenience to Cranford, a smaller town. The rooms were well filled and considerably talk was indulged in. The outcome of the meeting was the appointing of the following committee to confer with the postoffice officials: Messrs. C. W. Hardon, Martin Wells, J. A. Dennis, Hon. John B. Green and J. J. Coger.

David Curtis and Charles Embleton, two of Westfield's fast wheelmen, will go to Vailsburg next Sunday to ride in the novice race. There is quite a rivilary between these two men and a good deal of money will change hands on the result of the race.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Sale of Muslin .... UNDERWEAR.

NIGHT ROBES
WHITE SKIRTS
CORSET COVERS
DRAWERS
CHEMISE

Fresh from the factories comes this large collection of Underwear. No tints at shop about them. Every stitch carefully taken. Every garment cut and put together in expert fashion.

To make this sale profitable we shall halve our legitimate profits, giving you the opportunities of money-saving importance. The standard of values has never been so high as at this particular time.

A WHITE ROBE is a strong feature of the sale

42c Muslin gown, with eight deep plaits, with four rows of hemstitching, neck, front and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffles.

59c Gowns of good quality muslin, yoke has four rows of insertion with sixteen fine tucks, neck, front and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffles.

75c Gowns of fine muslin, solid yoke of tucking and insertion, cut low in front, neck and sleeves trimmed wide embroidery ruffles.

89c Gowns of fine muslin, solid yoke of fine tucking with hemstitched collar and cuffs.

98c Gowns of fine muslin, Empire shape, with solid yoke of insertion, deep collar and cuffs trimmed with narrow insertion.

$1.25 Gowns, Empire shape, solid yoke and revers of handsome embroidery and insertion collars and cuffs, beautifully trimmed with fine embroidery.

$1.50 Gowns of fine cambric, Empire shape, very elaborately trimmed with fine lace and insertion.

Children's gowns in plain and embroidery trimmed, sizes 3 to 15 years.

WHITE SKIRTS Cut full and generous, made of good materials, priced at about the retail cost of bare materials. All the sewing money saved.

25c Good heavy muslin skirts, cut full and wide, finished with two-inch linen and cluster of three tucks.

49c Skirts, good muslin, cut full and wide, umbrella shaped, ruffle of fine lawn, finished with narrow lace flounces.

98c Skirts, fine muslin, with twelve-inch umbrella shaped, ruffle of fine lawn with three rows of hemstitching or one row of fine insertion.

$1.39 Shirts, very fine muslin, with deep flounce of handsome Irish point embroidery.

CORSET COVERS The evidence of unusual value is nowhere more evident than here. These lots are wonders of good workmanship, good material and price cheapness.

19c Corset covers, cut pointed back and front trimmed with neat cambric edging.

25c Corset covers of cambric, cut pointed back and front, yoke of fine tucking, edged with nainsook embroidery.

35c Corset covers of fine cambric, yoke of solid tucking, and linen stitching edged with cambric embroidery.

50c Corset covers of fine quality cambric, yoke of alternate rows of fine lace and clusters of tucking, low square cut, neck and sleeves trimmed with fine lace edging.

French shaped Corset Covers in very choice styles at 25c and 50c.

DRAWERS We planned carefully to give you unusual values. Your response in buying will prove our success.

19c Drawers of good heavy muslin, finished with two-inch hem and cluster of three tucks.

25c Drawers of good quality muslin, umbrella shape, ruffles of fine cambric and linen stitching.

29c Drawers, good muslin, with deep umbrella shaped ruffle of cambric, edged with fine lace.

39c Drawers, with four-inch ruffle of fine embroidery and cluster of four tucks.

49c Drawers of fine muslin, umbrella shape ruffle of six-inch cambric with deep lace and insertion.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Der 23jährige verheirathete Kaufmann Ernst Moritz Bernhardt aus Erbisdorf, der im April in sechs Fällen Raubanfälle auf hiesige Geldbriefträger auszuführen versuchte, wurde von dem Schwurgericht zu 2½ Jahren Zuchthaus und 10 Jahren Ehrverlust verurtheilt. Der Verbrecher hatte Geldbriefträger in Wohnungen, die er unter falschem Namen miethete, gelockt, indem er Briefumschläge mit werthlosem Inhalt als Geldbriefe zur Post gab. Bei der Ueberbringung der Briefe wollte er die Beamten mit einem eisernen Gewichtstück niederschlagen und berauben. Als das Verhaben durch die Vorsicht der Briefträger in fünf Fällen verhindert worden war, gelang es, den Verbrecher im sechsten Fall vor Ausübung der That zu verhaften.

Bautzen. Bei der Radwettfahrt Wien-Berlin verunglückte in der Nähe von Großhennersdorf am Esberge der Motorwagen, indem die Bremse mitten am Berge versagte und die Maschine im schnellsten Tempo an einen Baum fuhr. Sie wurde stark beschädigt. Von den drei Insassen ist einem die Brust eingedrückt worden, die beiden anderen haben nur leichtere Verletzungen davongetragen. Das Obergedeck der Maschine wurde von dem ausströmenden Gase verbrannt.

Chemnitz. Das hiesige Sächsische Webstuhllackirwerk ist niedergebrannt.

Crimmitschau. Zu Ehren des Altreichskanzlers ist von der Stadt ein ausgedehnter Bismarckhain geschaffen und dem Verkehr übergeben worden. Die Kosten für die prachtvollen Parkanlagen betrugen 130,000 Mark, von denen 100,000 durch städtische Umlagen, 21,000 durch freiwillige Spenden gedeckt wurden.

Jocketa. Hier wurden ein Chemiker Dr. Lanzendörfer und Frau verhaftet. Beide hatten sich mehrere Monate in einer Sommerfrische bei Grimma aufgehalten, in der die Frau auch von einem Kinde entbunden wurde. Das Ehepaar verschwand aus der Sommerfrische heimlich mit sämmtlichem Gepäck, ließ aber das Kind, zwei Dienstmädchen und zahlreiche Schulden zurück. Dr. Lanzendörfer stammt aus Nordböhmen.

Johanngeorgenstadt. Der Rathsregistrator Zimmermann, gegen den wegen Unterschlagung von amtlichen Geldern eine Untersuchung eingeleitet war, hat sich erschossen.

Leipzig. Das neue Rathhaus, dessen Pläne von den Stadtverordneten genehmigt wurden, erfordert einen Kostenaufwand von rund 6,800,000 Mark. Der Grundstein zu dem umfangreichen Gebäude wird am 19. September gelegt.

Thüringische Staaten.

Arnstadt. Beim Submissionswesen ereignen sich manchmal recht sonderbare Dinge. So laufet von den Angeboten für die Legung der eisernen Wasserleitungsröhren dahier das niedrigste auf etwa 40,000 Mark, während das höchste gegen 113,000 Mark beträgt.

Gera. Die hiesigen Lehrer sind seitens ihrer vorgesetzten Dienstbehörde angewiesen worden, die Agenturen von Versicherungsgesellschaften, soweit sie solche innehaben, niederzulegen.

Weimar. Zum Bau einer Zahnradbahn nach der Wartburg hat der Großherzog seine Genehmigung versagt.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die hiesige Handelsakademie trat dieser Tage in ihr 50. Semester. Ihre Methode besteht in freien Vorträgen, schulmäßigen Unterrichtsstunden und praktischen Uebungen. Es bestehen zwei Lehrpläne, ein Jahreskurs und ein Halbjahrskurs.—Der zweite Bürgermeister Hamburgs, Dr. Versmann, ist nach mehrwöchentlicher Krankheit an einer Lungenlähmung gestorben.—Aus hier wurde der böhmische Buchbinder Mikosch ausgewiesen.—Neulich Mittags wurde hier auf offener Straße der Maurer Schmidt von dem Privatwächter Spießhöfer erschossen, mit dem er in einer Wirthschaft in Streit gerathen war. Schmidt erhielt zwei Revolverschüsse in den Kopf und starb bald nach seiner Einlieferung in das Krankenhaus. Der Thäter wurde verhaftet.

Bremen. Der „Norddeutsche Lloyd" hat beim Vulkan in Stettin einen neuen Schnelldampfer in Bau gegeben, der eine Fahrgeschwindigkeit von über 23 Knoten entwickeln und bis zum Sommer 1901 fertiggestellt sein soll.—Auf der Werft der Aktiengesellschaft „Weser" lief der kleine Kreuzer „Niobe" mit einem Deplacement von 3800 Tonnen vom Stapel. Die Taufe vollzog Bürgermeister Dr. Pauli.

Lübeck. Für das Baujahr 1899—1900 am Elb-Travekanal bewilligte die Bürgerschaft 4,374,000 Mark.—Bei der Aufnahme des Inventars in der Aegidienkirche hat man einen werthvollen Fund gemacht. Hinter dem Altar angebracht, befanden sich zwei schwarze Tafeln, auf denen von Mitte des 17. bis Anfang des 19. Jahrhunderts die Zahl der jährlich an der Beichte Theilnehmenden verzeichnet wurde. Da die Befestigung der Tafel eine eigenthümliche war, so beschloß man, sie abzunehmen. Man fand auf den Rückseiten der Tafeln ganz vorzüglich erhaltene Gemälde, die nach Ansicht der Sachverständigen aus dem 14. Jahrhundert stammen. NAPOLEON'S TROUBLES.

His Royal Physician Diagnosed His Trouble As "Gale Repercutes."

Napoleon Bonaparte, as First Consul and as Emperor, was the victim of a malady which caused him to seek the advice of the most distinguished physicians of Paris. It is a little shocking to modern sensibilities to read that these physicians, except Corvisart, diagnosed the distinguished patient's malady as "gale repercutee"—that is to say, in idiomatic English, the itch "struck in." It is hardly necessary to say that no physician of to-day would make so inconsiderate a diagnosis in the case of a royal patient. If by any chance a distinguished patient were afflicted with the itch, the sagacious physician would carefully hide the fact behind circumlocutions, and proceed to eradicate the disease with all dispatch.

All of which goes to show how easy it may be for a masked pretender to impose on credulous humanity; for nothing is more clearly established in modern knowledge than the fact that "gale repercutee" was simply a name to hide a profound ignorance; no such disease exists, or ever did exist. Gale itself is a sufficiently tangible reality, to be sure; but it is a purely local disease of the skin, due to a perfectly definite cause, and the dire internal conditions formerly ascribed to it have really no causal connection with it whatever. This definite cause, as every one nowadays knows, is nothing more nor less than a microscopic insect which has found lodgment on the skin, and it has burrowed and made itself at home there. Kill that insect, and the disease is no more; hence it has come to be an axiom with the modern physician that the itch is one of the three or four diseases that he is positively able to cure, and that very speedily. But it was far otherwise with the physicians of the first third of our century, because to them the cause of the disease was an absolute mystery.—Harper's Magazine.

Clams Travel.

"'They do, all the same, and I'll show you,' he said, and backed water with his oars, stopping the boat. 'There's one now right under you.'

"I looked down into the water, and there, at the very end of a furrow, was a clam resting upright on one end, head down, as I discovered by dipping him up with my landing net. By looking carefully we discovered other clams. If they were moving, it was too slowly for me to detect their progress, but in every case the clam was at the end of a furrow, which he plainly had made, standing on end, head down.

"'They allus travel on their heads,' the boy said. 'They can work along tol'able fast when they've a mind to. I've known one to go the length of this boat in a day.'

"'What's their idea in all this balancing about on their heads?' I asked. 'Where are they going anyway?'

"'Dunno. But I guess they're browsin' round for somethin' to eat' the boy answered, and so far as I have an opinion in the matter I think he guessed right."

"It had always been my belief that the clam, like the oyster, was a homestayer, growing contentedly to maturity in the place where he was born, and never moving from the spot of his own accord," said a New York man, fond of sports with rod and gun, "but this belief was changed during my last summer's vacation in Maine. I spent several days at Sebec Lake, usually starting on my day's fishing excursions from Greeley's Landing, on the south shore. Here for a long distance out the water is shallow, with a sandy bottom. All over this bottom extending out to where it was too deep to be seen were queer little furrows, such as a man might make in sand with the tip of a walking stick. I knew that they could not have been made by eels, which would have left sinuous tracks, while these were straight, and I was puzzled to explain them. At last I asked my boatman, a country boy, bred on the shores of the lake, what caused these furrows.

"'Clams,' he answered, briefly, with a slight tone of wonder in his voice at my ignorance.

Pavement of Glass.

Yet another street pavement! Not satisfied with cobblestones and wood, the city of Lyon has been experimenting with glass as a substitute. This new product is obtained from broken glass heated to a temperature of 1,250 degrees, and compressed in matrices by hydraulic force. The glass pavement is laid in the form of blocks, eighteen inches square, says the London News, each block containing sixteen parts in the form of checkers. These blocks are so closely fitted together that water cannot pass between them, and the whole pavement looks like one gigntic draught board. As a pavement it is said to have greater resistance than stone; it is a poor conductor of cold and ice will not form on it readily, dirt does not accumulate upon it as easily as upon stone and it will not retain microbes. It is more durable than stone and just as cheap.

FASHIONS IN FRANCE

What a Keen Observer Sees at Aix-les-Bains.

By Henriette Rousseau.

In order to have money enough left to pay postage on my letters, I left Biarritz for Aix-les-Bains, where there is a marked difference in prices. There is also a marked difference in the number of people. And, as near as an outsider can tell, it is just as grande monde as at the other place. You hear nothing but comtesse this and duchesse that and marquise and princesse occasionally. If all the people one hears called by those titles really own them, then all the flower of the old nobility of France is here. These people make it a law almost as unchangeable as the laws of the Medes and Persians to go to the Vernissage in Paris, the Grand Prix and then to one or the other of the watering places, after which they take up life in their country houses until November. Then nothing satisfies them but Paris, where opera, theater, ball and mercy knows what all besides keep them going like mad.

It must be confessed, though, that all these noble ladies are elegantly dressed, with a taste entirely Parisian. It is at these watering places and at the chateaux that the new fabrics and colors are worn which are expected to be fashionable in the fall for everybody else.

It is even shrewdly suspected that some of the manufacturers get down on their knees and beg some of these leaders of fashion to deign to accept a piece of their goods and have it made and send the bill for the making to them. A story is told that a clever young duchesse, knowing well the value of her name, made a little deal with the dressmakers whereby the fabric was literally covered with real lace, sewed on in such a flimsy way that after wearing the gown a couple of times as it was she had the lace ripped off and used to trim two other dresses, and the manufacturer paid the bill!

Among the swellest of the promenade gowns there is one tint or color only. This is generally so light that it looks white in some lights, and in others it shows only the faintest hint of green, gray, tan or blue. There are some new woolen goods of light texture and almost flimsy weave. These are not even made in tailor style, but in any way that strikes the fancy of the dressmaker, and that means generally that they are incrusted with heavy lace. One very elaborate promenade toilet was made of soft dove colored cashmere pastel. This is the very sublimated essence of all the cashmeres ever before seen. It is elastic and yet firm, while at the same time it falls in most ideally artistic folds. Therefore it can be made to fit like the traditional glove around the hips and to sweep off into the most graceful of curves at the bottom.

The lovely young Duchesse Rochefoucauld-Deaudeauville wore the beautiful gown mentioned. The sleeves were nearly tight and had stiffish straps of folds of dark dove colored satin. There are several shades of dove color. The dress was cut in princess shape, and all the upper part was covered with the heaviest Limerick lace in cuirasse form. This was applied solidly to the dress itself. It was cut in sharp, deep points, which were edged with white satin folds, and these formed diamonds up the sides, filled in by pieces of the dark satin. Down all the seams were rows of rich lace insertion. Directly around the bottom were several very narrow and close folds of satin. The collar was high and pointed behind the ears.

The hat was a picture in itself, being of gray satin stretched over a frame and faced with sapphire blue velvet and with a row of lace points. Three large white plumes finished it, with a little gray satin drapery and one rosette. Blue and gray rarely look well together, but they did in this hat. The illustration will show the new manteleet, which bids fair to become a favorite bit of attire, and it carries its hint of directoire days. This one is of cashmere to match the dress, with a little white silk embroidery and a deep knotted silk fringe of the same shade. In the back it is gathered under a large gilt or filigree buckle or fancy passementerie. Some of them have fringe all around.

Fine mull dresses are seen with an applique of colored flowers cut from silk, in rather large and vague design, much like the cheney silk. They are sewed to the muslin by a tiny line of lace insertion. No one can tell how pretty they are. One young lady of very distinguished appearance had flowers cut out in this way, but sewed under the mull, which gave it a still more delicate effect.

The sweet little Countess de la Boullaye with her two young daughters were much admired. The mother walked along slowly, attired in a pearl gray woolen dress, cut to bring out every line of her dainty figure. It was overlaid with lace on the skirt. Over it she wore a jacket of deep crimson cloth with revers and plain vest of the same color. The vest, too, had revers. A wide row of lace of the dark ecru shade went around the high collar and all around the skirt of the coat. There were pockets.

It faintly reminded one of the Louis XIV jackets. With this the pretty little countess wore a regular poke bonnet with strings of red gauze and a big rosette of the same upon the crown. Her daughters wore cream colored wool grenadine, with pale pink velvet accessories. This lady has had one of the most tragic and romantic histories ever known in real life. Assassination and shipwreck were among her trials, and the sudden and awful death of her husband in China thrilled the world.

nearly fallen into disuse, but is being revived at the present season. It has a richly carved front and a broad serving board. There are a beautiful French mirror, a shelf above, supported by two beautifully carved winged heads, two drawers and a large closet beneath for silverware and linen. The legs are in the old fashioned Flemish style. This antique piece of furniture takes the place of a sideboard and is more desirable, as it open beneath, making it convenient to sweep beneath without removing.

Ancient Feeding Bottles.

Most people are of opinion that feeding bottles for babies must be an invention of modern times. This, however, is not the case, according to Professor Mosby, who, lecturing recently before an antiquarian society, stated that it was the custom among the Greeks for the nurses to carry a sponge full of honey in a small pot to stop the children from crying. The professor went on to say that there are two Greek vases in the British museum, dating from 700 B. C., which closely resemble the feeding bottles used subsequently by the Romans. In the old Roman cemetery of St. Sepulcher, Canterbury, a feeding bottle of bright red polished ware was dug up in 1861, and Professor Mosby came to the conclusion that this bottle must have been buried with the little Roman child to whose wants it had ministered during the child's lifetime.

A Woman's Control of Her Bicycle.

Apropos of the sad accident which befell several of the party of school teachers cycling down a steep hill on Staten Island a few days ago; the writer notes a paragraph from the London Queen speaking of the alarming number of accidents among women cyclists. "It is some slight consolation to find that in nearly every case of highway accident at a certain place," states the article, "the cause is thus explained, 'She lost control of her wheel.' Would not this sentence make a good epitaph? It expresses the cause of all our failures. In nine cases out of ten to control yourself is to control your wheel. People who keep their heads, who do not get flurried, rarely meet with this particular kind of accident, the one in which the machine runs away being no longer under control."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Hot Tea For Warm Weather.

The advocates of tea as a warm weather beverage cannot find words sufficiently laudatory with which to express their opinion of the merits of this thirst quenching drink, particularly for those whose duties compel them to be much out of doors during the heat of the day. It is scalding hot tea that is prescribed, and when carefully and properly made it is said to be an invaluable restorative to a person feverish or exhausted by exposure to the sun or high temperatures.

What to Use.

The proper way to frame the now fashionable miniature photographs is the carved black frame with narrow band of silver. The mat should also be of stained black oak placed close to the picture itself. Portraits framed thus are wonderfully effective and beautiful and not to be regarded in the mere vulgar light of the photograph.

MANY STYLES IN GARTERS.

They Are Beautiful and the Fad Is a Very Expensive One.

Garters of silken rubber, resplendent with gold and bejewelled buckles and caught with coquettish butterfly bows are the fad of the moment.

The fin de siecle young woman chooses her elastics with an eye to artistic effect. The colors of the ribbon must correspond exactly with the hues of her silken lingerie. The glistening jewels which stud the elaborate buckles must be of the purest water. Finely chased monograms must be inwrought to preserve the owner against loss.

That the fad is an expensive one goes without saying. One belle received as a souvenir a pair of garters valued at $1,500. They came in the form of golden snakes. The gold was laid in tiny scales over silk elastic, and thickly sprinkled with tiny diamonds. The head was thickly encrusted with larger diamonds. Emerald eyes and forked tongue of rubies completed the head, which rested in an airy rosette of white satin ribbon. A gold clasp of particularly strong workmanship was concealed under the rosette. This was engraved with the full name of the owner.

A bridal garter is very elegant. Of purest white elastic, with satin ribbon shirred thickly in ruches on either side, the rosette is caught with a love knot of pearls and diamonds. Tiny bands of the jewels clasp the ribbon circlet at intervals. Another pair intended for the bridal trousseau has the clasp formed of two hearts, thickly set with diamonds.

A fleur-de-lis buckle of sapphires and diamonds flashes from another pair, fashioned of white satin ribbon. Turquoise and topaz set in old silver buckles of quaint filagree patterns appeal to lovers of the unique.

Beetles and bugs vie with dragon flies in the brilliancy of their gemmed armors. Flowers come in for a share of attention and are copied in close resemblance to nature.

For women of modest means exquisite gold and silver clasps are chased and monogramed to nestle in the dainty knee ribbons. Many are beautifully enamelled, but the plainer ones are apt to be more elegant.

One handsome pair of buckles can be used for many garters. A girl with deft fingers can have numerous pairs at trifling cost. An artistic eye, a knowledge of needlework, and a few moments of time are all that is necessary to make as pretty a pair of garters as one could possibly want.

The fashion of wearing elaborate garters is so universal that custom even in most conventional circles sanctions the giving of them as gifts and souvenirs.

Walk in the Sunshine.

When the work of the busy woman will permit her to travel her two miles in the sunshine she should surely make the most of such a priceless advantage, for beneficial as the breathing of plenty of oxygen and the regular exercise of the muscles are at any time, sunshine is a tonic for mind, heart and body, which no woman, sick or well, can afford to despise.

The society girl, who has a little more leeway in arranging her time, should walk each morning directly after breakfast, and not less than two miles. The busy woman of household cares can plan to take her morning trip when she is out marketing for the day. She should never delude herself, moreover, with the idea that shopping, dragging about from store to store carrying parcels and breathing the impure air of the average shop is "getting exercise." It is only the full, free swing out of doors, in the pure air, that will take her home with red cheeks and bright eyes.

Schoolgirls should walk either before school hours or at noon. An hour each day given to brisk walking will prove far more valuable in after life than the usual assortment of half-learned accomplishments, "parlor tricks," with which children's spare hours are usually filled.

Wagner's Exaltation of Women.

No poet ever lived who exalted woman as Wagner does in almost every one of his dramas. The purity of a spotless female soul was for him one of the great powers of Nature. What God's angel could not accomplish—the rescue of "The Flying Dutchman" out of Satan's clutches—"Senta," the virgin, achieves by the sacrifice of her life. "Elizabeth" dies in order to kneel at God's very throne and there pray for "Tannhauser," whom the Pope himself had not dared to absolve from eternal perdition. "Brunnhilde" is, there can be little doubt, the sublimest —female character that was ever put on the stage. And what the poet dreamed of, the man sought for in real life.

Costly Jewels.

The pearl necklace which the Emperor of Austria presented to the late empress on the christening of the Crown Prince Rudolph has been left to the young Archduchess Elizabeth, together with many other jewels, by her grandmother's will. The empress' own jewels, independent of those belonging to the crown were not long since valued at over $7,000,000.

Children's Lunches.

If the children are obliged to carry their dinners to school, don't put up sweet stuff and nothing else. Let there be cold meat and something in the way of a relish—at least a mayonnaise dressing on the sandwich.

TEXTS ON GOLD LEAF

Why Gold Leaf Is Packed Between Leaves of the Bible.

People outside of regular dealers in gold leaf are occasionally surprised when they purchase books of the material to find that the paper leaves between the sheets of gold have texts of Scripture printed on them. Looking closer they find that the paper leaves are actually cut from the Bible. Speaking of this, the head of a Chicago firms which deals in gold leaf said:

"The gold leaf which is put up in books made from paper leaves cut from the Bible comes from England. There is no intention to be irreverent in packing the gold leaf in this way. Most of it goes to the stores where they sell artist's materials, and is packed between printed sheets because the slight indentations in the paper made by the printing serve to hold the delicate film of gold in place.

"Why is it that the Bible is generally used? Simply for the reason that the Bible is usually printed in small type and is always very evenly set, and the impression of the type on the paper is very light, but enough to hold the gold leaf in place without injuring it. Another book that is used for the same purpose is the Book of Common Prayer, the small type editions, of course. The paper is always very fine and smooth and when printed the leaves are just adapted for the purpose of holding the gold leaf.

"The first time I was asked for an explanation on this point was when I had a store for the sale of artist's materials. A gentleman who bought several books of English-made gold leaf came to me and asked me if paper was so scarce where the gold leaf was made that they had to cut up Bibles for the purpose of packing the leaf. He had noticed that the sheets of gold leaf were packed between sheets of printed paper, but paid no attention to it until his eye caught a Scriptural text that had often puzzled him. It was the passage 'Iron sharpeneth iron; so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend.' Then he saw that the gold leaf was placed between cut-up pages of the Bible. He seemed to think that the sheets of the Bible were used by some religious manufacturer who thought some one might be converted by reading a stray text. He said he was almost startled when he read the text he was puzzling over and looked disappointed when I explained in a matter-of-fact way why pages of the Bible were used.

"Once or twice very excellent people who bought this gold leaf from me were indignant when they found that the Bible was cut up to hold it, and told me I should not encourage the profanation by selling that kind of leaf. Others who were of a different temperament said they were glad to see it, as it might lead to some people reading texts of Scripture, by glancing with curiosity at the printed sheets, who never took a Bible in their hands. They held that no matter what form it took it was a good thing to circulate texts of Scripture."

London's Meat.

Little more than a half of the bill that London settles every year goes into the pocket of the English farmer. From the ends of the earth comes this vast supply. This great ogre of a city of ours, before whose gastronomic efforts the feats of all the giants of legend and fairy tale fade into insignificance, has taken his toll of the wild ranchers from boundless Western prairies, of the beautiful chestnut-colored herds of the Andalusian Mountains, of the piebald-coated cattle that the honest Dutch tend as their own children, and of the sturdy oxen of the North German plains, says Cassell's Magazine. Canada and Australia send us lambs and sheep, the River Platte our ox tongues, Hamburg and Rotterdam our pigs. What an advertisement for the Navy League! What an object lesson for those who declare our fleet is overgrown!

It passes human comprehension to think what would become of London if our command of the sea were lost and the foreign supplies failed! if the 150,000 live cattle from America that swell the metropolitan cattle herd during the year never reached their destination; if Holland's half million of sheep were forced to remain on the home pastures—in short, if the 140,000 tons of meat, neither bred nor fed in these islands, that London annually consumes, ceased to appear in the butchers' shops of the metropolis.

Glory to Temptation.

A few years ago the river drivers were working on the West Branch. The logs had jammed into a nasty snarl, and no one hankered for the job of going out with a cantdog and starting the key log. In the crew was an Indian who was noted for his coolness and his keenness. The boss finally looked over in his direction. "Lacoote," he said, "you go out and break that jam, and I'll see that you get a nice puff in the paper." The redskin looked at the logs and then at the boss. "Dead Injun look d—n nice on paper," he grunted and walked away.—The Aroostook (Me.) Pioneer.

THE DUKE WAS KIND

A Story Told About the Kindness of the Duke of Buccleuch;

The late Duke of Buccleuch, in one of his walks, purchased a cow in the neigborhood of Dalkeith, which was to be sent to his palace on the following morning. The Duke, in his morning dress, espied a boy ineffectually attempting to drive the animal forward to its destination. The boy, not knowing the Duke, bawled out to him: "Hie, mun, come here an' gie's a han' wi' this beast."

The Duke walked on slowly, the boy still craving his assistance, and at last, in a tone of distress, exclaimed: "Come here, mun, an' help us, an' I'll gi'e you half I get." The Duke went and lent the helping hand.

"And now," said the Duke, as they trudged along, "how much do you think ye'll get for this job?"

"Oh, I dinna ken," said the boy, but I'm sure o' something, for the folk up at the big house are guide to a' bodies."

As they approached the house the Duke disappeared from the boy and entered by a different way. Calling a servant, he put a sovereign in his hand, saying: "Give that to the boy who brought the cow." The Duke having returned to the avenue, was soon rejoined by the boy.

"Well, how much did you get?" said the Duke.

"A shilling," said the boy, "an' there's half o' it t'ye."

"But you surely got more than a shilling?" said the Duke.

"No," said the boy, "that's a' I got—and d'ye no think it's plenty?"

"I do not," said the Duke; "there must be some mistake, and as I am acquainted with the Duke, if you return I think I'll get you more."

They went back, the Duke rang the bell and ordered all the servants to be assembled.

"Now," said the Duke to the boy, "point me out the person that gave you the shilling."

"It was that chap there," pointing to the butler. The butler confessed, and attempted an apology, but the Duke indignantly ordered him to give the boy the sovereign. "You have lost," said the Duke, "your money, your situation and your character, by your covetousness; learn henceforth that 'honesty is the best policy.'" The boy by this time recognized his assistant in the person of the Duke, says the Weekly Telegraph, and the Duke was so delighted with the sterling worth and honesty of the boy that he ordered him to be sent to school at his expense.

A Remarkable Sequel.

A little fun at the Birmingham postoffice led to a remarkable sequel. Among the postal packets was a parcel containing a pair of handcuffs, which were being sent from Derby by a manufacturer in Birmingham to be fitted with a key. The paper covering of the package had, during transit, been badly torn, with the result that when the handcuffs reached the Birmingham sorting officer they were exposed to view. They were an object of curiosity, and presently one of the clerks jocularly clasped one of the cuffs round the wrist of his left hand. To his dismay there was no key to unfasten it, and he therefore went to the central police station. Here a key was found, but as the officer was turning it it broke off in the cuff. The situation, at first comical, had now become really serious. The broken key would have to be drilled out or the handcuff filed through before the clerk could be released from his unpleasant encumberance. But it was Sunday, and no place of business was open. The clerk therefore returned to the postoffice and explained his plight to his superintendent, by whom he was ordered to go to Derby by the first train the next morning, explain the whole circumstances to the owner of the handcuffs and apologize; and then return to Birmingham and proceed to the manufacturer and have the handcuff taken off.—South Wales Daily News.

His Awful Finish.

He went to cross the boulevard
When something fouled his heel;
He backed himself just half a yard
And grazed a biker's wheel.

He heard a mighty warning shout,
He tried to clear the track,
A run, a leap, a wheel about,
Just missed a horseless hack.

He hears a yell and starts to flee,
But stops and calmly waits;
A whoop, a fall, he failed to see
The kid on roller skates.

NOT MUCH OF AN EATER

He Ate But Little, But You Ought To See the Welsh Eat.

Captain B. W. Morgan, every inch a Welshman himself, likes to tell this story when there is another Welshman in hearing, says the Pittsburg News. He went home to dinner one day and found a paperhanger at work in the house. He asked the time, and Captain Morgan told him it was noon.

"I guess I'll knock off and go home to dinner then," the paperhanger remarked.

"Stay and eat with us," the captain said, and the invitation was accepted.

Captain Morgan was attentive to his guest during the meal. He had a prodigious appetite. The captain helped him to roast beef several times, until at last he had some curiosity to see just how much the fellow would eat without crying enough. The game was growing quite interesting when the fellow began to show signs of quitting.

"Will you have some of the plum pudding?" the captain asked him to revive his failing appetite.

"No, thanks," he replied, "I've had enough, I think."

"Oh, take a small piece of the pudding," the captain urged; "it's genuine English plum-pudding, and homemade at that."

"Well, I don't mind trying it," he said.

The captain helped him to a section of the pudding weighing about a pound and he ate it with much relish. Then he shoved his chair away from the table and leaned back for an after-dinner chat.

"I'm not much of an eater," he said, not noticing the smile on the captain's face; "it takes very little to satisfy me. Say, you ought to see the Welsh eat."

"Are they hearty eaters?" asked the captain.

"Hearty eaters?" repeated the fellow. "Say, they eat like a lot of hogs."

The Japanese Woman.

The chief duty of a Japanese woman all her life is obedience; while unmarried, to her parents; when married, to her husband and his parents; when widowed, to her son. In the "Greater Learning of Women" we read:

"A woman should look upon her husband as if he were Heaven itself, and thus escape celestial punishment.

"The five worst maladies that afflict the female mind are: Indocility, discontent, slander, jealousy and silliness. Without any doubt these five maladies afflict seven or eight out of every ten women, and from them arises the inferiority of women to men. A woman should cure them by self-inspection and self-reproach. The worst of them all, and the parent of the other four, is silliness!"

The above extract shows us very clearly the position which women have, until quite recently, taken in Japan. As a German writer says, her condition is the intermediate link between the European and the Asiatic. On the one hand, Japanese women are subjected to no seclusion, and are as carefully educated as the men, and take their place in society; but, on the other hand, they have absolutely no independence, and are in complete subjection to their husbands, sons and other relations. They are without legal rights, and under no circumstances can a wife obtain a divorce or separation from her husband, however great his offense. Notwithstanding this, in no country does one find a higher standard of morality than among the married women of Japan. Faithlessness is practically unknown, although the poor little wives must often have much to put up with from their autocratic lords and masters. They bear all, however, silently and uncomplainingly, their characteristic pride and reserve forbidding them to show to the outer world what they suffer. We Europeans might well in many respects imitate, and have still much to learn from our little cousins in the Far East.—Cornhill Magazine.

One Way of Making a Living.

There are many and various ways of making a living in this big city, says the New York Times, and between "chasing eighths" in Wall Street and chasing potato-bugs in Jamaica, the ways of gathering dollars are of wide range. One of those seldom seen by any except the people directly interested is the outgrowth of recent extensive waterfront improvements in the Navy Yard. Stringers, timbers, and planking of yellow pine and spiling of spruce have been used by the scowload, and around the corner of the yard, in Little-st., some enterprising young men have started a woodyard. Ends of spiles, rejected planks, anything of wood that is found floating in the Wallabout Channel is "taken in out of the wet," dried, split and peddled around the neighborhood at prices which the kindling-wood people cannot touch, but which, low as they are, represent good wages for the work done.

"Man, It's Me."

She was a pretty child of four or five summers, and she knew it, says the New York Tribune. Her mother took care that the fact should not escape the observation of others and in this she was ably seconded by the little miss. The other day the child was on dress parade in Central Park, and was naturally piqued at her failure to attract the attention of a man who sat reading on one of the benches in the Mall. Two or three times she passed him, and still he regarded her not. She looked at him in amazement, and then, with a look of mingled incredulity and determination, she went up to him stamped her little foot on the pavement and said, "Man, it's me!"

Difference

He (during the honeymoon)—You don't know how lonely my bachelor life was; how unbearable the evenings were when I would have to sit alone in my dreary den and sew on buttons.

She—Your evenings won't be dreary now, love. I can sit by you and thread your needle.

One Kind of Strife.

"Strife," he said, as he finished reading the Peace Conference report, "is a necessity."

"Not at all," replied Henry Peck, absently. "There's no law compelling a man to marry."—Philadelphia American.

A MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

Mme. Flamant, a Pretty Parisian Widow Who Had Seen Better Days, Slain.

THIRTY GHASTLY GASHES

Her Arms Tatooed With Promises of Undying Love Vowed to Two Men.

Had Pledged "Love For Life" to Jean Bovet and Maurice and Neither is Known to the Police Who Have Several Theories—Robbery Was Clearly Not the Motive.

A short time ago Mme. Clemence Flamant was found dead in her room in the Rue Moret, Paris.

She had been slain by repeated dagger thrusts—slain by some one who had stabbed and gashed the prone and helpless body until her strength was exhausted. Both arms of the murdered woman were tattooed in strange fashion.

Each bore a promise of undying love each promise was made, apparently, to a different man, and each was guarded by a tattooed dagger, emblematic of the death that would come if the vow were broken.

The tattooing was the only clue. From it the police believe that the murderer had been Mme. Flamant's suitor. But which suitor? And whither did he flee?

And who is he?

It is the strangest crime in a city of strange crimes.

Mme. Flamant had lived at No. 107 Rue Moret for some years. She was apparently a widow of refined antecedents but moderate means. Her rooms were cheaply but comfortably furnished and neatly kept.

She had no known relatives and was regarded by those about her as a model neighbor and tenant. Her life was regular, even to monotony. She took her meals in the Parisian fashion, in neighboring cafes and restaurants, but spent much of her time in her room.

The night she was killed, Mme. Flamant went out to dinner. The time of her return was not noted.

When the concierge was passing down the stairs next morning Mme. Flamant's door was seen to be partly open, and curiosity prompted the custodian of the house to look inside. The woman was discovered dead, and the police were promptly notified. The body was cold, showing that death had occurred several hours previously.

An examination disclosed the following words tattooed on the right arm: J'aime Maurice Des Canettes Pour La Vie, 1899."

The date proved at once that Mme. Flamant, whatever her past may hide of hardship or romance, was not past the age of romance.

For the message read: "I love Maurice of the faucets for life, 1899."

"Maurice the Tank" would be a fair rendering of the nickname. It is not a pretty nickname, but it is Parisian.

Beneath this strange pledge was a crude design—a heart outlined in red, pierced by a blue dagger.

It was a promise of undying love, backed by a grimly suggestive threat of death if the promise were ever broken.

When the left arm was examined a device equally curious was revealed. J'aime pour la vie Jean Bovet were inscribed about a rude picture of a dagger and two hearts chained together and signed "Jean Bovet."

This pledge was without date, and the question at once arose as to which tat-too mark had been first affixed.

Then the Lecoqs of the Parisian police, to whom nothing is more dear than a cunning theory, "reconstructed" the crime after their manner.

Jean Bovet, they concluded, had been Mme. Flamant's suitor—perhaps years ago, certainly before Maurice. Because of his presumed partiality for tattooing they conclude that he must have followed the sea, though this is not evident, now that society women have taken to tattooing as a fad, as they have other foolish fads.

Bovet had gone away—this is all conjecture, of course—and Mme. Flamant, who had been gently reared, had come to want unforeseen by him and had removed to more modest quarters where a new lover had found the way to her heart, perhaps aided in his conquest by her poverty.

The second tattooing is more difficult to explain. It may be merely one of those coincidences which make real life stranger than any tale of the imagination. It may be that some incautious remark of Mme. Flamant revealed the truth to Maurice.

More probably, perhaps, the dead woman herself, urging on her own fate as women will, proffered the test and proof of her affection, and added the date as if to efface the memory of Bovet by a later declaration, even if she could not strip from her beautiful arm the promise she had made him.

At this point the police theory divides:

First—Did Jean return to Paris and punish the woman's faithlessness in the manner indicated by the design of the pierced heart?

Second—Had Clemence heard from or communicated with her first lover? Had he returned from the past to renew his claim upon her heart, and did Maurice inflict the punishment of death upon her?

Gertrude—Oh, Percy, I'm afraid papa will miss me so after we are married.

Percy (shocked)—What! Is he going away?—Judge.

PROVINCE OF MATANZAS.

It Is One of the Wealthiest of the Island of Cuba.

There is but one safe ground to take with reference to any statistics regarding the island of Cuba, that is to accept nothing as more than fairly approximate. The province of Matanzas is the smallest of the six provincial districts of Cuba. It is given as covering 3,300 square miles, an area a little less than that of the island of Porto Rico, and something under the half of the area of the State of New Jersey. On the map Matanzas province appears larger than Havana province, but the area of the latter is increased by the inclusion of the Isle of Pines. At the beginning of the Cuban war the population of Matanzas province was probably a little over 270,000. It is now estimated at about 190,000. Nearly one-third of its people have died within the past four years. The death rate has included an abnormal percentage of adult males.

In 1894 the province was said to contain, in round figures, 300,000 head of cattle and 100,000 head of horses. To-day the cattle are estimated at 10,000 and the horses at 4,000. The chief industry of the district is sugar-raising. It includes some of the best sugar lands on the island. In 1894 there were 108 sugar mills. To-day there are fifty-five, of which forty-two are in operation. In 1894 the province exported something over 400,000 tons of sugar, or about one-third of the entire output of the island. Still using rough, though approximate estimates, that amount would represent a value of nearly $20,000,000. The sugar output for the entire island for 1899 will but little, if at all, exceed that sum.

As far as the province of Matanzas is concerned, there is no visible reason why it should not, in any case, come out a winner. Except under an almost impossible recurrence of Weylerism, the province could hardly be in worse plight than it has been. The need of the province, and the same applies with almost equal force to the whole island, is not so much government as honest administration. The province is rich; the island is rich. Its income from the custom house and a very limited internal revenue, combined with a wholly reasonable taxation of municipalities for municipal purposes, will furnish a sum which is more than adequate for all requirements.

The problem of Cuba is one of the utmost simplicity. It consists in an honest and economical expenditure of an ample revenue which is obtained by a taxation, direct and indirect, which would make the average American smile over the amount of his tax bill. While the island was burdened, it was by no means crushed by Spanish imposition of taxes for all manner of unreasonable purposes, to maintain a war against the people of the island, to contribute to the peninsular government and to enrich Spanish officials. Toward all this, Matanzas, immeasurably rich in her natural resources, contributed her full share. Relieved of this burden, and bearing only that which is right and reasonable, with honest and public-spirited officials, whether they take off their hats to the American flag or to the Cuban, the wealth and prosperity of the province of Matanzas are beyond a question.

A Brooklyn Inventor's Claim.

Just as the people are beginning to discuss the commercial possibility of the recently discovered and exploited Nernst electric light in Germany and England, comes the claim that the material for the production of just such a light and an almost identical theory as to its use were not only invented by a Brooklyn man, Lewis J. Jones, but were patented by him in this country in 1885. Nernst's lamp is simply one whose luminous conductor is free from carbon or other combustible materials, in brief a refractory oxide which will stand any temperature short of its own fusion, and requiring no vacuum globe. The chief trouble with the lamp is that the illuminant body or filament has first to be heated with a match, spirit lamp, or platinum coil, before it would become available as an illuminant through the application of the electrical current. Mr. Jones's invention described a material which was intended to take the place of the carbon pencils or filaments, of a mixture of a non-conducting oxide, thereby including the Nernst idea. The combined oxides from a body which is a conductor when cold, and therefore needs no preliminary heating as in the case of the Nernst filament or pencil. The Jones luminant was a mixture of 90 per cent. of oxide of magnesium and 10 per cent. of oxide of iron, but this has since been improved upon by the use of the more refractory materials which are used in the Welsbach mantels, thoria, zirconia, and ceria. The Brooklyn inventor expects to produce a lamp more economical than any now in use, and which is self-lighting.

Lobes of the Brain.

Some of the more advanced of the physiologists now claim that the back lobes of the brain are the seat of the highest intellectual faculties, a theory which is in direct opposition to that of the phrenologists and to popular opinions as well, the latter being that a high forehead is a proof of superior intelligence. To the large hind head has been attributed an unusual degree of animalism. Dr. C. Clapham, an anthropologist of high repute throughout Europe, has given arguments in favor of the posterior lobes in a recently published paper which shows that man, of all creatures, has the mostly highly developed posterior lobes, and that the ablest men and races have them in the highest perfection. Idiots and confirmed lunatics, according to his investigations, have these imperfectly developed or in a very bad state.

The Eyes Travel.

Has it ever occurred to you to reckon how far your eye travels in reading? The distance will not startle you, perhaps, for 1,000,000 letters in ordinary type would measure hardly more than a mile placed side by side. In a lifetime, however the average reader would wend his way through 2,000 miles of print. The average novel of 300 pages contains one mile of reading: that is, the eye travels 1,760 yards in reading the book through.

Maybe the grocer is "just out of Ivory Soap but has another, he thinks, is just as good." No other soap is just as good. Insist that he get Ivory Soap for you.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SUNDAY'S BASEBALL GAME.

At Weehawken. New York, 9; Louisville, 5.

ROD AND GUN.

Thomas Fahy, John Butler and John Porter, of this city, journeyed to Amboy Saturday and captured eleven bluefish, three weakfish and one porgie. They found plenty of fish and as many as thirty or forty of them got away as they were unable to pull them in fast enough. The fishermen felt satisfied, however, as they had fish all day Sunday. Another party of Plainfielders at Amboy consisted of Alfred Compton, Fred Manning and Howard Manning. They also reported a big catch.

Assemblyman Squires in town.

Assemblyman George A. Squires, of Elizabeth, was a visitor in Plainfield, but if he talked politics it was simply a side issue. Mr. Squires came to Plainfield to attend the race meet at the Driving Park. After that was over he was a member of a dinner party at the Hotel Kensington, which included Judge W. A. Codington, J. E. McClintock, M. H. Dingee, of Linchburg, Va., John C. Wheab, of New York, and S. S. Squires, the Assemblyman's brother, of this city.

The record for the biggest first Saturday and Sunday of August ever known in Atlantic City was the arrival of 53,220 passengers, coming in as follows: Pennsylvania Railroad, Saturday, 298 cars; Sunday, 126; Atlantic City Railroad, Saturday, 294 cars; Sunday, 157 cars. Of these there were 154 excursion cars on the Pennsylvania lines and 166 on the Atlantic City road.

Use Allen's Foot-Ease in Your Gloves.

A lady writes: "I shake Allen's Foot-Ease into my gloves and rub a little on my hands. It saves my gloves by absorbing perspiration. It is a most dainty toilet powder." Allen's Foot-Ease makes tight or new shoes easy. Always use it to Break in New Shoes. It keeps the feet cool and comfortable. We invite the attention of physicians and nurses to the absolute purity of Allen's Foot-Ease. All drug and shoe stores sell it, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

THE ASTOR ESTATE.

How John Jacob Astor Started His Manhattan Estate.

At the beginning of this century, writes William Waldorf Astor in the Pall Mall Magazine, John Jacob Astor commenced buying plots of land in Manhattan Island, having an early prescience of the growth of the city by which it is now almost covered. These purchases were made with such judgment in the line of approaching expansion as frequently to be sold again after a few years for double or treble what he had paid for them. With enlarged means these acquisitions of real estate assumed larger proportions, and took in whole farms, which gradually became covered with houses. To show that this species of farming as practiced with discrimination was not in vain, it may be mentioned that one of these farms, purchased in 1811 for £900, is now worth, with its improvements, £1,400,000. An amusing notion prevalent in America is that by some queer rule of his descendants no purchase has or ever can be parted with. As a matter of fact, the estate books record the sale of hundreds of plots of land during the entire century, and it should require no extraordinary acumen to perceive that so silly and narrow-minded rule could only be imagined by very silly and narrow-minded people.

The First Typewriter.

Hidden away in a dark corner of the model-room in the Patent Office at Washington, with the dust of years giving its brown surface a coat of gray, is an apparently worthless block of wood cut in the shape of a staircase, with small blocks of wood mounted on wires on each of the stairs.

When I happened to see this object while looking through the 400,000 models the other day, I thought it must be some sort of child's plaything, says the Atlanta Constitution. On closer examination my curiosity was aroused, so that I induced one of the busy attendants to look up the matter for me. It was discovered to be the first typewriter ever made in the United States—perhaps in the world.

If placed by the side of one of our 1899 model typewriters the first typewriter could not fail to provoke a smile from the spectator. Instead of dainty black and nickel letter keys, with an open framework showing the easy workings of the intricate machinery of the inside as is usual in the typewriters of to-day, this first typewriter consist of a closed wooden box with blocks of wood half an inch square for its letter keys. The paper-carriage of the first typewriter is also of wood, and instead of the operator turning the paper-carriage by a mere touch on an extension rod, as is done with all typewriters now in use, when one line was finished on the first typewriter the operator had to use both hands to turn the paper-carriage—one hand to lift a catch from the cogwheel and the other hand to push the paper around as far as desired.

However, much as the first typewriter differs from its grandchildren, close examination shows that it has all the essentials of typewriters as we know them to-day. The inventor of the typewriter was R. T. P. Allen, of Farmdale, Ky., who secured his patent in 1876. There were other so-called typewriters invented before this date, but the Allen invention is the first machine that bore fruit, and it is that machine which may be looked upon as the parent of the five million or more typewriters in use in the United States to-day.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

HAPPENINGS IN A FEW LINES FROM ALL OVER JERSEY.

More or Less Important Happenings and Events in Various Sections Served For a Quick Glance at.

The Paterson Hospital will receive $4,000 by the will of the late Anna Inglis.

Bluefish have made their appearance in Somers' Point Bay. Several fine specimens were captured yesterday.

Contractors who built the West street bridge in Paterson have sued the city for $9,655, which they charged up as "extras."

Large catches of weakfish and white perch are daily being made in the Great Egg Harbor River at May's Landing.

Fifty silk weavers of Paterson lined up at the railroad depot in answer to an advertisement. Then they learned that they were to take the places of strikers in College Point, and all refused to go.

Michael Hammill, of 135 Washington street, Orange, has notified the police that his sixteen-year-old son has been missing since July 11th. The boy has sandy hair, freckled face and brown eyes, and is about five feet tall.

Isaac Schoenthal, of Orange, announces himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff in Essex county. Mr. Schoenthal is a member of the Orange Common Council and of the Essex County Board of Freeholders.

Great preprations are being made for the grand marine carnival on Wesley Lake, Asbury Park, tomorrow night. There will be a brilliant electric display and fireworks. In the marine procession there will be 300 decorated boats.

There is every evidence that red birds will be in session early this year. The black bird season is now on, but the birds are scarce. Only a few years ago hundreds of dollars were brought into Salem county from this source, but the banking of the birds feeding grounds has almost ruined the business.

Acting under the suggestion of Mayor Hoos, of Jersey City, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has decided to participate in the welcome to Admiral Dewey. The company has decided to erect across one or two of its piers along the Jersey water front an arch which will be illuminated with electric lights. In hugh letters, which will be made of thousands of incandescent lights will be emplazoned "Welcome to Dewey." All the piers of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, extending for over a mile, will be gayly decorated and brilliantly lighted. The Central Railroad, Erie Railroad, Lehigh Valley Railroad, West Shore Railroad and other corporations which control Jersey City's water-front will follow the example of the Pennsylvania Railroad and decorate their piers.

MORE TROUBLE FOR HACKMEN.

Roundsman Flynn Found Them Inside the "Dead Line" Saturday Afternoon.

There was more trouble among the hackmen Saturday afternoon and Roundsman Flynn came up just in time to find Alfred Hankinson, Morris Barry and Charles Berry standing near on the sidewalk in front of the North avenue station soliciting passengers. He ordered them all to appear for trial this morning before City Judge Runyon.

Morris Barry and Hankinson, who is a colored man, appeared but Berry failed to put in an appearance. The Judge was inclined to be lenient with the two prisoners saying that he realized that hackmen had to work hard for every cent they earned. The testimony of the two hackmen and Roundsman Flynn was that Charles Berry was a disturbing element at the station among the hackmen.

Hankinson had only been a hackman a little while and didn't know the rules very well. Barry said he pulled up because other ones did and he didn't want to lose all his trade.

The Judge suspended sentence and told Roundsman Flynn to be sure and have the missing Barry on hand tomorrow morning.

Miss Grace Fenner, of Pluckamin, is visiting Plainfield relatives.

Mrs. Juliet Runyon, of Central avenue, is greatly improved from a recent severe illness.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store

BOB HOUSTON MAY BE IGNORED BY LEADERS

His Chances For Shrievalty Nomination are Slim.

CORIELL GOOD CANDIDATE.

FIGHT FOR COUNTY CLERK LIES BETWEEN HOWARD AND SQUIER.

If Clerk Howard Did Not Clinch His Showing for Nomination by His Act at County Convention, He Has Little Show Now—Two Assemblymen for the Townships -- Newcorn Mentioned.

"I think," remarked a prominent G. O. P. man, of this city, who comes pretty near knowing what's what in county political affairs, "That you are safe in counting Bob Houston out of the race for the Shrievalty nomination. Not but what he wants it badly enough and was promised the office three years ago. B. Frank Coriell, Deputy County Clerk, is a likely candidate, and I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see him nominated, unless Plainfield stands by the pledges made to Houston."

Other Republican politicians have been united more or less strongly in the belief that Assemblyman Robert Houston will not be the Republican nominee for the office of Sheriff of Union county. Houston hails from the section of the city of Elizabeth commonly known as the "Port." He is popular among his constituents and with his fellow workers in other parts of the county as well. It has been his great aim to be sheriff, and the efforts of his friends nearly won the place for him six and three years ago. In consideration of his withdrawal in favor of Kirk on the latter occasion, Plainfield promised to give her support to Houston in '99 to succeed Kirk.

"The trouble with Houston is," continued the Republican already quoted, "That he is not the man for Sheriff and the Republicans through the county realize the fact. To be frank about it Bob is a mighty good fellow but I don't believe that he is properly qualified for the office. What did he do for the Assembly? He was completely overshadowed by both Murray and Squire. I may be wrong but it is my belief that his claim for the place is going to be quietly ignored."

If Houston has been counted out by the county leaders, then the chances of the Plainfield candidate for the Shreivalty nomination are much improved. Sheriff William T. Kirk is still in line for the nomination for County Clerk but the great fight is now conceded to be between Clerk Howard, of Rahway, and Assemblyman George Squier.

Squier has lost no opportunity of increasing his power in the county and is now quite a factor in the running of the Republican machine. Whether his power is large enough to win him the nomination, is another thing. Concerning Howard's support in the city of Elizabeth, Plainfield is in the dark. It is a well-known fact that it was through the influence of Mr. Howard that the Rahway delegation turned its support at the last moment from E. R. Ackerman to Judge Cross for the Senatorial nomination, thereby resulting in the victory of the latter.

For that Howard was to receive the renomination for the clerkship this fall. If he did not clinch the bargain then he made an extremely foolish move. There are many Plainfielders who haven't forgotten that act and would be glad of the opportunity of letting Rahway remember it at the county convention. Under these circumstances Clerk Howard is not likely to expect much support from this city.

The distribution of the nominations for the Assembly is still an unsettled question. Elizabeth will get one without doubt. One will go to the smaller townships. The other may possibly come to Plainfield or be apportioned off in the share of Summit or Westfield. No really full fledged boom for the Assembly nomination has been started in Plainfield as yet. The name of Wm. Newcorn has been mentioned for the place, however.

If Plainfield gets the Shrievalty nomination then the Assembly plum is likely to go elsewhere. If Rahway's now favored son gets "dumped" in the chase for the clerkship, then it is likely that Rahway will receive the extra seat in the Assembly. Elizabeth, if successful in filling the nominations for Senator and County Clerk, can hardly ask for more than one Assemblyman, although Elizabeth has been known to attempt to "play the hog" on several occasions.

BARN WAS BURNED UP.

IT WAS FILLED WITH HAY AND BURNED RAPIDLY.

Owned by Frank W. Miles—Rivalry Between the Hose Companies to See Which Would Reach the Fire First.

A barn belonging to Frank W. Miles and situated in the rear of his residence at 356 Somerset street, North Plainfield, was partially destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The fire occasioned much excitement in the neighborhood and when the alarm was sent in from box 145 there was at once a great rivalry manifested between the two fire companies to see which could get the first stream of water on the blaze.

The boys of the West End Hose Company, being the nearest company to the threatening conflagration, were the lucky ones and they soon had a good stream playing upon the flames. The Warren Engine Company, however, were by no means slow in responding and were a close second.

However, by the time the firemen reached the scene of the fire the flames were bursting from the upper part of the barn, which was filled with hay. The fire had gained such headway that the firemen found that they had a stubborn battle before them. They went at the fight with a will and soon had the fire under control. The barn being located within a short distance of Mr. Miles' residence, it was with some difficulty that the firemen succeeded in preventing the flames from spreading to that. After half an hour's hard work the fire was entirely extinguished.

The origin of the fire is not known. It was first discovered by members of the family, who noticed smoke pouring from beneath the eaves of the barn. Before they could make a thorough investigation the flames had burst from the roof. The loss will probably amount to $500, upon which there was a small insurance. Fortunately Mr. Miles' horse and carriage were being used at the time of the discovery of the fire and thereby escaped possible destruction. Besides the loss of the hay a number of florists' tools and a quantity of plants and flower pots were destroyed.

SAID IT WAS ALL FIXED.

ROUNDSMAN FLYNN TOLD OF HACKMAN BERRY'S BOAST.

The City Judge Denied 'Twas Fixed And Fined the Offending Hackman $1 for His Trouble, Which was Paid.

It was the turn of Hackman Charles Berry this morning. He came before City Judge Runyon and explained that he had carried a passenger out to Hillside cemetery yesterday morning so that he was unable to appear in court when told. He pleaded guilty to the charge of violating the hack ordinance.

According to the statement of Roundsman Flynn, Berry was tossing a silver dollar in front of the station yesterday afternoon when one of the other hackmen told him that he had better take care of the dollar for he would need it in the morning. Berry said that he had fixed it with the court all right. The Roundsman declared that he had heard the remark made.

The Judge was not pleased with remarks of such nature and was frank in telling Berry so. He further explained that Berry's actions had not in all been satisfactory and that the dollar was needed in the coffers of the city. Berry paid it.

Berry denounced the general management of affairs at the station and declared that certain other hackmen could violate the ordinance with impunity while he was held to a strict observance of it. The Judge reminded him that he had the right to make a complaint at any time.

Funeral of Little Bessie.

The funeral services of Bessie May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Addis, of East Second street, who died while in New York State on a pleasure trip, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house. The service there was private on account of Mr. Addis being quarantined for scarlet fever. At Hillside cemetery a longer service was held, conducted by Dr. Rodman. The interment will not take place until Mr. Addis can leave the house and be present.

NEW SHIP YARD FOR SHOOTER'S ISLAND.

Has Been Purchased by Townsend & Downey, of Brooklyn.

BUILDING HAS STARTED.

VALUABLE PROPERTY WILL BE IMPROVED AT ONCE.

Purchased Island From Tide Water Oil Company, of Bayonne, Nearly a Year Ago—Was Formerly Leased by Seaboard Lumber Company Until That Company Went Out of Business Five Years Ago.

Signs of activity on Shooter's Island, a little island at the mouth of Newark Bay between Elizabethport and Bergen Point, have led to all sorts of rumors concerning the cause. It was reported and afterwards contradicted that the Cramps, the Philadelphia ship builders, were to establish a ship yard there. The real facts are that the island changed owners nearly a year ago and that the owners, Townsend & Downey, of Brooklyn, are starting to establish their ship yard there.

Shooter's Island is nearly thirty acres in extent and is an exceedingly valuable property. Its sheltered position, combined with its nearness to New York bay, adds to its value. When the improvements contemplated by the United States Government to the Kill von Kull are completed it will permit ships of the deepest draught to reach and depart from the island, which will then have nearly a half-mile of deep water front.

The island was originally owned by Lombard, Ayres & Co., of New York, and leased by them to the Seaboard Lumber Company, in which the former company was largely interested. It was sold eleven years ago to the Tide Water Oil Company, of Bayonne, which continued to lease it to the Seaboard Lumber Company, until the latter concern went out of business five years ago.

The property lay idle until last fall when it was sold to Townsend & Downey, of Brooklyn, whose New York office is in the Produce Exchange building, Broadway. Their yard was located in the Erie Basin, Brooklyn. It is the intention of the new firm to establish a ship yard on the island, where ships of various sizes will be built and repaired. Several $100,000 will be spent in putting the plant in order. The rumor that the Cramps were interested in the yard came from the fact that one of the members of the firm is a relative of the famous shipbuilders.

DEATH OF JOHN KANE.

Hemorrhages Caused the End—Was Born in Ireland.

John Kane, aged 55 years, of 260 East Third street, one of Plainfield's oldest residents, died last Sunday evening as the result of hemorrhages Mr. Kane was a native of Ireland, and came to Plainfield thirty years ago, where he followed the work of a laborer. He was well-known in this vicinity and was respected by those who knew him. He leaves a wife, two sons, Dennis and Thomas Kane, and four daughters, Miss Sara Kane, Miss Katy Kane and Mrs. Geo. Greader, of this city, and Mrs. Thomas O'Connor, of Bayonne.

Yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock high mass for the repose of the soul was said at St. Mary's church, and this morning the funeral service was held at 10 o'clock at the above church. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Horse Tore Up the Lawn

A few days ago a horse running loose about Washington Park found his way to the handsome grounds of E. S. Hooley, where he did no end of damage to the fine lawn and shrubbery. As soon as the animal was discovered by members of the family the coachman was summoned and he promptly ejected the stray horse. It will require a considerable amount of work to repair the damage and it is doubtful if the lawn can be restored to its former condition this summer.

Saturday Tribune No More.

The Saturday Tribune, a weekly paper published by Mr. Kellar, of Plainfield avenue, has gone out of existence and the plant has been sold to the publishers of The Sabbath Recorder. Mr. Kellar recently secured a good position on the New York Sun, and he gave up his local business. The presses he used and all his material will be put to use in the Sabbath Recorder plant.

PASSED FORGED CHECKS

SHARPER GOT $20 OUT OF TWO PLAINFIELD FIRMS.

Made Purchases and Offered the Checks in Payment, Receiving the Difference in Cash—They Were Clumsy Forgeries.

A genteel appearing stranger dropped into town last Saturday and succeeded in imposing upon the credulity of two Plainfield merchants. At the stores of Whitefield French and that of VanZandt & Voorhees the stranger bought from each a bag of feed to be delivered at 532 East Second street. At each place the purchaser tendered checks for $12.50 purporting to have been signed by Frank J. Hubbard and drawn in favor of J. M. Blauvelt. The man received change from the checks amounting to about $20.

When the checks were presented for collection at the First National Bank Monday morning they were pronounced forgeries. Mr. Hubbard's checks are made with his name printed on the margin, and the genuinness of the checks taken from the stranger by Messrs. VanZandt & Voorhees and Whitefield French were at once questioned by the bank officials. Investigation proved that they were clumsy forgeries. The number given by the stranger as 532 East Third street where he wished the feed delivered, was found to be a vacant lot.

A BRIDE FROM THE WEST

MARRIAGE OF N. E. LEWIS AND MISS EUNICE M. MERCHANT.

The Groom a Valued Employe of the Pond Tool Machine Company—Have Returned and will Reside in This City.

The St. Joseph (Mich.) Saturday Herald printed the following account of the marriage of Miss Eunice Maria Merchant, formerly a teacher in the public schools of this city, and Nathan Edward Lewis, also of this city.

"On Tuesday afternoon Nathan Edward Lewis, of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Eunice Maria Merchant were married at the home of the bride's parents, on Main street, in this city, Rev. Thomas R. McRoberts, pastor of the Congregational church, tying the knot. The couple appeared in traveling costume. Miss Merchant is the eldest daughter of the proprietor of the Saturday Herald. Her birthplace is Benton Harbor, but she grew from the cradle to womanhood in St. Joseph, and though favored with many true friends on both sides of the river, as well as friends elsewhere, all of whom she holds in the highest esteem, it was her wish and that of the groom for a simple, quiet home wedding, and so with one exception those present at the ceremony comprised only the immediate members of the family. There was none the less happiness, however, surrounding the event, and after light refreshments were partaken of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, accompanied by Miss Grace M. Merchant, left on the 5 p. m. G. & M. steamer for Chicago, whence after a pleasant visit with relatives and friends there, they start to-day for their new home in New Jersey.

"Mr. Lewis has worked his own way upward, securing his education at Ann Arbor, in this State, and at the Kansas Agricultural College, where he graduated, and now holds a responsible and lucrative position as draughtsman in a large iron works establishment at Plainfield. He is of quiet disposition, well-spoken of and where he is known is much esteemed as a man. Miss Merchant, after graduating with honors from the St. Joseph High School in 1887, took a Kindergarten Course in the Alma, Mich., College and graduated, since when she has taught in the Kindergarten department of the schools at Alma, St. Joseph, Sheboygan, Wis., and during the past school year she filled the position at Plainfield so acceptably that she was re-engaged for another year at a liberal increase in salary.

"Mr. and Mrs. Lewis enter upon their new life together under a cloudless sky and generally favorable auspices, and all their circle of acquaintances will wish them true happiness and the full realization of their fondest hopes as the future slowly unfolds to them."

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis returned to this city yesterday. They will begin housekeeping at once.

HAS KEAN JOINED WITH NORTH JERSEY?

A Big Trolley Consolidation Reported at Elizabeth.

EVIDENCES TO PROVE IT.

SEEMS TO BE ON VERY FAMILIAR TERMS WITH TRACTION CO.

Borrowing Their Tools, Using Their Barns, Employing Their Inspectors and Taking Their Tutorship—A Number of Different Things That Lend Color to the Story of Amalgamation.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Aug. 15—Senator John Kean has consolidated his trolley interests with those of the North Jersey Street Railway Company. The Senator and his associates may deny this, but prominent stockholder in both concerns says it is so.

The consolidation was to have taken place on June 17th, but owing to the serious illness of one of the men interested the deal was postponed until July 17th. In the meantime Senator Kean had acquired from the Union County Freeholders and the Elizabeth City Council all of the favors he needed for the present, or in fact for all time to come, and there is now little secrecy manifested in his operations.

Superintendent Husbands, who formerly superintended Mr. Kean's "dinky" line to the 'Port, is at the barns and power house of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, taking practical lessons in the art of running a trolley.

Another thing that lends color to the statement of the informing stockholder is the fact that the best inspectors on the North Jersey's staff are acting as inspectors of the work being done on Mr. Kean's line, while the latter has borrowed tools, joints and lights from the North Jersey people.

The six modern trolley cars which were built for Mr. Kean's road arrived a few days ago and tomorrow or next day they will be transferred to the barns of the North Jersey Company in Broad street, where they will receive their final equipment.

When this line is completed from Broad and East Grand street to the 'Port, the Newark cars will run direct to the Staten Island ferry, landing its passengers within fifty feet of the ferryboat and making the trip eight minutes quicker than by the old route, while a system of transfers and a jigger will be utilized to carry the passengers up Quality Hill. The property along the line has experienced a 25 per cent. increase since work was begun to change the motive power on this line, and it is still rising.

NO SHOTS FIRED.

Third Chapter About Capture of "Cack," the Crap Shooter.

There has been some difficulty in learning the real facts concerning the capture of "Cack" Carter in Elizabeth Friday afternoon. The story of the capture as related in yesterday's Press which eminated from the Elizabeth authorities, differs from the circumstances of the capture as related by Sergeant Kiely to a Press reporter last evening.

It seems that the Sergeant came out of the Prosecutor's office only to run squarely into Carter. The Sergeant tried to persuade Carter to talk, but the colored man was wily and departed in haste. Kiely pointed him out to Patrolman Merrill and Merrill followed him only to lose his track at the station. The Sergeant saw him on the track and followed him two miles in the direction of Newark where Carter finally gave himself up when the officer threatened to shoot. No shots were fired, however. Merrill heard of the chase and followed in a trolley car in time to take charge of Carter when he had been captured.

POLICE SPOILED A FIGHT

AFTER HIGH WORDS IT WAS DECIDED TO HAVE A MILL.

But the Police Interfered and the Principals Were Arraigned in City Court and the Recalcitrants Dealt With.

The police spoiled a fight last night. A procession, led by the two principals, was headed out West Second street, with Samptown as its ultimate destination, when Sergeant Kiely and Patrolman Vanderweg stepped in and arrested John Slover and Theodore Wilson, who were playing a prominent part in a lively discussion. This morning they were arraigned before City Judge Runyon.

There has been some bad feeling between the two men for quite a time. Remarks had been made or were supposed to have been made that intensified the feeling. Early last evening they met in a Park avenue saloon. There were high words and the proprietor of the saloon felt called upon to throw Wilson out. He found it necessary to repeat the performance two more times. Both men had been drinking.

Slover and Wilson met again shortly before 8 o'clock on East Second street. There were more words and it was decided to fight it out. One suggested that they adjourn outside the city limits and they departed down West Second street. They occasionally dropped remarks about each other at a high pitch in which profanity prevailed. Patrolman Vanderweg heard them on Park avenue and followed them up. At Central avenue, he met the Sergeant, who had been attracted by the noise. At Liberty street the officers decided that action was necessary to save the faces of the combatants. Both were arrested and locked up.

City Judge Runyon decided that Wilson was the aggressor and gave him his choice between a fine of $3 or eight days in jail. The small fine was paid. Sentence was suspended on Slover.

THROUGH TO ELIZABETH.

WESTFIELD GRANTS TROLLEY COMPANY ITS FRANCHISE.

Action Taken by the Township Committee Last Night—Means Trolley Connections for Plainfield With Jersey City.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 15.—The Township Committee of Westfield met last night and granted the application of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company for a franchise through the western end of this town, which now gives the company a complete right of way from Plainfield to the city limits of Elizabeth. The action of the Westfield officials last night ends a fight between the Kean and the Riker trolley interests that has extended over a period of two years for the right of way between Plainfield and Elizabeth.

The route granted last night was from the corner of Broad and Elm streets up the latter thoroughfare for some distance to private property, which will be crossed to Prospect street, thence to Brightwood avenue and the Morse road, and from there to the Fanwood township line where connection will be made with the Scotch Plains extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company.

The work of laying the rails for the road has already progressed through the business section of Westfield, and by the latter part of September the line will be in operation between this city and Elizabeth, where connections will be made with the North Jersey Traction Company. This will result in giving New Brunswick, Somerville, Bound Brook, Plainfield and all intermediate towns, connections by trolley with Jersey City.

WESTFIELD WAS NOT DRY.

Crusade Against Sunday Liquor Selling a Failure Sunday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 15—The members of the Township Committee had a conference with the retail liquor dealers Sunday afternoon. It is understood that it was in reference to Sunday selling, against which a crusade has been in progress. The conference was unofficial and strictly private. What the understanding was has not been divulged, but so far as the thirsty public were concerned, refreshments of all kinds could be obtained as easily Sunday as on any Sunday previous.

Martin Wells, of the Township Committee, is taking the initiative in the attempt to have all the hotels closed Sundays. The hotel keepers are inclined to resent what they consider to be interference on the part of the Township Committee.

POND TOOL COMPANY IN $8,000,000 TRUST.

Consolidation of Four Big Firms Under One Head.

STOCK IS NOT FOR SALE.

NEW CORPORATION WILL BE KNOWN AS NILES-BEMENT-POND COMPANY

The Consolidation Effected in Trenton Yesterday Under New Jersey Laws—Pond Company Biggest Industry in Plainfield—No Information Can be Obtained About it at Their Offices.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 15—Two big new industrial companies were organized yesterday, and articles of incorporation were taken out here. One of these was referred to as a Tool Trust although its organizers declared that they were not seeking to establish a monopoly.

It is known as the Niles-Bement-Pond Company, and it has a capital stock of $8,000,000, $5,000,000 of which is common and $3,000,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred.

The new concern is a consolidation of the Niles Tool Works Company, of Hamilton, Ohio; Pond Machine Tool Company, of Plainfield, N. J.; Bement, Miles & Co., of Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Engineering Works. These four companies are said to control the heavy machine tool trade, including the manufacture of gun carriages, of this country. In the organization of the new company the public will not be invited to participate. The entire issue of stock will be taken by the members of the constituent concerns.

It is said that the management of the separate plants will continue as heretofore. Upward of 3,000 men will be employed in the four factories. The central offices will be in New York. The list of officers and directors have not yet been determined upon. It is understood, however, that Colonel McKinney will be president of the company.

The Pond Machine Tool Company, which is one of four companies concerned in the organization of the $8,000,000 machine tool trust, which was consummated in Trenton yesterday, as stated above, is the biggest industrial concern in Plainfield. Their shops here employ about 1,000 men. For the past few years they have done a large amount of contracting with the War Department in the manufacture of disappearing gun carriages for coast defense. A year ago the company was purchased by the owners of the Niles Tool Works Company, of Hamilton, O., and since that time the two concerns have been run under the same management, but entirely independent of each other.

It was stated at the office of the Pond Tool Machine Company this morning that the combination was in no sense a trust, as they did not aim to control the output or prices. It was a consolidation of various interests in which the same men held stock, and was effected for the purpose of reducing operating expenses in certain departments.

The election of officers for the new corporation will probably be held this afternoon.

CRANFORD'S CARNIVAL.

Promises to Surpass in Splendor All Previous Occasions.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, August 15.—The Cranford Boating Association held a meeting last evening to complete arrangements for the Venetian Carnival, to be held on the Rahway river Saturday evening. The carnival this year will surpass all former occasions, both in decorations and the number of boats.

W. M. Bartow's famous Asbury Park band will furnish music for the occasion.

Charged With Selling Beer on Sunday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Basking Ridge, Aug. 15.—Martin Krebs, who keeps a saloon near the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad depot here, was brought before Justice of the Peace Dunster Saturday, charged with selling beer Sunday. There were several witnesses present at the hearing who testified that they had drunk beer at his place Sunday. Krebs was placed under $200 bond to appear before the Grand Jury. He was released on bail.

REGIMENTS ARE COMPLETE

The Enlistments More Rapid Than the War Department Anticipated.

RECRUITING CONTINUES

The New Regiments Are Now Ready For Transportation to the Scene of Active Service.

Plans Are Completed for an Active Campaign in the Fall—Secretary Root Says Aguinaldo Must be Captured—Filipino Leader's Resources Underestimated.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The regiments called for by the president to supplement the forces in the Philippines are complete. The enlistments have been far more rapid than anybody connected with the administration had expected, and Secretary Root and Adjutant-Gen. Corbin are keenly gratified with the result. Not only was the enlistment speedy but the pressure for service in the Philippines has been so great that many volunteers have been turned away. Encouraged by the spirit thus shown, the administration will continue the recruiting, and those who have been unable to get places in the additional regiments already formed will have an opportunity for service none the less. It is not likely that there will be another call for volunteers. The necessities of the occasion do not require this, and the department is conscious of the impracticability of trying greatly to enlarge the force in the Philippines; but the recruiting will go on without formal notice. It is understood, until the entire provisional army is enlisted, the idea being to hold the new regiments as a reserve. Secretary Root said that the department would keep on recruiting until Aguinaldo had been captured. This means that the administration is determined not to leave anything to chance. It is fully believed that Aguinaldo will be crushed by January or March: but the precaution is to be taken to have forces here in reserve to meet unforseen contingencies.

War department officials are willing to admit now among themselves that they had no adequate conception of Aguinaldo's capacity for carrying on a long struggle when the Philippines insurrection first broke out. It is acknowledged that Aguinaldo's resources were underrated. We know better now how to deal with him. And the campaign to be waged this fall will be handled with a fulness of knowledge and experience which has hitherto been impossible. The forces which will enter on the fall campaign will be far better equipped than those which have been carrying on the fight thus far. They will have plenty of light artillery, Gatling guns and cavalry. The cavalry troops which have been sent to Manila will be the pick and flower of the American army, and great things are expected of them. They will be invaluable for chasing and swooping down on the nimble natives, whose plan of campaign has been to sally, hurry and run away. Some doubt has been expressed as to the endurance of American horses in the tropical climate of Luzon; but the department has no fears on this score. The Philippine ponies subsist on rice altogether. American horses will receive better care than they. The Filipinos have no cavalry to speak of—only a few ponies in scattered troops.

Transport Warren's Troubles.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—From advices brought here by the transport Centennial, it is believed the Warren, bringing the Colorado regiment, which sailed from Manila July 16, and which was expected to arrive here on Wednesday next, is not to reach this port earlier than next Friday, the 18th inst. After leaving Manila the Warren ran into a typhoon, which battered her up considerably, and she had also to face a mutiny among her men. Twenty-four of the mutinous crew underwent trial and were sentenced for terms varying from three months to two years. The Warren is sailing for San Francisco with a green crew of Filipinos.

The mutiny was brought about by one of the men saying he was sick and refusing to work. He was placed in irons. The remainder of the crew then quit work, and declared they would not resume until their comrade had been released and sent to the hospital.

Mr. Stokes' Condition.

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 15.—Mr. Anson Phelps Stokes is resting comfortably. His condition is such, however, that a physician remains constantly with him, and his ultimate recovery is still problematical. The shock of the operation of amputating his left leg, together with the loss of blood which ensued before the physicians arrived, weakened Mr. Stokes very much, but he is able to see some of the members of his family who are now with him.

Yellow Fever Situation.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Surgeon-General Wyman has received the following telegram from Surgeon Vickery in regard to the yellow fever at the Hampton, Va., Soldiers' Home.

"All indications favorable; disinfection of quarters going on."

Lisbon, Aug. 15.—Earthquake shocks, accompanied by torrential rain, are reported from the central portion of Portugal.

DEWEY IS ILL IN ITALY.

The Admiral Not Able to Receive Visitors to His Ship.

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 15.—Admiral Dewey to-day remained on board his flagship, the United States cruiser Olympia, which arrived here at noon yesterday from Naples, as he is ill from fever. The captain of the vessel received the visits of officials and others in the admiral's place.

James A. Smith, United States consul at Leghorn, accompanied by Edward C. Cramer, United States consul at Florence, have visited the Oylmpia to take leave of Admiral Dewey.

The newspapers, Gazzetto Livornese and Il Telegrafo, of this city, have published biographs of the "Victor of Cavite."

Killed in a Street Fight.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 15.—James W. Quinn, 60 years old, was killed in a street fight near Mayfield, in which more than two hundred persons, members of his family and of the Gallagher family, took part. Joseph and Thomas Gallagher, young men, are in jail here, accused of having caused Quinn's death. There had been bad blood between the famalies for some time, and two of the youngsters engaged in a quarrel which ended without harm. Later the youngsters began fighting again. The older persons took a hand, the whole neighborhood of Quinns and Gallaghers flocked to the scene, and cobblestones and pieces of boards were soon in motion. Many persons were slightly injured but it was not until the elder Quinn was stretched out unconscious that the battle ended.

Cleveland Strike Situation.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 15.—The fifth week of the second strike of the employes of the Cleveland Electric Street Railway Company has opened. The reward of $10,000 offered by the company for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons guilty of placing explosives on the street car tracks, has resulted in active work by scores of detectives. The company regards the strike as ended, but President Bryan of the employes says: "We are just getting down to business, and people may expect a long struggle unless the company surrenders." The boycott is still in force, but its effect is weakening under the influence now directed against it.

New Oil Motor Plant.

Pittsburg, Aug. 15.—A plant for the manufacture of the Lancashire oil motor, to cost $400,000, and to employ about 600 skilled mechanics, is to be built at Pittsburg. The company is to manufacture Lancashire oil motors, especially for the use of large freight trucks and street cars. It has secured an option on all the oil motor patents in the United States, Canada and Mexico that are owned by the inventor, Frederick W. Lancashire of Birmingham, England. Mr. Lancashire is a large stockholder in the new concern.

Red Men in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—The eastern delegates to the Supreme Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Red Men, which convened in this city to-day, arrived last night. They are headed by Grand Powhattan Charles Acker of Cleveland, O., and Grand Secretary Fable of Chicago. The sessions of the Supreme Lodge are expected to be largely attended from all parts of the coast.

Weyler Goes on Record.

Madrid, Aug. 15.—General Weyler has denied the report that he is a Republican, but he thinks a Federalism is theoretically acceptable. He also says he would be an Absolutist if a King worthy of the name existed. Premier Silvela announces that measures for the liberation of the Spanish prisoners in the Philippines are proceeding, though no result has been obtained.

Ice Men Organize to Fight.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15.—A formidable opposition to the American Ice Company, which lately absorbed the Consolidated and Knickerbocker Ice Companies, of New York, has been started here. The new concern is a combination of upper Hudson corporations and individual dealers. Its title is the Columbia Ice Company. Its capital is $2,000,000.

Killed in a Runaway.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Michael Casson, an Adirondack hotel man, who had been connected with the Riverside Inn here for several years, was thrown from a carriage last evening, sustaining injuries from which he died. He was about 35 years old. His horse took fright at a train of cars and the reins broke.

Pistol Fights Kill Five.

Dallas, Aug. 15.—Five persons are dead here as the result of pistol fights. Policeman A. P. Rawlins and C. A. Daniels killed each other in a street duel. Mrs. William Daugherty and William Lincoln were killed by James and John Robinson. A negro named Sol Smith fatally shot William Work on the street.

Deaths in Porto Rico.

SHALL WE DISPUTE

The Opinions Of Scores Of Our Fellow Citizens.

Residents of Plainfield, like other American citizens, in making an investment want to be sure of getting the worth of their money. They want to know all the whys and wherefores, and in a direct ratio to the value of the investment they borrow and ferret until satisfied with the collateral. Take an instance in the realm of proprietary articles. If we know of a friend who has been cured, we have some faith in the preparations; if we know of two or three our faith increases. If the cures reach scores, all well known citizens, and anyone who still maintains that there is nothing beyond ordinary merit in the said preparation can safely be left to care of his fellow taxpayers. If he wishes to pick a quarrel with them on the question of their judgment or veracity, he has ample opportunity in Plainfield to do so. Begin with this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of No. 86 Summit avenue, says:—"I suffered times with a severe pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore, and though I used plasters they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling very badly when I had my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills. They were so highly recommeded for troubles like mine that I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I felt their good effects in a few days, and when I had finished the treatment my back was better and stronger, and I had much more energy to attend household duties. Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement and I am always pleased to recommend them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Capt. Longnecker, of the New Orleans, Sends Report to Navy Department.

PATROLL WORK IS DONE

Both the New Orleans and Machias to Proceed at Once to St Thomas For Coal

The Hurricane Still in the South and Moving Northward—Very High Winds Running Ahead of it Into the Carolinas—Will Not Reach the Eastern States.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—Although there was a report that the hurricane which for several days has been moving along the southern coast of the Atlantic had been lost or dissipated, it is still in the south. While moving northward slowly but surely, there is no definiteness that it will hit New York State or come anywhere near to it, and it is not likely to reach any of the Eastern or New England States.

"Storm central in northern Florida still moving slowly northward. High winds have reached Charleston and northeast signals ordered from Wilmington to Fort Monroe for high winds."

Cool Weather Coming.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—During the past twenty-four hours showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the South Atlantic States, from the central Mississipi Valley southwestward to Texas, and in Maryland, District of Columbia, Maine and Montana. Elsewhere the weather was fair. The temperature is below the normal in New England and westward over the Lake region to the Rocky Mountains.

The temperature has fallen 8 to 16 degrees in New York and New England. An area of high pressure is central over the Lake region, and of low area in Montana.

The highest temperature was 84 degrees, at Charleston, and the lowest 48, at Spokane.

San Domingo is Quiet.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—The Navy Department has been greatly relieved by a dispatch from Capt. Longnecker, of the cruised New Orleans, now at San Domingo City, referring to his vessel and the Machias. The dispatch gives definite assurance that all is well with the two ships. It also states that quiet prevails in San Domingo, at least at those points which can be reached by the warships, as the Machias has been patrolling along the shore for some distance. The two vessels will proceed at once to St. Thomas to coal.

Storm Not so Serious.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The weather bureau has issued the following bulletin:

"Storm centre moving North off Jacksonville, Fla. In its future course the storm will not be of unusual severity, although northeast gales, with rain, will prevail along the South Atlantic coast and along the middle Atlantic and South New England coast."

Flag From the Kaiser.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Hoch, Hoch, Hoch der Kaiser!"- This was the shout of thousands of Germans at Sharpshooters' Park when Henry Hachmeister, president of the Veterans' Society of the German Army, read the dispatch from the acting German Ambassador to the "Bundes Krieger Verin" that Emperor William had presented a banner to the society.

Accident to Meteor.

Portsmouth, England, Aug. 15.—The Royal Albert Yacht Club regatta off South sea, opened with a race between the yachts Bona, Rainbow and Emperor William's Meteor. While trying to weather Bona, Meteor carried away her foresail gear and gave up the race.

Panic at Puerto Plata.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, Aug. 15.—The people here are in wild panic. The revolution against the Government is gaining ground. The situation is considered bad for the Government forces. Surgeons and drugs have gone from here to Monte Christi.

Kentuckians Murdered.

Seattle, Aug. 15.—Hugh Kennedy of San Francisco, who has just returned here from Kotzebue Sound, Alaska, brings the report that the Bicking brothers of Kentucky were murdered by Indians while prospecting on the Silawik River.

Has Been Asleep Ten Days.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 15.—Daniel B. Miller has been asleep for ten days on his farm near here. He fell asleep doing his chores, and his slumber is as calm as if he had only been sleeping a few hours. All efforts to waken him have been in vain.

Appeal to Governors.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Secretary of War Root sent out an appeal to the Governors of the States for contributions for the people in Porto Rico who have been reduced to destitution by the hurricane.

Fatal Steamship Collision.

London, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Calcutta says that the surveying steamer Resolute was sunk in collision with the British steamer Scindia, last reported from Calcutta July 9, for Bombay. Several lives were lost in the disaster.

Steamer Croma Ashore.

London, Aug. 15.—The British steamer Croma, Capt. Claxton, bound from Dundee for New York, is ashore on Swona Island, one of the Orkney group. Her forehelds are full of water.

WON'T TREAT WITH UNION.

Railroad Telegraphers Strike Likely to Follow.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 15.—At the close of a conference between General Manager Chamberlain of the Consolidated Railroad, and the representatives of the freight conductors in this city, Mr. Chamberlain was asked if he had yet had a conference with President Powell, of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, who has been in Boston for the last few days with that object in view.

His reply was startling but decisive, and will doubtless bring the impending strike of the telegraphers to a head. Mr. Chamberlain said:

"No I have had no interview with President Powell, and I will not see him as the representative of that order."

Continuing, he said, that if the telegraphers have any grievance against the road they must present their complaints in person to the heads of their departments.

"No notice," he said, "will be taken of them in any other form."

Mr. Chamberlain also stated as yet not a single complaint had been made by the telegraphers to the heads of their departments.

Asked as to what he should do in case of a sympathic strike, he answered that he could tell all about it in twenty minutes after it was declared.

The conference with the conductors occupied over two hours. The proceedings were kept secret.

Woman Gored by Cow.

Mount Holly, N. J., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Annie Yorke, of Riverside, was gored by a cow and received painful injuries. Mrs. Yorke entered the field in which the cow was grazing with a young calf, and, approaching the calf, fed and petted it. The cow charged Mrs. Yorke. It knocked her down, then fell upon her breast, badly bruising her. Neither Mrs. Yorke nor the cow was able to rise, and the cow's feet were tangled in Mrs. Yorke's skirts. Two men held the cow by the horns while another extricated the woman.

Convict Attempts Suicide.

Sing Sing, Aug. 15.—Arthur Michaels, a convict in Sing Sing prison, attempted to commit suicide by hanging himself in his cell and was cut down by Keeper E. J. Kinnane just in time to save his life. Michaels had been despondent for several months, as he was complaining of ill health. He took a piece of sash rope, which he had smuggled into his cell, and, fastening one end at the top of his cell door, swung himself in the air. Michaels was sent to prison in April, 1897, for grand larceny for five years. He has a little over a year to serve.

Doctor's Wife Gets Her Boy.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 15.—Frank Effron, the four-year-old son of Dr. L. A. Effron, of 833 South Eight street, Philadelphia, who has been here for two weeks with his father, was taken by his mother to her home at 104 Cooper street, Camden, N. J. The mother came here and told the police that her husband, from whom she is separated, had kidnapped her son Frank and asked aid in recovering him. The officers secured the child and restored him to his mother.

Shell Gamblers Caught.

Hackensack, N. J., Aug. 15.—Three of Sheriff Van Buskirk's deputies made a raid on the shell-games gamblers in Pine View Grove at Alpine. They caught two men, Thomas Getting and John Terrill, of New York, who are committed in the Hackensack jail. A third gambler gave the officers a desperate fight and, assisted by the excursionists, made his escape on the boat. Judge Zabriskie demanded $1,000 bail, but the amount was too high for the gamblers' friends.

Has Lots of Spending Money.

Seattle, Aug. 15.—Mrs. James Hall, a New York woman, whose husband has not been out of the Yukon Valley for fourteen years, has arrived here from Skagway. She brought $15,000 as spending money for the month that will intervene until Hall can get out. Mrs. Hall, who is slender and pretty, says the Yukon Valley seems more like home than New York. She met and married Hall in that region, and expects to return next year.

Never Got to Gilmore.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The Secretary of the Navy has received the following from Admiral Watson at Manila: "Escaped Spanish prisoners report Gilmore and thirteen other Americans—eight sailors and five soldiers—confined at Vigan July 27. Four sailors in hospital with sore legs. Gilmore well treated. Supplies sent by Admiral never reached."

Many Anti-Goebel Delegates.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 15.—Captain James B. Clay gave out information that ninety-seven counties held mass conventions and selected delegates to the state convention of anti-Goebel Democrats, which meets here on Wednesday. Other counties will hold mass conventions and probably every county in the state will have delegates here.

Dipped Kitten in Hot Tar.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 15.—The police are searching for a workman who dipped a kitten into a pot of hot tar and threw it to the street from the roof of the Columbia Theatre. The tar cooled, and when the kitten was found it had to be pried from the pavement. It was killed at once. The animal was the pet of the theatre.

Negro Pleads Guilty.

Mount Kisco, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Leroy Brown, twenty-two years of age, colored, was arrested at West Mount Kisco on a charge of assaulting a fifteen-year-old white girl at Croton Point. He confessed the crime and was taken to the County jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

French Spy Caught.

Vienna, Aug. 15.—August Hosetig, a Government railroad official, has been arrested for stealing the emergency mobilizaton plans, which he delivered to a man named P. R. Wiboworski, who is said to have communicated them to agents of France and Russia.

STORAGE, RENTAL AND REPAIRS.
405 PARK AVENUE.

It was at Fort Slocum, in New York Harbor, during the Spanish war. An officer lay on his bunk, feeling, as he said, decidedly uncomfortable, when the post surgeon came in. The Colonel said he was suffering from indigestion. "Well," said the doctor, "Is there anything that you have been in the habit of taking that generally helps you?" "Yes," said the Colonel, "there is one thing and the only thing that has ever done me any good, but you can't give it to me." "What is it?" said the doctor. "A Ripans Tabule," was the Colonel's reply. A fellow officer standing by spoke up cheerfully: "Why, Colonel, I can fix you out," and he produced a 5-cent carton from his waistcoat pocket. The best thing about the story is that it did fix the Colonel up all right, and the doctor manifesting an interest, was told what R-I-P-A-N-S are, what they are used for, and what great good they were doing in the community. After he had looked the circular through the doctor remarked, "Well, I don't see why that is not a good thing."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may also be had of grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at liquor stores and barber shops.

RICHES ARE NO USE

In Spite of Wealth Walter B. Duryea Is Dying.

New York, Aug. 15.—A millionaire's wealth has failed to save a son who broke his neck, and yet lingered on from day to day until hope revived that he might survive what kills most men instantly. But now every resouce known to science and that great great wealth can command has been exhausted, and Walter B. Duryea is dying at Roosevelt Hospital.

His head and shoulders are incased in a cowl of plaster of paris. His body rests upon a water mattress. Strange have his sensations been since last Monday, when, diving into the shallow water at Oyster Bay, he fractured one of the cervical vertebrae of the spinal column. His mind has been alert. Down to the fractured bone he is fully alive. Below that, so far as any evidence of feeling or existance is concerned, his body has been dead—paralyzed.

A living head without a body has been his sensation through the long hours on the cot at the hospital.

The fight of the doctors has been to keep the paralysis from extending over the brain, when death would ensue. Solid food was given to the patient through a tube, in the hope of keeping up his strength so as to resist the further encroachment of paralysis.

However, his strength began to wane and the end was seen to be near. The paralysis is caused by the fractured bone pressing in against the spinal cord. An operation to remove this pressure was considered, but abandoned in favor of reinforcing Duryea's vigorous constitution with nourishment in the hope that he would be able to resist and overcome the paralysis.

Duryea is the son of Colonel Duryea, of Glen Cove, L. I., the millionaire starch manufacturer. He was brought from Oyster Bay to Roosevelt Hospital by means of expensive contrivances like those devised for the journeys of the late Mrs. William C. Whitney.

Colonel Duryea has been with his son almost constantly since he arrived at the hospital.

8,100 Farms Were Submerged.

Washington, Aug. 15.—E. S. Holmes, Jr., an expert of the statistical bureau of the Department of Agriculture, has just completed a report to Chief Statistician Hyde of that department embodying the results of a tour of the flood-devastated region of Texas and making a careful estimate of the damage done, the aggregate of which he places at $7,414,000, or about $74 per capita.

The number of farms submerged is estimated at 8,100, with a total area of about 1,380,000 acres. Of this area at the time of the flood there were about 503,000 acres under cultivation, 339,000 acres in cotton, 124,400 acres in corn, 10,800 acres in sugar cane and 28,600 acres in other crops, with a total production in sight equivalent to about $7,950,000.

Although nearly 90 per cent. of the total loss occurred in the destruction of or injury to growing crops, the damage to farm property and the losses o flive stock amount to $844,000.

Says War Is Sure to Come.

Pretoria, Aug. 15.—Despite General Joubert's denial, it is reported that the Government made large purchases of mules on Saturday.

A crowd besieged the office of the Field Cornets, demanding rifles, on account of the war scare.

The Volksraad has amended the Grondwet (Constitution of the South African republic), compelling persons who are not burghers to co-operate with them in the defense of the national territory and the suppression of rebellion.

General Joubert, Vice President of the republic and Commander-in-Chief of the Transvaal forces, denies that the burghers are loading their rifles and preparing for war.

Natal Farmers Ready to Fight.

Cape Town, Aug. 15.—A despatch from Pietermaritzburg, capital of Natal, says that at a farmer's meeting, called there to consider the defence of the colony, it was resolved that the duty of every loyal, able bodied colonist, able to rise and shoot, was to aid in the defence of the colony against invasion, and it was announced that the volunteers would be sent to the frontier in the event of war and that the rifle associations would be left to defend their own districts.

Jumped From High Bridge.

Louisville, Aug. 15.—Because a girl dared him, William "Dudy" Crowe, of No. 2648 Bank street, borrowed Miss Gertrude Moore's bathing suit and dived into the river from the Big Four bridge, a similar leap from which killed Thomas Harvey only one week before.

Crowe made the leap successfully, and says he is willing to repeat it a dozen times a day for Gertrude Moore's pleasure. The distance to the water is 172 feet. The girl, with Lloyd Smith, another suitor, waited in a skiff beneath the bridge to pull Crowe out. Smith will make the leap next Saturdya. The man who survives wins the Kentucky girl's hand.

Ohio Town Burned.

Berea, O., Aug. 15.—Nearly half of the business portion of this town was destroyed by fire entailing a loss of $150,000. Twelve stores were burned before the fire was under control. The report that two lives were lost is without foundation.

Rats and Underground Wires.

Rats are playing havoc with the under-ground telephone and telegraph cables in St. Louis. They have discovered that the wires are covered with paraffined paper, and they rather like the taste. To satisfy their appetites, they must gnaw through the lead casing around the wires. It has happened in a number of cases that the rats in gnawing through the lead cables, to get at the greased paper, have bared the copper wires in such a manner as to make it impossible to establish communication over them. Every time this happens it costs the company whose wires are interrupted all the way from a few dollars to several hundred. The telephone men are trying to devise some means of stopping the depredations.

WILD CONFUSION IN COURT

Announcement of the Shooting of Labori Causes Pandemonium at Rennis.

NEWSPAPER MEN FIGHT

Dreyfus Much Affected When News of the Attempted Assassination Reaches Him.

The Would-be Assassin Captured in the Woods—M. Casimir Brands as False the Testimony Given by General Mercier — The Ex-President Calm and Collected.

London, Aug. 15.—The man who shot Maitre Labori, counsel for Dreyfus, at Rennes, has been arrested. The would-be assassin believed when he shot the lawyer that he was killing Captain Dreyfus himself. He was arrested in a piece of woods, about three miles from the scene of the shooting, in which he had taken refuge. The would-be murderer was traced there by Col. Piquart and another man. A hundred Gendarmes were in pursuit.

Dreyfus Deeply Affected.

Rennes, France, Aug. 15.—The scene which followed the announcement in the Dreyfus court-martial that Maitre Labori had been shot was one of pandemonium.

Madame Sevrine accused the anti-Dreyfusards of inciting the act of the assassin. Instantly two hundred newspaper men and women rushed into verbal conflict. Colonel Jouast took the newspaper men's canes away and then threatened to clear the court room.

Dreyfus seemed much affected, but it was whispered to him that his counsel's injuries were not fatal.

Rennes, France, Aug. 15.—The Dreyfus court-martial was already assembling and about to open the session when Taunay, a big French journalist, bounded into the court room shouting that Labori was wounded.

The excitement among the correspondents turned to anger between the factions and there was an extraordinary scene. It began with Madam Sevrine accusing the anti-Dreyfus party of again resorting to the assassin's weapon. Arthur Meyer, of the Gaulois, furiously retorted, and instantly the 200 newspaper men and women took sides.

It was easier to believe one in a madhouse than in the presence of the greatest trial of the century.

The police then proceeded to take away the canes of all the newspaper men present, and Colonel Jouast, who entered a few minutes late, delivered a lecture to the reporters telling them not to make any manifestation or he would clear the court. This warning was prompted by reports that the newspaper men were responsible for the disturbance Saturday when Mercier finished testifying.

M. Damange, who came in after seeing Labori, arose and, in a broken voice, announced the attempted assassination of his colleague. Colonel Jouast expressed his extreme regret over the affair.

Geperal Mercier resumed the witness stand after the reassembling of the court.

Colonel Jouast said: "Esterhazy today declares himself the author of the bordereau."

General Mercier replied: "I believe that is a lie.'

M. Demange then demanded the confrontation of M. Casimir-Perier and General Mercier.

This demand was granted, and the ex-President of the Republic strode to the side of his former Minister of War.

Then ensued a dramatic scene such as was never before witnessed before human tribunal and such as probably no other nation could produce. It is an exaggeration, perhaps, to describe General Mercier's attitude as cringing, but it was not unlike that of a guilty pupil before his master.

M. Casimir Perier was erect, clear-voiced and imperative. He spoke like a man having a stern and painful duty to perform, from which he did not shrink, yet who pitied his former protege who must be crushed thereby.

"I know," he said, "that this trial is fraught with tragic consequences to General Mercier, and I do not wish to aggravate them; but I am the master of my own thought and conscience. I must point out the mistakes in his evidence. One point clear in my memory is that General Mercier told me that the documents enumerated in the bordereau were without importance."

General Mercier interrupted, saying that he had told M. Casimir Perier exactly the opposite.

M. Casimir-Perier insisted upon the correctness of his statement, and proceeded to say that he had no memory of the scene described by Gen. Mercier in which he (the witness), Premier Dupuy and General Mercier, fearful of war with Germany, sat waiting a whole evening to receive a dispatch from Berlin.

"In regard to Dreyfus's alleged confession to Captain Lebrun-Renaud, no word reached me for many days. Captain Lebrun-Renaud came to the Elysee on account of an article in the Figaro, for which I rebuked him. He said nothing about any admissions by Dreyfus."

General Mercier replied that Captain Lebrun-Renaud had been sent to the Elysee for the purpose of informing M. Casimir-Perier of Dreyfus's admissions.

M. Casimir-Perier repeated that Lebrun-Renaud had not said a word on the subject, and that he (witness) had heard of the matter indirectly some time afterward.

M. Demange intervened occasionally to bring out the points of Casimir-Perier's declarations more forcibly.

The two witnesses continued to contradict one another during the fifteen minutes the scene lasted. The ex-President was always clear, precise and emphatic and often accompanied his words with strong gestures. General Mercier was persistent to the last, but his voice was often inaudible to half the hall.

The ex-President withdrew from the stand and M. Demange briefly cross-examined General Mercier.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

A New Kind of Pavement.

The reluctant spirit with which some of the city officials regard the proposed introduction of permanent pavement in the centre of the city, owing to the necessity of raising funds for such a purpose by issuing bonds, is taken by many to mean that the contemplated improvement may not be made after all.

As a desire for economy is the thing that prompts the city officials in question to regard the permanent pavement idea with little favor, it follows that they will undoubtedly welcome some cheaper method for improving the city thoroughfares in a satisfactory way. Along this line The American Contractor tells of a new kind of pavement that is of contemporaneous interest to Plainfield.

The Contractor reports the paving of streets in Hamilton, Canada, with tarred macadam that costs only 76 cents per square yard, and is a very satisfactory pavement. Inquiry of the Hamilton street committee gained the following statements in response: First, that the price reported was correct, the paving costing only 76 cents per square yard. Second, that they have streets which have been paved for ten and fifteen years and they have been kept in good repair at small expense. Third, that "tarred macadam" is the most satisfactory pavement they have in that city.

The construction is described as follows: After the street has been excavated and graded and rolled, four inches of crushed stone is spread on and thoroughly rolled. Then a coating is put on of crushed stone and tar, both stone and tar being heated and mixed while hot, and rolled down into a solid mass. There is some pitch added to the tar. The road is surfaced with three-fourths of an inch of mixed tar and gravel rolled down smooth.

Seeking for a combination of economy and good results it would not be a bad idea for the Councilmanic street committee to look up this new paving material, as it might prove just the article that Plainfield is looking for.

PROMINENT IN THE DREYFUS TRIAL.

Four of the men who are among the most prominent figures in the second court martial of Dreyfus are pictured here. General Mercier is probably the strongest foe Dreyfus has. He was minister of war during the first trial and personifies what is characterized in the prosecution as "the honor of the army of France." Major Carriere is, by appointment, the representative of the government in the prosecution. Maitres Labori and Demange are the counsel for the defense. They have been the faithful lawyers of Dreyfus since the trouble began and have stood by him unflinchingly during the four years that it has been the most serious problem in France.

The Trial of Dreyfus.

The attempted assassination of M. Labori, counsel for Dreyfus, is a tragic incident in the greatest court-martial of the century, and reflects the high and desperate temper to which a certain class of Frenchmen has been pitched in the intensity of feeling aroused by the case of the late exile of Devil's Island.

The murderous act against the chief counsel of the prisoner will undoubtedly effectually remove him from the stirring scenes of the trial, where his close intimacy with the facts and evidence in the case had shown him to be a terror to the military men who have undoubtedly conspired to visit an unholy, unjustified and brutal punishment upon Dreyfus. So unexpected a turn of affairs will discomfit the defense, but the evidence already heard on the new trial, the disclosures that led up to the reopening of the case, and the multitude of other dramatic incidents in connection with the trial, has been so favorable to Dreyfus that from a pure sense of justice it would seem that the prisoner would be returned to the ranks of the army with all the honor and emoluments that were his before the inglorious events of a few years ago.

But the French army is in a crisis, and whether reason and justice will sway the authorities in the face of the buffetings of a divided populace, both aroused to a high temper from their respective points of view, remains to be seen. Certain it is that the attempted killing of Labori and his consequent removal from the trial will jeopardize Dreyfus' liberty to an important degree. This is not because there is not another French lawyer who is equal to the task laid out before Labori, but because the latter has the mass of pivotal points in the case so clearly elucidated in his own mind that with him in the foreground for the defense there would be certainty, where doubt will enter when the lead is left to M. Demange, his associate, who is confessedly unprepared to take the defense in a convincing manner where the injured man left off.

However much the attempted assassination of Labori tends to injure the defense of Dreyfus in court, it is a fact that outside of France the whole world is deeply interested to see his acquittal and return to the ranks of his countrymen in honor and justice.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The Central Railroad Company has just received its first shipment of handsome new coaches which are to take the place of the old ones that have been in the service for years. Thus far about twenty new cars have been completed and there are twenty-five yet to be delivered. They are finished up similar to the P. & R. R cars, and are vestibuled. The aisle is much wider and seventy-two persons can be seated in each car. The handsome plush seats are mounted on iron instead of wooden frames, and they are more comfortable than those in the old cars. At present they are using the cars on some of the through trains, but it is expected that they will gradually replace all of the old cars on the main line.

THEATRICAL.

George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels will be the opening attraction at the Stillman Music Hall, Friday, Aug. 18th. Speaking of this form of entertainment Mr. Thatcher says his idea of minstrelsy is that it must exceed in novelty anything known in vaudeville; that it must retain all the picturesqueness of the plantation; that it must please the ear by vocal and orchestral excellence, must surprise and delight the eye by the beauty of its costumes and stage settings, and must astonish the mind by the absolute novelty of its special features and the specular character of its finale. He believes in fact that minstrelsy, or rather minstrelsy of the future such as he has inaugurated, should draw all that is best from every form of entertainment known to the stage, uniting them in a pot pourri of up-to-dateness. All should go with dash, rapidity and sparkle; the brightest, latest jests; a touching ballad, a screamingly funny song, a refrain of the old-time darky, a monologue of quaintest humor, the twinkling of dancing feet; grace, skill, melody, fun; all these, following on one another's heels with electric swiftness, with color, light, beauty and brilliancy everywhere, that's minstrelsy presented by a company of white performers "all in black." This is the form of entertainment that George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels will present here.

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

"Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before."

Already our store begins to take on a more sombre hue, due to the arrival of large quantities of new goods for the approaching Fall business, a sort of advance guard for the coming campaign. Business methods have been revolutionized in the last few years, and wideawake merchants must lay plans far ahead of each season, if their customers are to have the best of everything the market can furnish. For months we have been actively preparing for what we hope shall be the busiest season in the history of our constantly growing business. Many lines of goods have been carefully looked over, in some cases entirely rejected, from some only the choice things selected. Mill orders for Blankets, Underwear and sundry winter goods have been placed, and goods are being made before the grand rush, insuring better values

We came to Plainfield to give its people an up-to-date store, and one that should be worthy of so fair a city. With your cordial support we are fast approaching our Ideal.

Fall Dress Suitings.

Double face plaid golf suiting will be almost universally worn Splendid, warm, durable and economical goods they are. Require no lining. We are showing some exceedingly choice patterns already, with many others to come as the mills are able to fill orders. Heavy Plaid Sackings also for Golf Capes. They make remarkably stylish garments and are not extravagantly expensive.

Black Crepons.

In our opinion no more beautiful goods were ever made from Mohair. Heavy, rich patterns, bright lustre, absolutely fast color elegant beyond description. The patterns we are showing were selected early and are the best obtainable. Prices 75c to $1.98, the last mentioned we will guarantee to be worth $2 50, or money will be refunded.

Black Goods.

Our line of Black Goods is always complete. Ladies who desire black goods should by all means see our goods. We have a special 46 in Black Henrietta at $1.00 per yard, that is exceptional value. French Serges, Broad Cloths, Cheviots, Cashmeres, Velours and Fancy weaves in variety.

Extreme Novelties in Colored Dress Goods we carefully avoid, but Broadcloths, Coverts, Cashmeres, Henriettas, Granite Cloths, Cheviots, Storm Serges, Diagonals, etc., we have in the best shades.

New Wash Goods.

Flanneletts. The very name is attractive, but the goods are far more so. Rich, warm colors, fine soft fabrics we predict for them a very large sale, certainly we know of nothing else so beautiful for inexpensive house dresses.

Outing Flannels.

more perfectly finished than ever, and too beautiful to describe. They are pre-eminently the goods for the masses, for everybody from the most humble to the grandest people use them.

About Table Linens.

The last large purchase of ours has served simply to whet the appetite of our people for more and has stimulated us to greater efforts along this line. Another large purchase of these goods includes 5 patterns of 70-in pure linen damask the actual value of which is 75c per yard. While they last we shall sell them at 50c per yard. We are not sure of being able to get more of the same. If interested BUY NOW. In the same purchase we secured 51 doz (all) Hemmed Huck Towels, 17 x 35. They are selling at 10 cents each They are worth 15 cents each. We show a line of Plaid Glass Towelings that rivals that of any we have seen

All Summer Goods including Shirt Waists, Crash Skirts, Pique Skirts, and wash goods in general are being shamefully sacrificed to get them out the way. We have no further use for them and need the room for newer goods.

Come in and get acquainted with us. This is your store as well as ours With your help we are going to make it an establishment that we may all be proud of.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug. 15.—G. R. Crandell, who has just returned from a visit with friends in Little Genesee, met with quite a serious accident a few days before he started for home. He was riding his wheel when he suddenly took a header, throwing him with great force, and bruising his face considerably.

The recent burglaries have suggested to the citizens the necessity of more efficient police protection. The borough is certainly in a position to afford better police protection than that at present supplied. Two reliable men should be appointed to patrol the streets every night, and not Saturday and Sunday evenings only.

At this writing there is no clue to the persons who burglarized the residence of Augustus Warden last Sunday night or early Monday morning. There are certain well-known characters under surveillance, but no arrests have yet been made.

The annual meeting of the Protection Society of the town of Piscataway will be held at the Newtown school-house next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the purpose of electing eleven directors and a secretary.

Gray & Garretson, the contractors, have had difficulty in procuring a sufficient number of cars to ship crushed stone. Yesterday a number of teams were kept waiting several hours near the station for cars.

J. H. Manning, general secretary of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., conducted services in the Presbyterian church last Sunday in the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. I. Martine.

Mrs. Emily Apgar has been entertaining Mrs. Runkle, the venerable mother of Rev. Mrs. E. S. Jamison.

The Misses Clawson and their brothers went to Pluckamin by wheel last Sunday to visit their sister.

Mrs. Harry Swackhamer has returned from Pluckamin, where she has been visiting friends.

Theodore Apgar, of First street, has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Flagg, of Wisconsin.

Mrs. A. I. Martine has returned from a visit with friends in Long Island.

John Fenner and Peter Winfelt went to Pluckamin last Sunday on their wheels.

Mrs. Joseph Dunham is spending a week at Asbury Park.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 15th—Rev. Mr. Woodruff arrived home from his month's vacation last Saturday, but was unable to occupy his pulpit Sunday as was expected. Mr. Woodruff received a telegram during the day announcing the serious illness of his mother, and he left at once for his home in Dover, N. J. Rev. Mr. Lewis occupied his pulpit for the day.

The arrangements are completed for the Baptist trolley party tomorrow evening. The cars will leave the terminus promptly at 8 o'clock. The committee has made arrangements with the trolley company to take the party over the entire line of the road, Dunellen, Somerset, Netherwood, Fourth street and back for one fare, ten cents.

People living along Westfield avenue are beginning to wonder if the heaps of rails and ties piled along in front of their property are ever going to be used or moved away.

Mr and Mrs. Ernest Hand, of Mountain avenue, have returned from a pleasant visit with Mrs. Hand's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dodd, of Elizabeth.

A. D. Beekon, of Fanwood, spent Sunday with his family who are spending a month along the coast of Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Whitenack entertained a number of their friends at a social gathering at their home last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Plainfield, have been visiting Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Paff, Sr.

Miss Lena Bruchman, of Mountain avenue, has returned from a week's visit with relatives in New York State.

The local branch of the Building and Loan Association met at the home of Dr. Parks last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Martine and family, of Elizabeth, spent Saturday with relatives in town.

John Wade led the Epworth League meeting in the Methodist church Sunday evening.

Mrs. James Ritchie, of Plainfield, was the guest of friends in town yesterday.

Fred. Corey, of New York, has been visiting his father, William Corey.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Nürnberg. An unserer altehrwürdigen Lorenzerkirche zeigen sich derartige Bauschäden, daß man ernstlich an eine Restauriruna denken muß.

HIDDEN IN PETTICOATS

Vast Wealth of a Woman Sewn Up In Her Clothes.

Quite a sensation has recently been caused at Jassy, in Roumania, by the death of a Mme. Balsch, who has, by her eccentricities, for years past, attracted much attention in that town.

Some years ago she was the wife of a Herr Veldiman, by whom she had a daughter. After a year or two of married life she divorced him and married a Herr Balsch, by whom she had a son. Soon after the latter's birth she left her second husband.

She then went to Paris, where she called herself Countess von Balsch. Toward her children she never seemed to feel anything but the greatest hatred, and when her son died she sent the body to his father for burial. She turned her daughter out of her house, and the unfortunate girl was only kept from starvation by the kindness of relatives. After the death of her second husband she returned to Roumania, where she lived in complete retirement.

In spite of the fact that she was extremely wealthy she lived in the most wretched manner, and was generally reputed to be a miser. A few days ago she died. When her daughter came to examine her belongings no trace of money could be found. In going through her mother's clothing, however, she noticed that one of the petticoats seemed somewhat stiff, as if heavily lined. She ripped it open and found over 200,000 notes sewed under the lining.

This put her on the track, and all her mother's petticoats, of which she had an enormous number, were examined. In nearly every one large sums of money were found, amounting all together to between 2,000,000 francs and 3,000,000 francs.—Fremdenblatt.

Glacier Streams of Iceland.

All the glacier streams of Iceland, says the Geographical Journal possess the common characteristics of carrying down large quantities of pebbles and clay and of spreading out over the lowlands in a network of anastomosing channels. Generally they emerge from their parent Glaciers with a pretty steep fall and gather heavy burdens of pebbles and debris from the moraines—so heavy, indeed, that when the strength of the current diminishes the stream cannot carry its load but drops it. The river bed thus gets choked up, the current divides. The strongest branches force their way through the debris, encounter fresh obstacles, run into one another, coalesce with other branches, gain accessions of power, once more burst through the deposits of gravel, send off small side arms, again diminish in volume, and so go through unceasing struggle between the glacial torrents and the masses of gravelly debris, giving rise to an incessantly changing network of interconnected channels.

One day a river branch will be swollen to the dimensions of a dangerous river, the next day it will contract to the compass of an insignificent rivulet. A minute often suffices to cause a stoppage, a division of the current, the carving out of a new bed. Some of these streams become dammed up until they form lakes, which overflow and inundate many square miles of the adjacent country. Some cut out such deep channels through the glacier debris that they do not shift their course for many years. One of these glacier torrents, therefore, often presents a picture of an extremely complicated network of hundreds of branches, inclosing between them a multitude of islands of clay and sand, which are equally as variable as the rivers themselves. It may be acepted as an invariable law with regard to the glacial streams of Iceland that they never empty themselves into the deep fjords. In all cases where they formerly did so the fjords have become choked wtih sand, gravel and clays.

Women Smoke In France.

Statistics have been taken in France of the spread of the habit of smoking, and it has been discovered that within the last year the cigarette, and even, astonishing as it may appear, the pipe have found an enormous increase in their female votaries.

The fashion of smoking among women is no longer confined to the secrecy of a private room. The Duchess d'Uzes and the Marchioness de la Rochefoucauld now publicly take a cigarette after dinner.

The statistics alluded to show that 807,000,000 cigarettes are yearly consumed in France.

How They Knew It.

Mrs. Parvenu—It's very annoying, very. How did they discover that the spoons I gave them weren't solid? They certainly were not mean enough to have them examined?

Mr. Parvenu—Of course not. They're genuine blue bloods. But a burglar carried off all of the rest of the silver and left those spoons.—Detroit Free Press.

Very Good In Fact.

COLLARS AND BELTS.

Novelties In Girdles and Buckles. Bicycle Suit.

Collars of velvet are embroidered with gold or steel beads or colored spangles, according to the gown they are accompanying. They are finished with a fall of bead fringe.

A novelty in belts is of leather, with a design burned upon it in the same way that furniture, frames and wooden ornaments are decorated. The designs for belts are very finely burned and are usually of a floral character. The fastening for the belts is a plain, tongue buckle covered with leather.

Large, old fashioned brooches which have been laid aside as out of date may now be utilized as belt fasteners, taking the place of a buckle. The belt of ribbon, velvet or other material is provided with a fastening of hooks and eyes, and the brooch is pinned on the outside. If a regular buckle arrangement is desired, however, a bar and clasp attachment are easily added by a jeweler to any large brooch which has a metal rim.

BICYCLE COSTUME.

A picture is given of a bicycle suit of gray covert cloth. The divided skirt is finished with a band of rows of stitching. The bolero is tight and double breasted, the front being elongated in a rounded tab and fastened with six large horn buttons. The coat collar, revers, cuffs and all the edges are finished with stitching. Under the bolero is a white shirt waist, with pink dots, with a high collar and black cravat. The black straw hat is trimmed with black satin and a gray feather. JUDIC CHOLLET.

BATHING SUITS.

The American Suits Prettier Than the French.

The French idea of a bathing suit is quite different from the model accepted in America. The Frenchwoman, for once, makes a guy of herself, wearing trousers which extend half way down from the knee to the ankle, a scant skirt which falls only a little below the hips, and eschewing stockings altogether. A more awkward looking arrangement can hardly be imagined. The bodice part, however, is often very prettily cut and trimmed, and useful hints may therefore be gained from the French suits.

BATHING COSTUME.

The only way to keep even very tight stockings on in the water is to wear circular garters above the knee. If a band of wide elastic is run into the edge of the trousers, it will not only serve as a garter, but will keep the trousers and stockings from separating, as they have a habit of doing, during bathing.

The picture illustrates a bathing costume of brown serge. The skirt and the edge of the short sleeves are trimmed with bands of white braid. The bodice is gathered to a pointed yoke, upon which is applied a star shaped trimming of thin white flannel. There is no collar. The belt is of wide white braid, tied at the side. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Crocodile Steak.

Some of the old Egyptians were fond of crocodile steak. They thought wheat and barley poor stuff. The Egyptians, moreover, never ate beans or the head of any animal. Honey and raisins they loved and also liked fish, quail and duck.

Household Talks

A New Gong.

Every one admires the bell-shaped Japanese gongs which hang in so many dining-room doors. This is a variation on the idea which is apt to be as popular. The hanging pieces of the metal chime sweetly when struck by the padded hammer provided.

THE "CHIMING" GONG.

The American Housewife.

Miss Edith Young gives an entertaining glimpse of the American woman as a housewife. "She keeps her house bright and beautiful; but not at the expense of her personal appearance," says Miss Young, "she being always neatly and prettily dressed, whatever she does. Her house is most conveniently appointed for the saving of labor and useless drudgery—the reason being that the prevailing stubbornness of servants in trying new appliances has small weight in a country where "brainy" women have so often to do their own housework, and who naturally choose the best ways of accomplishing it. It would be a revelation to some ardent English housewives to know that the ladies one meets at an afternoon whist party in America, who have a club meeting for every day in the week, or who lounge in their piazza hammocks as though life were one long holiday, who are all animation and vivacity, have now and again, perhaps all the time, been doing housework of a kind we should have two or more servants for in this country; getting up in the small hours to cook their elaborate breakfast or hot bread and various indispensable dishes, and later making cakes, candies and dainty stuffs, besides the real meals of the day."

To Stop the Window Shades Flapping.

The flapping of the window shade, when the sash is raised and the shade lowered, is a serious annoyance to nervous people, who are generally light sleepers. The noise which the air and the shade produce is like notning so much as "a rapping, as of some one gently tapping, tapping at the chamber door," accompanied by a soft rustle as of stiff skirts. This in a gentle breeze; when the wind is high the noise is louder and murders sleep. If the shade is raised the light wakes one too early in the morning, yet ventilation is absolutely necessary to health.

The way to prevent the tappping is very simple when one knows how. Screw two little brass hooks, one on each side of the window frame, opposite each other about twelve inches from the sill. At night tie a ribbon or broad tape across the open window, from one hook to the other, as sailors say "taut." Screw a third hook in the molding below the sill, exactly in the center. Pull down the shade over the ribbon, and tie the cord to the lower hook. The shade will be firmly held in place, and nothing short of a high wind or a rainstorm will cause noise enough to awaken you.

Scrap Book of Styles.

After years of patient attention a Boston woman has acquired a scrapbook of fashions that is truly unique and amusing. In the early days of the Civil War she began clipping plates and fashion photographs from mode journals until her proposed volume has now formed several. It is wonderfully odd to review the fads and fancies that flashed like so many meteors through the skies of the past thirty-five or forty years. There are the Grecian bend, the chignon, the waterfall, the pullback, the crinoline, the tiny bonnets and the pokes, the large bustles, hoops and the large sleeves. Only extremes of style and oddities are used, or the collection would swell beyond all proportion. As it is, it is the scource of much mirth whenever she brings it out as a 'company trap."

Care of Woolens.

The secret of washing well any woolen goods lies chiefly in having the different waters of equal temperature, with none of them at any time too hot to put the hand in comfortably. Soap should not be rubbed on the article, but used in the form of thin suds. It should be a good white soap, too. A little borax is probably the best thing to soften the water. For washing blankets or baby flannels it is to be preferred. Woolen should not be wrung by the hand, but rinsed or dried by squeezing. Woolens of any sort should never be allowed to freeze.

The Ubiquitous Scallop.

Apron fronts, graduated ruffles, the edges of bodices, and almost every part of a gown, even the sleeves at the wrist and the epaulettes at the shoulder, are cut in scallops.

Onions Are Good.

It is said that onions stimulate digestion and promote circulation. Eat them freely. Your health is worth more to you than an untainted breath.

AGAINST USE OF CORSETS.

Chicago, Saxony and Russia Make a Concerted Attack Upon Steel Ribbed Casing.

THEY WILL HAVE TO GO.

So Say a Great Many Health Specialists—But Women Have the Deciding Vote—Wnat Will They Say?

The Influence of Dress Upon the Physical Structure of Women—Appearances and Fashion's Decrees More Thought of Than Sound Bodies and Good Health—Uncomfortable and Injurious.

The Minister of Education of Saxony has signed a decree forbidding schoolgirls to wear corsets.

The Russian Minister of Public Instruction has published an order that young women attending high schools, universities and music and art schools shall not wear corsets.

The Oakland Health Club of Chicago has indorsed the acts of both these officials and has pledged itself to stop tight lacing.

These three facts show that the war upon the corset and its consequent destruction of the most beautiful thing in the world—a man's mother—is being renewed in very high official places, and that it is being fought as it was never fought before. The Oakland Health Club has given out this emphatic official statement:

"It is a known fact that there is more sickness among women than ever before. One scarcely meets a healthy woman. The corset represents a large measure of the responsibility of the ills to which woman is heir."

The Oakland Health Club suggests Grecian costumes for women. The costumes of the ancient Greeks require no "fitting to corsets."

The Saxony Minister of Education prescribes the mode of dress for school girls. The girls are required to wear a loose-fitting jacket or blouse, with a short, full, round skirt, loose at the belt. The Russian Minister of Public Education offers no substitute for the corset nor concealment of the uncorseted outlines. He confines himself to the decree. He only offers the explanation that he has spent much time in visiting girls' schools, and reports that the corset is "distinctly prejudicial to the health and physical development of the wearers."

Dr. J. H. Kellogg is one of the leaders of war against stays. Dr. Kellogg has a formidable trail of titles which add weight to his words. He is a life member of the British Gynecological Society, member of the Societe d'Hygiene of France, of the American Medical Association, the British and American Association for the advancement of Science, the American Climatological Society, the American Social Science Association and others. He is the author of a work on "The Evils of Fashionable Dress," that created a decided stir and a short-lived dress reamong women a few years ago. He has just now published a work on the form among women a few years ago. He has just now published a work on the same question entitled, "The Influence of Dress in Producing the Physical Decadence of American Women."

"It is not worth while to spend any time in demonstrating that women are degenerating physically," says Dr. Kellogg in his treatise, "for there has not been a medical convention dinner within the last quarter of a century at which was not heard the toast, 'Woman, God's best gift to man and the chief support of the doctors?'

"I recently addressed an audience of seven hundred women. I asked how many women present believed they were physically superior to their mothers. A bare half dozen raised their hands, and two or three looked timidly about, apparently as if to see if any one present was prepared to contest their claim. This was significant of the present attitude and the present strength of women. A falling off in the birth rate amounting to several million within the last ten years is one of the terrible evidences of the decline of stamina in American women."

Dr. Kellogg says that to compression of the waist is due—

"First, downward displacement of the abdominal and pelvic organs, and numerous functional and organic diseases growing out of this disturbance of the static relation of the organs.

"Second, lack of development of the muscles of the trunk, which by long compression and disuse lose their functional activity, resulting in drooping shoulders, flat or hollow chest, sunken epigastrium and straight spine.

"Third, an ungraceful and unnatural carriage of the body in sitting, standing and walking.

"Fourth, an abnormal mode of respiration.

"The strong and beautiful curves which are observed in a spirited horse are not only attractive from an aesthetic point of view, but are also of the highest significance from a psychological standpoint. In the healthy, vigorous animal one observes that the head is held high, the neck and back strongly curved, the limbs firmly set, and the whole expression indicates vigor and strength. The same is equally true of the female body.

"An erect head, well-curved back, prominent chest, retracted abdomen and firmly set limbs, are indicative of an energized carriage of the body which is characteristic of health.

"The flat chest, posterior dorsal curve, projecting chin, protruding abdomen, are equally indicative of a relaxed and weak carriage of the body.

"The spiritless and tired horse holds his head down; he lacks the vigor and disposition to hold it up."

INDIAN TORTURED.

"Doc Obija" Tells of Horrible Treatment Inflicted Upon a "Bad" Medicine Man.

This is the story told by "Doc Obija," a reliable Navajo Indian, of the horrible tortures his tribe inflicted upon Bine Nimalgo, medicine man and sorcerer:

"When the spot-sickness (small-pox) came upon the Navajos they knew that there was magic. That was why our men were dying and our young women's faces were pitted.

"Bine Nimalgo was a bad Indian. He deserved to die. His medicine was bad medicine. We had long known that; this was only why he had been driven out by the tribe long ago and lived away from the tribe. He had his revenge.

"It is not true that the sick went to him to be cured. They would not do that. He did not cure people, but made them ill. They feared the bad medicine.

"Bine Nimalgo was very strong and very wicked. He had a magic bow and arrow, with which he could shoot from very far away the spot-sickness and other bad things into his enemies, and he hated everybody because he was bad.

"He alone had the bow and arrow. Many had tried to find them, but they could not. He had well hid them. There was bad magic in the cache, so that no one found it. By night he shot the arrows and we fell ill.

"It was this that made hundreds lie down, and many of them died. When they felt the bad medicine in them they covered their faces with their blankets and sat waiting. They died bravely.

"We could not find the bows and arrows and the tribe was dying. Soon there would be no one left. And the Navajos are greatest of all the Indian people. This is known .

"This is why they went to the hogan (hut) of Bine Nimalgo. There were seven squaws and five fighting men who went. I do not know their names, but they were all Navajos. They did not fear death for themselves, they went for the tribe.

"I have said that the angry one was far off. The chosen twelve went to his place. I do not know their names.

"They reached the hogan and danced the death dance a long time; they tied Bine to a tree, that he might see the dance. It was a dance for him.

"Then they told Bine Nimalgo how one by one he had slain the young men and the babies. And one by one as they told him this they broke the bones in him—broke them in short pieces, beginning with the little bones—and after that the great ones that do not break easily.

"He lived long, for he was a very strong man. The bad medicine made him strong.

They took off his scalp, for he was an enemy. They cut off his ears. Where he has gone they will know him by these signs. I think they cut away his arms and legs. They danced the death dance and sang to him his bad deeds while they did these things.

"I do not know the names of the twelve who did this.

"When they were weary they fired twelve bullets into the body.

"Then they cut the thongs that held the body to the tree, and they put Bine into the hogan. His legs and arms and all the parts of his body they put in together. Then they set fire to the hogan, singing and dancing about it, and it burned very fast. The fire ate up all the bad medicine. The ashes were clean.

"This is the true story. Whatever else has been told is a lie."

Doc Obija was with difficulty induced to tell his story. A small bribe that looks large to an Indian was the inducement finally offered. He believed firmly that the sorcerer was guilty and his punishment just.

Of course, Obija, like all the rest of the Navajos, knew who the guilty twelve were, but he will never reveal their names.

The crime was committed in what is called the Kearns Canyon country, Arizona. Officers went out from Holbrook as soon as they heard of it, but their visit was perfunctory. They knew very well that no Indian is in the least likely to turn informer.

Monstrous Scrap Book.

What is beyond doubt the largest scrapbook in the world has just been completed for Dr. Peter Fahrney, of Chicago.

The book, which weighs a trifle over 1,200 pounds, is full bound, with marble edges. It is a handsomely finished blank book magnified many times. The boards are fifty inches from top to bottom and thirty inches wide. The book measures from outside hubs to front of board forty-two and one-half inches; the hubs are one and seven-eighths inches high; the title panels are nine and seven eighths by twenty-four and five-eighths inches. The side covers of the book have sunken panels five-eighths of an inch deep . The back of the book contains 1,000 leaves, but every tenth leaf has been cut out, leaving the stub two inches wide in order to allow for the pasting.

The boards are made up of trunk boards combined with wood, and are split like ordinary blank book boards; the flap has a stiffener of iron, and the back is made of steel and tarboard. The material used in the book is as follows: Three side cowhide, one bundle No. 6 trunk board, one bundle No. 12, 26x38, cloth board; one bundle strawboard for hubs; six medium tarboards for back; for end papers twelve sheets marbled paper and two yards of cloth.

Printing With Movable Types.

It seems quite surpising that the ancient Romans did not acquire the art of printing with movable types, inasmuch as they came so very near to it. They had wooden blocks carved with words in reverse, by means of which they stamped these words on pottery, while the latter was as yet unbaked and soft. Incidentally it may be mentioned that they knew the modern method of mending broken pots by means of rivets, and many pieces of pottery thus restored have been dug up. In ancient Rome there was one daily newspaper, which was written entirely by hand. Furthermore the Roman Senate had a publication which corresponds to the Congressional Record, being a report of the daily proceedings of that important legislative body. It likewise was written by hand. Speaking of baked clay, one might mention the fact that the little boys of Rome 2,000 years and more ago were accustomed to play knuckledown with marbles of that material, just as children do now.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

Field Gun With a Rotary Recoil System. Does Not Need Re-Aiming.

William H. Bevans, a young American but thirty-two years of age, has invented a system by which the recoil of a field gun can be entirely consumed.

It is estimated that twenty 15-pound shells can be fired from his gun every sixty seconds and this with a greater accuracy than from any other gun of a like nature in the world.

It is contained within a small box which is fitted by means of cleverly contrived devices under the gun and in such fashion as not to interfere with its movements either laterally or horizontally. This small mechanical wonder can take within itself the powerful recoil of three feet; or, in other words, can receive and consume within the twinkling of an eye the backward jump of a gun which sends a fifteen-pound shell a distance of five thousand yards.

Edward W. Very, vice-president of the American Ordnance Company, and an ordnance expert, stated after watching the tests which were made with a gun fitted up at Bridgeport, Conn., with the new rotary recoil system, that it meant a revolution in gun manufacturing throughout the world, and said that he was confident that eight shots out of ten could be placed in a target at a range of five thousand yards by a gun modelled on Mr. Bevans's design. This could be done, he said, without there being any necessity for re-aiming the gun, so perfectly did the new recoil work.

After a number of tests with the rotary recoil it was removed from the gun with which the officials of the company at Bridgeport were experimenting, and a shot was fired without it. So great was the force of the recoil, that the gun carriage and all, was lifted and thrown a distance of ten feet in the air, landing muzzle downward in the sand.

This new recoil, while being fitted at present only on the new field gun designed for the competitive government test, can be used on all guns. Mr. Bevans claims that it will save one-third of the weight in the carriage of stationary and coast defence guns.

"When in place the rotary recoil is under the gun and almost entirely concealed from the view of the gunner as well as protected from the shot of his enemy. The box itself revolves on a shaft. This is enlarged in its central portion into a saddle which remains fixed. On the outside of the cheese-box or hollow cylinder there are gear teeth which engage with similar teeth on the under side of the gun body. The cylinder is filled with liquid consisting of a mixture of glycerine and water.

"The backward jump of the gun on firing causes the cylinder to revolve, and the liquid within to pass from one side of the piston to another through grooves of varying area cut in the walls of the cylinder. At the beginning of recoil the liquid passes through the largest part of the groove at the time that the gun is moving fastest. As this groove grows smaller less liquid can pass through it, and the gun gradually comes to a standstill. Then by means of springs, shaped after the fashion of clock springs and attached to the side of the cylinder and which revolve it in the opposite direction, the gun is returned to its normal position when it is ready for another shot. The entire movement of the gun back and forth after the shot leaves it is so quick that it cannot be followed with the eye."

A Disgrace to Wandering Willie.

Tramps throughout the United States are spreading the information among their clan that the city of Oakland, Me., is a bad town for the hoboes to infest. For it is in Oakland that Mr. Sanford J. Baker lives. And Sanford Baker is the inventor of the "tramp chair," to be placed in which is like unto being confined in a railroad wreck.

This device for suppressing tramp visitors is rapidly coming into favor in Oakland, and certainly amounts to something, for its terrors have spread among the dusty roaders, and Baker is being talked about. He describes his cage as follows:

"It is simply a strongly built cage in the form of a chair on wheels. It is so constructed that the occupant must remain perfectly quiet in a sitting position. A shelf is placed near the top for food, and the contrivance can be pushed about from place to place at will. The chief peculiarity of the chair lies in its door. When used as a method of punishment the culprit is obliged to enter it and sit down. The door, which is so constructed that it follows the lines of the chair, is then closed and locked and the victim is confined as firmly as though he were glued to the seat. Another peculiar thing about the chair is that when the door is locked the occupant cannot draw his feet up or move any part of his body enough to obtain rest.

"That suggestion of doing nothing is one of the strong points of the tramp chair idea, for the true hobo spends his life in studying new ways and means of accomplishing that greatest desire of his lazy soul—absolute inaction. To be wheeled about in a chair like a big baby seems to him to be the acme of slothful ease. He steps in for his first ride in the chair with alacrity, finds it not unpleasant for the first ten minutes, then begins to feel uncomfortable, gets cramped and finds his bones aching, and before the end of an hour's ride he is yelling murder and dynamite and promising all kinds of reformation if liberated. When his punishment is over and he is fully released the tramp makes a bee line for the open country, and thenceforth comes nowhere near the town that chairs its tramp guests through the streets."

WONDERFUL LIQUID AIR.

A Discovery Which Will Likely Prove Extremely Beneficial to the Entire Race.

SINGULAR EXPERIMENTS.

The Strange Substance Seems to Reverse the Ordinary Phenomena of Nature—Water Boils on Ice.

Has a Temperature of 312 Degrees Below Zero—More Explosive Than Nitro-Glycerine—Makes a Hot Piece of Steel Burn Like a Match—It Freezes Mercury Into a Solid Metal.

Charles E. Tripler made the great discovery last year that air could be reduced to a liquid as easily as water could be frozen by artificial means. Liquid air at once became the marvel of science. Its properties are so wonderful as to be almost past belief. Liquid air has a temperature of 312 degrees below zero. It is more explosive than nitro glycerine when confined. It is as harmless as water when not kept under pressure. In color it is a steely, transparent blue. Though so intensely cold, it boils without being near a fire. It makes a piece of steel burn as brightly as a sulphur match.

Mr. Tripler made many experiments in his laboratory in West Eighty-ninth street, New York. One of the most surprising was the burning of a piece of steel in a cup of ice. The inventor first made a cup of ice. He did this by taking a tin shaker such as drug clerks use in making a milk shake. He filled this with liquid air, dipped it into a jar of water and held it there for twenty seconds. In that short time, one-third of a minute, the liquid air caused the water to freeze half an inch thick all about the tin beaker.

Mr. Tripler then poured out the liquid air, removed the tin beaker and held in his hand the perfectly shaped cup of ice which had been formed.

"Now, I will show you a strange thing," said Mr. Tripler. He filled the cup of ice with liquid air. Then, taking a piece of steel wire, one end of which had been heated red hot over a gas flame, he plunged the hot end into the inconceivably cold liquid air. Instantly it flamed up as if it were a powder fuse and burned until the whole length which had been dipped in the liquid air was consumed as if it had been a match.

This curious experiment is explained on the theory that there is so much oxygen condensed in liquid air that it can burn metals as easily as wood is ignited in ordinary atmosphere.

Another strange sight is a kettle incrusted in ice, which is boiling over a gas flame. The explanation is that the kettle is filled, not with water, but with liquid air. The vapor which pours out of the nozzle like steam is the liquid air expanding into a fog and then becoming natural air.

LIQUID AIR BOILING ON ICE.

Mr. Tripler then made an experiment which he described as "boiling water by the use of liquid air." He poured a pint of liquid air into a large two-gallon glass jar of water. The liquid air, being lighter than the water floated on top like foam.

A singular freak of liquid air was then displayed. Drops of it, snow white descended toward the bottom of the jar and then arose to the surface again. This was the nitrogen of the liquid air trying to escape. The experimenter placed his hand over the top of the jar and caused the vapor to spurt out in any direction he desired.

The most common operations in handling liquid air are calculated to excite wonder. The mere act of taking it out of a vessel with a dipper causes a furious display of vapor. The air all about is made distressingly cold. The reason is that as the liquid air expands into natural air it absorbs the heat from the surrounding atmosphere.

Its vapor is only its transition stage. It is then just midway between the liquid and gaseous state. This vapor can be made to produce a pretty laboratory geyser that spurts up and subsides with the regularity of volcanic geyser springs in different parts of the world.

Yet this mysterious chemical fluid that seems so harmless and entertaining is more powerful than nitro-glycerine when confined. A test of its explosive qualities showed this.

A handful of cotton waste was first saturated with machine oil. It was next rolled in liquid air and then placed loosely inside an inch and a quarter iron pipe, two feet long. This was in turn set inside of a heavy six-inch iron pipe, which was two feet eight inches long. The ends of both the pipes were left open. A fuse was attached to the ball of oil and liquid air soaked cotton waste in the smaller pipe. The precaution was taken of preparing this experiment in an open lot. The fuse was then fired. The explosion which followed tore two big holes through the thick outer pipe. While the smaller inside pipe was blown into bits, except one twisted end four inches long.

Liquid air does many other curious things. It freezes mercury into a solid metal that looks like lead.

Alcohol, which is used for measuring the coldest arctic temperature it is commonly thought cannot be frozen. But its freezing point, 200 degrees below zero, is easily reached and surpassed by liquid air, with its temperature of 312 below zero.

Mr. Tripler suggests that it would furnish the best kind of smokeless powder for our war ships. It could be made on board just as it might be needed. Magazines filled with dangerous explosives would no longer be necessary.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

If weather permits there will be another fine programme of races at the Gentlemen's Driving Park Saturday.

A number of Plainfield horses will be entered in the two-days' race meet at New Brunswick Wednesday, Thursday, August 3 031. Purses amounting to $950 will be offered.

The races to be held at New Brunswick on Wednesday and Thursday, August 30-31, for $950 in purses, will be one of the most important in this vicinity this season. On Wednesday there will be three races as follows: Free for all, trot or pace, purse $200; 2:23 class, trot or pace, purse $150; 2:30 class, trot or pace, purse $150. There will be three races on Thursday as follows: 2:20 class, trot or pace, purse $200; 2:35 class, trot or pace, purse $150; road wagon class, open to all, skeletons barred, trot or pace, purse $100. The entries will close August 24th.

Victor Farm is located near Fanwood, and its proprietor is J. H. L. Todd. The farm contains some excellent stock, and thither Henry C. Price, of Centre Market, owner of "McElree," 2.24¼, recently journeyed in search of a roadster. He found one in the pacing mare "Alma," by "Almoneer," son of "Young Jim." This mare is coming 8 years old, is 15 3 hands high and a sweet-gaited, admirable roadster. She makes some pretensions to speed, and has a right to, for her paternal grandsire is a speed producer. He is the sire of Dandy Jim," 2.09¾; "David B.," 2 09¼; "Canaland Wilkes," (p), 2 12; "Jim Simmons," (p), 2 15¼; and has twelve sons, the sire of twenty-two trotters and six pacers, and twenty-one dams that have produced twenty-two trotters and five pacers. "Almoneer," the sire of "Alma," has five in the list. Last season a son of his, "Judge Mills," a chestnut pacer, took a record of 2 16¼.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Labor Day will be prolific of road races. In this vicinity three have been announced for several weeks, one on the Coney Island cycle path, one on the Hudson County boulevard and one on the Elizabeth course. Last week another was announced to take place on the county road between Westfield and Netherwood. The race will be a fifteen-mile handicap affair. Entry blanks can be obtained at most of the local cycle stores.

Arthur A. Zimmerman has practically decided to retire from the track. He was greatly discouraged over his performance in the Bald match, and has about concluded that his days before the public have come to an end. It has been announced and denied that Bald also would retire. When in Newark he stated that he did not intend to ride in competition this year, but that he would go abroad and ride in match races against the best of the foreigners. He stated last week that he had decided to go to England and France with Tod Sloan, the jockey, on Tuesday. Zimmerman will continue the management of the Asbury Park track until the close of the season.

ROD AND GUN.

A party, consisting of C. M. Meeker, Thomas Traynor, Frank Mobus and Henry Myer, have returned from a crabbing expedition, and they brought with them over two hundred crabs.

Pennsylvania Railroad Behind Big Trolley Scheme in This State.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 15.—A trolley from this city to Philadelphia is the latest in the across-State trolley scheme, and the Pennsylvania Railroad is said to be behind it. The report reached here from Trenton. The Burlington and Mount Holy Traction Company, which is a creature of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is to build the road.

There has been some altercation between Pennsy and the citizens of Brunswick avenue, Trenton, over the releasing of the road to the township by the railroad company. It is believed that when Pennsy makes her proposition to the people of the avenue it will provide that the township may have the road, with the reservation of the right to build a trolley line on it, which it now seems quite sure that the company intends to do.

The action of the Pennsylvania Railroad in this matter of dealing with the citizens of Brunswick avenue with respect to releasing that road to the Township Committees taken in contion with this new move for a trolley leading out of the city towards Philadelphia, intimates that it is the ultimate intention of the company to construct a trolley from Trenton to New Brunswick on the one hand and from Trenton to Philadelphia on the other.

Mrs. William Rose, of Brooklyn, has been visiting Mrs. Henry Myer, of Regent street.

Miss Addie Carney and Miss Tiny Voehl, of the borough, who have been for the past two weeks at Bayonne, have returned and will spend the balance of their vacation at "Sunset Cottage," in the mountains.

DEMAND FOR PAVEMENT

CITIZENS WILL NOT BE SATISFIED WITH MACADAMIZING.

Many Favor Block Asphalt Instead of the Sheet Material—Repairs Would be Easy With the Block Asphalt.

In talking about a permanent pavement for the business section of the city some of the Councilmen interviewed on the subject seem to be favorably impressed with the block asphalt. Some of them have been to New York and examined it where it has been in use for many years. They have ridden over it on wheels and in carriages and they are delighted with this kind of paving.

One Councilman in conversation with a Press reporter says that the block asphalt is far preferable to anything he has seen. It is easy to repair and if a street has to be torn up the work can be done with comparatively little trouble and the blocks can be replaced in such a manner that it is difficult to tell where the repair was made.

There seems to be no doubt in the minds of several of the Councilmen that the business section should be provided with some kind of a permanent pavement, and the quicker it is done the better. They do not favor a continuance of macadam in the centre of the city, for they believe that it will always be unsatisfactory and will need repairing.

The block asphalt has advantages over the sheet material for the reason that it is not so hard for horses to travel over. This is one disadvantage with the sheet asphalt that has been experienced in other cities, and owners of horses are not in favor of this paving.

Plainfield appropriates many thousands of dollars evey year for streets, and it is the general opinion that it is about time that a permanent pavement is started, so that each year additions can be made to it, and thus the taxpayers will see something for their money.

CONGRESSMAN FOWLER'S HOME.

Will Build at Once One of the Most Costly Residences in New Jersey.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 15—Congressman Fowler has completed arrangements to build for himself the handsomest and costliest house ever erected in this section of the State. The house will be put up on the west side of Salem avenue, at its junction with North Broad street and the Boulevard, and will cost $75,000.

The structure will be 110 feet square, three stories high, and constructed of stone, Harvard brick and Carrara marble. The interior will be finished in the most elaborate manner of hard woods.

Congressman Fowler, who has great faith in Elizabeth, hopes to occupy his new and elegant house early next spring.

RECEIVED TWO SCALP WOUNDS.

Colored Man Thrown From a Car at Fanwood Station.

Benjamin Scott, aged 46 years, colored, was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon in the ambulance from Mallinson's drug store.

Scott was unloading a car at Fanwood earlier in the afternoon, when an engine pushing another car backed up and struck the car on which he was working.

The force of the two cars coming together threw Scott off the car and he received two scalp wounds and a general shaking up.

He was sent to this city on a passenger train and taken to the drug store from which place he was taken to the hospital. His injuries are not serious.

Death of a Young Man.

Fred Martin, a young man well-known in the borough, died at 11 o'clock last night at the home of his sister, 124 Duer street, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Martin was for a time employed at Dreyer's hotel, corner of Somerset street and Lincoln place. The deceased was about 22 years of age. He has been a member of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. for about one year. The funeral services will be held from the house Friday afternoon next at 2:30 o'clock, and the members of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will attend the services in a body. They will meet at the lodge rooms at 1:30 o'clock sharp.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store

PERPETUAL MOTION.

A Millburn Man Claims to Have Solved the Problem

Charles Prophenas, of Milburn, says he has solved the problem of perpetual motion. In his room in the Buckingham Hotel he has a queer-looking contrivance, about three feet long, two feet high and two feet wide. A shaft runs through the centre, supporting a series of cogs and mental bearings. Three wooden arms two feet long are balanced across the top of the grearing. From them the motion is to come. They are weighted on the ends, and so arranged that when one is straight across another is at an angle of forty-five degrees to the right and the third is at a similar angle to the left. A spool arrangement above these arms strikes each as it revolves and gives momentum. The inventor says he got his idea from a rocking chair. The machine has been protected by a caveat.

ASSESSOR'S BOOKS EXAMINED.

Few Changes Made By Borough Council in Mr. French's Books.

Mayor Smalley and the Borough Council met last evening with Assessor E. M. French and completed the work of examining the books of the assessor. The books were found to be very satisfactory and very few changes were made in the amounts. The borough tax rate cannot yet be ascertained until the County Board of Assessors meet and fix the county rate, but it is believed that the rate will not be much higher than at present.

Hank Frisbie's Pullets Gone.

Mail-Carrier Frisbie lost five valuable pullets Monday night about 12 o'clock. He was sitting in his bedroom partaking of his midnight meal, when his dog began barking. He called to the dog to keep quiet, which he did, thus giving the chicken thieves every opportunity to do their work. Frisbie discovered his loss in the morning when he went to feed the chickens. He now has his eagle-eye peeled hoping that he may find some trace of the robbers.

New Freight Transfer Station.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, August 15—The Central Railroad has built a new freight platform 600 feet long near Sixth street and will here transfer nearly all of the freight for the Newark and Long Branch divisions instead of at Jersey City as formerly. The railroad offices now at the Elizabethport docks will be removed to a two-story building at the western end of the platform. W. H. Bennett has been made general freight agent for Elizabeth, and will have charge of the freight business done in the city by the Central Railroad.

BOWLING LEAGUE WILL BE REVIVED.

Although Journal Trophy Has Been Won.

NOW ROSELLE'S PROPERTY.

SAME CLUBS WITH EXCEPTION OF ELIZABETH ARE EXPECTED.

No Move Taken as Yet But Park Club and Roselle Casinos are Anxious to Continue Good Times of Last Season and Will Soon Start Ball Rolling—Elizabeth Lost Interest in the League During Last Season.

It is rather early to think about bowling yet but the enthusiasts in the game in Union county are already beginning to wonder what the prospects are for an active season during the coming winter. The situation this winter will differ considerably from that of past seasons. The handsome trophy, presented by the Elizabeth Daily Journal, which has been battled for during the last three seasons, is no more a factor in bowling circles. Last winter the Roselle Casino team won the trophy for the third consecutive time, thereby becoming the permanent owners of the handsome cup.

During the competition for the cup the teams of this section, including the one from the Park Club, of this city, have been organized under the name of the Central Journal Bowling League. To the victor in the league tournament went the cup. The Elizabeth Journal has done much to encourage honest amateur sport in the county. The offering of the trophy was one of its many acts to advance legitimate sport. Last year The Journal seemed to take but little interest in the tournament, and there seems little chance of a new cup being offered by that paper.

The success of the last winter's contest and the good time furnished the contestants will probably result in the league being continued, if for only such a prize as the members are able to put up. The Park Club will be undoubtedly represented, as will the Westfield Club, the Roselle Casino and the Cranford Country Club. Elizabeth has been defeated so much, and interest has waned since the dissolution of the old Elizabeth A. C., that it is hardly probable that the county seat will be represented. Bayonne may possibly decide to remain in the league. The Park Club, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle are surely fixtures, and, even if the four teams are all there is in the league, an exciting contest is assured.

No move has yet been made toward the organizing of the league for the new season. It is too early yet. The Park Club and Roselle are both particularly anxious to see the organization continued, and will probably take the initiatory move that will start the ball rolling.

OUTING FOR CAMERA CLUB.

Kodak Fiends Arranging for a Pleasant Time Labor Day.

The outing committee of the Plainfield Camera Club is arranging an all day outing for the members and their friends on Labor Day, September 4th. The site chosen is Stanley, a little hamlet on the Passiac river just below New Providence. It is a delightful spot and offers many attractions, including boating and fishing, in addition to the opportunity to the owner of the camera.

The expedition will start from the Babcock building at 8:30 o'clock. If a sufficient number express a desire to go, arrangements will be made to have a stage. The road to Stanley are in excellent condition for wheeling or driving and the day offered will surely be a very enjoyable one.

FAMILY IS QUARANTINED

SAD PLIGHT OF LUTHER MORRIS, WIFE AND LITTLE GIRL.

Diphtheria Breaks Out After it was Supposed That the House Had Been Fumigated to Kill Germs of Disease.

Once more a quarantine has been placed on the home of Luther Morris, West Front street, due to the fact that contagious disease has seized Mr. and Mrs. Morris and their little girl. It was only a short time ago that the parents lost their nine-year-old son with diphtheria, as a result of the use of milk furnished by a man who had the disease in his home. After the death of the boy every precaution was taken to exterminate all germs of the disease, and the house was thoroughly fumigated by the Board of Health. Notwithstanding this the children were kept in the country for some time afterward, and not allowed to return home until it was thought to be perfectly safe for them.

On Monday last they returned. In a very short time symptoms of contagious disease appeared and at once an examination was made by physicians, and it was soon learned that the members of the family should be quarantined. This was done yesterday. The family has the heartfelt sympathy of the community and no doubt sufficient aid and assistance will be given to them.

AFTER HEALTH OFFICERS

WILLIAM ADDIS TO COMPLAIN OF NEW YORK STATE AUTHORITIES.

He Claims That They Have Acted In a Very Low Manner With Scarlet Fever Epedemic at Kenoza Lake, Sullivan County.

As soon as certain facts can be established, and there seem to be good reason to think that they will be, Health Inspector William Addis will bring action against the health authorities at Kenoza Lake, N. Y., where his son's daughter was taken ill with scarlet fever and died. It appears that Mr. Addis and wife and daughter went to Kenoza Lake to spend their vacation. While there Mr. Addis was taken ill with what afterward proved to be scarlet fever. The physicians at that place seemed unable to determine exactly what the disease was and finally pronounced it gastro-enteritis, but they affirmed that there was nothing contagious about it and they allowed him to leave Kenoza Lake and come home, while ill with scarlet fever.

Mr. Addis mingled with various people in his work and slept at Fire Headquarters. His continued illness led to an examination by local physicians and it was decided at once what he had and he was taken to his home and quarantined.

Soon afterward Mr. Addis received a telegram that his daughter was very ill with the same disease, gastro-enteritis, but there is every reason to believe she had scarlet fever. Before the telegram reached this city the little girl died and her remains were sent to this city in an ordinary casket, not hermetically sealed.

The son of W. J. Luckey, of Second street, is at the same place ill with the same disease. Mr. Addis has called the attention of the local and State health authorities to the matter and it is expected action will be brought against the authorities in Sullivan county, New York.

COLORED PEOPLE'S EXCURSION.

Sunday-Schools of Churches Spending the Day at Boynton Beach.

Seven cars simply heaped with dusky humanity rolled away from the North Avenue station at 8:10 o'clock this morning, bound for Boynton Beach. It was the annual outing of the Sunday-schools of the Calvary Baptist, the Filmore Baptist and the Mt. Zion A. M. E. churches. What a time there was before the excursion train started. In variagated costumes they swarmed about the platform in all the excitement and anticipation of the trip. When it was suggested that the train was about to start, there was a wild rush for the cars and the excursionists fell over each other in their anxiety not to get left.

POST TO ATTEND ENCAMPMENT.

Winfield Scott Members Will Probably Go in a Body.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G.A.R., is making preparations to go to Philadelphia next month to attend the annual National encampment of the organization. It is likely that the post will go in a body and there is some talk of taking a band of music along. The annual encampment of the Woman's Relief Corps will be held at the same time and the local members will probably go in a body. The encampments will be called on September 4th and continue for a few days.

EYLERISM CONDEMNED TO THE GOVERNOR.

State Charities Aid Association Takes Stand Against It.

HAS PROOF OF CRUELTY.

COMMUNICATION FROM D. P. HALL, CHAIRMAN OF REFORMATORY.

Denounces the Methods in Vogue at State Industrial School for Girls—Recommends Investigation and Change of Trustees—Has Sworn Testimony in Three Cases of Cruelty—Does Not Censure Governor.

The methods in vogue at the State Industrial School for Girls at Trenton have aroused much criticism. The press all over the State has been almost universal in condemning the methods of Mrs. Myrtle B. Eyler, the present superintendent. Now the State Charities Aid Association, through its committee on reformatories, has denounced the Eyler regime and asked the Governor that steps be taken to do away with the present government of the school. Yesterday David Prescott Hall, of Madison avenue, as chairman of the committee on reformatories, presented a communication of that effect to the Governor.

A Daily Press reporter called at the home of Mr. Hall last evening and interviewed him regarding the substance of the communication and the stand the State Charities Aid Association had taken in the matter.

The board of managers of the association, Mr. Hall said, had heard of the severe methods used in the Industrial School several months ago, and through its general secretary, Miss Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, quietly called the attention of Governor Voorhees to the situation there. The Governor visited the school and made some inquiries that it was hoped would prove effective. Then came the announcement of the injury of one of the girls so severe that she had to be taken to a hospital, which was immediately followed by a personal investigation by the Governor himself.

The board, Mr. Hall continued, had looked into the matter and in three distinct cases now held sworn affidavits regarding the cruelty of the superintendent. These cases were those that were exposed at the Governor's investigation.

There was no doubt in the minds of the members of the reformatories committee, he remarked, that the disciplinary methods of the superintendent were not the proper ones for the beneficial management of the school. As it was the duty of the association to call the attention of the Governor and proper authorities to any improper conditions in the State institutions, the communication to the Governor had been prepared to state how the association stood on the subject.

There was no intention, as some of the papers tried to make out, to censure the Governor. It was a moderate statement of facts, said Mr. Hall, every part of which could be backed up by sworn testimony that would hold good in a court of law. The State Charities' Aid Association had too much at stake to enter into any such affair without being fully aware of the complete details to which it referred.

The members of Mr. Hall's committee are Thomas M. Gopsill, of Jersey City; Mrs. Isaac Weatherby, of Trenton, Dr. Laura H. Satterthwaite, of Trenton; D. M. Sawyer, of Montclair, and E. A. S. Lewis, of Hoboken. Dr. Satterthwaite was one of the physicians who examined the girls in the school and saw personally as to their condition. The other members of the committee have made no personal investigation.

The object of the communication, Mr. Hall explained, was to state exactly how the association stood and inform the Governor and the people of the State that the association believed in the charges brought against the management of the school and was prepared to sustain them with sworn affidavits in three particular cases at least.

Personally Mr. Hall said that he believed that the evil would soon be remedied. All the trustees but one have resigned, or have expressed a willingness to offer their resignation. This, he believed, would be the solution of the trouble. The Governor would then appoint a new board of trustees, and he didn't believe that it would be very long after that before Mrs. Eyler would lose her position as superintendent.

Regarding the object of the association in such cases and its belief and recommendations in this particular case, the communication to the Governor states.

"The New Jersey State Charities Association believe in the gravity of the charges which have been brought against the school, and is prepared to take part, if desired, in bringing about a thorough investigation, the results of which they trust will be the prevention in the future of the acts which to the minds of our members have brought discredit upon the charitable and reformatory methods in vogue in New Jersey as well as upon the fair name of our State. We may add that no investigation which shall not have this result will be satisfactory to our association, or consistent with its honorable record in the past.

"Our association is of the opinion, founded upon evidence satisfactory to its members, that the condition of affairs which now exists and has existed for some time past in the State Industrial School for Girls, is one which calls for the resignation or removal of the trustees of that institution and the appointment of the new board, in which there shall not exist, to phrase it mildly, the present division of sentiment between the members of the board. Such a pulling apart of itself alone in our opinion is a sufficient reason why the present members should resign and give place to a new board in which united counsels may prevails."

CLAMBAKE ON MOUNT.

ADVANCEMENT ASSOCIATION'S OUTING TO BE ON THE DRIVE.

Gov. Voorhees and Prominent Citizens From Other Cities Will be Invited—Object is to Boom Progressive Plainfield.

The principal business transacted by the Plainfield Advancement Association at last night's meeting was with respect to a clambake to be held Wednesday afternoon, August 30th. Mayor Smalley was present together with a number of representative citizens who are members of the association.

It has been decided to hold the clambake on Johnston's Drive near the spring. This is a delightful place for an affair of this kind. Mayor Smalley said that he expected that fully 150 invitations would be sent to prominent citizens in this city and North Plainfield, and he trusted that a number of out-of-town gentlemen would be invited. The purpose of the clambake, he said, was something more than to have a good time—it was for the purpose of bringing before the public, and particularly the non-residents, the advantages of Plainfield as a business and residential city. He suggested that the members invite as many representative people from other cities as they choose—the more the better.

Secretary Martine suggested that the members of the press from other cities be invited. The suggestion to invite the members of the press of other cities was received with much favor.

Mr. Martine said that he should send an invitation to Gov. Voorhees and there was a strong possibility that he would grace the occasion by his presence. The Mayor impressed it upon the members the importance of securing the attendance of as many gentlemen from outside the city as possible, that they may be impressed with the advantages offered by Plainfield as a place of residence.

Tickets for the clambake will be on sale by the members of the association, and they can also be found at the drug store of Frank Bowley, on West Front street. Those who wish to become members can find the book enrollment there.

The bake will be held at about 1 o'clock. Stages will meet the members and their friends at the end of the trolley line and convey them to the scene of festivities. There will be a sufficient number of stages on hand to carry all who will come to the place of rendezvous.

The bake is to be no inferior affair. There will be hundreds of clams and other refreshments with which to regale the inner man. As Mr. Martine very facetiously remarked, "the way to reach a man's heart was through his stomach."

Send in Your Old Magazines.

The committee in charge of the euchre party held at the Hotel Hunterston on August 10th, would be glad to receive donations of magazines or other reading matter to be sent in their box to the soldiers at Manila. Contributions will be received at the hotel until Monday next. Mark packages "Book Committee."

A Public Baptism.

For the first time in many years public baptism in a stream of water in this city will take place next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in Green brook, near Water street, when Rev. Mr. Foster, of the Second Christian church, will immerse four candidates.

MORTIMER NEED NOT PAY HIS CREDITORS.

Court Decides Collections Cannot Be Made From Trust Fund.

DEBTS AS PROOF OF NEED.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK CANNOT ENFORCE ITS CLAIM.

Mortimer's Creditors Got the Former to Make a Note for $5,000, Which They All Indorsed, the Proceeds Being Used to Wipe Out His Debts—The Bank Had Power of Attorney.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, August 16—Judge Russell, of the Supreme Court of New York, has refused to interfere with the trust fund of $50,000 set apart for John Mortimer, formerly of Plainfield, under the will of his mother, Frances Russell Mortimer, or with the income derived from it, although some of the young man's creditors contended that the income was more than sufficient for his needs, and that the surplus, or a portion of the principal, should be used in payment of his debts.

Mr. Mortimer is at present a resident of Brooklyn. He has a wife and three children. His mother died in April, 1894, leaving a large estate, divided into four parts, one being placed in the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, the income to be applied to the benefit of her son John, and upon his death the principal to be conveyed to his issue unless he otherwise directed by will. The income of the fund is $2,400 a year. Some of his creditors insisted that he was living extravagantly, and should curtail his expenses so that there might be a surplus of his income to be devoted to the payment of his debts.

Among his creditors is the Firs National Bank, of Plainfield, for about $5,000 on notes for money advanced to Mortimer. He at one time hoped to reduce the amount of his debts by giving the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company a power of attorney to apply $1,500 annually towards these claims, thinking he might be able to live on $900 a year. He soon discovered that this was impossible, and when he was in actual want for the necessities of life for himself and his family was compelled to apply to the court for redress, and cancelled the agreement.

The First National Bank, of Plainfield, brought suit to have its claim made a lien upon the trust fund or its income, but Judge Russell dismisses the complaint. Speaking of Mrs. Mortimer's disposition of her property, Judge Russell says the statutory law has recognized the wisdom of allowing a father or mother to provide for a son or daughter so that they shall get an assured income during life, and the old rule of common law that this is subject to the claims of creditors is now abolished.

He says $2,400 a year is a very limited income for one brought up to luxury, and perhaps expensive habits, and, considering the exigencies of life, the requirements of social obligations, the right to consider the claims of charity and benevolence, in addition to expenses necessarily incurred to clothe the body and feed it and afford a narrow education to the children, it is utterly impossible for a court to draw with any degree of accuracy a line of the limit of the proper expenditures for living which shall place any portion of this income beyond the boundary.

That, without evidence of extravagant expenditures, debts have incurred beyond the income, he says, well illustrates the difficulty of a decision by the Court that the income of the trust fund is so large as to justify placing its forcible hand upon the surplus and handing it to creditors who have trusted the recipient of the income with proper opportunity of knowing what his legal claims to property were.

The conpact entered into between Mortimer and the First National Bank was one of the most unusual methods for collecting money ever devised in New Jersey.

For several years Mortimer resided in this city, where he became heavily involved in debt with local merchants. Unable to collect their bills from Mortimer, a number of his creditors prevailed upon Mortimer to raise a note for $5,000 The creditors then endorsed the note and the bank agreed to discount it if given the power of attorney to collect $1,500 of his annual income until note was paid. Mortimer agreed to do this when pressed by his creditors, and the bank advanced the money, which was divided among the interested creditors.

Subsequently Mortimer moved to

BIG TOOL COMPANY ELECT

AN $8,000,000 COMBINATION HAVE CHOSEN THEIR OFFICERS.

R. C. McKinney, of Hamilton, Ohio, Chosen President of the Concern—A. C. Stebbins is a Vice-president.

The Niles-Bement-Pond Company organized at Trenton, Monday, at which time articles of incorporation were filed which consolidates the interests of the biggest tool manufacturers in this country, as stated in yesterday's Press, held a meeting yesterday afternoon and elected officers as follows: President, R. C. McKinney, Hamilton, O.; first vice-president, James K. Cullen, Hamilton, O.; second vice-president, A. C. Stebbins, Plainfield; third vice-president, Walter L. Clark; treasurer, Charles L. Cornell; secretary, E. M. C. Davis, all of New York.

The Pond Tool Company, of his city, is in the combination which, it is stated at their office, is no new thing. They say that the present regime has been in force for a year, and that the consolidation is simply to bring together the interests of all these concerns. There will be one agency for the big concern probably at 136 Broadway, New York, and all other agencies will be abolished and a saving of a great deal of money will result.

CARRIAGE OVERTURNED

LEWIS B. CODDINGTON BLAMES L. M. FRENCH'S COACHMAN.

Says the Latter Was Careless in His Driving—Mr. Coddington Was Thrown Under Vehicle and Somewhat Bruised.

Lewis B. Coddington, accompanied by his wife, was driving into town about 8 o'clock this morning, when he came into collision with a business wagon belonging to L. M. French and in charge of the latter's coachman. Mr. Coddington was riding in a surrey. He claims that when on Leland avenue, between the railroad and North avenue, the driver of Mr. French's conveyance ran into him. Coddington's wagon was upset and he was thrown beneath the wreck. Mrs. Coddington jumped from the surrey when the vehicles came together and escaped serious injury. Mr. Coddington was bruised somewhat about the shoulders.

His carriage was completely wrecked. The horse took fright and ran back toward home. Mr. Coddington told a Daily Press reporter that the accident was due to the carelessness of Mr. French's driver, who, he maintains, deliberately ran into him. After the accident the man drove on, not stopping to ascertain the result of Mr. Coddington's injuries.

Mr. Coddington says he will begin an action against Mr. French's coachman to recover damages. He has placed the matters in the hands of a Plainfield lawyer.

MISS COLLIER TO STUDY MEDICINE.

High School Graduates Will Become a Fair M. D. Some Day.

The many friends of Miss Mary Evans Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Collier, of East Sixth street, will be surprised and pleased to learn of her recent success and determination. Miss Collier graduated last June from the Plainfield High School and decided to take up the study of medicine. Before she could enter a college in New York she was obliged to secure from the Regent of the University of the State of New York a certificate to the effect that satisfactory evidence had been produced that she had completed her course of studies in this city. This she has just received and on October 4th next she will enter the New York Medical College, a woman's institution in New York city, and will take the four years' course.

Miss Collier's ambition is to become a physician and her friends will all join in wishing her success in her undertaking. She has talents which will be of great benefit to her in her studies and profession and will no doubt complete the course with honor and credit.

Ethan Lapphear an Author.

Ethan Lapphear has published a second book since he was 81 years of age, entitled "Observations of Religious Practices and Preaching for Eighty-one Years on Various Subjects That Are Detrimental to Christ's Church." It is a book of 49 chapters and 304 pages. He proposes to give every pastor of a church in our city one by the asking for it, including North Plainfield and the bordering towns of the city.

Edward Petrie, of Bridgeport, Conn., is spending a pleasant vacation with his mother on East Sixth street.

—Peaches for canning or table use to the number of 75 baskets will be the attraction at a special sale at Neuman Brothers, Watchung avenue, tomorrow.

AN HONORABLE FIRM SUSPENDS BUSINESS.

VanEmburgh & Son Assigns For Benefit of Creditors,

TO PAY DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR

FORMER JUDGE W. R. CODINGTON NAMED AS ASSIGNEE.

This Action Taken Now While All the Creditors Will be Able to Secure Full Payment of Their Bills—No Preferred Creditors—Goods to be Inventoried and Then Closed Out for What They Bring.

One of the oldest, if not the oldest, and best known dry goods firms in this section, yesterday assigned to W. R. Codington in trust for the benefit of their creditors. G. L. VanEmburgh, the senior member of the firm, has been in the dry goods business in this city for 20 years or so. The firm have long ago established a reputation as reliable merchants and have maintained that reputation to the present time.

Business, however, has been such during two or three years past that it was impossible for the firm to longer continue without a sacrifice to the injury both of the firm and their creditors, and sooner than continue under such circumstances the firm considered it more honorable to discontinue and pay their creditors while they had something to pay with, rather than continue a losing business.

The store will remain closed for a few days for the purpose of enabling the assignee to inventory the stock. It will then be opened and the goods sold for such prices as can be obtained. The stock is in first-class order and up-to-date, and it is expected that the creditors will be paid 100 cents on the dollar. The firm have not preferred any creditors, and the stock is free and clear of encumbrance.

The public will regret to learn of the failure of this well-known house, and it is hoped that they may see their way clear to some day in the future again resume business.

WANTED A SURE COUNT.

Water Company Superintendent Bothered Street Railway Construction.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 16—The work on the construction of the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company's line through Westfield was temporarily stopped yesterday afternoon, owing to the action of Thomas Doud, of Plainfield, superintendent of the Union Water Company. The railway employes were securing water from one of the hydrants of the water company on Broad street for the purpose of wetting down the street where macadamizing was being replaced, when Doud stopped the proceedings by demanding that the company station a man at the hydrant to count the loads of water, which were to be paid for at the rate of ten cents a load. A. A. Gaddis, representing the company, tried to arrange matters with Doud, but was unable to, and the work was suspended until Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, president of the water company, could be communicated with. He ordered that the railway company be allowed to take all the water that they needed.

COULDN'T PROVE COCK FIGHTS.

Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals' Case Came to a Fiasco.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 16.—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals met with defeat yesterday when it tried to convict John L. Titus, of Linden, of partitipating in a cock fight in a hotel in that town. Sebastin Petrie, a Spaniard, was the only witness for the prosecution. He swore he saw the cock fight through the transom of a door, but a number of other witnesses rebutted the evidence and the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. There are four other persons charged with being in the same fight, but the outcome of Titus' case will probably end the prosecution.

NEW CENTRAL OFFICIAL.

Charles Register Appointed Superintendent of Bridge Construction.

The position as superintendent of bridge construction on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, recently vacated by R. J. Swackhamer, of Dunellen, who held the same for many years, has been filled by the appointment of Charles J. Register, of Wilmington, Del., who has now fully entered upon his duties. Mr. Register has his office in Jersey City. It is understood that he has had a large experience in bridge work and is well fitted for his new position.

THEIR PLOT WAS FOILED.

Attack on M. Labori Only the Tail End of What Was Planned For Rennis.

WAS FOR REVOLUTION.

Conspirators Were to Have Made Bonfires in the Street of Dreyfusite Newspapers.

Troops to Have Been Called Out to Aid in the Revolutionary Movement—Guerin Defies the French Police—Labori's Condition Somewhat Improved.

Rennes, France, Aug. 16.—The man who actually fired the shot that wounded M. Labori, it appears, was only one part of the machinery of the conspirators. In spite of the extensive search made for the would-be assassin he is still at large, and the impression is gaining ground that he is being aided by the anti-Dreyfus country people, who are concealing him somewhere.

Labori Is Improving.

Rennes, France, Aug. 16.—Maitre Labori of counsel for Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, who was shot in the back of the neck from ambush, is somewhat better. He suffered great agony during the night. The attending physicians have not tried to probe the wound.

The Matin makes the announcement that Maitre Labori, after he was shot, declared, as the outcome of his injury appeared doubtful, that he wished to make known the fact that M. Chamoin, who has charge of the secret documents in the Dreyfus case, has discovered a new forgery in the dossier.

Tail End of the Storm.

London, Aug. 16.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Paris says that the attack on M. Labori was only the tail of the storm which would have swept over Rennes had the plot that was hatched in Paris succeeded.

The plot was no laughing matter. It was to have ripened into revolutionary demonstrations on the boulevards on Sunday. The conspirators were to make bonfires of the Dreyfusite newspapers in the streets and burn the kiosks where they were sold. This would have resulted in the calling out of the troops. The latter, however, were to reverse arms and refuse to act. After this some cavalry were to help the movement.

Telephone messages were to be sent to different points where members of the League of Patriots were assembled. They were to rush to the Republican and Socialist newspaper offices, seize their staff and hold them prisoners. Simultaneous rushes were to be made on the Palace of the Elysee, and the Ministeries of the Interior and Posts and Telegraphs, when news would have been wired to the provinces that Paris had revolted. A War Minister nominated by the Duke of Orleans was to replace Gen. de Galliffet.

The conspirators are arrested.

Defies French Authorities.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The Assistant Chief of Detectives went to the house of M. Guerin, President of the Anti-Semite League, with a warrant for his arrest. He rang the bell several times, and dow, but refused to open the door, saying finally M. Guerin appeared at a wining:

"If you want me come and take me."

Thereupon the detective withdrew, M. Guerin calling after him:

"You want me to fight; well, we will fight. Permit me to say to you, you are doing very dirty business."

Then, turning to his friends, he exclaimed loudly:

"Come, comrades, let us die. They will only take me dead."

Some of the spectators of the scene shouted, "Vive Guerin."

The order for Jules Guerin's arrest was issued. As the charge is of a political character, from the moment the order was served to him the accused, not complying, is in a state of rebellion, and consequently the penalty of the rebellion, which is hard labor, is applicable to him and his accomplices. Homicide penetrated by a culprit while in a state of rebellion is punishable with death.

The Perot Case Closed.

London, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Perot came into court ecompanied by her sister and daughter and her sureties, Sir Charles Evan-Smith and Capt. Blood. Mr. Lawrence represented the accused. Mr. Newton Crane, counsel for the prosecution, after consultation with Mr. Lawrence, applied for an adjournment for a week, the United States Embassy offering no objection. Mr. Lawrence agreed to this. The parties have now agreed that the child, Gladys Perot be returned to her grandfather under a writ of habeas corpus, and that the extradition proceedings shall not be proceeded with.

The Jersey Lily Married.

London, Aug. 16.—The London Phoenix says that Mrs. Langtry was married in the island of Jersey on July 27 to Hugo Gerald De Bathe, son of Sir Henry Percival De Bathe. The ceremony was strictly private. The paper asserts that the bride received the congratulations of the Prince of Wales, and adds that the marriage will not interfere with the production of Sydney Grundy's new play at the Haymarket Theatre, in which Mrs. Langtry was announced to appear.

Death Roll in Cuba.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Gen. Brooke cables the following death report in Cuba:

"Pinar Del Rio, Aug. 15.

"Sergt. Charles R. Peck, B, first infantry, typhoid; Holguin; Malvin Arrington, I, tenth cavalry, Aug. 10, pneumonia.

Fatal Explosion in English Colliery

London, Aug. 16.—An explosion occurred in a colliery at Durham. Two men were killed and seven others seriously injured.

WITHDRAWS FROM CASE

New Feature in New Jersey Industrial School Scandal.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 16.—John H. Backs, counsel for ex-Trustee Fitzgibbons of the Industrial School for Girls, has withdrawn from the case. Governor Voorhees has received a letter from him stating that such was his intention, and that as his client Mr. Fitzgibbons had resigned from the management of the school, there was nothing left for him to do in the case save withdraw. This practically ends the investigation begun weeks ago by the governor into the conduct of the institution. Mr. Back's clients were instrumental in having the matter brought to the attention of the governor and acted as an assistant in the investigation.

Governor Voorhees now says that he will appoint a new board of trustees as soon as all of the three remaining members of the old board resign. The three are Aaron Carter, Dr. Meddock and Managing Trustee E. R. Cook. The latter has told the governor that he is sure that the other two will resign within a few days. The only man then in the way of the governor's plans will be Cook himself, and it is generally understood here that he will undoubtedly be asked to resign his managing trusteeship.

To Save Former Slave.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—William E. Belt, a lawyer of this city, has gone to Frederick, Md., to try to save the life of John Alfred Brown, who was a slave boy owned by Mr. Belt's father before the war of the rebellion. Brown was convicted of murder on the confession of another negro, who charged that Brown helped him kill an aged man and wife for their money. The other negro, who was not released for turning state's evidence as he expected, said after the trial that his testimoney in regard to Brown was false. Brown was the son of the negro nurse who had charge of Mr. Belt in his infancy, and, being of the same age as Mr. Belt, was his playmate till the war broke up the family. Mr. Belt will try to lay proof of an alibi before the judge.

Murderer Surrenders.

Middlesbury, Vt., Aug. 16.—Fred E. Eastward, of Greenfield, N. J., who shot and instantly killed Frank Fenn, his brother-in-law and attempted to murder Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. Marietta Brown, Mrs. Frank Fenn and Edgar C. Brown at East Middlesbury, has surrendered himself to Deputy-Sheriff William Cobb. Before the man gave himself up he attempted to commit suicide by shooting through the heart, but he probably will recover. Mrs. Eastwood is the only one whose injuries are dangerous. Drink and family troubles are said to have led to the tragedy.

Big Sale of Tobacco Leaf.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 16.—A deal in tobacco that creates a new record in the leaf tobacco world has been closed here. The transaction is a body blow to Kentucky, as that state has heretofore virtually controlled the leaf tobacco market. The tobacco is to be shipped at once. This sale effects an exchange of 25,000 cases of leaf tobacco, valued at about $1,000,000. The purchase was made by the American Tobacco Co., of New York, and considerably more than half of the whole amount is Wisconsin leaf distributed in warehouses throughout the state.

A Robber Army.

Canton, Aug. 16.—Five hundred soldiers were surounded at Cotkon, on the Wert River, by 10,000 robbers, and a desperate fight occurred, ending in a victory for the robbers, who have hoisted their flags upon all commanding points and occupies the villages in the vicinity. Two hundred and fifty soldiers were killed and 100 wounded. Two thousand more troops have left Canton.

Transvaal Inquiry.

London, Aug. 16.—A cable dispatch from Cape Town says that forty members of the Cape Assembly joined in sending a telegram to President Kruger, urging him to accept the proposal for a joint commission to inquire into the differences between the Boers and the Uitlanders. This disposes of the rumors that the Cape Ministry had counselled resistance to the Boers.

Many Lost on the Resolute.

London, Aug. 16.—A despatch from Calcutta says that the surveying steamer Resolute, which was sunk in collision with the British India Company's steamship Scindia, had on board half a dozen European officers and a crew of sixty natives. Three of the officers and a few of the natives were saved.

Greenport Boat Builder Dead.

Greenport, L. I., Aug. 16.—Charles T. Jackson dropped dead on the front porch of his house on Bay avenue. Mr. Jackson was a well known boat builder, having built many swift boats for New York and Brooklyn men.

London to Aid Hurricane Sufferers.

London, Aug. 16.—It is understood that the Lord Mayor will open a fund at the Mansion House for the relief of the sufferers by the West Indies hurricane. The fund will be started immediately.

Lightning's Picture on a Man.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Lightning has printed the clear picture of a tree with branches, leaves and twigs clearly marked, on the back of Charles Ward, who was struck and rendered unconscious.

Scotch Steel for America.

London, Aug. 16.—The Pall Mall Gazette, noting the American inquiries for Scotch steel, says the Lankashire firm has been given an order for 10,000 tons for shipment to the United States.

Senator Hayward Ill.

Omaha, Aug. 16.—It is reported here that U. S. Senator Hayward was stricken with apoplexy at Brownsville. He was delivering an address at a Grand Army reunion.

Judge Hilton Very Weak.

Saratoga, Aug. 16.—Judge Hilton had a sinking spell yesterday, and was unconscious for some time, but rallied, and is resting comparatively easy.

ROUT WAS A MASSACRE.

Government Forces do Some Hard Fighting With San Domingo Insurgents.

REBEL FORCES BEATEN.

Many Men on Both Sides Are Wounded in the Bitterly Contested Engagement.

The Battle Considered by the Government as Decisively Ending the Jiminez Uprising—The Dominicans Declare in Favor of Use of American Money.

Puerto Plata, San Domingo, Aug. 15.—The Government forces commanded by Gen. Escoboza have defeated the insurgents. The rout was almost a massacre.

The wounded on both sides are numerous. The engagement is considered by the Government as decisively ending the Jiminez uprising.

It is believed here that the winning of this decisive battle by the government troops will cause a great change in the revolutionary sentiment that had gained considerable strength and had been growing rapidly during the past two or three weeks. The government, it is thought, will now have no trouble in coping successfully with the uprising and put an end to the difficulties at a very early date.

Garcia, it is said, has decided not to take any part in the revolution and will not command the revolutionary forces as had been expected. There will probably be very little, if any more, fighting done as the defeat of the insurgents has completely demoralized and scattered them.

The Government plan for the gradual withdrawal of paper money from circulation has established confidence. Short-term bills of exchange on Europe sell for 300 per cent. silver.

The Dominicans, almost without exception, are for the use of American money.

Yaqui Revolt Crushed.

Guaymas, Mex., Aug. 16.—Military operations in the Yaqui Valley culminated on Tuesday in a series of engagements and the final rout and dispersal of the Indians. The Yaquis in rebellion had concentrated their forces at Vicam, on the south bank. Gen. Torres began offensive operations on Monday. After a sharp engagement the Indians fled, leaving thirty dead on the field. The Mexican loss was ten killed and twenty-two wounded. The troops dislodged the Yaquis and killed four. Five of the Twelfth Battalion and one man of the National Guard were wounded.

Executives Talk War.

Pretoria, Aug. 16.—The Executive Council concluded its session, when orders were issued to the field cornets to give out Mauser rifles in exchange for Martini-Henry rifles. A great crowd gathered to receive the arms. The possibility of war with Great Brittain is about the only subject discussed, and it is generally felt the burghers should be considered before extreme measures are adopted.

Syndicate to Buy Trolley Road.

Chattanooga, Aug. 16.—A syndicate of Chicago capitalists has been organized for the purpose of purchasing the lines of the Chattanooga Electric Street Railway company. T. S. Mordaunt, general manager of the Vicksburg, Miss. lines, is engineering the deal. An option for thirty days has been given the syndicate on the properties. A deal had been planned with the Hambleton syndicate of Baltimore, but before the money was paid over a hitch occurred. This deal includes all the Lookout Mountain lines.

To Open the Ohio Campaign.

Akron, O., Aug. 16.—Arrangements are already under way here to make the opening of the Ohio campaign in this city on Sept. 23 a memorable event. Gov. Roosevelt and Judge George K. Nash, the Republican Gubernatorial nominee, will be the speakers. Gov. Roosevelt's address will doubtless deal largely with national issues, and it is to be expected that he will make a semi-official explanation and outline of the Administration's Philippine policy. The address of Judge Nash naturally will be devoted chiefly to state issues.

The Vigilancia Overdue.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Ward Line steamship Vigilancia, which left the foot of Wall street last Wednesday afternoon with about fifty passengers, bound for Havana, is forty-eight hours overdue. No anxiety is expressed at her agents' office in this city, they saying that she undoubtedly encountered some storm which has detained her.

Gen. Longstreet Visits U. S. Grant.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 16.—Gen. James Longstreet, United States commissioner of railroads, is the guest here of U. S. Grant. He will go to Sacramento, and from there will return to the east. He has completed his tour of inspection of the government-aided railroads.

Wheat Yield in Northwest.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The Minneapolis "Journal," in its annual estimate of the wheat crop of the northwest, gives 200,000,000 bushels as the probable wheat yield. That is 25,000,000 bushels less than last year. Hailstorms are responsible for considerable loss.

Found no Trace of Andree.

Tromsoe, Aug. 16.—Capt. Nassme of the fishing vessel Cecilia, which has just arrived here, reports having met the Natorst expedition, which was fitted out by King Oscar of Sweden to search for Andree, at Sabine Island, 73 degrees North. Nathorst had found no trace of Andree.

Mauna Loa Sleeps.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 16.—Advices from Honolulu say that the volcanic action of Mauna Loa has entirely ceased.

SAYS HE SWORE FALSELY

Acknowledgment of Perjured Evidence in Trolley Accident Case.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 16.—In the inquiry into the trolley disaster court opened with a sensation in the reversal of the testimony of William Kelly, who, at the opening of the inquiry, stated that he was on the fated car and jumped from the running board to the bottom of the pond.

Kelly when recalled to the stand admitted that he had perjured himself. He was not on the car, but in a carriage with two friends and ran into the mud after the car fell to help take the victims from the wreck.

Kelly was immediately placed under arrest and will be proceeded aganist on the charge of perjury. His testimony subsequently had been the only bit to show that the fated car was running at a safe rate of speed. Kelly gives no reason why he lied.

Frederick C. Beach, editor of the Scientific American, who is summering in stratford, was called as an expert witness.

"If the guard rail had been higher or had been lined with iron the accident could not have happened," said Mr. Beach. "The guard rail should be," continued the witness, "two inches higher than the rail on which the car wheels run. The car must have been going at a high rate of speed."

Insane Over the Columbia.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Driven to despair by the fear that she would lose a million dollars, which she imagines she has bet on the cup defender Columbia, Mrs. Jane Coleman became violently insane and it took five policemen to carry and drag her to a cell in the police station. She is thirty years old and the wife of a railroad brakeman, and lives at No. 303 East Third setreet, this city. She has read everything published about the racing yachts since the keel of the Columbia was laid, and a short time ago when she read that the new steel mast of the yacht had broken she first displayed the symptoms of her malady.

Stock Brokers in Trouble.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Stock brokers and bucket shop operators in the northern district of Greater New York, who have been "holding out" on the Federal Government taxes under the war revenue tax law, which will amount to something over a quarter of a million dollars, are to be brought up with a round turn by the Federal authorities. Revenue inspectors are at work, nd have been for some time, on the books of the various stock broker's offices. As a result of their research they have presented some heavy claims and an effort will be made to collect them.

Three Killed by a Train.

Warnersville, Pa., Aug. 16.—The eastbound express of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway struck a double-seated carriage, containing Frank Hassler and two sisters named Fleishmann, of Harrisburg, killing all three instantly. Mr. Hassler was proprietor of the Highland House, a mountain resort. He was conveying the Fleishmann girls to the station, where they intended to take the train for Harrisburg.

Bogus Draft in Havana.

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 16.—Local papers have been publishing rumors regarding heavy forgeries, the amounts involved varying from $4,000 to $40,000. General Adna R. Chaffee, Chief of the Governor General's Staff, denies the reports, but admits that a fraudulent request was made for $4,000 for the President, Lieutenant-Col. Montalvo, administrator of the Presidio, declared he knew nothing of it.

Epidemic Calls For Slaughter.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 16.—Alarmed by the persistent spread of smallpox, the Board of Health has decided to kill all cats and dogs found in infected houses, to prevent the pet animals distributing the germs in the neighborhood. One Health officer killed thirty dogs in one day. The carcasses are carefully gathered up and burned after the animals slain.

Wire Cut Off His Right Leg.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 16.—Joseph W. Moody, forty-five years old, an employe of the Trenton Iron Company, had his right leg severed above the knee while at work in the rolling department of the mill. Moody was at work receiving hot wire from a ground roll, when the wire slipped from his tools and wound around his legs.

Summer Hotel Burned.

Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Fire was discovered in the kitchen at the Senaca Point Hotel, on Canandaigua Lake. As there was no means of fighting the flames the building was destroyed. The hotel was rebuilt only a few years ago and was valued at $65,000. Many guests lost their personal effects.

San Francisco Postoffice Receipts.

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—The gross receipts of the San Francisco Postoffice for the fiscal year June 30 were $1,002,470, as against $920,337 for the year 1897-1898. It is the first time in the history of the office that the million dollar mark has been reached.

Climbed a Hill Kneeling.

Milwaukee, Aug. 16.—Holy Hill was visited by hundreds of Catholic invalids on the annual Assumption feast. The Hill was ascended by these invalids on their knees, and miraculous healing is expected.

Broker Dies in Street Car.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Joseph H. Jukes, sixty-one years old, a real estate and insurance broker of No. 394 Cumberland street, Brooklyn, died suddenly in a Fulton street trolley car, supposedly from heart failure.

Admiral Dewey Still Indisposed.

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 16.—Admiral Dewey is still indisposed. The departure of the American admiral for Florence has been postponed.

The Paris at Milford Haven.

Milford Haven, Aug. 16.—The American Line steamship Paris has arrived here from Falmouth in order to be docked for repairs.

NEARLY GORED TO DEATH.

Farm Hand Seriously Injured Near Mount Holley, N. J.

Mount Holly, N. J., Aug. 16.—Levi J. Brenin, a farm hand, is lying in a farmhouse in Shairville, near here, in a serious condition, as a result of injuries received by being gored by an infuriated bull. With other farm hands he started to drive a herd of cows to the barns where they were to be milked. When the other men reached the barn they missed Brenin, and going back over the route they had come found him lying in a field where a vicious bull was trampling upon him. A battle ensued between the farm hands and the animal, and after a hard fight succeeded in driving him away and in rescuing Brenin, who appeared to be more dead than alive. He was carried to the farm house and physicians summoned. It was found that he had received a deep scalp wound several inches long, and that his spine was seriously injured. Specialists were summoned from Philadelphia, and it is hoped that his life may be saved. Paralysis has set in, and his limbs are now useless.

Catholics Cheer the President.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 16.—President McKinley left Hotel Champlain, and was driven down to the auditorium on the grounds of the Catholic Summer School. A triumphal arch of evergreens, interlaced with American flags, had been erected at the entrance to the grounds and the auditorium, and many of the cottages had been decorated with flags and bunting. As the resident entered the auditorium the spectators arose and sang a song composed for the occasion. The Rev. M. J. Lavelle, president of the school, then introduced President McKinley. When Father Lavelle predicted that "the many millions of people recently brought under our protectorate would make American citizens as loyal, as sturdy and as true as those that are here to-day" the audience cheered enthusiastically. The President's speech was listened to with marked attention throughout.

Reed May be a Candidate.

Philadelphia, Aug. 16.—The Times publishes the following special from Washington.

The latest rumor of Speaker Reed's intentions is that he is now satisfied that the campaign in the Philippines will not be brought to a successful close within the next few months, and that he intends, therefore, to take his seat in the House and head the anti-expansionist movement.

This course is to be taken, it is argued, for the purpose of securing the Presidential nomination in 1900 against Mr. McKinley.

Mr. Reed believes there is a strong latent sentiment among Republicans throughout the country against imperialism.

One Big Canal Bill.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16.—State Controller Morgan has given notice that he proposes to withhold payment of a bill of $133,731 presented by McDonald & Sayre, contractors, who had been employed in the work of improving the Erie Canal. The work was to be done on what is known as the middle division of the waterway. It is alleged by the Controller that in order to comply with the terms of the contract the employes of the firm hauled materials along two sides of a triangle so as to remove the material a distance of one thousand feet. This method of hauling supplies is alleged to have been wholly unnecessary.

Brooke Called to Consult Root.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Gen. Brooke will be called to Washington to consult with Secretary Root concerning affairs in Cuba. The Secretary desires to have the benefit of General Brooke's knowledge of the condition of things in the island before he reaches any definite conclusions as to a future policy for Cuba. No date has been fixed for General Brooke's visit, but it will be determined, no doubt, by the developments of the situation and before the Secretary begins his annual report to the President.

To Invite the President.

Pittsburg, Aug. 16.—A committee composed of Gov. William A. Stone, Robert Pitcairn and E. M. Bigelow, of this city, has gone to Plattsburg, N. Y., to ask President McKinley to be present in Pittsburg on the return of the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment from Manila. President McKinley has already expressed his desire to be here and to shake the hand of every member of the regiment.

Minister Commits Suicide.

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 16.—The Rev. George McArdle of Mechanicsville cut his throat in the presence of his wife. The minister had been brooding over a wrong that had been done to him some time ago, and this, in connection with financial difficulties, led him to commit the deed.

Starving Klondikers Rescued.

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—The steamer Albion has arrived here, fifteen days from Cape Nome. She reports that 100 people, men and women, without food or means, were picked up on the Kotzebue beach by the revenue cutter Bear and taken to St. Michaels.

Whittier Color Blind.

"Mr. Whittier greatly surprised me by confessing that he was quite color blind," says the Bookman. "He exemplified his condition by saying that if I came to Amesbury I should be scandalized by one of his carpets. It appeared that he was never permitted by the guardian goddess of his hearth to go 'shopping' for himself, but that once, being in Boston, and needing a carpet, he had ventured to go to a store and buy what he had thought to be a very nice, quiet article, precisely suited to adorn a Quaker home. When it arrived at Amesbury there was a universal shout of horror, for what had struck Mr. Whittier as a particularly soft combination of browns and grays proved, to normal eyes, to be a loud pattern of bright red roses on a field of the crudest cabbage green. When he had told me this, it was then easy to observe that the fulness and brilliancy of his wonderful eyes had something which was not entirely normal about them."

HOOKER STILL AGROUND.

All Efforts to Float the Big Transport Have Been Unsuccessful.

MAY BE A TOTAL WRECK.

The Warships Baltimore and Concord Try in Vain to Release the Stranded Vessel.

More Cavalrymen Ready to Sail for the Philippines—Soldier Supposed to Have Been Killed Comes Home Uninjured—Natural Wealth of the Philippine Islands.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, was at the Auditorium on his way back to Washington from his wastern trip. While on the Pacific coast Secretary Wilson learned something of the agricultural condition of the Philippines.

Mr. Wilson is an enthusiastic expansionist. He believes that the Philippine Islands can supply the United States with the tropical area needed. The islands he regards as perhaps the richest region in natural resources on the globe. What is required is the energy and science of an advanced race to develop them. Already they have figured valuably in the world's commerce. They have almost a monopoly of the hemp product and are renouned for their peculiar tobacco. The secretary thinks the dairy wealth of the islands may be greatly augmented and that the great extent of upland should furnish plenty of grazing land.

What Schurman Found.

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, President of the Philippine Commission, who arrived here on the China after being absent in the Orient since January, said he could not say anything about the islands before making his report to President McKinley. "As I said, however, to one of the great statesmen of Japan," he said, "after I had seen something of the Orient, it seems to me that the great question there is not Formosa nor the Philippines, but China. "To keep that huge empire intact is the great thing of overshadowing importance."

Cavalry en Route to Manila.

Seattle, Aug. 16.—Lieut.-Col. H. W. Wessel, Jr., in command of the third cavalry, arrived here last night. With him were the three remaining troops of the detachment.

Capt. Richard Chilcott, superintendent of the transport station, has reported to Capt. Robinson that the transport Garonne is ready for sea. She may sail with the cavalry on Thursday, Aug. 17, three days in advance of the expected date, as the quartermaster general had figured that the troops and horses would not arrive here in time to sail before Aug. 20.

Lieut. Morse Dies at Manila.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Gen. Otis has reported the death of Second Lieut. Joseph B. Morse, ninth infantry, of typhoid fever. Lieut. Morse was appointed May 1 this year. He was in Manila at the time of his appointment and was chosen from the first California heavy artillery.

Lieut. Morse was distantly related by marriage to President McKinley. The lieutenant married Miss Ida McKinley, daughter of David McKinley, the president's brother.

Lost Soldier Found.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 16.—A month ago a letter from Manila said that Ellis Rinehart of Maysville, a soldier in the regular army, had been captured and tortured to death by Filipinos. Rinehart walked into the office of a friend in this city. He was just returning home from the west and had not heard the story of his alleged death. He has not been in the Philippines, having been discharged for disability before his regiment sailed.

The Hooker a Wreck.

Manila, Aug. 16.—The United States warship Baltimore and Concord have made an unsuccessful attempt to tow off the United States transport Hooker (formerly the Panama), which grounded in the North Channel off Corregidor Island a week ago. It is now believed it is impossible to refloat her.

Transferred to the Trust.

Hamilton, O., Aug. 16.—Deeds have been filed in the Butler County recorder's office transferring the Harding Paper Company's plant to the American Writing Paper Company, the so-called paper trust. The nominal consideration was $100,000, but the revenue stamps attached show the actual value of the property to be $400,000. The mortage of the American Writing Paper Company to the Old Colony Trust Company for $17,000,000 was also filed in duplicate.

Probable Murder by Indians.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 16.—A special dispatch from Seattle says that the steam schooner Townsend, which went to Cape Nome, under charter of Captain D. Lane, the California millionaire, has returned. Its one passenger, Hugh Kennedy, of San Francisco, says L. W. Martis, of Santa Rosa, Cal., probably was murdered by the natives of the Noatak River, where Martis went on a prospecting trip.

More Shooting in Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 16.—James A. Ackman, a street-car conductor in the employ of the Big Consolidated Company, is under arrest on a charge of shooting a passenger. The conductor says he was insulted by the man, and that after some bantering the latter tried to throw him from the car. The conductor then drew his revolver and sent a bullet through Linkenberger's arm.

Nominated for Assembly.

Batavia, N. Y., Aug. 16.—E. N. Moulthrop of Stafford has been nominated for the assembly by the Democrats of Genesee County.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 20—Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m.

New Candidate for Sheriff.

The redoubtable Edward B. Kelley, of Summit, who is somewhat of a pooh-bah for that town, says he wants to be Sheriff of Union county, and he has chosen to elect himself a candidate for the nomination to that office on the Democratic county. The Summit gentleman announced his intentions in Elizabeth yesterday, where he hustled around in his usual lively manner seeking whom he might secure support from.

But as Jacob Glazer seems to have the first-call on Elizabeth's preferences for the Shrievalty Mr. Kelly did not meet with a very favorable reception at the county seat. However, there are other political fields to conquer in Union county and the Summit man will undoubtedly proceed to such work with a proper amount of energy.

A newspaper correspondent says that "Mr. Kelly bases his strongest claim to the nomination on the ground that heretofore Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway have had a monopoly of the county nominations, and now that Summit is a fullfledged city, it is entitled to recognition. Mr. Kelly claims he has assurance of support from Plainfield and the townships, and considers himself well qualified for the position."

If the correspondent represents Mr. Kelly in the true light, the Summit gentleman must be possessed of peculiar political reasoning and memory. When Plainfield has had any share of the Democratic nominations in Union county would tax the memory of the most devoted partisan in this city, and the assurances that Mr. Kelly has support in Plainfield is scarcely justified by a knowledge of the situation in Democratic ranks hereabouts.

ISABEL HATHAWAY, WHO EDUCATES DOGS.

One of the most unusual institutions in New York is the training school for dogs and monkeys, conducted by Miss Isabel Hathaway. This young woman educates her brute charges until they display intelligence that is almost human. Two trained Russian wolf hounds are shown with Miss Hathaway in the picture.

Permanent Pavement Best.

In all of Plainfield's experience with macadamized streets it has been a notable fact that whenever a thoroughfare was improved in this manner it at first had the appearance of being an elegant and permanent job, which seemed to please and afford satisfaction to all. But after a year or so of hard wear, as the business streets receive, there were numerous defects in the surface that made it imperative for additional expense in the way of repairs, and a consequent aggravation to teamsters and bicyclists, and a burden to taxpayers. In opposing the project of permanent pavement in the center of the city, believing that if the present macadaming of Park avenue below Fourth street is duplicated in the business center it will give satisfactory results, Mayor Rockfellow and the Councilmen who think the same as he does in regards to the matter should remember the experience of the city recounted above. With a year's hard wear in the center of the city, where the traffic is the heaviest, even so good a job as the Park avenue macadamizing would begin to show defects that permanent pavement would not exhibit for years.

New Jersey military men may yet have a chance to shine in actual warfare if the present trend of events is followed out, for Governor Voorhees has been called upon by the War Department to recommend the names of two officers from each of the four regiments of the New Jersey National Guard to be held in readiness in case of an emergency. The men must be young and have been in active service, and will no doubt, if called into the United States service, be given commissions as lieutenants. The Governor has not yet made any selections in response to the call.

The clam-bake arranged by the Plainfield Advancement Association ought to be the success for which its purpose is designed. The event will be held to bring about a co-mingling of the business men and influential citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield, where they may not only enjoy a pleasant time, but as well absorb some of the civic pride and enterprise which the association is trying to propogate and foster.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Capt. Jas. Parker, who led a squadron of the Fourth United States Cavalry into the town of Mateo, ten miles outside of Manila, Sunday, is a Jerseyman, and a native of Newark. He is a son of Cortlandt Parker, and a brother of Congressman R. Wayne Parker, who is at present Captain of the Essex Troop, a swell military organization of North Jersey. Capt. Parker is a graduate of West Point, and a few years ago was instructor of cavalry tactics there. During the war with Spain he was Lieutenant-Colonel of the Twelfth New York, and went with it to Cuba. He was for a time Military Governor of Mantanzas, and later occupied a similar position in the Province of Cardenas. He returned with the Twelfth to New York and two months ago was ordered to San Francisco and was soon off for the Philippines.

* * * * *

Hervey Doane, of West Fifth street, son of Chief Doane, made a strange discovery several weeks ago. He has been stopping on a farm near Feltville. One day, while watching some laborers digging a ditch, he noticed a strange looking implement that they unearthed. It was apparently of bone, a tusk or huge antler, and was cut to represent an Indian hammer or tomahawk with an oblong hole cut through it from side to side and an opening at the end. He brought it home and it was shown to G. M. Fountain, of West Front street, Plainfield's authority on such subjects. He had never seen anything of the kind before and was greatly puzzled over it. It is evidently some Indian relic as many arrow heads were found in the same place at that time. He is going to submit it to the authorities at the Museum of Natural History in New York and see if they have ever seen a similar one and can explain its use.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Luther Morris, of West Front street, is confined to his home with nervous prostration, and Mrs. Morris is also ill.

Mrs. A. K. Mattis, of Madison avenue, will celebrate the anniversary of her birthday Friday evening of this week.

J. W. Yates, of Seventh street, who is summering in Maine, and who has been slightly ill, is reported as much better.

G. M. Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, is home from Ocean Grove. His family will remain there for the rest of the month.

Mrs. Linderman, of Watchung avenue, is rapidly recovering after a successful operation performed at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Edward Connolly, of Richmond street, who was injured some time ago in Scott's Printing Press Works by having a large casting fall upon him, is rapidly improving, and will soon be able to resume his position as foreman of the foundry at the above works.

"Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before."

Already our store begins to take on a more sombre hue, due to the arrival of large quantities of new goods for the approaching Fall business, a sort of advance guard for the coming campaign. Business methods have been revolutionized in the last few years, and wideawake merchants must lay plans far ahead of each season, if their customers are to have the best of everything the market can furnish. For months we have been actively preparing for what we hope shall be the busiest season in the history of our constantly growing business. Many lines of goods have been carefully looked over, in some cases entirely rejected, from some only the choice things selected. Mill orders for Blankets, Underwear and sundry winter goods have been placed, and goods are being made before the grand rush, insuring better values.

We came to Plainfield to give its people an up-to-date store, and one that should be worthy of so fair a city. With your cordial support we are fast approaching our Ideal.

Fall Dress Suitings.

Double face plaid golf suiting will be almost universally worn Splendid, warm, durable and economical goods they are. Require no lining. We are showing some exceedingly choice patterns already, with many others to come as the mills are able to fill orders. Heavy Plaid Sackings also for Golf Capes. They make remarkably stylish garments and are not extravagantly expensive.

Black Crepons.

In our opinion no more beautiful goods were ever made from Mohair. Heavy, rich patterns, bright lustre, absolutely fast color elegant beyond description. The patterns we are showing were selected early and are the best obtainable. Prices 75c to $1.98, the last mentioned we will guarantee to be worth $2 50, or money will be refunded.

Black Goods.

Our line of Black Goods is always complete. Ladies who desire black goods should by all means see our goods. We have a special 46 in Black Henrietta at $1.00 per yard, that is exceptional value. French Serges, Broad Cloths, Cheviots, Cashmeres, Velours and Fancy weaves in variety.

Extreme Novelties in Colored Dress Goods we carefully avoid, but Broadcloths, Coverts, Cashmeres, Henriettas, Granite Cloths, Cheviots, Storm Serges, Diagonals, etc., we have in the best shades.

New Wash Goods.

Flanneletts. The very name is attractive, but the goods are far more so. Rich, warm colors, fine soft fabrics we predict for them a very large sale, certainly we know of nothing else so beautiful for inexpensive house dresses.

Outing Flannels.

more perfectly finished than ever, and too beautiful to describe. They are pre-eminently the goods for the masses, for everybody from the most humble to the grandest people use them.

About Table Linens.

The last large purchase of ours has served simply to whet the appetite of our people for more and has stimulated us to greater efforts along this line. Another large purchase of these goods includes 5 patterns of 70-in pure linen damask the actual value of which is 75c per yard. While they last we shall sell them at 50c per yard. We are not sure of being able to get more of the same. If interested BUY NOW. In the same purchase we secured 51 doz (all) Hemmed Huck Towels, 17 x 35. They are selling at 10 cents each They are worth 15 cents each. We show a line of Plaid Glass Towelings that rivals that of any we have seen

All Summer Goods including Shirt Waists, Crash Skirts, Pique Skirts, and wash goods in general are being shamefully sacrificed to get them out the way. We have no further use for them and need the room for newer goods.

Come in and get acquainted with us. This is your store as well as ours With your help we are going to make it an establishment that we may all be proud of.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug. 16.—Early last fall Edward Milligan, an employe of A. M. Griffin, of Plainfield, sold to Mrs. Mary Coriell, of the borough, a heating furnace which he had placed in a house on Prospect avenue owned and occupied by Mrs. Coriell. The price agreed upon was $25. Mrs. Coriell found that the heater did not give satisfaction and had not complied with the verbal agreement she had with Mr. Milligan, and she declined to pay him. H. C. Runyon, of Plainfield, was employed to bring suit to recover the amount alleged to be due. The action was tried yesterday afternoon before Justice Warden and a jury consisting of Frank Smalley, F. N. Gise, George Conover, Theodore Petitt, Israel W. Stout and Andrew Krauss. The amount demanded in the action was $50. S. S. Swackhamer, of Plainfield, looked after Mrs. Coriell's interests. Two witnesses testified that the furnace did not heat the house, although one of the witnesses of the defense said that the heater was of sufficient size to have done so. Both Mr. and Mrs. Henry, who had occupied the house last winter, swore that they had been compelled to burn two tons of coal a month to keep the house comfortable. The case was ably defended by both lawyers. The jury after being out about an hour found a verdict for the plaintiff for $30.

At the adjourned meeting of the Common Council Monday evening the principal business transacted was looking over the assessment books, and verifying them. In regard to a sidewalk on the east side of Lincoln avenue, from Front street to North avenue, the sidewalk committee moved the ordinance to its second reading. In regard to the Watchung Water Company the committee appointed at the last meeting to investigate the report that the company was about to supply the borough with water taken from the Green brook, the committee recommended that the borough do not accept any water from the said brook. It was also recommended by the committee that the water company be asked to have a reservoir or standpipe built near the mountains, and that the borough is not to accept the water until such reservoir or pipe is constructed.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 16—The young people of the Methodist church held a very pleasant sociable at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Whitenack Monday evening. The affair had been arranged as a pleasant surprise to their pastor, Rev. Mr. Woodruff, who has just returned from a month's vacation. Mr. Woodruff was called to his home in Dover Saturday evening by a telegram announcing the serious illness of his mother. This put a damper upon the plans of the young folks, but it was concluded to have the social, as arrangements for refreshments had been made. While the gay company were at the height of their pleasure in walked Mr. Woodruff, who had unexpectedly returned. It was hard to tell which was the most surprised, the pastor or his people, but both passed an evening together that will long be remembered by all.

The ladies who are obliged to use the trolley cars late Saturday and Sunday evenings are oftentimes shocked by the remarks which they are obliged to listen too from the rear seats. Some of the Plainfield element come into town, imbibe too much "liquid refreshments" and forget or don't care where they are and say anything and everything, all of which is obliged to be heard by the ladies who have been crowded into the rear seats. The conductors should make some effort to abate this nuisance and protect the ladies who are patronizing the road.

Rev. Mr. Lewis, who has been occupying the pulpit of the Methodist church during Mr. Woodruff's absence, left for his home in Philadelphia yesterday.

Miss Shaw, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Nancy Wade, has returned to her home in Jersey City. Miss Wade accompanied her.

Mrs. T. M. Paff Jr., has been entertaining her brother, Arthur Gere and his friend, Mr. Pickert, both of Brooklyn.

Summons has been issued in Judge Clark's court Miller against Bondy in tort. Summons returnable Aug. 25th.

Miss Fannie Haskard has returned to business after an enjoyable two weeks' vacation.

Morton C. Nobles, of Newark, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Maria Noble.

John Wade has accepted a position with the Potter Press Works in Plainfield.

Miss Mamie Merceir is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Merceir.

Miss Minnie Squires, of Rahway, spent Tuesday with friends in town.

Miss Emma Adams has returned from a week's stay at Asbury Park.

Remember the Baptist trolley ride tonight at 8 o'clock.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Aug. 16—Rev. Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, who has just returned from taking a course of study at the universities of Berlin and Jrua, in Germany, is a visitor in town and will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist church on Sunday, both morning and evening.

The men training for the fifteen-mile road race to be run here on Labor Day now have a triplet pacing for them. The course on North avenue is crowded nightly by persons who watch the speedy men as they make their fast trials.

While Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, has been on his vacation, the Berean Bible Class has been in charge of George F. Brown, of the borough.

Dennis Kane, of this city, who is employed in Asbury Park on the trolley cars, and who was called to his home by the death of his father, has returned to the Park.

Miss Lida Pangborn, of Chatham street, has gone to Asbury Park, where she will spend some time with her brother, Albert Pangborn, who is spending his vacation there.

Mrs. Clarence Leland, of Elmwood place, who was taken suddenly ill Saturday last, is improving and the physician in charge, Dr. Davis, hopes to have his patient out again in a short time.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Press want ads bring results.

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—Work on the new Catholic church in the East End of the city has been stopped temporarily.

—Cupid, it is said, has arranged for two or three prominent weddings to take place in the borough this fall.

—West Front street was opened up again yesterday to allow for a surface drainage connection with the Boehm building.

—Ten new arrivals from New York are reported at the Hotel Hunterston, and more are expected during this and next month.

—An important meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be held tomorrow evening and every member is urged to attend.

—The improvements being made at the telegraph office at the North Avenue station are about completed and the telephone will soon be placed in a booth arranged for it.

—J. A. Smith & Brother, of West Front street, have had repairs made to the gutter in front of their store so that the curbstones will conform to the grade of the street.

—At "Dave's," the barber's, 213 West Front street, you can procure the finest hot water baths, with shower, in the city. Always ready; plenty of towels; plenty of water; plenty of soap and good attendance; open Sundays.

—Don't forget that Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will run an excursion to Asbury Park tomorrow. The train will leave this city at 8:30 o'clock and returning will leave the Park at 9:15 o'clock. A good time is assured all who go.

—If you are looking for a well equipped laundry who do hand work on dress shirts and where all details are taken care of and where you will be convinced that up-to-date laundry work is done, go to Morey & LaRue, 19 Somerset, near Front street. Wagons go to all parts of the city.

A Thousand Tongues
Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard street, Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. A Sale of Muslin .... UNDERWEAR.

NIGHT ROBES WHITE SKIRTS CORSET COVERS DRAWERS CHEMISE

Fresh from the factories comes this large collection of Underwear. No tints of sweat shop about them. Every stitch honestly taken. Every garment cut and put together in expert fashion.

To make this sale memorable we shall halve our legitimate profits, giving you buying opportunities of money-saving importance. The standard values has never been so high as at this particular time.

A WHITE ROBE offering is a strong feature of the sale.

42c Muslin gowns, yoke of eight deep plaits, with four rows of hemstitching, neck, front and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffles.

59c Gowns of good quality muslin, yoke has four rows of insertion with sixteen fine tucks, neck, front and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffles.

75c Gowns of fine muslin, solid yoke of tucking and insertion, cut low in front, neck and sleeves trimmed wide embroidery ruffles.

89c Gowns of fine muslin, solid yoke of fine tucking with hemstitched collar and cuffs.

98c Gowns of fine muslin, Empire shape, with solid yoke of insertion, deep collar and cuffs trimmed with narrow insertion.

$1.25 Gowns, Empire shape, solid yoke and revers of handsome embroidery and insertion collars and cuffs, beautifully trimmed with fine embroidery.

$1.50 Gowns of fine cambric, Empire shape, very elaborately trimmed with fine lace and insertion.

Children's gowns in plain and embroidery trimmed, sizes 3 to 15 years.

WHITE SKIRTS Cut full and generous, made of good materials, priced at about the retail cost of bare materials. All the sewing money saved.

25c Good heavy muslin skirts, cut full and wide, finished with two-inch linen and cluster of three tucks.

49c Skirts, good muslin, cut full and wide, umbrella shaped, ruffle of fine lawn, finished with narrow lace flounces.

98c Skirts, fine muslin, with twelve-inch umbrella shaped, ruffle of fine lawn with three rows of hemstitching or one row of fine insertion.

$1.39 Shirts, very fine muslin, with deep flounce of handsome Irish point embroidery.

CORSET COVERS The evidence of unusual value is nowhere more evident than here. These lots are wonders of good workmanship, good material and price cheapness.

19c Corset covers, cut pointed back and front trimmed with neat cambric edging.

25c Corset covers of cambric, cut pointed back and front, yoke of fine tucking, edged with nainsook embroidery.

35c Corset covers of fine cambric, yoke of solid tucking, and linen stitching edged with cambric embroidery.

50c Corset covers of fine quality cambric, yoke of alternate rows of fine lace and clusters of tucking, low square cut, neck and sleeves trimmed with fine lace edging.

French shaped Corset Covers in very choice styles at 25c and 50c.

DRAWERS We planned carefully to give you unusual values. Your response in buying will prove our success.

19c Drawers of good heavy muslin, finished with two-inch hem and cluster of three tucks.

25c Drawers of good quality muslin, umbrella shape, ruffles of fine cambric and linen stitching.

29c Drawers, good muslin, with deep umbrella shaped ruffle of cambric, edged with fine lace.

39c Drawers, with four-inch ruffle of fine embroidery and cluster of four tucks.

49c Drawers of fine muslin, umbrella shape ruffle of six-inch cambric with deep lace and insertion.

CHEMISE Three numbers that possess unusual merit.

25c Chemise of good strong muslin, open front, with two rows of cording around neck and sleeves.

49c Chemise of fine heavy muslin, solid embroidery yoke, neck and sleeves trimmed with fine cambric edging.

59c Chemise, solid pointed yoke of insertion and tuckings, open front, neck and sleeves edged with fine cambric embroidery.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Der ehemalige evangelische Pfarrer Schrempf, der wegen freisinnigen Anschauungen seines Amtes enthoben wurde, dann eine Zeitschrift („Die Wahrheit") herausgab und neuerdings als Lehrer an der höheren Handelsschule hier wirkt, hat jetzt den Titel und Rang eines königlichen Professors erhalten.—In verschiedenen Gegenden des Königreichs haben kürzlich schwere Gewitter großen Schaden angerichtet. Im Saulgau wurden zwei Gemeindemarkungen verheert; 70 bis 80 Prozent der dortigen Ernte wurden vernichtet. In Neuhausen bei Eßlingen äscherte der Blitz eine Doppelscheune ein, in Wangen und Deutschenhofe im Gaildorfer Bezirk wurden zwei Mädchen vom Blitz erschlagen. In Winnenden sind in Folge Blitzschlag mehrere Scheuern niedergebrannt. In Zöschingen bei Giengen an der Brenz schlug der Blitz in ein Haus und tödtete dabei einen dort beschäftigten Maurer, dessen Leiche aus dem brennenden Hause nur mit Mühe gerettet werden konnte.

Cannstatt. In Obermarchthal ist der in weiten Kreisen bekannte Kapellmeister Schlichthärle, der früher 30 Jahre lang die Kurkapelle dahier leitete, im Alter von 61 Jahren gestorben.

Crailsheim. Hier starb der Landtagsabgeordnete Sachs.

Friedrichshafen. In Manzell riß der Sturm die im Bodensee verankerte Halle für das Luftschiff des Grafen Zeppelin los und trieb sie bis in die Gegend von Konstanz.

Heilbronn. Mit einem gräßlichen Tod mußte ein in Neckarsulm beschäftigter 21 Jahre alter Kesselschmied Namens Greiner einen hier beabsichtigten Rosendiebstahl büßen. Der junge Mann wollte Nachts, über den eisernen Staketenzaun eines Gartens gebeugt, Rosen an sich nehmen; er glitt dabei aus und stürzte in die spitzen Eisenstäbe, von denen er förmlich aufgespießt wurde.

Tübingen. Verlagsbuchhändler Paul Siebeck, Besitzer der Laupp'schen Verlagsbuchhandlung, wurde von der philosophischen Fakultät der Universität Freiburg i. B. zum Ehrendoktor ernannt.

Ulm. Der Wohnungsverein Ulm zur Beschaffung gesunder und billiger Wohnungen für arme Leute hat schon neun Doppelhäuser mit zusammen 62 Wohnungen hergestellt, in denen 360 Personen untergebracht sind. Bezahlt werden für diese Wohnungen an Miethe pro Jahr zwischen 128 und 270 Mark. Es stehen dem Verein noch 5358 Mark Reingewinn zur Verfügung, womit 3½ Prozent Dividende an die Aktionäre vertheilt werden können.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Im nahen Lindelsheim vernichtete ein größeres Feuer 43 Gebäude.—Nach langen Unterhandlungen ist die „Badische Landeszeitung" in den Besitz der nationalliberalen Partei übergegangen.

Mannheim. Auf der unlängst hier stattgehabten Hauptversammlung des Vereins deutscher Gartenkünstler wurde die Betheiligung an der Pariser Weltausstellung beschlossen.

Pforzheim. Neulich Vormittags rettete durch kühne Entschlossenheit der 15jährige Gewerbeschüler Karl Knecht, der bei Ringfabrikant Bentner hier als Fasserlehrling im Geschäft ist, ein 1½jähriges Mädchen vom Tode des Ertrinkens. Knecht beobachtete vom Klassenzimmer in der Gewerbeschule aus, wie das Kind vom gegenüberliegenden Ufer der Enz aus in's Wasser fiel und sprang sofort, kurz entschlossen, durch das Fenster auf die Enz zu. Er warf unterwegs noch seinen Rock ab, durchschwamm die Enz und holte das Kind glücklicher Weise noch lebend heraus. Rektor und Klassenlehrer, welche die kühne That beobachten konnten, sind über die Besonnenheit des Knaben alles Lobes voll.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Ein schweres Unwetter ging in den Kantonen Buchsweiler und Hochfelden nieder und richtete großen Schaden an. In den Orten Ringeldorf, Buchsweiler und Schalkendorf wurde die Ernte fast völlig zu Boden geschlagen und großer Schaden in den Weinbergen angerichtet. In Geisweiler wurde die ganze Obsternte, in Pfaffenhofen wurden fast alle Feldfrüchte vernichtet; die Orte Niedermodern, Walk und Ueberach und andere sind von dem Hagelwetter schwer mitgenommen.

Hagenau. Im hiesigen Forst bei Biblisheim wurde eine starke Petroleumquelle angebohrt.

Metz. In dem deutschen Grenzort Noveant verunglückte ein französischer Fruchthändler auf eigenthümliche Weise. Er wollte in Begleitung seines Bruders und Söhnchens mit Pferd und Wagen eine bekannte Furth durch die Mosel benutzen. Eine Strömung warf Pferd und Wagen um; die zwei Männer wurden von den Fluthen fortgerissen, und nur der Sohn, der sich an ein Heubündel geklammert hatte, wurde gerettet.

TAILOR FASHIONS.

Traveling Costumes and Ornamental Golf Capes.

Traveling gowns are of mohair, thin cloth, corkscrew or serge and are usually made with a skirt and jacket or bolero, to be worn over a blouse. The decoration consists of stitching and buttons.

Golf capes have become the property of all women and are worn quite irrespective of any connection with the amusement from which they take their name. Like most garments, starting from a simple original, they have become elaborated until the decorations add considerably to the weight of a wrap by no means light in its plainest form. One or more circular ruffles, large or small revers, a quantity of woolen fringe and a capuchon are the usual additions. The cloaking of which the capes are made being reversible and different on the two sides, one side is placed outward for the body of the wrap and the other for the trimming. Sometimes both the sides are of solid color; sometimes one is plain and the other plaided or checked.

The cut depicts a tailor made gown of blue cloth. The skirt is trimmed with straps of beige cloth stitched with the silk. The close bodice has a flat, scalloped basque, a high, flaring collar and slashed revers and is cut in square tabs in front. It is edged everywhere with stitched beige bands, and the sleeves are trimmed to match. Dead gold buttons ornament the front, and a white tulle cravat is worn. The toque of black straw is trimmed with roses and foliage.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

JEWELS.

Pearls Are the Reigning Favorites of Fashion.

Pearls have never been so fashionable—or, at any rate, more fashionable—than they are at present. Formerly, one or several rows of them, resting upon the chest or closely encircling the neck were in request; but now nothing will do but long chains of them, falling below the waist or festooned over the bodice. The demand for them is so great that jewelers are hard pressed to obtain a sufficient supply. The fortunate possessors of one or more than one of these long strings devises all sorts of different ways of displaying them. Sometimes they are worn plainly around the neck and allowed to fall naturally; again, they are caught up at the front or side of the bodice with a jeweled ornament; still again, they are fastened to the back of the low cut bodice and are draped around the decolletage. The most novel application of them was adopted recently by a fashionable Parisian woman, who fastened the chains in her hair, allowing them to drop at the sides and fall to the shoulders, where they were attached to the gown.

The picture given today illustrates an odd little copote of original form. The foundation is a little arch of almond green straw, upon the top of which is placed a large, irregular bow of wide turquoise ribbon. Three additional loops of ribbon follow the arch down the right side, while at the left are two ends of ribbon drawn through jeweled rings and terminating upon the hair. A high coiffure is necessary with this capote.

WOMEN'S REALM

BEAUTIFUL CLOTH GOWN.

A Very Pretty Effect in Sage Green Drap d'ete of Fine Glossy Weave.

That cloth in its various weaves will still hold its own is illustrated by this traveling or street gown of sage green drap d'ete of a fine glossy weave and of a delicate sage green color. The skirt is cut circular without seams except at the back, where a slight fullness conceals the placquet. Over the hips the garment is shaped by means of darts. The skirt is made as a drop skirt, unlined and falling loosely over a foundation skirt of sage green ending in a serpentine flounce of the same material, and edged with plaited dust ruffles of satin. To attain the fashionable hang of the sheathlike skirt the conventional petticoat is omitted, and in its stead are worn knickerbockers of satin daintily finished below the knees with ruffles of lace or a narrow clinging underskirt of soft satin unstiffened by interlining and made quite short with ruffles of lace or mousseline de soie.

PRETTY CLOTH GOWN.

The jacket of sage green cloth is quite plain and strictly tailor made, inclosing the figure tightly. The double breasted front fastens with four silver buttons and the revers are trimmed with green and silver braid in the same design which adorns the skirt hem. The flaring collar shows the braid garniture on the outside, while the inside is faced with appliqued sage green velvet of a darker shade. The plain sleeve is fitted into the armhole by box folds, while a braided scroll at the wrist simulates a cuff. Sage green satin lines the jacket and basque. A bright glimpse of color is provided by the shirt waist of cerise taffeta, made with a folded standing collar of the same material and closing in front under a jabot of white lace.

A Pretty Satin Scarf.

WHITE SATIN SCARF.

The scarf represented is of Liberty satin ornamented with Jesurum lace and bead necklace.

For Vegetarians.

An eminent physician says: Vegetables, grains, nuts and fruits contain more of the materials necessary to construct the bony structure of our bodies and are therefore better adapted to build up strong, healthy bodies and vigorous minds than meat; besides, the children thereby escape entirely the danger from disease germs contained in the flesh of slaughtered animals that have escaped destruction in the process of cooking.

Hints for Housewives.

The oil left from sardines is an excellent substitute for butter in mixing fishcakes.

Use soapy water for making starch. The linen will have a glossier appearance, and the iron will not be so apt to stick.

Yellow oil stains left by the sewing machine will easily be removed in the wash if they are first rubbed over with a little liquid ammonia.

To whiten the kitchen table: Spread it all over with a thin paste of chloride of lime and hot water; leave on all night, and in the morning wash off.

THE DANGEROUS NAUTILUS.

Interesting Account of This Pretty But Poisonous Marine Creation.

C. F. Holder gives an interesting account of his experiences with the physalia, the nautilus-like denizen of southern waters, which floats on the surface with its trailing fishing lines extending far below. The balloon, or float, is from five to six inches in length a delicate sac filled with air, and tinted with many beautiful hues among which purple, pearl and pink predominate. One end is elongated like a finger, and along the dorsal surface extends a ruffle which can be raised at will, and becomes a perfect sail, richly tinted in red, yellow pink and silver. When the animal is at rest the membrane is furled; at other times it is raised two or three inches, and, catching the wind, drags the tentacles at an angle of forty degrees to the surface of the water. These are purple, hair-like objects, which look very beautiful, as crinkled and curley, they drift through the water. But woe to the unfortunate fish which, attracted by their bright appearance, touches them. He is instantly inclosed by the tentacles and stung to death with a thousand darts. The tentacles are covered with minute bombs, resembling an elongated capsule, in the interior of which is the dart, a thread with branching points on either side.

But this is not the entire armament of the physalia. The coiled dart or lasso floats in a liquid poison of great power, of the effect of which Mr. Holder speaks from personal experience. He was swimming in five feet of water, when he passed over the tentacles of a large physalia. The sensation as the purple thread wound around the abdoman and thigh was of molten lead being thrown upon the flesh, and the shock was so great that he had to be assisted from the water. They tried vainly to rub off the blue mass with cloths, and then with knives, and finally a razor was used. The flesh was raised as in a burn, the mass of darts apparently eating into the flesh. The case became alarming, and a fatal termination might have resulted had aid not been at hand. One singular symptom of the shock was an obstinate asthmatic condition, which made breathing almost impossible. It was several weeks before the wounds were completely healed, and even twelve months after the flesh had the appearance of having been tattooed in fanciful designs of blue India ink. Of all the so-called "stinging animals" found in the sea, the beautiful Physalia is probably the most dangerous.

The Cuban Gold Myth.

If we listen to the voice of the charmer, or go to the books on Cuba for our information, we shall find that the mineral resources of this island include gold, silver, mercury, lead, antimony, copper, chrome, iron, manganese, pitch, bitumen, and even coal; but when we come to look for practical metallic results commensurate with these varied mineral resources we shall be disappointed.

The gold fiction is the most time-honored, for the original Spanish settlers expected to find rich gold mines in Cuba. According to their historians much gold was taken from this island at the beginning of the conquest," but it seems probable that most of this was taken from the chiefs or caciques of the Indians and very little from the ground. "El Viagero Universal," Madrid, 1797, says—"some of this metal (gold) is still found at Holguin. Whenever the existence of gold in Cuba is discussed this "mine" at Holguin is invariably brought forward. It is true that some work has been done at this point and a little gold has been extracted, but there has never been any systematic exploration and there is nothing there which may be dignified with the name of a mine. —The Engineering Magazine.

Three Famous Statues.

The three most famous statues in history are the Colossus of Rhodes, the Sphinx and the vocal statue of Memnon at Thebes, and of these the last is the most remarkable, in consequence of its property of emitting sounds when its lips were touched by the rays of the rising sun so that it seemed to greet the coming day. It was originally a portrait model of King Amenophis III., and was one of a pair of statues betweeen sixty and seventy feet high, carved out of single blocks of sandstone and transported from the quarries to Thebes, whereas the Sphinx was carved from the living rock in situ.

Of statues other than stone the most remarkable is that of Buddha at Nara, near Kioto in Japan, which was erected A. D.. 1100. It is made of bronze and is fifty-three feet six inches high and more than twenty-eight feet broad across the shoulders. On its head are 966 curls, and the image is surrounded by a glory or halo seventy-eight feet in diameter, on which sixteen images, each eight feet long, are cast. Two smaller images, each twenty-five feet high stand in front of the larger one. The total weight of metal in the main figures is about 450 tons, of which 500 pounds consists of gold.

Ravages of the Ship Worm.

The ship worm has caused the loss of more vessels than were ever destroyed in war. In tropical countries this worm penetrates the timber of vessels and eats away the wood until there is only a shell left, which will crumble at a slight blow. Large beams, apparently sound, after removal from vessels, after the outside crust has been broken, have been pulled to pieces by the fingers. During the last century an East Indiaman docked in London crumbled to pieces when the supports were placed underneath and the water removed.

A Travelling Cat.

A large tom cat for 13 years made voyages on a mail steamer between Sydney and San Francisco. The animal has died, and was buried at sea, having almost completed 1,000,000 miles of travel.

Colors in Oil Tar.

Chemists have extracted from coal tar 16 shades of blue, 16 of yellow, 12 of orange, 9 of violet, besides shades of other colors too numerous to mention.

MAMMY GOT THE GIRLS

The Mother Sued But She Lost the Case.

Lizzie Jefferson, an old negro "mammy," of New Orleans, was recently awarded the custody of Annie and Lucy Galaw, little girls, 8 and 10 years of age, respectively, her rival claimant for the children being the mother. The suit, which resulted in the negress obtaining permanent custody of the children, was the first of its kind ever decided in Louisiana, inasmuch as "mammy" is as black as the proverbial ace of spades, and the children have not a drop of negro blood in their veins.

But in spite of the fact that they are white, Lucy and Annie, who were weeping bitterly during the progress of the case, in fear of being given back to their mother, rejoiced exceedingly when Judge Aucoin pronounced judgment in favor of the negress. Behind the case there is an unusual story.

V. Galaw, the father of the little girls, died eight years ago. He was very poor, and was not on the best of terms with his wife. He knew "Aunt Lizzie," and just before death claimed him he asked the old woman to see that his children did not come to want. The faithful negress gave him the promise, and for the last seven years she has worked night and day for her charges, clothing them nicely, and, since they have been old enough, sending them to the public schools.

"Aunt Lizzie" is a caterer in a small way and earns a comfortable living. She announced her intention, not long ago, of sending the elder girl to Europe to complete her education, for the child is very bright. The devotion of the negress to her "babies" has long been the talk of the neighborhood.

Not long ago the mother married again, and demanded that "Aunt Lizzie" give her and her husband rent free, a room in the house which was sheltering her girls. The negress refused, and the mother brought suit to recover the children. All these facts were brought out in the Court to-day.

After hearing the evidence Judge Aucoin said he was satisfied that the children were better off with "Aunt Lizzie," and so he ruled, much to the disgust of the mother.

She "Sees Things."

An odd case of hysteria is reported from Abilene, Kan. A lady of the town has been entertaining her niece, a young woman from another town, and ever since the arrival of the girl the house has been made the target of peepers and burglars. In the evening before the family had gone to bed there would be a crash of glass and then the young woman would come flying in terror to her aunt with the story that she had seen the face of a man at the window and when he found he was observed he broke the window and ran. After windows had been broken all over the house officers were set to watch for several nights. At last, one officer, brighter than the rest, discovered that all the glass broken from a window fell outward, showing that it must have been struck from the inside. A watch was then placed over the girl and she was soon caught in the act of breaking a window, after which she ran screaming to her aunt, with the same old story about a man. Her strange performance is accounted for on the theory of a hysterical condition in which she "sees things" and then does things unconsciously.

A Rude Awakening.

"So the convention didn't nominate me," said the politician who had been continuously in office for eight or ten years.

The lieutenant shook his head.

"Did anything break loose?" asked the politician after a moment of thought.

"Not a thing."

"The people in the galleries didn't get up and hiss and walk out of the convention hall when I was turned down?"

"Not a man left."

"There was no popular demonstration, and no one seemed to feel that the country was going to the dogs?"

"On the contrary, every one seemed to think it would worry along just about as comfortably as usual, and I didn't see a man dodge as if he expected an earthquake or some other indication of heavenly displeasure."

"And to think," said the politician, reflectively, "that I have been under the impression that the salvation of this whole country has rested on me for the last eight years and seven months."—Chicago Post.

Queer Blunder.

The burgomaster of the little town of Poelitz, in Pomerania, entered into office a year ago. He believed himself invested with the functions of a civil state officer, which had not been conferred upon him by the superior authority. He united twenty couples in marriage and in consequence of an objection these marriages were declared illegal. At the same time, the magistrate was nominated a civil state officer, and now the marriages have to take place again—provided, a French paper, says, the couples, after a brief experience of married life, are willing to go through the marriage ceremony a second time.—London Globe.

To Keep His Shoes Clean.

And on the subject of shoes. A burly negro of the tramp class was seen yesterday walking along the street of a Jersey town. Over mere frameworks of leather he had tied strips of heavy carpeting, and after one had comprehended the feet, he looked to see the man. A small boy accosted him with: "What 've ye got yer feet tied up fer?" "To keep mah shoes from gettin' dusty, fool," he said.

The Right Hand.

A professor who has made a study of children says he has discovered why the majority of people are right-handed. Infants use both hands until they begin to speak. The motor speech function controls the right side of the body and the first right-handed motions are expressive motions, tending to help out speech. As speech grows so does right-handedness.

Equipped for the Emergency.

"You can't come in," said St. Peter, sadly; "the gate is locked."

"Is that all?" asked the modern woman as she reached for a hatpin and proceeded to business.—Judge.

GAMING IN MONTREAL

The City Is the Lottery Center of North America.

Montreal is the Monaco of Canada. Not that it is cursed with many more regular gambling houses than has any other city on the North American continent, but on account of a peculiar provincial law which, without actualy permitting them, prevents interference with the extensive lottery and policy establishments that flourish there.

The French-Canadian element, which comprises two-thirds of the population of Montreal, is passionately fond of any game of chance, and there never is a bazaar, picnic or any kind of a fete at which there is not some sort of lottery, tombola or wheel of fortune. Even the regattas and horse races and moon-light excursions that are held throughout the province would be considered incomplete unless there were some device for trying one's luck. In many of these cases the provincial police interfere and close up the games, but from time immorial it has been the law that at any charity table entertainment a permit can be obained from the authorities to hold a lottery or tombola, or to have any of the thousand and one devices whereby money is coaxed out of the visitor's pockets with promises of chances to win things worth several times the money invested.

About six years ago some enterprising individuals came to the conclusion that if the law permitted this sort of thing on a small scale, there was no reason why it should not be permitted wholesale, says the Chicago Record. Therefore they laid their plans to obtain a charter from the legislature of the province of Quebec for the holding of a charitable lottery. Money was freely offered for votes, and all sorts of combinations were made to have the scheme succeed. A large amount was offered to the party in power for campaign expenses, and it is said that the money was actually paid beforehand. When it came to a vote, however, the scheme did not pass. The lottery was to have been in connection with a free art institute, where instruction was to be given to indigent but talented persons. Afterward, however, the charter was granted by an order of the lieutenant-governor in council.

This was the forerunner of the five similar institutions which now exist in Montreal, and which thus far, notwithstanding the efforts of the Citizens' League, have flourished openly. The reason for this is that the provincial and dominion laws clash on this point of gambling and lotteries. There seems to be little doubt, however, that at the next session of parliament a bill will be introduced to abolish the establishments. At present there are five of them, all of them actually paying a percentage of their receipts to charitable institutions. Their places of business are large and beautifully fitted up. The two which do a regular lottery business offer prizes of paintings. These paintings are valued at so much, and a certain place is pointed out to the prize winners where the paintings may be redeemed at a reduction of about 30 per cent on their face value. These two places hold weekly and monthly drawings. For the weekly distribution they have two drawings a day, and the tickets can be bought not only in all cigar stores and barbers' shops, but are peddled broadcast on the streets by men, women and children.

Lighthouses

One hundred and fifty years ago the Eddystone Lighthouse in England, with a sixty-five candle power light, cost for maintenance 40 cents an hour; now, at the same expense, a light of 160,000 candle power is maintained, and the difference betwen the two illustrates the extension of lighthouses, which now number more than 10,000 in all countries, though thirty-five years ago the number was less than 2,000. Thirty-five years ago there were 380 lighthouses in the United States only, as against 465 in Great Britain and Ireland, of which 245 were in England, 130 in Scotland and 90 in Ireland. Now there are 1,000 lighthouses in Great Britain, and the number in the United States is 1,500, exclusive of those in Alaska and in the newly acquired West Indian provinces, and of stationary beacons, anchored vessels, carrying lights, electric or gas buoys in position, fog signals (whether operated by steam, hot air or clock work), post lights, whistling buoys and stake lights to the number of 1,500 additional.

The United States have 3,500 miles of seacoast, 1,600 miles of gulf coast and 1,500 miles of lake coast. The literature of lighthouses is rather brief and uneventful, though they have supplied the theme for many poets and romatic writers—more, perhaps, than the actual facts warrant. Since 1890 electricity has been substituted for gas or oil, and the means of illumination have been improved correspondingly, as has the life-saving service. Some of the most elaborate of the newly constructed lighthouses are in England, the generally rocky coast of which is often of a character so dangerous to maritime commerce that some of the lights are made visible twenty miles out at sea. Italy has more lighthouses than Germany, and the opening of the Kiel Canal, the traffic of which was 25,000 ships last year, has further reduced the demand for German lighthouses and diminished the danger of wreckage on the Baltic Sea coast.

"Did you ever notice," he asked, "that it is always the homely woman who wants a pug dog? The pug is so hideous that it makes her seem comparatively good looking by comparison. Still, the ruse is so well known that the possession of a pug is sufficient——

"Who's going to buy a pug?" she asked. "Who ever thought of getting one?"

"Why, no one, of course, my dear," he answered, for he was too wise a man to admit that he had heard her telling a neighbor that she thought she'd get one.—Chicago Post.

At Asti, in California, last year, a cistern 104 feet long by 34 feet wide and 24 feet deep was formed in the hill side for the storage of wine. The immense tank was lined with concrete 2 feet thick, and coated inside with a glaze or impermeable as glass. The capacity of the tank is 500,000 gallons.

HE WORKED HIS PASSAGE.

TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE.

First Day's Work Made Him Wish He Was Quietly Starving on Shore—Temperature at 120.

Stokers Worked Almost Naked in the Glare of Furnaces Sliding Around With Fearful Energy—Looked Like Demons But They Had Kind and Tender Hearts.

Young Carlisle Norwood, one of New York's aristocrats relates his experience in working his way from Cape Town to London in the capacity of stoker, to the Journal, as follows:

"I believe it was the hardest experience a man ever had. It was hades. I, who had never done a stroke of real hard work in my life, had to do the roughest and dirtiest kind of work that is known, and had to do it in a temperature of 120 degrees, fanned by air red hot off the equator.

First it failed to kill me and then it made me stronger than I ever was before. I was never in such fine condition. I am as hard as iron and I have a magnificent thirst and appetite, both of which I am going to take care of.

Last year I left New York for South Africa, believing, as did my family, that a change of air and scene would be good for me.

I had a generous allowance from my father and was able to travel comfortably enough. I went to England and started immediately for South Africa. I traveled through Cape Colony and then through the Transvaal, visiting the gold and diamond mines. I had many exciting experiences, in the course of which I spent all my money.

I returned to Cape Town and there spent my last cent. I had no credit and living is very expensive there. Starvation stared me in the face. An instalment of my allowance was then nearly due, but it would be payable in London and it would take me a long time to get it, considering that I should have nothing to eat in the meanwhile. My pride would not let me ask my father for more money. Besides, I did not feel sure that I would get it.

I made up my mind that the only thing to do was to sail for London at once and get my money there. I signed articles to serve as a stoker of the lowest class, and the next day I was happy to sail away from Cape Colony. My first day in the stokehole made me wish I was quietly starving on shore. The temperature down below was about 120 degrees. The weather was very hot, and the air driven in by the fans did us no good.

The stokers worked almost naked in the glare of the furnace, and blackened with coal and sweat from head to foot, sliding around with fearful energy and growling in hardly comprehensible language, they seemed more like demons than men.

But I was soon to find out that there were kind hearts among those apparent demons.

I had not been at work for an hour before I fainted away. I was carried up on deck again for a spell, and as soon as I came to I was told to get to work again.

A hairy demon, with a broken nose and battered face, who was alongside of me, looked at me with a mixture of pity and contempt and remarked:

"Poor kid; you ain't used to hard work, are yer? Just lay off on the next watch and I'll look after it somehow."

"You're a darned good fellow," I said to my friend, "but I'll hold up my own job. I'm just as strong as anybody, only I haven't got used to this sort of work."

We worked four hours at a stretch, and when they were over I used to crawl on the deck and lie panting for breath for an hour or more.

I got to be blistered all over, and the coal dust was ground into me from head to foot so that I looked like a black man, and no washing I could get on the ship would make me white.

After three days of real torture I began to get stronger. That process went on steadily for the rest of the voyage. I never imagined that I could put on so much muscle. In time I became almost as hard as a veteran stoker. I was never so strong in my life.

A schoolmaster in a village school had been in the habit of purchasing pork from parents of his pupils on the occasion of the killing of the pig. One day a small boy marched up to the master's desk and inquired "if he would like a bit of pork, as they were going to kill their pig." The schoolmaster replied in the affirmative. Several days having elapsed, and hearing nothing of the pork, the master called the boy up to him and inquired the reason he had not brought it. "Oh, please, sir," the boy replied, "the pig got better."—The Argonaut.

When the children's best clothes come from the wash with the colors faded and streaked, and with worn spots showing in places where there should be no wear, then you may know that your laundress is using something besides Ivory Soap.

You can save trouble and expense by furnishing her with Ivory Soap, and insisting that she use it and nothing else. The price of one ruined garment will buy Ivory Soap sufficient for months.

MORTIMER NEED NOT PAY

Brooklyn, where he found that he could not live on $1,000 a year left from his income after the bank had exercised its rights as power of attorney. Then Mortimer, much to the surprise of all, revoked his power of attorney. The bank then brought suit to have the note act as a lien against the income of the estate.

It is not known whether or not the bank will call upon the creditors who endorsed the note to repay to the bank the amount of the note.

In defending the action of the bank against the estate Mortimer has also secured judgment for about $400 legal expenses which he will call upon the plaintiff to settle.

School Teacher to Become a Nun.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, Aug. 16—It is announced that Miss Mary Langan, who for six years has been a teacher in the public schools here, is about to become a nun. The first intimation that her friends had of her intention was received last week, when she tendered her resignation as a teacher to the Board of Education. Miss Langan will begin her religious life next week at St. Elizabeth's Academy, conducted by the Sisters of Charity, at Madison. She was a graduate of that convent.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

If sprightly music, delightful comedy, picturesque scenery and costumes, an unusually powerful company, and the favorite minstrel comedian of America, George Thatcher, can constitute an evening's entertainment the audience that will surely gather at the Stillman's Music Hall, on Friday, when George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels will appear, should have nothing left for which to wish. It is difficult to imagine a happier combination of pleasure satisfying ingredients, and there seems to be little doubt that Mr. Thatcher will achieve for himself and his company a highly gratifying result. The consensus of opinion among those who have witnessed the presentation in other places seems to be that Mr. Thatcher is surrounded with a company of exceptional excellence, even surpassing the ones with which he has been associated in the past.

* * * * *

An old acquaintance and universal favorite is that time tried tonic for dispelling care with exhilarating amusement, "The Hustler." It is a merry melange of satire and nonsense of the day, which only resembles its original idea in name. It is a comedy of the times—"tuned" every day—brisk, colorful, tuneful and refined. While no claim is made to the possession of a pretentious story or intricate plot, it provides a very satisfactory vehicle for the exhibition of the diverse talents of a wondrously versatile company. Fun pure and simple is the sole object of the farce, and all of it is of that sparkling, effervescent sort which catches the popular fancy. It is one of the very few farces that deals with humorous incidents of the present day and introduces characters with which one constantly comes in contact. Incidental to the amusing comedy situations and tableaux is introduced a perfect avalanche of songs, dances, marches and graceful and grotesque cavorting of every description. All the recent novelties in the line of music and mirth are seen in "The Hustler," and to predict a rousing engagement here seems superfluous.

OPENING OF THE PEACH SEASON.

Jersey Growers Have Begun to Market Their Fruit.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, August 16—Most of the peach exchanges in Hunterdon, Warren, Somerset and Sussex counties opened their doors to the peach growers yesterday. Special trains to carry the fruit to market were put on the Lehigh Valley, Jersey Central and Pennsylvania Railroads last evening. They will be run daily until the end of the season. Owing to the severe cold weather in the winter, only one-half of the usual crop will be marketed this year. The prices realized for the fruit so far have been double those of former years, when Hunterdon county alone yielded 1,500,000 baskets, and the growers are greatly encouraged at the prospect of reaping the usual profits. The largest crop that will be gathered by any single grower will be from the groves of Abraham Vail, at Quakertown. It is estimated that he will market 20,000 baskets. Buyers are here in large numbers from Boston, Baltimore, Elmira, Buffalo, Philadelphia, New York, Newark and other cities.

A Jack, the Tire Cutter.

The tire to the back wheel of Joe Sadusky's bicycle was stabbed Sunday afternoon to the serious detriment of the condition of the tire, Sadusky is a coachman employed on Crescent avenue. Sunday afternoon he rode his wheel to the home of a friend on East Front street and left his wheel in the gutter while he went into the house. When he came out again, he found the back tire flat and two deep gashes in it. A friend saw a man stop at the wheel and drive his pen knife in the tire.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store'

CUTS OFF THEIR HEADS.

This Is How the Sultan of Morocco Treats Tax Dodgers.

The Sultan of Morocco is going to prevent his subjects from evading the payment of their taxes, even if by doing it he has to behead every tax dodger in the country.

In his majesty's domain tax dodging by the rich is well nigh universal, and well-informed students and travelers, knowing how corrupt and rapacious the Sultan's government is, do not doubt that much of it is justifiable. But the Sultan looks at the matter in a different light. He declares that there is no excuse for tax dodging, that it is criminal, and, moreover, that he has hit upon a punishment to fit the crime.

Frank E. Jackson, a globe trotter of thirty years' experience, has recently made a tour of North Africa, including the accessible parts of Morocco, and in a personal letter to Frank L. Dingley, of Lewiston, Maine, a brother of the well-known representative of that name, he gives a graphic account of the Sultan's bloody and desperate method of procedure.

While in Tangier, Mr. Jackson learned that the Sultan at the head of a large body of troops was marching through the country collecting taxes, and that at Laroiche he had decapitated a large number of tax dodgers and spiked their heads above the city gates to serve as a warning to others who might not be disposed to pay their dues promptly.

"A company of five was formed," writes Mr. Jackson, "to visit Laroiche and see if the ghastly report was true. The party consisted of an Englishman, who spoke Arabic; a German and three Americans.

"We reached Laroiche about noon. It is impossible to describe the sickening sight which met our gaze as we rode up to the main entrance of the city. There above us, in a ghastly row, were fifteen human heads, shriveling in the broiling sun. We rode around to the other gates, only to find the same grewsome display. In all we counted forty-five heads spiked to the board arches over the city gates. Our curiosity was fully satisfied, and all of us regretted that we had traveled so far to learn that there was at the close of the ninteenth century so barbarous a country on the face of the earth as Morocco."

To Make Artificial Fog

The heating of air by means of small fires scattered about through orchards or fields has been found a very effective protector against frost in the drier parts of California. One ingenius device for the same purpose, designed by G. F. Ditzler, consists of a deep sheet iron tank, three or four feet square, mounted on a truck. About six inches from the bottom of the tank is a wire grate, beneath which, through a hole in the bottom of the tank, is admitted a blast of air.

This is produced by a revolving fan operated by a sprocket chain and wheel attached to the wheel of the truck. A water cask and force pump complete the outfit. Tar or other fuel is placed on the grate and ignited, and the tank is filled with wet straw or manure. The blast of the fan blows it into an intense fire, all the heat of which has to pass through three feet of wet straw before it can reach the air. Naturally the evaporation is very active, and the vapor rising from the wet material immediately condenses, forming a dense fog or mist.

As the machine is driven backward and forward betwen the rows of trees in the orchard, water is continually pumped from the cask and scattered over the fuel. The machine is said to evaporate 100 gallons of water an hour. Often this artificial fog is so dense that the driver has to go forward and lead his horses.

SHORTHAND FACTS.

An Interesting Lecture Delivered by Prof. W. E. VanWert.

The shorthand lecture given in the Gregg College of Business last evening by the principal, W. E. VanWert, was attended by about thirty young people who are interested in the study. Every question that has been raised against the Gregg System was shown to be entirely unfounded. The time taken up was not given to maligning the author of any other system, but to pointing out the merits in the system taught at this college, and to the work being done with it in court and other work. Some interesting figures were also given regarding the typewriter and operator. Mr. VanWert claims that the annual demand for stenographers is between 115,000 and 125,000, and that in 1898 there were only 70,000 persons in all the schools and colleges in the United States learning shorthand.

Many other interesting figures were shown, and a history of shorthand given from its early foundation back in the days of Julius Caesar and Cicero, when it is claimed that Cicero's freeman, Tyro, conducted what is today known as a school of shorthand. At the close of these interesting facts and figures, Rev. H. W. McKane gave a short talk on the different branches of study in the college, including Hebrew, Greek and Latin.

ATTACKS FIRST-DAY WORSHIP.

Dr. Lewis' Book on "Swift Decadence of Sunday" Seems Popular.

The first edition of a thousand volumes of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis' new book, "Swift Decadence of Sunday; What Next?" has been completely exhausted although it only made its appearance less than three months ago. The book was published by the American Sabbath Tract Society of this city. A second edition will be printed at once and will make its appearance this fall.

The book asserts that Sabbath observance is waning, analyzes the causes of decline and suggests methods of reform.

Bertha Guynard, a French woman, went before Justice Mosher yesterday afternoon and procured a warrant for Carl Shultz, a waiter employed at Blatz's saloon, whom she alleged had assaulted her. The warrant was given to Constable Weaver to serve, but Shultz could not be found. It was said at the saloon that Blatz had discharged the waiter who had suddenly left town when he learned that a warrant was out for his arrest.

MANY NEW HOUSES TELL OF PROSPERITY.

Homes Springing up in All Parts of City.

MOST OF THEM COTTAGES.

A. C. STEBBINS IS BUILDING HANDSOME NEW RESIDENCE.

Last Month Eighteen Building Permits Were Granted, Principally for New Structures—Nine Have Been Granted Already This Month of Which Six are for New Houses—Building in West End.

July and August have been lively months for the local builders. Eleven new houses were started last month and ground was broken for six more this month. These evidences of the prosperity of the city are springing up at every hand but particularly in the western part of Plainfield. Two of these are quite portentious residences while the others are convenient little homes, suited to fill the wants of the family of moderate means. During July Building Inspector T. O. Doane granted eighteen permits for new buildings and alterations. This month nine have already been granted.

Last month saw work started on two handsome residences, one in either end of the city. The more elaborate is that of Albert C. Stebbins, superintendent of the Pond Tool Works, which is now in the course of erection on West Seventh street, just west of Grant avenue. It is to be a two-story and attic frame house of modern design. E V. French was the architect. The other house is on South avenue, between Woodland and Belvidere avenues, and is owned by Mrs. Annie B. Mills. It will probably be rented or sold on its completion. It is a two-story and attic frame dwelling of comfortable size.

John Owens is having a cottage built on Lee place. It is rather similar in general style to a number of others that are being erected. George Hummer has one on Centre street. Mrs. Lila Rupert is the owner of a new cottage on Belvidere avenue, near South avenue.

Manning and Runyon are adding to their settlement on Woodland avenue and LaGrande avenue with another two story and a half frame dwelling. Mrs. Emma E. Naylor started one cottage on Rock avenue, near West Front street, last month, and now has begun another on West Front street near Rock avenue.

Mrs. Frank Linke is building on Plainfield avenue near West Third street. Mrs. Ethel R. Lloyd is the ower of a cottage on the lot, 730 West Sixth street. At 933 Arlington avenue, is building a neat little home.

Mrs. E. E. Pray, of Rahway road, is rebuilding her barn in the rear of her home. Mrs. E. Cox, of Lyman place, has built a small barn on her property.

The permits for new houses granted this month are all small but cosy little dwellings of from six to eight rooms. William H. Abbott is building on West Fifth street, near Prescott place. William Lunger has started one at 920 West Fifth street. Mrs. A. N. Brouard is the owner of a new house started at the corner of Monroe avenue and West Seventh street. Albert Brooks is building a tiny little home for himself on Clinton avenue, near West Third street.

A permit was granted to Caspar Stalele, of Stony Hill, to erect a small cottage at 139 Jackson street.

Mrs. Mary Fairfax has established a large greenhouse at 24 Clinton avenue and removed the old Denton buildings from Prospect avenue to that place.

To Lake Hoptacong by Trolley.

Henery C. Raynolds, the representative of New York capitalist who are going to build an electric railroad from New York City to Lake Hoptacong, and C. C. Vermeule, of No. 203 Broadway, the engineer, were in Morristown yesterday on business connected with the road. Mr. Raynolds says he has secured the rights of way for the entire distance from Montclair to Lake Hoptacong, and work will be commenced Sept. 1.

C. E. Delegates Reunion.

The delegates from New Jersey to the National Christian Endeavor convention at Detroit with their friends who attend the convention will hold a reunion at Davis' Cafe, Broad street, Newark, on the evening of Monday, Sept. 11. It is expected that several guests from this city will attend. The supper will be served at 8 o'clock.

ARE THEY BAMBOOZLED?

SOMERVILLE DON'T LIKE TREATMENT OF CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Town Commissioners Direct Legal Steps to Compel Company to Finish Subway of Undergrade Crossing There.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Aug. 17.—The Board of Town Commissioners of this place are at war with the Jersey Central Railroad Company. Over a year ago Chancellor McGill ordered the Central Railroad Company to build an undergrade crossing on the principal thoroughfare between this place and Raritan. The railroad company was delinquent in its work and blocked the thoroughfare to traffic for several months. The street was opened to traffic some months ago, but the subway under the railroad was left unfinished.

The Town Commissioners have made repeated efforts to have the railroad complete its work. In a scathing address made by Commissioner Osborne before the Board of Commissioners he said the time had arrived when the Central Railroad could no longer bamboozle the town of Somerville with promises as it did many other towns along its line.

The Board unanimously adopted a resolution to take legal action against the Central to compel it to complete its work in the subway and other streets in town.

BABIES AT ASBURY PARK

MANY LITTLE ONES ARE ARRIVING TO ENTER THE SHOW.

It is Expected That Five Hundred Infants Will Appear Before an Admiring Public at the Resort Saturday.

Five hundred infants will appear before an admiring public in Asbury Park Saturday afternoon in the annual baby parade. There will be one mile of enthusiasm for the youngsters. They will march from the big auditorium to the Coleman House and return.

Babies are arriving in great state from Ocean Grove, Allenhurst and neighboring points. Already there are 134 entries. The Home of the Friendless will send sixty-two children from Bradley Beach, where they have a summer home. Great enthusiasm is being shown by fond parents all along the coast, and the "babies table" under the Asbury avenue pavilion is a daily centre of interest.

Pretty black-eyed twins that are receiving admiration prior to the parade are Arthur and Viola Mousley, of Newark. They are two years old Sanford C. Flint, of Ocean Grove, looks like a possible prize winner among the yearlings. Donald MacKenzie, who comes from Brooklyn, is another baby in the same class. Madeline Klotz, five years old, is a Brooklyn girl.

Puss in Boots, Little Bo-Peep, Mother Hubberd and the Clown will be impersonated by children from Somerville, N. J. Red cross nurses, rough riders and sailors will make up a large part of the line. Members of the Epworth League of the Franklin Street Methodist church, of Newark, desired to show their interest in the parade and recently contributed $35, which will be used for flags and banners.

The following judges have been named: Mrs. W. Seidler, of Newark; Mrs. Wilson P. Foos, of New York; Capt. Thos. J. Woodward, of New Orleans; Mrs. N. Ulman, of New York; Mrs. J. H. Richards, of Newark; Capt. Frank P. O'Brien, of Birmingham, Ala.; Capt. George G. Titus, of New York; Mrs. F. H. Eaton, Mrs. George F. Graff and W. T. Stillwell, of the Coleman House; J. R. Morley, of New York, and Mrs. Morley.

STAGNANT SURFACE WATER.

West Sixth Street Residents Fearful of Sickness as a Result.

In the vicinity of Plainfield avenue and West Sixth street residents are complaining of the way that surface water is allowed to stagnate. The grade of the streets there is very poor and it seems impossible for the water to run away. Water had stood there until a thick green scum has appeared and a foul stench arises. At present there is water at that point and no effort has been made to remedy the difficulty. The people are afraid that unless something is done that the stagnant water may cause sickness, and they take this method of calling the attention of the authorities to the trouble.

Hard Place to Get Out Of.

A new combination lock is being placed on several doors of cells in the Union county jail. Each lock is double, and is arranged to do away with a key in closing a door. At night the warden will use a key to double lock each cell door, and so have reason to know that he will find his prisoner safe in his cell in the morning.

COUNTRY HOMES FOR NEW YORK CHILDREN

Local Endeavorers Entertain Young Girls From City.

EIGHTEEN ARE HERE NOW.

CONNECTED WITH THE FRESH-AIR CAMP AT WESTFIELD.

Local Union of Christian Endeavorers Has Successfully Tried "Children's Country Week"—Seventh-Day Baptist, Park Avenue Baptist, Trinity Reformed, Warren Chapel and Others Entertain.

The attempt of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union last year to take up the "Children's Country Week" work was so successful that it has been repeated this year. The children brought out from New York, both last summer and the present season, have been little girls of ten and twelve whose mothers and younger brothers and sisters have been taken to Camp Woolfe, Westfield. In a number of instances two girls have been sent to one place, where they could entertain one another, and so be less care to the family where they had been placed. Notice of the opportunity to take a child for ten days was given in the churches connected with the various Endeavor Societies, and every application for children to entertain has thus far been filled.

Up to the present date eighteen children have been brought to Plainfield this summer. Several of the homes into which they have been taken are on the outskirts of this city, so that large grounds have given plenty of space for the little city waifs to run about, play games and lead more of an out-door life than they ever thought of before. Several other children have been entertained in North Plainfield homes. The churches which have come to the front in taking up this work are the Seventh-Day Baptist, the Park Avenue Baptist, Trinity and Warren chapel, of Plainfield, and the Baptist of New Market, whose Christian Endeavor Society is connected with the Plainfield City Union.

Some of the families who received the children sent out last year became so attached to their little guests that they wanted the same ones sent to them for the present season, and in most cases this has been done. Little complaint has been made of the little folks, and their entertainers have in most cases not been content with carrying out the letter of their promise, merely keeping the children in their homes for the allotted time, but have given them many things of which they were in need, and even made new clothes for them. Some of the entertainers have become so deeply interested in the welfare of their young guests that they have not lost track of them all through the year, but have watched them during the winter months.

The missionary committee of the Christian Endeavor Union has planned to bring out a new party of children August 24th or 25th, but so far no applications for children to be entertained for ten days after that date have been received. Anyone who would be willing to take children at that time can arrange to do so by communicating with Mrs. Alice Spangenberg Runyon, 1080 Arlington avenue.

WORD FROM A MISSIONARY.

Miss Maier Doing Good Among The Natives of Africa.

A recent letter received from Miss Rachel Maier, of this city, who is now a missionary in Africa, states that she is well and very much encouraged with the result of her labors. There is a large territory to cover by the missionaries who have to work hard. Miss Maier is thinking seriously of returning to her home inside of a year and her many friends will be delighted to welcome her. Since she has been away friends have shipped her many barrels of clothing and useful articles to be used for the natives who seem to appreciate all that is done for them.

Back From Klondyke.

John F. MacGregor, of Raritan, who left home and friends to explore the cold and dangerous gold fields, arrived in his native town Saturday, after a most successful journey. He left Dawson City on June 15, floating 1 00 miles down the Yukon. He shot a brown bear weighing nearly 350 pounds and had plenty of fresh meat. Mr. MacGregor is looking well and the Klondyke trip seems to have done him a world of good

BOYNTON BEACH BREEZE

ENJOYED BY NEARLY THREE THOUSAND COLORED FOLKS.

Yesterday's Excursion Was a Splendid Success—Seven Car Loads From This City Helped to Swell the Crowd.

The most successful excursion that the colored citizens of Plainfield have participated in for a number of years was that run to Boynton Beach yesterday. It was called "Salt Water Day" and was the occasion for a gathering of the various Sunday-schools of Plainfield, Newark, Elizabeth, Orange, New Brunswick, Rahway, Montclair, Red Bank and surrounding towns. There were fully 3,000 at the beach when all the trains had pulled in and been emptied of their town's quota.

Perhaps the largest crowd came from Plainfield, where seven coaches were comfortably filled with members of the Sunday-schools of Mt. Zion, Filmore, Calvary and Mt. Olive churches. The excursionists from this city were under the supervision of Messrs. G. Cannon, W. R Connett, J. W. Brook and E. E. Jackson, while the committee of arrangements consisted of J. W. Cooper, president; Wm. D. Johnson, secretary; E. B. Maynard, treasurer, who were indefatigable in their efforts to provide every degree of comfort for their guests. The excursion was conducted without accident and nothing of a serious nature happened to mar the day's pleasure.

The fact that the management made a success of the affair from a financial as well as social standpoint, is highly gratifying to all concerned. After paying all bills it was found that about $40 was on hand as a balance which would serve as a sort of nest-egg for next season's annual outing.

While at the beach the fun was rampant. All kinds of amusements were at hand and the colored folks enjoyed themselves as they had not done before in many years. The most interesting and perhaps amusing feature of the day's festivities was without doubt the cake walk—a function as dear to the heart of the colored people and as necessary to the enjoyment of an affair of this kind as is lemonade to a picnic.

The contests in the cake walk were from the various cities throughout the State and graceful movements were in profusion. The committee had some difficulty in deciding to whom the cake should be awarded. There was a close contest between a couple from New Brunswick and one from Plainfield. It was finally decided that Miss Kennetta Martin, the attractive little daughter of Henry Martin of this city, whose escort was Mosler Percy Brown, were justly entitled to walk off with the prize, which was a beautiful frosted cake made by Baker Schlief, of this city. This couple was the youngest of any competing in the contest.

The excursionists returned home about 8:30.

ASSISTING FRESH-AIR CAMP.

Plainfielders Greatly Interested in the Westfield Institution.

A party of Plainfielders, consisting of Mrs. Charles Conover, Mrs. Elvaine VanName, Miss Amanda Carman, Mrs. Edward Mosher, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins. Miss May E. Howlett, Mrs. VanNest and Edward Mosher, Jr., visited the Westfield Fresh-Air Camp yesterday afternoon and took a number of useful articles to present to the mothers at the camp for the children.

The camp has gained the interest of many Plainfielders and almost every day a party journeys to the camp either on wheel or by train. In this way the work of the helpful institution is learned about and additional support is obtained.

SILK MILL BOOMING

Stockholders Hear Encouraging Reports of the New Enterprise.

There was a regular meeting last evening of the officers of the Watchung Silk Company, and affairs were found to be in a very satisfactory condition. It was reported that ten new machines were received and have been placed in position, and it was also reported that the sale of goods was gratifying.

The mill is making goods on order only and have no trouble in disposing of the stock, in fact it was found necessary to secure additional machines to meet the demand for the goods.

A Queer Howdede

Strange as it may seem the Plainfield fire department has not received an invitation to join the borough department in the parade that is to be held on October 12th. One excuse is said to be that the city department is a paid one, hence cannot parade without the consent of the Mayor and Council.

RUIN IN THE TRACK OF THE HURRICANE.

Commissioner Carroll Receives Details From Porto Rico.

HIS INTERPRETER THERE.

REPORTS THAT THE ENTIRE CROPS OF THE ISLAND DESTROYED.

People are Absolutely Without Food, and Houses are Down by the Hundred—Seriousness of the Situation is That No One Has Money to Begin Over Again—Taxes are to be Condoned.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, United States Commissioner to Porto Rico, has just received from his interpreter, Mr. Alfred Solomon, who is still in San Juan transacting business for the Commissioner, a letter giving details of the hurricane and of the destruction it wrought. He writes under date of the 10th of August as follows:

"Hon. H. K. Carroll, Special Commissioner, Plainfield.

"Dear Sir: I have only the most unfortunate news to communicate. As I suppose you already have seen by the cable on the 8th instant the Island was visited and devastated by the most severe cyclone ever yet experienced here. It lasted about ten hours, beginning about 3 o'clock in the morning. The temporary ruin of Porto Rico is complete and the blackest outlook for the future is the only possible one. Even after two days we have no direct communication with the greater part of the island.

"So far we have heard from Humacao, Ponce Playa, Rio Piedras, Carolinas, Caguas, Cayey, Comerio and a few other towns. Every telegraph wire is down. Every river in the districts heard from has inundated the surrounding country, carrying away houses, drowing stock and people and uprooting crops. The entire crops of the island are destroyed, people are absolutely without food, and houses are down by the hundred. In Aibonito two houses are left. In Caguas more than half are down. Round the coast there is not a sugar mill undamaged. Many are a heap of ruins. Mr. Roig's, in Humacao is a rubbish pile.

"The least damage was in San Juan, where, as the houses are of stone, comparatively little harm was done. My house (formerly the headquarters of the Commissioner) had a few doors twisted from the hinges and filled with rainwater.

"All over the country the people are taking refuge in churches. In Humacao sixty deaths are reported. From Ponce City nothing is yet known, the bridges being destroyed and the River Portugues a roaring torrent, preventing all communication.

"The seriousness of the question lies in the fact that no one has money to begin afresh. New planting cannot be undertaken nor mills rebuilt. General Davis has cabled the President and realized the seriousness of the situation, but I see no real remedy except a large loan to be immediately employed in public works, and the free entry of food stuffs. As for cabotage (free coastwise trade) there is nothing left to export. I understand that all taxes on agriculture will at once be condoned. This is gratuitous, as it would be impossible to collect anything where there is nothing, but it at least prevents action being taken against holdings for the non-payment of taxes.

"Couriers have been sent in all directions to ascertain details. Each one returning brings in a fresh budget of calamities. Hardly a personal friend of mine or yours but is lamenting the loss of his possessions.

"The papers hardly say anything as they have no means of getting information. The market is bare, nothing comes in for sale. A little milk that arrived was sold for 25c. a bottle. The day after the storm I offered a dollar for some in the Mallorquina Cafe, but was refused.

"The city lamps are nearly all broken, leaving the streets in comparative darkness. The elecric plant was injured as was the ice factory. About twenty casualties in all took place in San Juan. Every vessel in Ponce Harbor is ashore, and the warehouses and custom house under water partially. Very respectfully,

A. Solemon,
Interpreter."

Contract Cases

In Justice Mosher's court the following contract cases are returnable August 23d: M. Powers against Emma VanName; M. Powers against S. Conway; M. Powers against Alfred Wilson. The contract case of M. Powers against Anna B. Stites is returnable August 24th in Justice Mattison's court. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represents Mr. Powers.

ALARM RATHER LATE

IN MEANTIME HOUSE WAS CLEARED OF THE FURNITURE.

Lamp Exploded in Bedroom of House Occupied by James Carson—Need of Fire Department a Second Consideration

A lamp on a mantle piece in a bedroom at the home of James Carson, of Belmont avenue, exploded last evening about 8 o'clock, and set fire to a feather bed and tick on the bedstead The members of the family were much frightened and began to carry things out of the house. After everything but a cook stove, desk and picture were removed, some one went to the corner of Manning and Westervelt avenues and sent in an alarm of fire from Box No. 132.

The department responded quickly and had little difficulty in extinguishing the fire. No water was used, two or three extinguishers being sufficient. The fire burned the floor, sidewalls, and a greater portion of the upper part of the house was damaged by smoke. The damage will amount to about $300 and the total insurance on house and contents is $3,300 carried by Wm. Abbott, of North avenue.

About 9:30 o'clock a second alarm was sent in from the same box and the department responded again. They were not needed, however, but the occupants of the house were frightened and thought the house would burn down. It seems that the firemen had failed to put out some smouldering embers in a corner of the room and it started up afresh. No further damage resulted.

KEAN TO PAY EXPENSES

COUNTY TO BE REIMBURSED FOR BOULEVARD PROJECT.

Report of Their Work in the Hands of Judge Codington, of This City, Who Will Present it to Judge VanSyckel.

At the last meeting of the Board of Freeholders a resolution was passed that the amount of money paid on account of the proposed boulevard be stated at the next meeting, together with the cost of the scheme to date.

It is now a month since the Westfield avenue commissioners completed their work. The report of their work is in the hands of Judge Codington, of this city, who is getting it in shape for presentation to Justice VanSyckle, for his confirmation.

Just as soon as this report is submitted to the Justice and confirmed by him, it is said by a prominent member of the Board that a certain sum, sufficient to reimburse the Board for all its expenses to date, will be paid over out of the $250,000 which Mr. Kean agreed to pay the county for the right to run his trolley line to Plainfield.

SWIFT JUSTICE FOR DOGGIE.

Pet Canine Shot Down in Sight of Mistress.

A pathetic scene was witnessed a few days ago on Jackson avenue, in the borough, when a pet dog, owned by Miss Charlotte Messersmith, was running about in front of the yard. The owner of the dog was close by and watching her favorite animal, who was doing no harm to anyone. Presently a police officer of the borough happened along and in the presence of Miss Messersmith deliberately shot the little dog. The owner was terribly frightened as well as incensed at the action of the official, and though that he was too swift in carrying out the law. Miss Messersmith is deeply grieved at the loss of her dog which she had for many years and was a family pet, but there seems to be no redress, for in the strict sense of the law the dog did not wear a cage, although he was on the property of the owner.

Eli Watching for Thieves.

Eli Odam, of Arlington avenue, has secured a position with the Central Railroad Company as a watchman. At present he is stationed at or near Jersey City, and is detailed to keep an eye open for people who misappropriate property belonging to the road and make wholesale raids on loaded coal cars. The company is bothered very much with coal thieves and they are of the daring sort who refuse to give up their job, hence the hiring of additional men to look after this class of men.

Bad Boys Stoned a House

A borough woman made a complaint to Marshal Kliner this morning that a number of small boys were stoning her house, but she refused to disclose the names of the boys, although she said she knew them. The officer therefore could do nothing in the matter.

Charged With Non-Support.

Charles A. Warnock was brought before City Judge Runyon this morning on the charge of non-support, made by his wife. It was shown that he had been out of work so the Judge postponed the case.

MONOPOLY OF WATER SUPPLY WILL END.

New Factor Appears in the Feltville Water Company.

HAS FAVORABLE LOCATION.

CAPITAL HAS JUST BEEN INCREASED TO HALF A MILLION.

The Company is Controlled by the Ackermans, of This City—Increase of Capital Marks the Beginning of Active Campaign—Controls Source of the Great Water Supply of This Section.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company is to have a rival. Frank Bergen's pet corporation, which has heretofore had a monopoly in supplying water to Plainfield, will have a competitor which will tend to reduce the water rates for city and private consumers. A despatch from the Trenton correspondent of The Daily Press tells of the increase of the capitalization of the Feltville Water Company from $10,000 to $500,000. While the news is apparently simple enough, it is really the first move on the part of that corporation to enter upon an active campaign

That little settlement back of the mountains above Scotch Plains known as Glenside Park, is a quiet resort where a few New York families find rest during the summer months. It was formerly known as Feltville. Only a short distance beyond the gathering of cottages is the top of the watershed, which, on one side, stretches down to Summit, and on the other towards Plainfield. A multitude of little springs of pure water bubble out of the ground and form the source of Plainfield's wonderful supply. Some drain eventually into the Passaic, others unite to form the stream that winds through the Notch at Scotch Plains and the other little streams that flow back of the first range of the Watchung Mountains.

There is a solidly-built dam that can back up, when needed, a huge body of water coming direct from these springs that will be nearly a mile in length and several hundred feet wide. The topography of the country has provided a natural reservoir there. This reservoir and the land in which the many springs appear is the property of the Feltville Water Company. It is so high above the rest of the surrounding country that no pumping station is necessary. The natural fall gives all the force needed to convey the water and give the required pressure.

The company was organized some years ago and its stock is almost entirely controlled by the Ackermans and their allies. The president of the corporation is Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city; the secretary, Marion S. Ackerman, of Plainfield, and the treasurer, Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains.

The Feltville Water Company has already a system of pipes and supplies many households in the immediate vicinity and near Scotch Plains. No extensive system has yet been attempted, however. The water supplied rivals that of Plainfield for its purity.

The move on the part of the Feltville Water Company to enlarge its capital is without doubt the first step to enter the field in supplying water to the neighboring cities and towns. On one side lies Summit where there has been considerable trouble over the water supply. On the other is Plainfield, where the time is now approaching when the present contracts with the Plainfield Water Supply Company will expire. The Feltville Company has undoubtedly one advantage over its rival in that it taps the source of the water supply at a higher point.

Of course it is impossible to tell as yet what the owners of the Feltville Company expect to do next. The mere fact, however, that the monopoly of the Frank Bergen Company is over and that there is to be a rival in the field is of great importance to Plainfield and may be the means of putting an entire new light on the future plans of the City Fathers for supplying Plainfield with its water.

"Jumbo" Lewis Pleaded Guilty.

Last Monday Judge Bartine, of Somerville, held a special session and among those who appeared and pleaded guilty was George A. Lewis, of North Plainfield, who was charged with stealing two egg-plants, valued at 40 cents, from the garden of Charles W. McCutchen, of Washington Park. Judge Bartine decided to lay this and the other cases over till Friday, August 25, at which time sentence will be announced.

Mrs. Fred Haberle, of West Front street, has returned from her vacation spent in the mountains.

American Troops Capture Angeles After a Hard Fight With the Natives.

ENEMY THERE IN FORCE.

Col. Smith, With Ten Companies of Infantry and Two Guns Routs Aguinaldo's Followers.

Major Simpson Completes a Map of the Island of Luzon Giving Location of Our Forces—Secretary Root Will Follow Fall Campaign in Detail.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—An important despatch from Gen. Otis has been received at the War Department. The occupation of Angeles is regarded by War Department officials as unusually important. Gen. Otis considers Angeles a valuable strategic position, and it is proposed to make it a permanently occupied post. The efforts of the American forces have been directed toward the capture of this place ever since the rainy season began. His despatch is as follows:

"Manila, Aug. 16.

"Adjutant General, Washington.

"MacArthur's troops occupy country from Candalia to point near Angeles; thence toward Porac, taking within his line Santa Rita, Guamua, Bacolor. Col. Smith with ten companies Twelfth Infantry and two guns First Artillery, attacked enemy in entrenchments outskirts Angeles, estimated at 2,500, driving them north and inflicting upon them reported loss of two hundred killed and wounded; our loss, two killed and twelve wounded. On 11th inst. General Young's troops, consisting of 4th Cavalry, [illegible] and 25th Infantry, drove [illegible] northeast of Manila through [illegible] San Mateo, into mountain[illegible] following day. Column [illegible] five hundred strong des[illegible] east of Balinag for the purpose of [illegible] railway; driven by our Balinag and Quinga troops and routed yesterday; this force in full retreat northward, carrying a number of their wounded officers. Angeles will be permanently occupied at once.

"OTIS."

Major Simpson has completed a large map of the Island of Luzon, giving positions occupied by the American forces. The map was prepared for the Secretary of War and on it will be posted each change of any of our troops. Secretary Root has taken a great interest in the proposed campaign in the Philippines and by means of the map will keep under his personal observation every movement of the troops on the island. On the receipt of the despatch from General Otis, showing the positions occupied by General MacArthur's forces, the changes were immediately noted on the map. Secretary Root proposes to follow in detail in this way the whole campaign this fall, and will to a great extent assume the direction of certain operations.

The United States Army.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—These army orders have been issued:

Captain William H. Coffin, Fifth artillery, is detailed as a member of the Board of Officers instead of Major Charles Morris, Seventh artillery, relieved. The place of meeting of the board to be at Fort Wadsworth, N. Y.

Following transfers are made in the Fifth cavalry:—First Lieutenant Samuel G. Jones, from Troop G to Troop M; First Lieutenant Frank Parker, from Troop M to Troop G.

Acting assistant Surgeon A. W. Williams will proceed from New York to Camp Meade, Middletown, Pa., and report to the commanding officer, Twenty-seventh infantry, for duty to accompany that regiment to Manila.

Second Lieutenant George T. Bowman, Thirty-sixth Infantry, will proceed to Fort Porter, N. Y., and report to the commanding officer of that post for duty to accompany recruits to Manila.

Acting Assitant Surgeon Compton Wilson will proceed from New York to Washington, D. C., and report to surgeon general of the army for instructions.

First Lieutenant Clarence H. McNeil, Fifth Artillery, will report for duty to the superintendent of the Military Academy.

Second Lieutenant George G. Goodrich, Thirty-second Infantry, will proceed to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and report to his regimental commander for duty.

Leave for one month is granted to Captain Harry B. Mulford, Thirty-second Infantry.

Leave for one month is granted to Major Edward A. Goodwin, Seventh Cavalry.

Acting Assistant Surgeon J. Samuel White will proceed to San Francisco, Cal., and report to cammanding general, Department of California, for duty.

Americans Capture a Town.

Manila, Aug. 17.—The Filipinos have just sustained a severe defeat before Angeles. Ten companies of the Twelfth Infantry, with two cannon, attacked 2,500 Filipinos who were worsted and driven away in disorder. Their loss was 200 men. The Americans had two killed and twelve wounded. The Twelfth occupied Angeles and is holding the town.

Battered Ships in Port.

New York, Aug. 17.—Two steamships that were caught in the West Indian hurricane are in port here in a badly damaged condition. They are the Beverly, with four women and two children as passengers, and the Harold. They were in the open sea, and only survived by keeping headed from land. The sailors describe the experience as frightful.

Cyclone Swept Over Uruguay.

Montevideo, Aug. 17.—A cyclone swept over this part of the country, causing much damage to property. Several fatalities have been reported.

ONLY NEGROES IN THIS CITY

It Has 100 Houses, Three Churches and no Saloon.

Anniston, Ala., Aug. 17.—By a vote of 90 per cent. of the registered voters, Hudson City has decided to be the most unique city in the United States, in that it will be the only exclusively negro town in the country.

The election was by order of the Probate Court to decide whether or not the town should be incorporated. Incorporation was carried unanimously, not a single vote being cast against it.

The town is located three miles from Anniston and has 400 population, all negroes, and contains 100 houses, three churches, a school house, several stores and no saloon.

At the election the entire town turned out, the men to vote, the women to see that they voted right, and not a drop of whiskey or the least disorder was in evidence.

Following the incorporation will be the most unique experiment in town government ever made in Alabama. Within five days the municipal election will be ordered and the negroes will select city officials, every one of whom will be colored.

Price of Meat Goes Up.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Packers at the Union Stock Yards have announced another increase in the price of meats. They say there is no prospect of a return of lower prices, but on the contrary further advances may be expected. Steaks that sold at retail for 18 cents a pound three months ago have been pushed up to 21 and 22 cents, and retail dealers complain it is difficult to get the amount of prime meat their trade demands.

Two reasons, but both of the same nature, are given by the packers for the advance in prices. More meat is eaten in this country, they say, than ever before, and the demand for export is unprecedented. There has been no falling off in the supply, but the increased demand has raised the price of beef on the hoof, and the price of dressed meat has gone up even more. Dried salted and smoked meats have felt the effects of a larger demand, and the prices for these, too, have been advanced. Hams are bringing from 3 to 4 cents a pound more than they did a few weeks ago.

Whitecaps Whipping Negroes.

Greenwood, S. C., Aug. 17.—Since Monday night of last week a gang of whitecaps has been almost nightly whipping negroes in this county. The scene of operation is between Greenwood, the court-house town, and Phoenix, the little country village where the election riots of last November took place. The farms are owned principally by white planters, many of whom rent to negroes, and the community is consequently thickly settled by negroes. It was in this district that a white man named Etheridge was killed at the polls by negroes led by white Republicans and several negroes were lynched.

The negroes are in a state of terror and they now spend the night either in the woods and swamps or at the houses of their white landlords. Many of them have come to this town and refuse to return to their homes. The sheriff has telegraphed the Governor for assistance.

Rate War Opens Again.

New York, Aug. 17.—The Erie Railroad announces a rate of $18.45 for the round trip between Chicago and New York.

There is at present no round trip between the two cities, the standard one-way rate being $20. The rate to be made by the Erie, therefore, is less than a single fare. At the same time corresponding rates will be made to all intermediate points from New York.

There will also be a rate of $15.35 for the round trip between Cincinnati and New York, the one-way rate being $18. Between Cleveland and New York a round trip rate of $14 will be made, against a one-way rate of $13.

These rates will be placed in effect during the first four days of September, the return coupons being good at any time during the month. The rates are put in to meet the rate demand between Chicago and Philadelphia for the annual encampment of the G. A. R.

Cubans Are Discontented.

Havana, Aug. 17.—A dispatch received here from Pueblo, Province of Santa Clara, says that on the day appointed for the holding of a meeting to protest against the appointments to the Audiencias for the province, many leaflets were distributed broadcast, saying: "Down with the foreign administration! Long live federalism," and calling the Department of Justice a foreign body. The "Diario de la Marina," commenting on the "Patria's" call to Cubans to join the proposed Latin-American Union, says the movement was suggested by the action of Cubans who threw themselves into the arms of the Americans. Cuba, the "Diario" declares, could only join the Latin-American Union by an act of rebellion, as Cuba is now "merely a vassal of President McKinley."

Child Drowned in a Trough.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Willie, the two-year-old son of Ira Ost, employed by John Peavy & Brother, No. 13 Washington place, New York, was drowned in a watering trough at Greenville, six miles east of here, where his mother was visiting. Samuel Potts, a workman, was lying under a tree, near the child playing at the trough. He heard a gurgling sound and found the boy leaning over the trough with his face in the water. When he placed him in his mother's arms a moment later the child was dead.

Children Saved by a Dog.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 17.—A big dog named Fritz is the hero of the Canaan mountain side, for he saved three children from being eaten by wildcats. The children, Bessie Crosby and Annie and Susie Bailey, were lost while gathering berries. After a forty-eight-hour search they were found. They had been surrounded by wildcats the night before and the dog drove the beasts away.

New Orleans Goes to San Juan.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The New Orleans has sailed from Santo Domingo City for San Juan.

SHALL WE DISPUTE

The Opinions Of Scores Of Our Fellow Citizens.

Residents of Plainfield, like other American citizens, in making an investment want to be sure of getting the worth of their money. They want to know all the whys and wherefores, and in a direct ratio to the value of the investment they borrow and ferret until satisfied with the collateral. Take an instance in the realm of proprietary articles. If we know of a friend who has been cured, we have some faith in the preparations; if we know of two or three our faith increases. If the cures reach scores, all well known citizens, and anyone who still maintains that there is nothing beyond ordinary merit in the said preparation can safely be left to care of his fellow taxpayers. If he wishes to pick a quarrel with them on the question of their judgment or veracity, he has ample opportunity in Plainfield to do so. Begin with this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of No. 86 Summit avenue, says:—"I suffered times with a severe pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore, and though I used plasters they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling very badly when I had my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills. They were so highly recommeded for troubles like mine that I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I felt their good effects in a few days, and when I had finished the treatment my back was better and stronger, and I had much more energy to attend household duties. Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement and I am always pleased to recommend them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

DEMANDS NOT MODIFIED.

British Agent Denies that New Letters Have Been Sent to Transvaal Government.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

The War Office Has Completed Arrangements for an Emergency Force of 20,000 Men.

Delay in the Boer Answer to Great Britain's Demand Makes Matters Present a Serious Appearance—Ships for Transporting Troops Are Awaiting Orders.

Pretoria, Aug. 17.—The British agent here denies that fresh communications have been addressed by Great Britain to the Transvaal government, or that there have been any modifications of the British demands.

It appears to be an assured fact that Great Britain does not propose to recede in the least from the attitude assumed in the Transvaal controversy, and that if the demands are not met within a reasonable length of time, war will be the only means of settling the differences. It is an open secret that both sides are making active preparations for hostilities, and that the gravity of the situation increases in seriousness from day to day is conceded on all sides.

While it has been the hope of those most deeply interested that a peaceful settlement of the difficulties would be reached, it must be admitted that the hope along this line of thought has been considerably shattered by developments that have come to the surface within the past few days.

Ready to Fight the Boers.

London, Aug. 17.—The Transvaal situation is unchanged, according to all obtainable official information. But the continued delay of the Boer answer to Great Britain's demand for a joint inquiry as to the effect upon the Outlanders of the proposed franchise reform measures makes matters look more serious. The War Office has completed its preparations for an emergency force of 20,000 men to be ready to leave within a week. Fast steamers for their transport are waiting orders. It is said that the Grenadier Guards, now at Gibraltar, and the Twenty-first Lancers, now in Egypt, may be sent to South Africa in addition to the other regiments which have already been ordered there.

Mystery Still Unsolved.

Greenport, L. I., Aug. 17.—Coroner Clarence Miles took charge of the investigation of the severed body of a man found on the shore opposite here. The Coroner believes that the finding of a small boat called a "sharpie," off shore, about a week ago, may have some connection with the mystery, but admits that thus far there is no evidence to establish it.

Episcopal Church Burned.

Westchester, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The beautiful St. Peter's Episcopal Church here, one of the most celebrated edifices in the country, was destroyed by fire. The stone walls and the lofty tower of the building are standing begrimed with smoke, but the interior, with all the costly furnishings, was consumed. The loss is nearly $100,000.

Gentry Breaks a Record.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Five thousand persons paid to get into the grounds of the Rochester Driving Park to see the big race between Joe Patchen, John R. Gentry and Searchlight. John R. Gentry won in two straight heats, in 2:03½ and 2:04¼. The track record of 2:04½ held by Hal Pointer, was broken in this event.

The Cramps Ask More Time.

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—As a result of the difficulty in obtaining iron and steel, the William Cramp & Son's Ship and Engine Building Company has asked the Russian Government for a short extension of time on the cruiser Variag and the battleship Retvizan, now building at the yard. No answer has been received.

Shot in Mistake for a Pest.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 17.—Godfrey Transue was shot and instantly killed by his friend and neighbor, Hampton Predmore, who mistook his head for a groundhog. There is a pest of the animals, and the friends were crouched in the tall grass waiting to shoot them. Transue began to crawl toward Predmore, when the latter fired.

Young Griffo is Dying.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Once again the report is in circulation that Young Griffo, the noted Australian pugilist, is dying. He is at the Dunning Insane Asylum here, where he was sent a few months ago. The reports say physicians are of the opinion that he cannot survive more than three weeks.

Siezed Arms Intended for Jiminez.

Havana, Aug. 17.—Lieut. Schaum, collector of customs at Baracoa, in the Province of Santiago, has seized 143 carbines and 18,000 rounds of ammunition that were evidently intended for Sante Domingo. Twenty-five men are under close watch, as they are apparently planning to take arms to San Domingo.

Crash on the Canadian Pacific.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—The westbound Imperial Limited on the Canadian Pacific Railway, which left Montreal, collided with an eastbound freight train just west of Sudbury, Ontario. The engineer on the Imperial Limited was killed and several others injured.

Strikers Return to Work.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug 17.—The sympathetic strike at Nixon's shipyards ended. Eighty platers and finishers have returned to work on piece work. The rest of the men, about twenty riveters, will return on the piece work basis.

FATAL FIRE AT MT. GRETNA

Fifteen Cottages Destroyed and One Woman Burned to Death.

Lebanon, Pa., Aug. 17.—Fifteen cottages at the Mt. Gretna camp meeting were destroyed by fire. Several persons were badly hurt, and for a time the entire camp, together with the Chautauqua buildings, was threatened with destruction. The fire was started in one of the cottages by a gasoline explosion. One of the women campers placed a pail of gasoline which she thought was water on the stove. There was a violent explosion, and the burning gasoline was scattered in all directions.

Mrs. William Miller, of Harrisburg, wife of a Pennsylvania railroad conductor, was completely enveloped in flames. Several men ran to her rescue and with difficulty got her out of the fire, but she was so badly burned that she did in an hour. Those who rescued her were badly injured. There being no fire apparatus on hand help was telegraphed for and the Perseverance Fire Company of this place responded. Several cottages had to be torn down to save the camp from complete destruction.

The fire started about the middle of the camp. Mrs. Miller's daughter, Gertrude, a school teacher of Harrisburg, was with her.

Anxiety for Two Steamships.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 17.—Two missing steamships are causing concern here. The vessels, which should have arrived not later than Wednesday morning, are the City of Augusta, of the Ocean Steamship Co., from New York, and the Decatur H. Miller, of the Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Co., from Baltimore. Each of them left port on Saturday afternoon. The City of Augusta is now fully thirty hours overdue, and the Miller almost as much. The latter is a slower boat than the Augusta. The agents of the steamships say there should be no cause for great alarm. They think the masters of the ships have run them out to sea to avoid bad weather along the coast.

Want the Principal Ousted.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 17.—Governor Foster H. Voorhees was waited upon by David P. Hall, chairman of the Reformatories Committee of the State Charities Aid Association, who urged upon him the necessity of taking the necessary steps to put an end to the abuses at the Trenton School for Girls by deposing Principal Myrtle B. Eyler. This action of the committee is due to the exposure of the cruelties inflicted upon many of the inmates of the school by Mrs. Eyler and her subordinates. Ever since charges were made against Mrs. Eyler the committee has been quietly conducting an investigation on its own account.

Runner Burke to Quit.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Tom Burke, who ran for Harvard in the English games, has arrived home and makes the statement that he is through with running. He declares that he will never enter again in competition on the cinder path. This statement has been quoted from him once before, but his friends hoped that they could cheer him up and convince him that he was only discouraged. Their effort failed, and it would seem as if his statement must be taken as a final one.

Miss Jewett Going South.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 17.—Miss Lillian Clayton Jewett, who brought the Daker family of negroes from the South, announces that she is about to return to the South to carry on her campaign against lynching. She said that she would go first to Georgia and deliver addresses, after which she might go to Cedarhurst, the town in Georgia where an attempt was made about two weeks ago to lynch a young negro.

Arrests in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—Four boys, whose ages range from 16 to 19, have been arrested here in connection with the attempt to blow up two cars on July 23, during the strike. The boys are Henry Kromer, Charles Young, Lorin Solinski and Manly Friedman, and are charged with being suspicious persons. The police will probably arrest several more persons in this connection.

Infidel Leaves Fortune to Charity.

Kansas City, Aug. 17.—The will of Joseph Benoist, who died here this week, proves to be a most remarkable document. Although he was an Infidel, Benoist left all but $4,000 of his fortune of $150,000 to religious and charitable organizations. The Christian Brothers' College, of St. Louis, is the principal legatee, getting about $80,000.

Cannibal Island is for Sale.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Tiburon Island, a cannibal country in the Gulf of California, is for sale. General Andrade has secured it from the Mexican Government, in a concession that passed several other islands, and wants to dispose of his man-eating property. There are but sixty cannibals left, and it is suggested that these are tame.

Branin Dies of His Injuries.

Mount Holly, N. J., Aug. 17.—Levi J. Branin, a prosperous farmer of Chairville, who was seriously gored by a bull, died of his injuries. It was found that the neck had been pierced by the horns of the animal, a leg was punctured and several ribs were broken. Paralysis settled over Branin's entire body.

Deer Season is Open.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The deer season is open and will continue until November 14. Deer are reported to be more plentiful than in the last twenty-five years. It is estimated that there are between twenty-five thousand and thirty thousand in the Adirondacks. The deer are tame and will not be shy of the hunters.

Has Proofs of a Conspiracy.

Paris, Aug. 17.—The "Matin" asserts that M. Fabe, the magistrate, now has proofs of a conspiracy against the Republican Government, and the Orleanist party has expended considerable sums in Nationalist propaganda.

TEETH.

If you have any to be extracted remembe you will not be hurt in the slightest. My loca. anæsthetic is the best that can be obtained and is not known to the other dentists in this city. Gas strictly fresh administered by an expert if you want that. If you need artificial teeth you may rest assured that the greatest care will be exercised in selecting shape and color to harmonize with the face, also to restore the features to their natural expression and fullness. LAURA. I bought my first supply of Ripans Tabules more out of curiosity than anything else, and was very much surprised at the good results which followed their use. I had often seen them advertised, but being a little prejudiced against patent medicines I thought they would do me no good. In future I never want to be without them. I had been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia for a long time, and although I tried many kinds of medicine, I never found anything really to do me much good until I tried Ripans Tabules.

THE HORROR IN PORTO RICO

Arrivals From Ponce Tell Sad Stories of the Hurricane.

New York, Aug. 17.—Several persons have arrived here aboard the steamship Philadelphia, from Ponce, Porto Rico, who were in that place when the island was swept by hurricane. The vessel arrived at the port of Ponce two days after the place had been devastated by the storm, and remained for three days.

There is a radical change in the appearance of the harbor since the storm. Big buildings along the water have been razed, and when the Philadelphia arrived nearly all the vessels in harbor were either sunk or ashore. Stores of coffee and sugar were to be found in most unexpected places. The carcasses of horses were found in trees fifteen feet above the level of the roadway near tidewater.

One of the passengers who arrived on the Philadelphia said that in driving from the city of Ponce to the harbor, he had passed a cemetery, in which there were 378 bodies awaiting identification before burial. There was ruin on every side and thousands were without food or homes.

The military bridge erected by General Miles last year has been swept away. In the houses that remain standing the mud and general debris fill all of the cellars and lower floors.

During the storm three large houses of Ponce were swept to sea with all of their occupants, who have not since been heard from.

Residents of the city told him of one man who was blown against a heavy wall by the hurricane and flattened out like a mass of dough. When the wind moderated his shapeless body fell to the ground. Another story told was of a woman who was sut in half by a zinc roof which was flying along on the gale.

Nearly all of the water mains of the city are burst. The horror of the situation, he declares, beggars description.

It is officially reported from Washington that the death list in Porto Rico is upwards of 2,000 and many more are dying every day from injury, exposure, disease and starvation.

Fusion Ticket in Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 17.—The Democratic State Convention nominated the following ticket:

Governor—Fred E. White, Keokuk County.

Lieutenant Governor—M. I. Bevis, Montgomery County.

Judge Supreme Court—A. Van Wagenen, Woodbury County.

Railway Commissioner—W. H. Calhonu, Marshall County.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—B. P. Holst, Boone County.

The Populist State Convention also met and indorsed the above ticket.

Kronman is Innocent.

New York, Aug. 17.—After doing their best to convict an innocent man of the murder of his wife, the police have made two arrests that promise to clear up the Kronman mystery. They believe at last they have the real murderer, and concede what the public all along has believed to be a fact—that Kronman knew nothing more about the murder of his wife than the veriest street urchin playing in front of the house where she lay dead.

Cabinet Members See President.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Secretary of State Hay, accompanied by his son, has returned to his summer home in New Hampshire. Attorney General Griggs and family have arrived here and are quartered in Cottage No. 4, near the hotel. They will remain two weeks. On the same train came Secretary Hitchcock, who will remain several days. All called upon President and Mrs. McKinley soon after their arrival.

Spine is Clotted.

Poughkeepsie, Aug. 17.—Although they held an autopsy on a child who died of the strange paralysis, the doctors are unable to state what caused death. Dr. Brooks, of the New York Post Graduate Hospital, assisted in the examination of the body of baby John Sokolsky. He found the organs in normal condition except that the spine was congested. A microscopical examination will be made of this.

Will Help Sail the Shamrock.

London, Aug. 17.—As Emperor William's yacht the Meteor has finished her racing season, Captain "Ben" Parker, the skipper of that craft, and eleven members of her crew, have received permission from His Majesty to start for the United States immediately in order to help sail the Shamrock in the races for the America's Cup.

Hayward's Condition is Improved.

Omaha, Aug. 17.—Reports received from Brownville are to the effect that the conditions of United States Senator Hayward is improved. His mind is clearer, he is some stronger and there are no indications of a relapse.

The Cruel Mantis

It is as observant and quick as a monkey, as sly and stealthy as a cat; it is the tiger not the saint, of the insect world. Its so-called devotional attitude is simply nothing but a lying in wait for what the gods may send in the shape of food. Establishing itself, as if in rapture, upon some twig or leaf, it will remain thus absolutely stationary, prepared to seize any unwary insect that may fall within convenient reach. After it exhibits a wonderful degree of patience, let us say an insect happens to alight within a short distance of it. Instantly it catches sight of the new-comer and begins, with slow, silent tread, to steal toward it. So imperceptible the motion, it can only be appreciated by steady and prolonged watching. At the same time the forelegs, which up till now had been bent back upon themselves, commence to open. Little by little the hunter creeps near its unconscious prey, its goggle eye staring upon this object of absorbing interest. At last it is close enough to strike, and with celerity of movement the eye cannot follow a formidable foreleg is shot out to its full length and brings back the victim, hopelessly secured and crushed between the shank and thigh, and scarcely more than a moment is lost ere the body is torn to pieces and devoured.

DREYFUS TRIAL CONTINUES

Major Carriere the Prosecutor, Refuses to Grant Any Postponement.

BUT FEW IDLERS PRESENT

The Widow of Colonel Henry, Who Committed Suicide, One of the Most Important Witnesses.

Dreyfus Tells of His Terrible Five Years Suffering While in Prison on the Island—Labori's Condition—A Startling Announcement About Du Paty de Clam.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—Fewer idlers than usual stood about the Lycee to watch the entrance of the persons who were privileged to attend the session of the Dreyfus court-martial. There was a small group outside the court when Capt. Dreyfus crossed from the prison to the Lycee under guard.

Maitre Demange, the senior counsel for the defence, immediately made formal application for an adjournment of the trial, pleading as his reason the bsence of his colleague, Maitre Labori, on account of the wound received at the hands of a would-be assassin. He informed the court of M. Labori's condition, pointing out that the defence was badly handicapped by the wounded advocates's absence, and entered his plea by supporting Capt. Dreyfus's leter to the court applying for a suspension of the trial.

Major Carriere, the prosecutor, considering the uncertainty of M. Labori's presence and the importance of the public considerations, said he felt compelled to oppose the application. It was true, he said, that the defence had been weakened by the deplorable event of Monday, but it was still much better equipped than the officers of the prosecution.

The court withdrew to consider the motion. At the expiration of twenty minutes the judges returned and the president announced that the court's unanimous decision was that it would be impossible to grant M. Demange's motion. The announcement caused murmurs in the audience.

The most important witness of the day was the widow of Col. Henry, the French officer who committed suicide in prison after confession to forging certain documents in the case. With pale face and hand upraised before the crucifix she took the oath to tell the truth.

Mme. Henry is of medium height and has a common cast of features and certainly could not be ascribed as attractive. SShe at once put herself at ease, leaning forward with both hands resting on the rail of the witness stand.

In an attitude of complete self-possession she gave her evidence, accompanying the words with frequent gestures. Her evidence, however, was of little weight.

She admitted the frequent visits of Esterhazy to her husband and declared her husband told her he had forged one document "in order to save the honor of the country."

She gave her evidence in a very matter-of-fact way and was in nowise the sympathetic figure the anti-Dreyfusites have tried to make her.

The feature of the day's proceedings was the story of the sufferings of Dreyfus on Devil's Island, his prison off the coast of French Guinea.

Dreyfus wept in court when the clerk read a document recounting the details of his incarceration.

Col. Jouaust, President of the court-martial, asked Dreyfus if he had any questions to put to the witness, and he replied in an emotional voice:

"No. I am here to defend my honor. I do not wish to speak of the atrocious suffering which for five years I, a Frenchman and an innocent man, suffered on the Ile du Diable.

The court adjourned for the day after more unimportant testimony.

Labori Continues to Improve.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—M. Labori continues to improve. The chief difficulty is his weakness from loss of blood and the shock. He is still eager to resume his place at the trial, and as long as this is possible the doctors will not attempt to remove the bullet, but will devote themselves simply to quick healing of the wound and restoration of the patient's strength.

Was only Part of the Plot.

Paris, Aug. 17.—Evidence that the shooting of M. Labori was part of the far-reaching Royalist plot accumulates rapidly. The conspirators aimed first to destroy M. Labori and secondly to kill Dreyfus and his friends. The Government and the Dreyfusites know the plotters and their plans and have evidence showing the wide and deep ramifications of the conspirators.

Wants to Tell all He Knows.

Paris, Aug. 17.—The "Laterne" announced that it is authoried to say that ex-Lieutenant-Colonel du Paty de Clam is anxious to declare everything he knows regarding the Dreyfus case. He is completely disgusted, it is said, with the treatment he has received at the hands of his former associates.

Looking for Assassin in Paris.

Paris, Aug. 17.—All the researches at Rennes and in the country round for the assassin of Maitre Labori have proved fruitless. The police think he is back in Paris, and researches are being made there.

Yellow Fever Attacks Marines.

Havana, Aug. 17.—A clerk at General Brooke's headquarters has been stricken down with yellow fever. The marines on guard at the Navy Department will be sent to New York at once and held there in quarantine, as the fever has appeared among them.

Professor Bunsen Dead.

Heidelberg, Germany, Aug. 17.—Prof. Robert Wilhelm Eberhard Bunsen, M. D., the chemist, is dead. He was born March 13, 1811, at Gottingen.

COMING EVENTS.

August 20—Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m.

An Important Issue.

According to a Trenton special to the Paterson Press a question of grave importance may have been raised between the State of New Jersey and the United States by claims of the latter through its department of Internal Revenue, upon this State for the payment of stamp duties on certain documents used in the administration of our State Government.

It is stated that this claim of the United States is held by the Attorney General of this State to be in subversion of a principle which the latter official regards as authoritatively settled by the highest Courts, namely, that the Federal Government cannot tax the instrumentalities or revenues of a State. The State Department at Trenton, which the U. S. Collector insists shall place revenue stamps upon some official bonds which have been filed with that department since the Internal Revenue act went into operation, acting under the opinion of the law adviser of the State that such documents cannot be made subject to the stamp duty, has refused to affix the stamps. The U. S. Collector has threatened to place the claim of his department in the hands of the U. S. Attorney for collection, and thus the matter stood at last advices. The Press says that "if this claim is pressed into the courts it will obviously raise a question of great importance, probably involving the right of the Federal Government to impose internal revenue taxes upon other State Governments, as it is to be presumed that the same effort that is now being made to collect a tax from New Jersey has been or will be applied to every State which uses similar instrumentalities in its system of government. It is possible, however, that the United States has chosen New Jersey for a test case."

THE LYCEE AT RENNES.

The Lycee (high school) at Rennes is a fine building of the Renaissance school of architecture. As the scene of the Dreyfus court martial it is attracting wide attention and will doubtless hereafter be one of the great show places of France. The prison in which Dreyfus was placed when brought back from Devil's Island is just across the street from the Lycee.

The return of General Sewell from his European tour has signalized greater activity in Republican circles, and as a consequence a conference of the leaders in that party will be held at Cape May the latter part of this week when, besides Senator Sewell, the following big guns will be there to discuss the situation in politics: United States Senator John Kean, Governor Voorhees, Senator Mahlon Pitney, Congressman H. C. Loudenslager, State Controller W. S. Hancock, County Clerk Gummere, of Trenton; Senator Miller, of Salem; Senator Johnson and Sheriff Baird, of Camden; and ex Congressman Hires. It is also expected that Vice-President Hobart may come. The situation in New Jersey in general will no doubt be thoroughly gone over.

The suspension of business by the firm of G. L. VanEmburgh & Son is a cause for extreme regret by all who knew or ever had transactions with them. No more honorable merchants ever dealt in this city, a final demonstration of which fact is their assignment at the present time when they are able to pay their creditors dollar for dollar rather than extend their business to a period when greater sacrifices would be entailed. The Messrs. VanEmburgh are merchants who have always been a credit to the business men of Plainfield, and it is the sincere wish of all that they may eventually land on their feet and resume their business with success and prosperity.

The story is in circulation at Washington that ex-Speaker Reed will stay in Washington to fight expansion. Those who believe in this latest rumor assert that Mr. Reed is now satisfied that the campaign in the Philippines will not be brought to a successful close within the next few months and that he intends therefore to take his seat in the House and head the anti-expansionist movement. This course is to be taken, it is argued, for the purpose of securing the Presidential nomination in 1900 against McKinley, Mr. Reed believing that there is a strong latent sentiment among Republicans throughout the country against imperialism.

The Union county boulevard project is as dead as a door nail, but the taxpayers will undoubtedly have some legacies in this connection that will not be particularly popular with taxpayers. One of them is already evidenced in Westfield, where the Township Committee has called upon the Board of Freeholders to repair North avenue. The portion of this thoroughfare within the township was seized as a county road to further the scheme of the county boulevard and Senator Kean's trolley line. If the Freeholders do not go to the expense of making repairs they will be asked to rescind their action in appropriating the street.

More students tried entrance examinations at Princeton University this year than ever before, but on account of the higher standard entrance requirements, the class numbers twenty-four students less than the Freshman Class of last year. According to the report of Register H. N. VanDyke the number of students in the class come respectively from the following States, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. The foreign countries represented are Brazil, Canada, England, Egypt, Germany, India, Japan, Corea, and Syria.

The shrewd merchant realizes that late summer advertising catches the early fall trade, and that there is nothing so likely to contribute to a successful season than an early start in the use of printer's ink.

The Passaic News prints an editorial on "Snow Shoveling Law." Isn't The News rushing the season just a little bit.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A well informed person speaking a few days ago about the prevailing sickness in this city remarked that it is no wonder that people are ill when it is considered how much the streets have been and are being torn up. Throughout the entire summer almost every week an excavation of some kind has been made in some street in the city, and in some cases the street has been left open for a time. It has also been noticed that people living near these excavations are just the ones to be taken ill. It is a well established fact that where there is much excavating sickness prevails and it seems as though the fact has become a reality in this city.

* * * * *

It has been suggested that inasmuch as it is impossible to have an American flag displayed from the city flag pole, that the proper permit be given to Dr. Shaw allowing him to display the weather signals from the staff. This would be a benefit to the whole community for residents for miles around could learn quickly what kind of weather is predicted. Those living at a great distance could use a field glass and thus a long walk could be saved. It required a good amount of money to purchase the pole, and the school children did nobly in contributing their pennies for the piece that ornaments the top, and the telephone company was generous in putting the pole up, but no one can be found with a sufficient amount of courage to see that "Old Glory" floats to the breeze every day.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee." It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15 and 25c.

AMERICAN STEAM LAUNDRY,
122 East Front Street.

By our new process of ironing we are enabled to give you a perfect domestic finish, and to launder turn down collars without breaking them. Call and see how we do it; you are welcome to inspect our plant at all times; no mystery about our work.

Hand work on all shirt waists, cost a little more, but perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

"Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before."

Already our store begins to take on a more sombre hue, due to the arrival of large quantities of new goods for the approaching Fall business, a sort of advance guard for the coming campaign. Business methods have been revolutionized in the last few years, and wideawake merchants must lay plans far ahead of each season, if their customers are to have the best of everything the market can furnish. For months we have been actively preparing for what we hope shall be the busiest season in the history of our constantly growing business. Many lines of goods have been carefully looked over, in some cases entirely rejected, from some only the choice things selected. Mill orders for Blankets, Underwear and sundry winter goods have been placed, and goods are being made before the grand rush, insuring better values.

We came to Plainfield to give its people an up-to-date store, and one that should be worthy of so fair a city. With your cordial support we are fast approaching our Ideal.

Fall Dress Suitings.

Double face plaid golf suiting will be almost universally worn Splendid, warm, durable and economical goods they are. Require no lining. We are showing some exceedingly choice patterns already, with many others to come as the mills are able to fill orders. Heavy Plaid Sackings also for Golf Capes. They make remarkably stylish garments and are not extravagantly expensive.

Black Crepons.

In our opinion no more beautiful goods were ever made from Mohair. Heavy, rich patterns, bright lustre, absolutely fast color elegant beyond description. The patterns we are showing were selected early and are the best obtainable. Prices 75c to $1 98, the last mentioned we will guarantee to be worth $2 50, or money will be refunded.

Black Goods.

Our line of Black Goods is always complete. Ladies who desire black goods should by all means see our goods. We have a special 46 in Black Henrietta at $1.00 per yard, that is exceptional value. French Serges, Broad Cloths, Cheviots, Cashmeres, Velours and Fancy weaves in variety.

Extreme Novelties in Colored Dress Goods we carefully avoid, but Broadcloths, Coverts, Cashmeres, Henriettas, Granite Cloths, Cheviots, Storm Serges, Diagonals, etc., we have in the best shades.

New Wash Goods.

Flanneletts. The very name is attractive, but the goods are far more so. Rich, warm colors, fine soft fabrics we predict for them a very large sale, certainly we know of nothing else so beautiful for inexpensive house dresses.

Outing Flannels.

more perfectly finished than ever, and too beautiful to describe. They are pre-eminently the goods for the masses, for everybody from the most humble to the grandest people use them.

About Table Linens.

The last large purchase of ours has served simply to whet the appetite of our people for more and has stimulated us to greater efforts along this line. Another large purchase of these goods includes 5 patterns of 70-in pure linen damask the actual value of which is 75c per yard. While they last we shall sell them at 50c per yard. We are not sure of being able to get more of the same. If interested BUY NOW. In the same purchase we secured 51 doz (all) Hemmed Huck Towels, 17 x 35. They are selling at 10 cents each They are worth 15 cents each. We show a line of Plaid Glass Towelings that rivals that of any we have seen

All Summer Goods including Shirt Waists, Crash Skirts, Pique Skirts, and wash goods in general are being shamefully sacrificed to get them out the way. We have no further use for them and need the room for newer goods.

Come in and get acquainted with us. This is your store as well as ours With your help we are going to make it an establishment that we may all be proud of.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 17—Notwithstanding the hue and cry about the Watchung Water Company in regard to the possibility of the company furnishing the citizens with pure water, and the rumor that the water to be supplied to the borough was to be taken from Green brook, it is a fact that the water company has six wells drilled and four of these wells are connected and pure, wholesome water is now being secured daily from them. The company has also laid a line of pipe nearly up to the mountain, and preparations are being made to either build a stand-pipe or a reservoir in the vicinity. The water that is being secured from the driven wells is as pure as a crystal. If this is furnished the citizens will be perfectly satisfied.

Assessor Charles A. Coriell has completed the assessment roll and it has been examined by the Common Council and that body has approved of it as made out. The tax rate as fixed by Assessor Coriell for this year will be $2.42 on $100, which is twelve cents more than last year. The reason for the increase this year over last is because of a special school and county tax. The following figures may be of interest to the taxpayers and others: The county tax last year was $3,016; this year it is $3,255. The school tax last year was $1,171; this year it is $1,206. The assessed valuation of the borough of Dunellen is $430,000.

Little Miss Eva Hamilton was given a birthday party yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hamilton, of Front street. It was Miss Eva's sixth birthday, and a number of her little friends were present to enjoy the occasion. The young hostess was the recipient of a number of handsome presents.

Mrs. George Wiegand, of Pluckamin, has been visiting her father and sisters, of Church street. She left for home yesterday accompained by her sister, Miss Alice Clawson, who will spend a few days with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green, of Brooklyn, who have been visiting Mrs. Lucy Titsworth, have returned to their home.

Miss Annie Campbell, of Pluckamin, has been visiting at the home of Mrs. J. N. Apgar.

Miss Helen Jacobus, of Orange, has been a guest at the residence of George Giles.

A large number of people went on the Junior's excursion today to Asbury Park.

Miss Lizzie Hunt is spending her vacation at Long Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Coriell are visiting in Pennington.

Miss Edna Baldwin is visiting in Hunterdon county.

PLAINFIELD AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 17—It was a merry crowd who joined with the Baptist young people last evening upon the occasion of their first trolley party. Two cars were filled with the society and its friends. The start was made from the terminus shortly after 8, but long before the hour set the happy trolleyites began to gather and when the cars arrived there was nearly 100 in the party. The start was made amid cheers and fluttering of handkerchiefs. A good social time was spent in singing, joking and chatting. Just as the party reached Richmond street there were a series of explosions which startled the more timid ones, until it was found out that some one had placed a number of torpedoes upon the track in honor of the society's visit in town. The party was whirled out to the Dunellen end, then back as far as Netherwood. While taking the switch on Richmond street one of the rear trucks on car No. 2 ran off the track. This caused some little excitement but the car was coupled to another car following and soon pulled back upon the track and the journey was again resumed to Netherwood. From their the happy crowd were taken over the Somerset street extension. This completed the route and the journey was taken up for home where all arrived safely shortly after 10.

The fifteen mile bicycle race being arranged by W. S. Emery for Saturday afternoon is creating interest through this section and there promises to be a large crowd in town on that day. The race starts and finishes in front of the Liberty pole at the head of Front street.

Mrs. J. D. Stout, of Mountain avenue, was at home yesterday to her many friends who called upon her to offer congratulations and best wishes upon her eighty-second birthday.

W. S. Emery is entertaining his friends at one of his annual clambakes this afternoon and evening. Drake's Band, of Elizabeth, is in attendance.

Miss Frances Zaengle, who has been spending two weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Hosinger, has returned to her home in Brooklyn.

A delegation from Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., is attending the Franklin Council excursion to Asbury Park today.

Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Braker and family are spending a week as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Marsh.

Rev. James Buchanan, D. D., of Pemberton, was the guest of friends in town yesterday.

Miss Malone, of Stout avenue, is entertaining friends from New York.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 17—A pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. M. Gilby on North avenue last evening, when at 8 o'clock her daughter, Miss Ethel Gilby, became the bride of Arthur Taylor, one of Westfield's young business men. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. N. W. Cadwell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, in the parlor amid a profusion of palms, cut flowers and potted plants. The bride, who wore a gown of pure white, was attended by Miss May L. Taylor, and the best man was W. J. Taylor. The ushers were Messrs. C. B. Smith and E. L. Gilby.

Several officials of the Central Railroad Company visited the Westfield depot yesterday and as a result Mary Bird, who has been employed here for several years in cleaning up about the depot, has been discharged. The reason given for the discharge is that the company wishes to curtail expenses.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company has cut the sidewalks on Westfield avenue down to the grade of the street, which was lowered eighteen inches to allow the company to build their trolley road.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

A Sale of Muslin .... UNDERWEAR.

NIGHT ROBES
WHITE SKIRTS
CORSET COVERS
DRAWERS
CHEMISE

Fresh from the factories comes this large collection of Underwear. No tints of sweat shop about them. Every stitch honestly taken. Every garment cut and put together in expert fashion.

To make this sale memorable we shall halve our legitimate profits, giving you buying opportunities of money-saving importance. The standard values has never been so high as at this particular time.

A WHITE ROBE offering is a strong feature of the sale.

42c Muslin gowns, yoke of eight deep plaits, with four rows of hemstitching, neck, front and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffles.

59c Gowns of good quality muslin, yoke has four rows of insertion with sixteen fine tucks, neck, front and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffles.

Der gewesene Abgeordnete und Direktor der Landesbildergallerie, Karl Pulszky, der Unsummen staatlicher Gelder und zahlreiche Kunstschätze Ungarns verschleudert und dessen Affäre in der gesammten Kunstwelt Aufsehen erregt hat, hat nach einer aus Brisbane (Australien) eingetroffenen Nachricht durch Selbstmord geendet.

Graz. Als kürzlich hier in einer sozialistischen Versammlung Gemeinderath Feichtinger etwas sagte, was nicht gefiel, wurde er kurzer Hand von der Tribüne herabgerissen und durchgeprügelt, wobei der furchtlose Redner eine Stichwunde in den Hinterkopf erhielt.

Holics. In dem Dorfe Kato brach ein Schadenfeuer aus, welches bei der enormen Hitze 32 Wohnhäuser nebst Nebengebäuden total einäscherte. Ein Menschenleben fiel dem Feuer zum Opfer, außerdem ging auch Vieh zu Grunde.

Innsbruck. Nach langen Verhandlungen hat endlich ein Uebereinkommen zwischen den Interessenten der zu erbauenden Bahn Berg-Isel-Igls und den Grundbesitzern von Ambras stattgefunden, so daß mit den Bahnarbeiten begonnen werden konnte.

Linz. Der 36jährige Professor Gerhard Pick aus Prag beging Selbstmord durch Sprung in einen See, nachdem er sich vorher Hände und Füße gebunden hatte. Das Motiv der That ist unglückliche Liebe.

Liptau. Die Ortschaft Hosszuret ist fast gänzlich niedergebrannt; drei Kinder, die von ihren auf dem Felde befindlichen Eltern in der Wohnung eingeschlossen waren, fielen den Flammen zum Opfer.

Reichenberg. Hier fanden Straßen-Demonstrationen gegen die Erhöhung der Zuckersteuer statt. Die Gendarmen mußten mit aufgepflanztem Bajonett gegen die Menge vorgehen, wobei ein Civilist verwundet wurde.

Trient. Hier erkrankten 36 Soldaten unter Vergiftungserscheinungen. Es konnte festgestellt werden, daß das Kochsalz mit Arsenik vermengt war; man glaubt jedoch, daß dies unabsichtlich geschehen sei.

Schweiz.

Bern. Kürzlich ist die Einweihung der neuen Klubhütte Doldenhorn vollzogen worden. Die Hütte erhebt sich auf dem an das Gebiet des Bibergletschers anstoßenden, eine weite Rundsicht bietenden Hochplateau, welches gegen den Beschinenbach hin jäh abfällt. Von Kandersteg aus ist die Doldenhorn-Hütte in etwa 2½ Stunden erreichbar.—Beim Wettschwimmen in der Aare bei Bern ist der Friseurgehilfe F. Rösner aus Kremsier, Oesterreich, ertrunken.—Dieser Tage wurde die neue Bahn Burgdorf-Thun eröffnet, die nicht blos für die beiden Städte, die sie in direkte Verbindung bringt, sondern auch für die von ihr durchzogenen Landestheile von großer Bedeutung ist. Sie ist zugleich die erste Vollbahn der Schweiz, die durch elektrische Kraft betrieben wird.

Zürich. Von dem kantonalen Schwurgericht wurden der 27jährige Joseph Hubert Pasch von Oedt (Regierungsbezirk Düsseldorf) und der 22jährige Peter Josef Bornhofen von Ehrenbreitstein wegen Versuchs der Falschmünzerei zu je einem Jahre Arbeitshaus und zehnjähriger Verweisung aus der Schweiz verurtheilt. Beide Angeklagten, die trotz ihrer Jugend schon mit dem Zuchthaus Bekanntschaft gemacht haben, gaben sich hier als Polytechniker aus.

Uri. Der Straßburger Alpenverein hat beschlossen, den verunglückten Schneeschuhläufern Ehlert und Mönchs am Sustenpaß ein Denkmal zu errichten.

St. Gallen. Der in Kaltbrunn stationirte Landjäger Schneider traf Abends vor dem Dorfe einen Handwerksburschen an, dem er die Ausweisschriften abverlangte. Der Gestellte ergriff die Flucht, worauf Schneider seinen Revolver zog und gegen den Flüchtling abfeuerte, der von der Kugel durchbohrt todt zusammensank.

Aargau. Die Gefahr am Lägernkopf soll jetzt eine viel größere sein, als vor dem Absturz; man muß sich auf einen nochmaligen, viel gewaltigeren Bergsturz gefaßt machen.

of Plainfield, City }

Public Notice is hereby given that application by petition has been made to the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield for the consent of said Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, that the Plainfield Street Railway Company construct, operate and maintain a street railway upon the following streets and avenues in the City of Plainfield:

Along Arlington Avenue from the center line of West Fourth Street to the center line of Randolph Road; along Randolph Road from the center line of Arlington Avenue to the division line between the properties of Samuel F. Randolph and Alexander F. Randolph; through a private right-of-way in a general Southeasterly direction, as indicated on a map filed with the City Clerk, to the City line near Woodland Avenue.

That said petition has been presented by the Plainfield Street Railway Company, a corporation organized under the laws of this State; that said petition was filed with the Clerk of the City of Plainfield on the seventh day of August, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine; that the road intended to be constructed, operated and maintained is either a single track street railway placed in the center line of said streets or highways with turnouts every thousand feet, or double tracks, one track to be on either side of the center line of said streets or highways, and the motive power to be used thereon is electricity to be supplied from overhead wires, supported by poles, and the streets through which the same shall extend are as above mentioned; that the Common Council of the City of Plainfield has fixed Tuesday, the fifth day of September, eighteen hundred and nine-nine, at eight o'clock in the evening as the time, and the Common Council Chamber, No. 109 Park Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, as the place, at which said Common Council will consider said application and will give a public hearing to all persons interested therein.

The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

JAMES T. MACMURRAY,
City Clerk.

TOILET HINTS.

How Not to Spoil an Attractive Mouth.

A pleasing mouth is an important possession to the woman who values her personal appearance, and the attractiveness of that feature is often made or marred by the treatment it receives. Any habitual twisting or distortion of the lips will damage the beauty of a mouth naturally pretty, and the unsightly effect of cracked lips or blistered lips is well known. The custom of biting the lips and of moistening them with the tongue is responsible for the majority of disfigurements of their surface, and persons who have contracted the habit should spare no effort to break themselves of it. If all other methods fail, the use of a little quania water on the lips will serve as a bitter reminder when the tongue touches them. To let the mouth rest is the first condition of beauty—that is, not to draw it out of shape nor injure the skin—and another condition is to keep it closed when not entirely employing it in eating, speaking or singing. A third requisite is to keep a healing lotion always within reach, in order to apply it when the lips show any indication of roughness or feverishness. Glycerin and rosewater, for example, will answer admirably.

The picture illustrates a tea gown of pale green crepon. It has a close fitting back and a loose front. The revers, collar and sleeves are covered with applications of ecru embroidery. A fichu of white mousseline de soie passes under the collar and ties in front with long, floating ends. The high collar is of green velvet, and there are frills of lace at the neck and wrists.

ACCESSORIES.

Attractive Additions to the Fashionable Toilet.

Black velvet ribbons, in various widths, are immensely used for trimming. They are employed in all sorts of ways—to edge ruffles and flounces, border insertions, for belts with long floating ends; for choux, bands and loops. On light gowns these black ornaments are particularly liked.

Jackets of black taffeta are the latest and most esteemed finish for the fashionable costume. They do not follow the tailor made style, being usually rather elaborate. Taffeta, which is entirely tucked, either vertically, horizontally or obliquely, or else ornamented with rows of stitching, is generally chosen, and the jacket may be long or in the form of a bolero. The revers and collar are much adorned.

Hat pins have become expensive pieces of jewelry, forming an important item in the general effect of the headgear. The large head, composed of an irregular pearl, a cabochon or a ball of cut rock crystal, is placed in a wrought metal setting which often partly incloses it or is set with small jewels, or even forms an additional large ornament in itself, assuming the form of an insect or an animal's head.

The cut shows an attractive gown for a young girl. The lawn skirt is of plain red foulard, while the pointed tunic is of red foulard with white dots, and is bordered with a band of guipure. The stretched bodice of dotted foulard is gathered at the waist and has a large collar of plain foulard trimmed with a band and edge of guipure. The plain red plastron also has guipure bands. The dotted sleeves are finished at the elbow by a lace frill. The belt is of white faille, the hat of yellow straw trimmed with red foulard and white quills.

WOMEN COMMANDERS

ROYAL LADIES OF HIGH RANK WHO ARE COLONELS OF REGIMENTS.

They Make Efficient Officers and Are Splendid Horsewomen—Compliment Paid to a Grand Duchess by Emperor William—Male Members Poor Riders.

There are several royal ladies in Europe who are Colonels, some of whom are not only proud of their titles, but honor their regiments by giving time and attention to their welfare and advancement. The German Empress commands the "Queen's" Fusiliers, the Eighty-sixth Schleswig-Holsteiners, and she is not infrequently seen riding at their head as Colonel and saluting the Emperor, then reining in beside him to see them pass.

Empress Frederick, the Kaiser's mother, shows herself a very active commanding officer of the Eightieth Infantry, battalions of which are stationed at Homburg, Soden, Gensdorf and Wiesbaden, stations within a short railroad ride of her summer residence. She frequently invites the Colonel, staff and line officers to dine with her and discuss regimental matters, and at times she attends the field exercises.

Another woman Colonel who considers herself bound, in more than name, to her regiment, is the Grand Duchess of Hesse. She is often noticed on the parade ground, when the regiment is at work, in undress uniform, consisting of a dark-blue coat, red collar and cuffs edged with blue, and a heavy black shirt, a peak cap with red band, sword and belt and knotted epaulets. At parades and reviews she heads the 117th Regiment in all the glory and pomp of full-dress uniform, the helmet topped with plumes and strapped under her chin, tasselled belt, and her breast covered with decorations, the great Order of the Red Eagle being conspicuous. At a recent Kaiser parade at Homburg the Emperor sent his personal Adjutant to escort her to him and publicly congratulated her on the magnificent appearance of her command.

The Duchess of Connaught is known as one of the most unassuming and unpretentious women at the English court. Educated under the eye of her father, the "Red Prince," she was brought up as a soldier's daughter should be, was a fearless rider at an early age, and sits on her horse with grace and dignity. When Prince Arthur, in the natural routine of events, becomes the Commander-in-Chief of the British Army, the Duchess will be one of the most active and foremost of the royal women soldiers.

In Holland, there is the liveliest satisfaction at the apparent interest Queen Wilhelmina shows in her army. Recently, while at one of her country residences, word was brought that a regiment was approaching on a practice march, and would soon pass the residence. She mounted hurriedly, galloped out to meet the dusty, travel-stained troops, saluted the Colonel and putting herself at the head of the column, personally led it in front of the Queen Regent Emma, giving the word of command for the salute as it passed her mother.

It is a curious fact that while nearly all the royal women of Europe are superb and picturesque horsewomen, few of the reigning sovereigns are even tolerable riders. Emperor William has not a firm seat and is at a disadvantage because of his crippled arm and always mounts with assistance of some kind. King Humbert of Italy is famous for his falls: the Emperor of Russia is not a master of the art, and the Kings of Sweden, Greece and Denmark absolutely abhor riding. The King of Portugal finds no enjoyment when mounted, because of his stoutness. Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria cannot ride for an hour at a time, and King Alexander of Servia is afraid of horses. The British royal princes are, however, all expert horsemen, but continental Europe can only boast of two sovereigns who are really at home in the saddle, the Emperor of Austria and the King of the Belgians and President Felix Faure of France.

New Engagement Ring Fad.

We are going to the fashions of our grandmothers in engagement rings as well as gowns, bonnets, bodices and crinolines. Nearly every woman has seen at some time in her life dainty little engagement rings, which have been given by father to mother, or grandfather to grandmother, when the momentous question was "popped," as they used to call it in those days, which spelled out the word "Regard."

Ruby, emerald, garnet, ameythyst, ruby and diamond, and pretty they are, too, in their quaint old fashioned setting. The swell jewellers report the fact that the favorite betrothal ring to day is a colored stone.

Emeralds, rubies, sapphires are now chosen as the seal of betrothal, but the diamond still holds its own. The setting must be as inconspicuous as possible, the circlet a mere thread of gold, and what makes this fashion most fetching is the fact that it admits of great individuality in the cutting of the stones.

Sugar as a Food.

We are cautioned from childhood against eating too many sweets—that too much candy and confectionery will ruin the teeth and digestive apparatus of any one. How is it, then, that the negroes who work a lifetime on the sugar plantations, sucking the cane for refreshment when weary, should have such handsome teeth? Is it because it is less injurious in that form? How is it the soldier who has less meat and more sugar can endure better the long march and other hardships to which he is subjected? Must be somebody has been wrong all these years about the injurious properties of sugar, or else it isn't the sugar that does the injury. One writer of the present day estimates that "sugar is almost the most valuable thing that enters the mouth of man, woman or child.

A Good Investment.

Good furs and good ostrich tips are a good investment. They are always in style, sometimes more so than others, but they may be laid aside two or three years, or longer, and then brought out and used by the side of new materials, provided they are arranged to conform to the prevailing modes.

HE SAT IN CONGRESS.

ONLY ONE PRIEST EVER ELECTED A MEMBER OF THAT BODY.

Father Gabriel Richard Served as a Delegate From Michigan When the State Was a Territory—A Catholic Chaplain of the Senate.

Only one Catholic priest has ever occupied a seat in the halls of congress—the Rev. Gabriel Richard of Michigan. Father Richard was not elected as a representative, but as a delegate representing the then territory of Michigan. This was in 1823. He served with distinction, delivering several exceptionally able speeches on important issues. He was a man of great learning, a thorough French and English scholar and conversant with Spanish, German and Italian, and he had mastered the language or dialect of the several tribes of Indians of Michigan.

Father Richard was a man of medium size, with sharp features and a bulging forehead, was slightly bald, had a wiry frame and was quick in speech and action. A native of France, he received orders at a Catholic seminary in Paris in 1790. Eight years later he came to this country and for a time was professor of mathematics in St. Mary's college, Maryland. Afterward he labored as a missionary in Illinois and finally located at Detroit, from which place he was elected to congress.

Father Richard's career was a remarkable one in many particulars. It was he who visited the grave of Father Marquette, the great missionary priest of the northwest, and planted a cross over it on which he cut the inscription, "Father Marquette died here May 9, 1675." Many years after this the state of Michigan erected a monument on the spot.

The connection of Catholic clergymen with the United States senate and house of representatives has been only limited, there being no record of a Catholic priest in the capacity of congressional chaplain prior to 1839. In that year the Rev. Constantine Pise, D. D., pastor of St. Matthew's church, Washington, was elected chaplain of the senate at the instance of Henry Clay. Father Pise was a native of Maryland and was educated at Georgetown college. On being graduated he entered the Society of Jesus, going to Rome to study theology, and there he was made a doctor of divinity by the College of the Sapienza in 1832. He left St. Matthew's church and became pastor of the Church of the Transfiguration in Mott street, New York, and later of St. Peter's, in Barclay street. From there he went to Brooklyn and established the Church of St. Charles Borromeo, where he remained until his death in 1858.

Father Rider, S. J., while president of Georgetown college, on two occasions opened the senate with prayer in 1840. Records show that the late Father Boyle of St. Patrick's church, Washington, was the last priest who offered prayer in the old senate chamber, now the supreme courtroom.

A Catholic chaplain was never elected by the house of representatives, but during one session, when the house failed to elect a chaplain, Father Boyle alternated with two Protestant clergymen in offering the opening prayer.

Speaking of the first time the sign of the cross was made in the new hall of the house of representatives, the Georgetown College Journal of 1859 says:

"On Jan. 24, 1859, the Rev. Charles Stonestreet, S. J., pastor of St. Aloysius church, opened the house with prayer. Speaker Orr conducted him to the speaker's desk. Father Stonestreet, clothed in his cassock and wearing his beads, made a large sign of the cross and read the prayer of Archbishop Carroll for the authorities. The prayer over, he finished with a devout sign of the cross. As Father Stonestreet loves the republic and prays for it from the bottom of his heart, he read the prayer with a great deal of feeling."

One month later the same journal said: "Today Father Stonestreet, vested in his religious habit, opened the United States senate with prayer. The president of the senate introduced him into the hall."

Father Mathew, the great apostle of temperance, addressed the senate in 1849. Unintentionally he created a sensation by reason of his opposition to slavery and his supposed denunciation of slaveholders. Southern senators opposed admitting him within the bar of the upper house, but Henry Clay championed his cause, as did William H. Seward, and the vote resulted 33 to 18 in favor of conferring an honor never before given to any foreigner except General Lafayette.—Washington Letter in New York Sun.

Those Who Know It All.

The chief characteristic of the nineteenth century is not so much heresy as intellectual self sufficiency—the self sufficiency of those who believe that they know that God is not to be known. If the legislator cannot be known, then certainly the law cannot. The whole moral world then falls back into chaos, the earth is without form and void, and darkness rests on the face of the deep. For this there is no cure but the sanctification and rectification of the intelligence by the presence of the Illuminator, who enlighteneth every man that cometh into the world.—Cardinal Manning.

The Delegate to Canada.

Mgr. Diomede Falconio has been selected as apostolic delegate to Canada. The new delegate is a Franciscan friar. He was born at Pescocostanzo, Italy, in 1842, and having served in several of the more important minor posiitons of the order was promoted to the see of Aurengo in 1895. He will be the first apostolic delegate for Canada, and will bear the same relation to the church in that country that Archbishop Martinelli bears to the church in the United States.

THE VISION OF THE HERMIT.

A holy hermit, ere the break of dawn
Knelt near his cave, low bowed in tearful prayer;
Sin weighed upon his soul, grace seemed withdrawn,
He feared despair.

Then burst a sudden glory from the sky;
Dark in the blaze the day star hung enspherred;
Amid encircling angels throned on high
The Lord appeared,

And satan stood accusing, "Is it fair
That man, though sinning oft is oft forgiven,
Whilst I, who fell but once, can never share
The hope of heaven?"

Mild was God's answer, "When have I denied
The humble seeker?" Satan stood aghast;
Black grew his frown—black with unyielding pride—
The vision passed.

The hermit, rising, sang for joy and wept;
God's love and mercy filled his heart with cheer;
The gentle lesson of the vision kept
His soul from fear.

—Daniel J. Donahoe in Donahoe's Magazine.

POPE FOR A DAY.

Cardinal Luigi Oreglia Will Act as Pontiff When Pope Leo Dies.

When Pope Leo XIII dies, his immediate successor will be Cardinal Luigi Oreglia, camerlingo of the Roman Catholic church. He will not be called pope, but according to the laws in force he will be acting pope until the new pope is elected.

The Vatican regulations decree that the election of the new pope cannot take place until after the burial of the late pope, which takes place ten days after his decease. In many instances the election is not completed for weeks or months, so that the camerlingo may enjoy his papal power for a lng time.

Leo XIII held the position of camerlingo when he himself was elected to the pontificate. It is the camerlingo who formally declares the pope dead after tapping his forehead three times with the silver hammer. He it is who breaks the seals and "ring of the fisherman" and then assumes the direction of affairs of the apostolic see until the new pope is chosen.

The camerlingo presides over the sacred conclave of cardinals having the election in hand and keeps the key of the place of meeting, so that none can enter or go out save with his consent.

When the election is concluded, he asks the new pontiff what name he intends to take. And after he has received the salutations of the assembled cardinals it is the cardinal camerlingo who places on his finger the "ring of the fisherman."

Pray For Us.

Happy minded is the white haired man who tonight with clasped hands sits in thoughtfulness waiting the call to go where sorrow is not, to that haven of rest, earned by one lifelong faithful prayer. Let us not linger longer here, but seek the secret of resignation that quells the agony, storming the gates of loving hearts, when forced by life's partings to utter a long farewell.

What is this secret? Ah, we shall see! But first must begin our watch on the Mount of Sorrow, where kindred hearts are about to sever. They meet—the murmured hopes and blessings are renewed once more; the farewell hand clasp given; the soul felt accents, hurried and tearful, are repeated, and we, as we listen, catch the words, "Pray for me."

Ah, what sweetness in these words! In them there is strength never failing. Oh, blessed thought, that through the weary years when shadows of sadness steal over them, they have but to look back into the face of their loved one and repeat the words long since spoken!—S. K., "Golden Keys."

The Cheerful Face.

Next to the sunlight of heaven is the cheerful face. There is no mistaking it. The bright eye, the unclouded brow, the sunny smile, all tell of that which dwells within. Who has not felt its electrifying influence? One glance at this face lifts us out of the mists and shadows into the beautiful realms of hope. One cheerful face in the household will keep everything warm and light within. It may be a very plain face, but there is something in it we feel, but cannot express, and its cheery smile sends the blood dancing through the veins for very joy. There is a world of blessed magic in the plain, cheerful face, and we would not exchange it for all the soulless beauty that ever graced the fairest form on earth.—St. Xavier's Monthly.

St. Germaine.

On day as St. Germaine was carrying in her apron a few crusts of bread, which she had saved from her scanty repast to give to the poor, her stepmother perceived her and began loading her with insults. She even raised her hand to strike the young girl, when Germaine opened her apron, and an abundance of fragrant flowers, such as the soil of Pibrac never bore, fell to the ground. The miracle once performed for the royal St. Elizabeth of Hungary had been renewed in favor of the poor shepherdess.

The Creator.

There is nothing that so discomforts infidel philosophy as the inculcation of the truth that, as Newton puts it, God is a necessary part of natural philosophy, and that to construct a system of the origin of things without an eternal first cause is, as it were, to imitate Swift's Laputans and begin a building at the top.

The Solace of Prayer.

God bids you come often from the noise and strife and tumult of life and shut the door that you may pray to your Father in secret. It is there your truest life is lived. It is there that strength comes for the toil and weariness of life.

The Eyes of Faith.

That which you behold with the eyes of faith is more certain than that which you behold with your own eyes.—Ven. de Blois, O. S. B.

UPHELD THE VOLUNTEERS.

But the "Do Your Duty or Die" Policy Came Too Strong for Him.

Capt. Stewart M. Brice, son of the late Calvin S. Brice, was one of the most popular officers on Major- Gen. Shafter's staff at Santiago, according to the Chicago "Record."

Capt. Brice was a strong upholder of the volunteers. He carried on long discussions with the regular army officers and declared the mainstay of the army was the volunteers. One night, just before the Seventy-first New York Volunteers had been brought to the front, and while they were encamped on the Siboney trail, Capt. Brice and Dr. Goodfellow rode back to Siboney from Gen. Shafter's headquarters. On the way Capt. Brice held forth at great length on the American volunteers and particularly on the Seventy-first New York. While in the heat of the talk the challenge "Halt! Who goes there?" came out of the darkness. It came as a surprise, for the enemy was miles to the west, and between them and the place whence the challenge came were two divisions of the American army. But Goodfellow and Brice drew rein immediately, for it is not safe to be "sassy" on a dark night with an inquisitive sentinel.

"Friends and officers!" cried Brice.

"Advance, officer, and be identified."

Brice slipped off his horse and stumbled forward over the rough trail to where a picket of the Seventy-first New York stood with the business end of his Springfield looking Brice in the eye. The identification over, Brice mounted and resumed:

"Now, there's an example of what I said. There stood a young volunteer. He was taking no chances. He knew almost a whole army was between him and the Spaniards. But he knew his duty, and he did it. Would a regular"—

"Halt! Who comes there?"

"Friends and officers!" replied Brice.

"Advance, one of you, and be identified."

"You go this time, Goodfellow."

So the doctor slid off his horse and groped forward. Nine times did the twain in turn dismount, prove their identity and mount again before they passed the lines of the Seventy-first New York. The regiment had gone into camp along the road and pickets were posted every few hundred feet and each picket challenged the two officers.

"This 'do your duty or die' policy is altogether too unanimous," said Brice after reaching Siboney, and thereafter he had less to say about the volunteers.

One of Schley's Mascots.

When Rear-Admiral Schley was First Lieutenant of the Benecia, and that good old tub was cruising through the Straits of Sunday, thirty years ago, a native bumboat man brought an orang-outang aboard. The orang-outang was a natural born sailor, and he made himself so at home with the rigging and running gear of the Benecia on his first visit aboard that he caught Schley's eye—and Schley's eye when he was thirty year's younger wasn't a bit less discerning than it is now. Schley asked the bumboat man to name his figure for the orang-outang. The bumboat man thought a dollar would be about right and when the Benecia picked up her anchor to resume her cruise the orang-outang remained on board and became, to all intents and purposes, a member of the crew," says the Washington Star.

"The orang-outang hadn't been aboard the Benecia two days before his keeper, the chief bo's'n's mate, rigged up a regular bluejacket's hammock for the thing, and Porkchops slept in it. Porkchops learned his hammock number, Schley says, within a week, and when the call to get hammocks out of the netting went forth in the evening Porkchops would pick his own out of the bunch unerringly every time, carry it below to the berth deck, where he slung and rigged the hammock to the correct billet every time without fail, unlashing it and getting it ready for occupancy himself. At all hands in the morning, Schley says, the orang-outang 'ud lash up his hammock and have it in the nettings before the rest of the bluejackets (counting Porkchops as a bluejacket) would be through rubbing their eyes.

Then, Schley says, Porkchops got to be a valuable seaman when the ship was cruising. He mastered the running gear in no time, and—of course, the Benecia was one of the old-time windjammers—when there was heavy weather his services in going aloft and shortening sail were, says Schley, worth those of any five men of the ship's company. You just ought to hear of the number of times Porkchops saved the Benecia and the lives of the whole ship's company thereof by getting in the big spread of canvas just in the nick of time before the squalls came along.

Getting the Rough Riders in Trim.

I had been quite prepared for trouble when it came to enforcing discipline, but I was agreeably disappointed. There was plenty of hard characters who might, by themselves, have given trouble, and with one or two of them we did have to take rough measures; but the bulk of the men thoroughly understood that without discipline they would be merely a valueless mob, and they set themselves hard at work to learn the new duties, writes Col. Theodore Roosevelt in "Scribner's magazine."

Of course such a regiment, in spite of, or, indeed I might almost say because of, the characteristics which made the individual men so exceptionally formidable as soldiers, could very readily have been spoiled. Any weakness in the commander would have ruined it.

When Holderman, in announcing dinner to the colonel and three majors genially remarked, "If you fellers don't come soon, everything'll get cold," he had no thought of other than a kindly and respectful regard for their welfare, and was glad to modify his form of address on behalf told that it was not what could be described as conventionally military. When one of our sentinels, who had with much labor learned the manual of arms, saluted with great pride as I passed, and added, with a friendly nod, "Good evening Colonel," this variation in the accepted formula on such occasions was meant, and was accepted as mere friendly interest. In both cases the needed instruction was given and received in the same kindly spirit.

CEMENT GRAIN ELEVATORS

A Honey Comb of 3,600,000 Bushels Capacity to Be Built at Duluth.

AN ENTIRELY NEW PLAN.

Floor Space to Be Occupied By Cells, and as Business Increases More Cells Will Be Added.

The Idea of Concrete Building for Grain Storage Originated In the Provinces Along the Danube—The Elevator May Be of Any Length or Width to Fit Any Plot of Ground.

It is probable that Duluth will soon have the largest grain elevator in the world, with a storage capacity of 3,600,000 bushels under one roof. Not only is this new structure to be notable for its size, but it is also to be on a plan new to America. The banks of the Danube in Roumania are dotted here and there with grain elevators of small size built of concrete. The Peavey Grain Company, the largest handler of grain in the world, has been investigating the system and has decided to utilize it in its new elevator in this city. The Peavey company now has more grain storage than any other concern in existence and is adding to it every year. It has in operation here elevators of wood that will hold about 7,000,000 bushels, has the same capacity at Minneapolis, and 3,000,000 at Chicago, besides some 9,000,000 bushels more at Kansas City, Omaha and other centres of the West. Besides it has in operation about 500 country elevators of an average capacity of 40,000 bushels, making a total capacity, both terminal and country, of about 45,000,000 bushels. All this is the growth of less than ten years, and almost entirely the individual work of one man, Frank H. Peavey of Minneapolis, who is still a young man.

Mr. Peavey has been investigating the system of Roumania, and has been so much impressed that it is to be adopted here. These structures cost considerable more than wood. Probably in the elevator to be built the difference will be not less than $400,000, but the gain in insurance is so great that there is an actual saving. Insurance in wood houses is about 1½ per cent, and it is impossible to build structures over a certain size, as no insurance concerns in the world will carry the tremendous risks aggregated under one roof when that roof covers millions of bushels of wheat. In structures built of concrete and roofed with steel or tiles there need be no insurance, and the elevator owner can get additional profit, or if it is decided to carry policies they can be had in plenty at one-quarter of 1 per cent. Steel elevators, such as that of the Great Northern road at Buffalo, have the same advantage in point of insurance as those of concrete, but they are much more costly, and there is danger that the grain will sweat in the bins and be ruined thereby. The contract was let a short time ago for steel and the erection of the Great Northern's elevator here, with a capacity of 3,000,000 bushels, and the contract price was $800,000. This is not including foundations, machinery, docks and many other items. Wood houses of the same capacity might be constructed entire for $600,000.

The Peavey elevator's floor plan will be that of a great honeycomb, and additional capacity can be given, as the bee adds to the capacity of its comb, by putting on more cells. These cells will be built to a height of some seventy feet, tunnels built under them to transfer the contents, and a roof put over of tile or metal. The concrete is in the form of slabs of Portland cement. The slabs are erected to the required height and the house is ready to receive its contents. The cement elevator may be built of any desired length or width to fit any ground, and can be added to with ease. It cannot burn, and grain can be kept therein with greater safety from heating than in wooden or steel elevators.

"We are aiming to secure the very best and most advanced method of grain handling in this house," said Mr. Peavey in speaking of his plan, "and if the cement elevator proves the best, as we think, we shall use it and have the most up-to-date and complete storage for grain in the world. My experts have been on the Danube for weeks looking into this system and have made exhaustive reports thereon. Electrical experts are now being consulted on plans for operating the entire system, at Duluth, 12,000,000 bushels, by electricity derived from some central plant. The most distant of these houses will be five miles apart. The old plan of operating an entire elevator by one steam engine will be thrown aside with us and electric motors set where they will be needed. Each leg, each belt, each platform, &c., will be run by an independent motor, and the cost of power will be greatly reduced in consequence."

Adding Insult to Injury.

"Yes, sir, it is adding insult to injury," said young Mr. Homewood, warmly. "That's just what it is!"

"What is adding insult to injury?" demanded young Mr. Point Breeze. "Or rather, who is doing this thing?"

"Miss Murray Hill. Only a month ago she refused my offer of marriage, and to-day she sends me an invitation to see her wed to another. I shall be compelled to spend good hard cash for a wedding present, too. If that isn't adding insult to injury, I don't know what it is."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

An Exhuberant Youth.

"But what will your people say," she murmured with downcast eyes. "I am not only poor, but my family is unknown. I haven't even," she added, pensively, "a coat-of-arms, you know."

"But I have stacks of coats," whispered the daring young man. "And as for arms—well!"

And he proceeded to use them.—Chicago Tribune.

Landlady—Is it true that sharks have three rows of teeth?

Boarder—Yes, and they don't live in boarding houses.

GOLF.

The most devoted golfer who now visits the Park Golf Club course is Charles Hyde, of East Front street, on whose property the course is chiefly laid out Mr. Hyde is on hand every day unless it rains and spends all his spare time there, making five and six rounds every day. He is slowly improving and now makes the nine holes in the fifties.

Morris Dumont, of East Seventh street, has been winning fresh laurels in golf on the Sunset Hall links in the White Mountains this summer. Dumont was spending his vacation at that well known hostelry and much of his time while there was spent on the golf links. He took part in three handicap tournaments while there and won them all from scratch making the lowest net and the lowest gross score in each contest.

Jefferson, N. H., Aug. 17—The first round at match play for first and consolation classes in the Waumbek Golf Club tournament was played yesterday, and in the championship contest F. C. Robertson, of Morristown, beat A. B. Fisk, of this city, 1 up. The match between the two players was almost par golf for the course. The first hole was approximate, the medal play card commenced at the second tee, and the round was made in 84 by Robertson and 86 by Fisk.

In the contest for the consolation cup, Harvey Fisk beat H. R. Stockton, both of this city, 3 up and 1 to play. In the women's competition Miss Fisk, of this city, beat Miss Suydam, by default.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

A number of interesting races are being arranged for Saturday afternoon at the Gentlemen's Driving Park, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public.

The premier stallion of Victor Farm at Fanwood is "Young Jay Bird." That he will bear out all that is said of him in the way of breeding will be obvious to those who scan the tabulated card that recounts his ancestry. As his name indicates, he is by "Jay Bird," 5060, and his dam is "Blue Belles," dam of "Ethel B.," 2:16¾, and "Canary Bird," 2:19¼. "Blue Belles" is a daughter of "Governor Sprague," and has herself a record of 2:28¼. "Jay Bird," 5060, is a prepotent son of "George Wilkes," out of "Lady Frank," by "Mambrino Star," 585. His greatest representative is "Allerton," 2:09¼, who has thirty-nine trotters and nine pacers in the list. Then comes "Eagle Bird," out of "Tansey," a daughter of "George Wilkes," with twenty-five trotters and seven pacers, three of which went into the list last year. "Jay Bird" has sixty-three trotters and five pacers to his credit. Thirteen of his sons have produced sixty-six trotters.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

HAPPENINGS IN A FEW LINES FROM ALL OVER JERSEY.

More or Less Important Happenings and Events in Various Sections Served For a Quick Glance at.

Detective Daniel Lee, of Jersey City, donned a painter's overalls and jumper and arrested a grocer who had successfully violated the liquor law for years.

W. J. Looney, of Morristown, has sued the proprietors of the Continental Hotel, Newark, for $2,000 damages, sustained by being caught fast in a folding bed.

Philadelphia capitalists, it is said, will locate a reduction plant west of the Camden, Gloucester and Mt. Ephraim Railroad, where 300 hands will be employed.

The Standard Terra Cotta Company, of Perth Amboy will today apply for a permanent receiver. The company is solvent, but cannot at present use the $50,000 worth of terra cotta on hand.

The Delaware, Lackawana and Western Railroad Company announces that it will lay a third track between Hoboken and Summit, for the use of express trains. The company has also decided to do away, gradually, with grade crossings.

Prosecutor Voorhees, of Middlesex county, is now of the opinion that the man found murdered near Jamesburg was Patrick Cronin, who has been missing since last April. When Cronin disappeared he had a considerable sum of money with him.

An alligator four feet long was caught by boys in a run near New Brunswick yesterday. The reptile had kept the boys from swimming for several weeks. The alligator was probably brought north by United States volunteers last winter.

MERRY-GO-ROUND NOT LIKED.

It Causes a Crowd of Unruly Youth to Congregate.

Residents who live in the borough in the vicinity of the merry-go-round that recently established itself on Chatham street near Tier's pond, have been complaining about the disturbances that occur there every day and evening. They say that a very wild and unruly set congregate at that place and make a nuisance of themselves They also say that they are disturbed in sleeping and it is often midnight before they can get to sleep.

The residents seem to think that if the officials are willing that the merry-go-round should locate in the borough they surely ought to provide ample police protection so that noisy crowds that gather will not disturb people living near by who desire to retire at a reasonable hour and sleep in peace and comfort.

GREAT DAY FOR JUNIORS.

American Day at Asbury Park Attracts Big Excursion.

The annual excursion of the Juniors to Asbury Park was held today, and Plainfield contributed but a small share of passengers for the excursion train that left the North Avenue station just before the 8:30 express arrived. The train started from Somerville, excursionists beyond that point going to Somerville and Dunellen on the local trains and then taking the regular excursion train.

There were ten cars on the train when it reached Plainfield. It was fairly filled. The Plainfield contingent numbered about two hundred, most of whom were young people. The excursion was arranged by Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of this city.

To Do Work For Street Railway.

A Kane, of this city, has secured the contract to lay crosswalks and culverts between this city and Scotch Plains for the Plainfield Street Railway Company along the route of the trolley. Mr. Kane expects to start the work in a short time.

Spent the Day at Glen Island.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Gesang and Turn Verein went to Glen Island yesterday and had a delightful time. They report that not a thing happened to mar the pleasures of the day, and all returned home safe and happy.

To Build at Somerset Park.

J. D. Loizeaux, the well-known lumber dealer of this city, has bought lots 126-127 on Violet street and lots 132-133 on Day place in Somerset Park. He will improve the property at once by erecting handsome dwellings.

Taking Down Heavy Cables

Employes of the local telephone company are busy at present removing the overhead wires on Watchung avenue, where they cross the railroad. The heavy cables are being taken down first.

TO MY OLD FISH ROD.

With what pleasure I behold you
Hanging on my bedroom wall.
What fond memories it surrounds me.
Always ready at my call.

You are made of wood, Bamboo
Stripped and glued and modeled right.
Rattan wound, with reel band too.
Silver tips and ferules bright.

Your companion is a reel of rubber.
Silver bound, with drag and click.
With such an outfit any lubber
Should gather fishes mighty quick.

Your age is now about one score
Since first I tried your strength.
And many times, both o'er and o'er
Proved strong in every length.

And your journies have been lengthy
From sunny clime to frigid zone.
With your tackle, strong and plenty.
Many victories you have shone.

In "Red Rivers" flowing waters,
Where "Dacotas" Praries bye.
On "Lake Superior," where the Squatters
Lived and died in days gone bye.

In the lakes of old Nebraska,
Where the "Silver" Champion dwells.
There your prowes, should they ask you,
Golden victories you can tell.

Down at "Tampa," "flowers eternal,"
Where the "Pelican" his net does scoup.
Where the "Sheeps Head" and shark, informal
Put all your efforts "in the soup."

In Lakeland waters you had success.
A starling sene you there afford.
Your owner scored a pretty mess.
Lost his balance, fell overboard.

In New Jersey, some things recall,
For want of time can't mention here.
Your photo at Black River Falls.
For pecular "catch" you need not fear.

And now old "Beauty" you rest content.
As your master 'bout over his fad.
Your memory is dear, time well spent.
So reel up your line and be glad.

The repertoire of plays selected by the manager of Kennedy Players will be found intensely interesting. They are all popular, successful plays, and it can be truthfully asserted that there will not be a dull night during the week's engagement. The company has always been considered the strongest acting company appearing at popular prices, and this season stands unrivalled. The scenery with which each play will be embelished is most extensive and appropriate. Each possible effect in the way of calcium and stereopticon is carried and together with gorgeous and magnificent costuming makes each and every performance as complete a dramatic spectacle as it is possible to see, no matter what prices are charged. Notwithstanding the enormous expense attached to the securing and presenting of this great repertoire of great plays, there will be no advance in the price of admission, which remains as heretofore, 10, 20, and 30 cents.

* * * * *

One of the most admirable features of George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels is its endeavor to restore the musical element of the performance to its proper importance. It has never had a sufficiently high standard in minstrelsy and of late years it has almost sunk from notice. Music in minstrelsy was at its best when the only excuse for the performance was the effort to reproduce the plantation darkey. The songs were then reminiscent of those sung by him while at his work in the fields, and they had all the flavor of slavery—its pathos, its hopefulness, its longing, its mournfulness. But later minstrels have been better in comic than sentimental songs. This lack of musical preparation or appreciation was even complained of by the London press at the time the great American company of sixty people appeared at the Drury Lane Theatre. The English minstrels have always attached much importance to the musical features of their performances and among the vocalists of the company which is to appear here tomorrow at Stillman Music Hall is Walter Thompson, one of the foremost ballad singers of Great Britain, who for years has been one of the strong cards with Moore and Burgess in London, and who has been brought to America especially for this season's tour of this company. J. J. Cluxton, who is admittedly one of the best of American ballad singers, and a dozen of others are also members of the organization and their ability should guarantee a vocal first part such as has never before been attempted in this country.

TOOK HER SON'S PART.

Merry-go-round Proprietor Alleged to Have Choked Young Utzinger.

Albert Utzinger, residing in the borough, engaged in a little disturbance at the merry-go-round Tuesday evening, and the proprietor, Mr. Rushmore, asked the young man to leave the grounds. This he refused to do and the proprietor was obliged to force him from the place. This resulted in Mrs. Utzinger appearing before Recorder Long and having a warrant issued for the arrest of Mr. Rushmore, charging him with trying to choke her son. The case was called last night before Recorder Long who, after hearing the evidence, decided that the plaintiff had no case, and he therefore dismissed it.

Mr. Angleman Takes Wife.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Erene Eve Johnstone to Winfield Scott Angleman, the well-known lawyer of this city. The ceremony was performed in Trinity church in New York yesterday afternoon. The bride is the daughter of a retired officer of the English army. Mr. Angleman became acquainted with her while in England several years ago. After a wedding trip they will take up their residence in this city.

HAD A CHICKEN IN THE BAG.

Incorrigible Youth was Robbing Isaac P. Brown's Hen Roost.

Frank Myers, an incorrigible youth of 13 years, has been annoying Isaac P. Brown, of Watchung avenue. Myers would chase Mr. Brown's fowls, help himself to his apples and steal his vegetables.

Last Saturday Mr. Brown caught the young poacher red-handed with one of his choice fowls in a bag. The boy had caught the chicken with the aid of a dog which always accompanied him on his foraging expeditions. As forbearance had ceased to be a virtue and Mr. Brown didn't wish to take matters into his own hands and resort to extreme measures, he decided to invoke the aid of the law.

Justice Moffett issued a warrant for the boy's arrest, and this morning Constable Weaver had the lad in court. He was accompanied by his mother, a hard-working widow, living on East Fourth street. The boy, with tears in his eyes, professed great repentance and promised to reform. The Justice paroled him until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock when he will decide whether to send him to the Reform School.

Big Industrial Enterprise.

Silas D. Drake, the irrepressible, comes out today with the announcement that he has secured sixty acres of land, known as the Nelson Runyon farm, 5,000 feet above Dunellen, which is wanted for a big manufacturing concern, the details of which he will divulge at a later date.

The doll is probably the most antique of toys. It has been found inside the graves of children of ancient Rome.

Wages will vary according to character on the other side—many a poor struggling soul here will have all the luxury of the season there.

The second death may be less mystery than it seems, if we consider the shock many will be subjected to on entering the kingdom where dwelleth righteousness.

The now fashionable game of golf was put down by an act of parliament in Scotland in 1481 as a nuisance. Then fines were inflicted on people who were found guilty of playing the game, for it interfered with the practice of archery, as men preferred wielding the club to pulling the bow.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store

Good Luck of Gus Frazee, the Old Expressman.

BREAD CAST UPON WATER.

LOAN OF $3,500 REMEMBERED BY BEQUEST OF $15 000.

The Bequest Comes From an Old Friend Who Died in the West and Who Had Received a Great Favor From Frazee While Living and Doing a Manufacturing Business in Newark.

Henry August Frazee, of South avenue, who for twenty-five years was a "pony" expressman running between Plainfield and New York on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, yesterday received a letter from W. E. Robinson, of Toledo, O., which stated that as soon as the final details could be settled Mr. Frazee would receive $15,000 under the terms of the will of the late William P. Hedden, who died in the west some time ago. Mr. Frazee's good fortune comes to him as the result of a favor he did for his benefactor forty years ago.

In 1859 Mr. Frazee was engaged in business in Newark, and at that time had succeeded in saving a few thousand dollars. Among his most intimate friends in Newark was Hedden, who had engaged in the manufacture of novelties. Hedden met with ill luck for a time and Frazee loaned him $3,500 with which to continue his business. The venture was a profitless one, however, and the money was lost. Discouraged and disheartened Hedden decided to leave the east and go west and try his luck. Before bidding Frazee good-bye he promised that if he ever met with good fortune again he would return the loan which had been given by the latter.

Year after year passed, however, and as Frazee lost track of Hedden he concluded that he would never be reimbursed for the money he had lent. Frazee did not prosper either as he had when he had made the loan, and after a few years he engaged in the "pony" express business on the Central, being among the pioneers in this work. For a quarter of a century he went back and forth to New York, and eventually forgot his transaction with Hedden. Seven years ago he found that his years were telling on him—he having passed the three score point—and he decided to retire, his son, Whitney Frazee, taking up the business where he had left off. Since that time Frazee has resided modestly in this city. Four years ago he fracturned his leg in a runaway team, and had to have the member amputated.

A few weeks the old man was visited by Robinson, from whom he received the letter yesterday. The latter told him that after leaving Newark Hedden had drifted into the far west where he had engaged in mining ventures and had succeeded in making a fortune. In the intervening years between his departure from Frazee and the time of his death, which occurred a few months ago, Hedden had not forgotten his old friend, even though they had drifted apart in the world. In the will that he had made Hedden had bequeathed his friend of forty years ago $15,000 in return for the favor shown him in his earlier days.

Robinson secured the necessary evidence of identification of Frazee while here and when he left he said he would soon hear from the executors of the estate. Yesterday the good news came.

The money will come as a great blessing to the old man, who is nearing seventy years of life in this world, but he says that until he receives the return of "the bread cast upon the waters" years ago he does not propose to say what he will do with it.

Home From California.

Mr. and Mrs. Maze Edwards, who have been spending the summer in California, have returned home after having spent a delightful season visiting Mr. Edwards' aged mother and his other relatives and friends on the Pacific coast. Both are greatly improved in health. Their return home was from SanFrancisco to Victoria, B. C., Seattle and St. Paul, where they went to Duluth and took one of the magnificent Great Lakes steamers to Buffalo. They stopped off at Niagara Falls and then came through to Plainfield.

TO HEAD OFF ITS RIVALS.

PENNSYLVANIA PLANS ELECTRIC LINE TO PARALLEL MAIN ROUTE.

The Lines Will be Local, But Will Eventually Form a Complete System Between New York and Washington.

There are evidences that the Pennsylvania Railroad is going to construct trolley lines to run parallel with its main line. The lines will be local, but eventually will form a complete system between New York and Washington. It is impossible to get any definite information as to the details of the scheme.

This much is known that the company had filed with the Secretary of State the maps and description of the road that is to go through Trenton. The reason why it is known that the Pennsylvania Railroad is interested, is because the route takes in the lower bridge across the Delaware river, which is now used as the railroad bridge.

The outlet is across the Brunswick pike, now opened by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which it offers to the city for the right of way through the several city streets.

The Brunswick pike leads toward Princeton and New Brunswick. The crossing of the Delaware indicates that the line will go down the Bristol pike toward Philadelphia. The plans are being developed by a special agent of the railroad, and the officers are in the Broad Street Station. The information obtainable is very meagre.

The purpose is supposed to be to head off rival schemes.

SAW THE BLAZING ROOF.

RESIDENCE OF A. J. BEAL BURNED WHILE FAMILY WERE AWAY.

Fire Started Mysteriously in a Closet and Burned for Several Hours While Mr. Beal and Family Called on Friends.

The interior of the home of Andrew J. Beal, of 1,304 South avenue, suffered severely last night from a fire that started mysteriously in the second story and was not discovered until it had burned an opening through the roof after several hours' duration. The total loss will reach $350, all of which is covered by insurance.

The members of Mr. Beal's family left home early last evening to call on some friends in Netherwood. The house was left alone. Shortly before 9 o'clock a man passing by saw the roof ablaze and notified Cornelius VanHerwerden, the owner, who lives next door. An alarm was sent in from Box 28 by Peter MacDonough at 9:05 o'clock.

Sheriff W. T. Kirk was passing the house and also saw the fire. With the assistance of Edward Willis, who lives in the neighborhood, the Sheriff put on the garden hose and did effective work until the arrival of the firemen.

The fire evidently started in a large closet or clothes room on the second story. Its origin is a mystery. It may have been the old combustion of mice and matches. The fire must have been burning for several hours before it was discovered. It burned a hole through the floor and passed down the partition, destroying one of the sliding doors. The ceiling in the dining room was burned.

The fire also spread upwards passing through the attic and burning a hole through the roof. The upper rooms were so filled with smoke that the firemen were unable to gain entrance. The stream from the chemical engine was used in the house, and two regular streams were used to extinguish the burning roof.

The house was the property of Cornelius VanHerwerden. The damage to the house is estimated at $250, which is fully covered by insurance. The loss to the household goods and furniture will reach $100. They were insured for $500.

COBBLER BENDER HAD STOLEN GOODS.

Young Boys Said to Steal For His Benefit.

POLICE SAY HE'S A "FENCE."

QUANTITY OF BRASS STOLEN FROM CARNEY BROTHERS.

Found in His Possession—Young Boys are Doing a Land Office Business Pilfering for the Fellow—The Accused Said to Have a Number of Boys Working—Examination Monday.

Moses Bender, a cobbler, who keeps a shop on West Second street, just around the corner from Park avenue, was brought before Justice Nash this morning by Roundsman Flynn, who had a warrant charging him with receiving stolen goods.

Bender has been suspected of being a fence for several months. From time to time the police have been notified of petty cases of larceny and the stolen property would often be found at Bender's shop.

Recently Carney Bros., the North Plainfield plumbers, have been annoyed by boys helping themselves to whatever they could lay their hands on about their place. Chief Grant learned a day or two ago that Willie Mullen and a boy named Jones had sold a quantity of brass to Bender. The boys were looked up, and Mullen, who lives on East Second street, admitted that he had stolen a quantity of brass, which he had picked up around Carney Bros., place, and had sold it to Bender, receiving 30 cents for about ten pounds of brass and zinc.

On another occasion Willie Jones had also sold to Bender a brass kettle which his mother gave him to dispose of.

The boys of the city it appears have been doing a land office business in old brass, cast off clothing, shoes, etc. In fact, anything of value, which they took to Bender he would pay them small sums of money for. Bender has told the boys to get all the property they could find and bring it to him. The boys say that Bender never asked any questions where they got the stuff. He would take it, weigh it up, if it was old brass or iron, and give the boys what he chose.

Chief Grant says that Bender has been carrying on this business for several months.

William Newcorn was secured to defend the accused, who gave bail in the sum of $20 for examination next Monday.

IS HE DIVINELY INSPIRED?

Westfield Republican Speaks Oddly of a Plainfield Minister.

The Westfield Republican is responsible for the following:

"James A. Foster, who Sunday entered on the pastorate of the Second Christian church, of Plainfield, is a remarkable man. He states that he is divinely inspired. He says that some time since he was on Driggs Avenue, in Brooklyn, when, to use his own words, 'a man came from Heaven, stood before me, put his hands on my shoulders, and said, 'Receive you the Holy Ghost.' At the same time he blew in my face, and I at once realized that I had received the baptism of power. A dove entered into me, and said, 'Think,' and I thought; 'Talk,' and I talked; 'Write,' and I wrote. And this is what I wrote,—'Thou, O Plainfield, I will crown thee with honor and glory, and make thee the most notable of all the cities of New Jersey.'' The dove also enjoined him to write a prophecy for Cranford, which was,—'Thou, O Cranford, are not the least among the towns of New Jersey, for in thee will I write my name, and I will prosper thee. And thou, O South Cranford, I have somewhat to say to thee, because of the harlot. Put her away from thee, lest I come and smite thee and her.' He has not as yet reported any maledictions against Westfield. Foster is a Primitive Methodist, and has already gathered some thirty into his church that is to 'crown' Plainfield."

As yet no word has been received from Frank Green, of Somerset street, who left Plainfield about two weeks ago. He formerly lived near Newburg-on-the-Hudson, and it is possible that he may be visiting there for a time.

BARREL MEN AT WAR.

RIVAL CONCERN FORCES UP THE PRICE TO 12 CENTS.

The Bitterness Becomes Hatred and One of the Buyers it is Alleged Attempts to Cripple a Rival's Employe.

What might have proved to be a tragedy took place in the rear of Voehl's bakery, North Plainfield, yesterday. Fred Neuman, an employe of S. M. Clark, a dealer in barrels, of Harrison, was at the bakery with his wagon in search of barrels to buy.

It appears that there has recently sprung up an opposition to Mr. Clark, who has been dealing in barrels for a number of years. The rival concern come from Elizabeth and the gatherer of barrels is familiarly known as "Gypsie." The former price for floor and sugar barrels has been ten cents a piece. When the Elizabeth party put in an appearance a week or two ago the price was raised to 11 cents a barrel. Immediately there was a strong rivalry and the price arose to 12 cents.

Yesterday when Neuman reached Voehl's place he found that his rival had reached there ahead of him. In fact, the man familiarly called "Gypsie" was up in the hay mow of the barn. As Neuman entered the barn a large iron pot struck him upon the side of the head, and bounding to one side was smashed to atoms. Looking up Neuman saw "Gypsie" laughing at him.

Neuman charged "Gypsie" with attempting to assault him. To this his rival replied that he had better clear out; he had no business there. "Gppsie" denied, however, that he had hurled the pot, intimating that the pot's sudden fall was accident and not design.

Later Neuman notified Roundsman Flynn of the occurrence. The roundsman told him that the police had no jurisdiction regarding criminal matters in the borough. Neuman was advised to see a North Plainfield justice of the peace and lay the case before him. The officer told Neuman if the fellow troubled him while in the city to notify any of the officers, who would see that he was protected.

Neuman told a Daily Press reporter that he probably would have been seriously injured if not killed but for the fact that the iron pot in its descent struck a beam in the barn, which checked its force.

THE BOULEVARD FIASCO.

COUNTY ATTORNEY GETTING REPORT READY FOR COURT.

This is Necessary in Order for the County to be Reimbursed for the Preliminary Expenses of the Project.

The report of the various commissioners who have been employed by Union county to further the project of a county boulevard between this city and Elizabeth the right to build and operate a trolley road over which United States Senator John Kean offered the Board of Freeholders $250,000, is now in the hands of County Attorney William R. Codington, of this city, who is getting it in shape for presentation to Judge VanSyckel, in the Supreme Court. This action is necessary if the county is to secure from Mr. Kean the reimbursement of the expenses which have been entailed in the preliminary work of establishing the boulevard, which the latter agreed to pay if granted the franchise.

However, the fact that the boulevard project has collapsed and will never be consummated, it is stated by prominent county officials technically relieves Senator Kean of the obligation to pay preliminary expenses. It is understood, however, that he will do this as soon as the report is confirmed. In furthering the boulevard idea the Board of Freeholders also claimed several streets in the various towns along the route, including Richmond street, in this city, as county roads. Under this law the county is held responsible for the repair of county roads, but as the Freeholders have been rather reluctant to undertake the work in the face of the boulevard fiasco, several of the towns will ask the Freeholders to resign their claim to the streets in question. This will undoubtedly be done.

MAY SELL CEMETERY FOR THE BACK TAXES.

Peculiar Situation That Confronts Collector Brown.

AMOUNT TO BE PAID IS $210.

SENATOR REED SAYS THAT PROPERTY CAN BE SOLD.

Trustees of the Cemetery Have No Funds on Hand With Which to Pay the Delinquency, But the Lot Owners May Get Together and Raise the Sum Necessary to Pay the Taxes.

A peculiar situation confronts Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, concerning the intended sale of property for non-payment of assessments in opening and improving Watchung avenue. Among the properties that he will be called on to sell is the Presbyterian Cemetery, sometimes known as the North Plainfield Cemetery, located on Chatham street. Originally the assessment on this property was about $600, but when the revision of the list took place it was cut down to $210. This amount now stands against the property.

Collector Brown has communicated with William H. Shotwell, one of the trustees in charge of the cemetery property, and the latter says that there is no money with which to pay the assessment. The only alternative is to let the collector sell the property to anyone who will buy for the amount assessed against it.

Another side presents itself. The people who have purchased lots in the cemetery and have buried friends or relatives there certainly have some rights, and it's a question as to whether the collector has a right to sell this property for an assessment. It is understood that Counsel Reed says the property can be and must be sold to satisfy the amount due on it. It is possible that the amount may be raised before the day of sale takes place.

CAUGHT A TILL-TAPPER.

YOUNG LAD WAS LOOTING MONEY DRAWER IN LEGGETT'S STORE.

Detected by the Proprietor who Found $1 10 That He Had Stolen—Confessed and Said Other Boys Had Robbed, Too.

Sneak thieves are about and local merchants are much annoyed by small boys who sneak into their places of business, carry away goods and in some instances help themselves to cash from the money drawer. The latest victim is Druggist Leggett, in the Y. M. C. A. building, at East Front street and Watchung avenue.

A day or two ago Mr. Leggett caught a little chap in the act of helping himself to the contents of the money drawer at the soda fountain counter.

He captured the little thief, who had taken $1.10. The boy confessed that he and other boys often visited stores and when an opportunity presented itself they would sneak in and take what they could conveniently lay their hands on. The boy gave Mr. Leggett the names of a number of boys who were associated with him in crime. Chief Grant is making an investigation.

A BAN ON LITHOGRAPHS.

CENTRAL'S NEW OFFICERS DO NOT WANT SHOW BILLS IN DEPOTS.

Officials Visited North Avenue Station a Few Days Ago and Stripped the Lithographs From the Depot Walls

As an evidence that under the new regime of the Central Railroad Company things are to be looked after, a few days ago some of the head officials of the road visited this city and made a close and thorough inspection of the railroad property here. They visited every nook and corner and examined minutely everything belonging to the company.

At the North Avenue station one of the officials asked Ticket Agent Nelson by what authority show bills were hung in the waiting room. He informed his superior, and the latter immediately walked to where the bills were hanging and stripped them from the walls, and remarked that in the future they must not be displayed in the station.

The officials went to the freight-house and examined everything about the place. During their stay in the city they had very little to say and very few questions were asked.

It has been rumored very quietly in certain circles that a few surprises may be looked for in the near future in the nature of removals. The same spirit that prevails among the officials of the D. L. & W. Railroad seems to have seized the officials of the Central, as already there have been a number of removals.

AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL

PLAINFIELDERS WHO FIGURE IN THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

Wm. C. Force Has Secured a Patent for a Tool-Holder—Paul Ackerly Has Returned From a Trip to England.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, August 18—William C. Force, of North Plainfield, has secured a patent for a tool-holder having a drill-receiving socket, a supporting piece pivoted in the holder in a manner to serve as a lever for forcibly removing a tool from said holder, the said piece projecting from the holder and adapted to make contact with the frame of a lathe. The device is simple, adds to the usefulness of the lathe in several ways, and promises to become generally adopted when placed on the market.

John H. Cook, of New York, has assigned to Henry B. Newhall, of Plainfield, his new patent for the invention of a trolley track and a lift mechanism. Mr. Newhall has also obtained from Oliver H. Kingsland, of New York, the ownership of a patent for a door-binder, supplied with friction wheels and a notched and toothed connection.

Congressional Secretary Paul Ackerly, of Rockville, Conn., formerly of the staff of The Daily Press, has returned to Washington from a three months' business trip to London and Bradford, England, combined with a journey through the continent. Mr. Ackerly is interested in the exploitation in England of certain American cloth-finishing inventions, for which purpose a British company is be organized.

A FINE MINSTREL COMPANY.

Trenton True American Praises George Thatcher's Comedians.

George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels opened Trenton's theatrical season in Taylor Opera House last evening before an audience that compared favorably in size with many mid-season audiences. The performance was a first-class minstrel one, clean and bright and full of new and high features. The first part was very prettily set and costumed. Most of the songs and ballads were new and many new character specialties were introduced.

Mr. Thatcher's experience in minstrelsy has stood him in good stead in the selection of his artists and in conducting his performances.

The second part of the programme was made up by Niblo and Riley, comedy song and dance sketch; the Musical Avons; the Gramercy Quartette and the Big Four black pantomime.

The performance was a thoroughly satisfactory one.—Trenton True American.

CARNIVAL NIGHT COMES TOMORROW.

Great River Fete at Cranford Saturday Evening.

ELABORATE PREPARATIONS.

PARADE ON THE RIVER DURING THE EVENING.

It Will be Preceded by Band Concert—The Musical Programme—Fifty-five Crafts of Various Kinds Entered—Town Will be Gaily Decorated—All Cranford Will Assist in Entertaining Guests.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, Aug. 18.—There is just one topic of conversation in Cranford today and that is the river carnival that is to be held here tomorrow evening. Will it be pleasant that evening? Who will win the prizes? Regarding the success of the carnival and the chances of a big crowd, there isn't any question if the night happens to to be a pleasant one. Meanwhile everybody is in full enjoyment of the bustle of preparation and the town is preparing to do justice to the occasion.

According to the statements of the committee from the Cranford Boating Association, which is charge of the carnival, it will be the most successful affair of the kind ever conducted. Last night there was another meeting of the committee and the final arrangements were perfected. The parade is to be held on the river while a band will assist in the entertainment. It will be stationed at the band-stand at the head of Central avenue from 7:30 o'clock to 8:30 o'clock. Then it will be transferred to a huge float and will take part in the procession on the water.

Fifty-five entries of crafts of various description have been received and more are expected. They will assemble in the river by the band-stand at 8 o'clock, when a bomb will be discharged as a signal to get ready. Half an hour later another bomb will announce the beginning of the procession.

Starting opposite the band-stand which is on Central avenue near the residence of Mr. Vigelius, the parade will pass down the river to the dam at Bookhout's and turning up to Sanderson's, the procession will finally return to the band-stand there to disperse.

Prizes are to be offered for the best decorated boat, for the best decorated canoe, for the best decorated float and for the handsomest decoration of private grounds. This will result in a beautiful sight on land and on river. Many of the Cranford residents have not been wanting in artistic design in former years and everything now points that the carnival of '99 is to surpass all others.

The officers of the Cranford Boating Association are: Commodore, George Harvey Miller; vice-commodore, Daniel P. Smock; secretary, C. S. Williams; treasurer, George Harvey Miller. The carrival committee is composed of some thirty representative citizens of this place who have all labored hard to make the affair the great success that it undoubtedly will be.

A mighty throng of visitors will invade Cranford that night. They will come in all manner of conveyances and will lend their gala attire to add to the general effect. Cranford will be prepared for them. There will not be a household that will not entertain lavishly that evening, and a delightful time is in store for many. If it rains that night, the carnival will be postponed a week.

The programme for the concert from 7:30 to 8:30 o'cclock, by W. N. Bartow's military band, will be as follows:

March—"Smoky Mokes".....Holzmann
Overture—"Morning, Noon and Night." Von Suppe
Cornet Solo—"Polka det Concert"..Hartmann
W. N. Bartow.
Invitation—"A la Valse".....Weber
a. Water Scene—"Narcissus".....Weber
b. Two-Step—"Pride of the Park"....Bartow
Grand Fantasia—"Gypsy Life".....LaThiere
Polish Danse.....Scharwenka
Mosaic—From "The Fortune Teller." Victor Herbert
March—"Whistling Rufus".....Mills

ALL IN FOVOR OF DREYFUS.

Colonel Picquart Deals a Very Hard Blow to Du Paty de Clam's Statements.

A SENSATION IN COURT.

Declares That Captain Dreyfus Could Not Have Known the Secrets That Were Betrayed.

Judges Moved In Favor of the Prisoner By Recital of Witnesses—Mme. Henry Vigorously Replies to a Witness—Esterhazy Proved a Traitor By Testimony.

Rennes, Aug. 18.—After the close of the prosecution in the Dreyfus court-martial, Colonel Picquart, champion of Dreyfus, was placed on the stand. He made a magnificent showing for the accused man, whose innocence he proclaimed.

"How could Captain Dreyfus know of the secrets which were betrayed?" he asked, "when I, as Chief of the Bureau of Intelligence, did not know them? They could have been known only in the bureau of Du Paty de Clam."

This outburst caused a sensation.

M. Bertulus, who was examining magistrate in the early stages of the Dreyfus revision proceedings, and who has long declared his absolute conviction of the innocence of Dreyfus, was the first witness put forward by Maitre Demange in behalf of the accused.

He declared that Colonel Du Paty de Clam and Mlle. Pays were the authors of the "Blanche" and "Speranza" telegrams sent to Picquart.

M. Bertulus repeated his testimony before the Court of Cassation, including Henry's famous confession to him, when he begged him to "save us for the honor of the army."

When Henry was examined by Bertulus the latter said to him: "Esterhazy and Du Paty de Clam are guilty. Let the latter blow his brains out; justice will have its course with Esterhazy. He is now making charges against you which may lead your enemies to accuse you of supplying him with documents."

Henry on hearing this was speechless. Then throwing his arms around the magistrate's neck he cried, "Save us for the honor of the army. Esterhazy is a scoundrel!"

M. Bertulus testified that Henry was entirely in Esterhazy's hands. He told how he had examined all the evidence in the case and concluded that there was absolutely no indication of the guilt of Dreyfus; more than that, the witness was absolutely convinced the prisoner was an innocent man. In reply to questions, M. Bertulus gave his grounds for the belief in Esterhazy's connection with the bordereau.

"I believe that Dreyfus is innocent," he said. "I believe it, if for no other reason, because the Court of Cassation pronounced the bordereau the work of Esterhazy. Indeed, there is not the slightest evidence implicating Dreyfus."

As M. Bertulus was leaving the stand, Mme. Henry, whose husband's character had been painted in the blackest colors by the witness, sprang forward, signalled him to stop, and confronted him before the judges.

She bitterly reproached him for his attacks upon her dead husband's character, and denied the charges Bertulus had made and passionately declared that instead of Bertulus wringing a confession from her husband he had embraced and kissed him at the close of their last interview.

Then in a burst of anger she described Bertulus's alleged embrace of her husband as the "Kiss of Judas!" adding bitter words of denunciation against "this man," as she repeatedly described him.

She said her husband knew Dreyfus was guilty. The audience laughed.

Mme. Henry, the President, M. Bertulus and Major Carriere all talked at once, and nothing that any of them said was distinguishable. On the whole her evidence, by its very exaggeration of protestation, helped Dreyfus rather than otherwise.

Colonel Picquart, first champion of Dreyfus, who lost his position in the army and was degraded and put in prison for his constant assertion of the innocence of the prisoner of the Ile du Diable, then took the stand.

Picquart said that he expressed the opinion that the bordereau was insufficient, and then he continued Colonel Henry gave his sensational deposition. The witness protested energetically that he had ever aided in the disppearance of non-acquinement of documents relating to the Dreyfus case.

"Some documents have disappeared," he said, "but that was not my work."

Col. Picquart proceeded to reply to other insinuations which were really irrelevant to the Dreyfus case with the same freedom which had been indulged in by many previous witnesses, when the President for the first time interrupted him. Col. Picquart said: "For two years all sorts of infamous charges have been brought against me, and side issues have been raised to confuse my case. I am now determined to deal with them one and all." The day's proceedings ended most sensationally.

Destroys Mercier's Testimony.

Rennes, Aug. 18.—The publication by the Figaro of the Schneider telegram exposing another alleged forgery caused a great sensation here, and the general impression is that Schneider's disavowal has dealth a severe blow to the prosecution, killing the only point in General Mercier's evidence which was dangerous to Dreyfus.

Jiminez Starts from Havana.

Havana, Aug. 18.—Jiminez, who aspires to the head of Santo Domingo, has left here for Batabano. There he will take a steamer for Santiago. It is said he received cable dispatches from friends in Santo Domingo previous to his departure. He was accompanied by two friends. They were all unarmed.

BIG STORM OFF SCOTLAND

Crew of One Vessel Saved By a Discharged Hero of Dargal.

Aberdeen, Scotland, Aug. 18.—A terrific storm has just swept over the Scotch coast. At Fraserburgh, a town thirty-seven miles north of this place, on the northeast coast, 300 fishing craft were caught in the gale and a lifeboat went to their assistance.

The crew of the Diadem, of Cullen, a town on Cullen Bay (North Sea), were saved by the gallantry of James Brown, a discharged Dargal hero, who swam to the boat with a line. When this line had been fastened to the endangered craft the spectators who had gathered on the shore dragged the Diadem through the surf and landed her crew safely.

The greatest fears are entertained for the safety of the fishing fleet.

The schooner Pioneer, bound from Sunderland to Banff, a town thirty-eight miles north of Aberdeen, with a cargo of coal, is ashore, and it is feared that she will become a total wreck. The Life Saving Brigade went to her assistance.

The railroad passenger steamer Red Gauntlet is wrecked off Pladda Light, south of the island of Arran. The passengers and crew have been landed at Whiting Bay.

The crew of the Pioneer was eventually rescued by the life savers.

American Crew in Chinese Jail.

Port Townsend, Wash., Aug. 18.—Albert Lewis, mate of the bark Hesper, who arrived here from Shanghai on the schooner Prosper, reports that when the Hesper's cargo was discharged at Tsintau her crew refused to return, although they had signed for the round trip. Since no American consul was at Tsintau Capt. Sodergreen appealed to the commander of a German war vessel, who ordered the crew sent to jail. Mate Lewis says the only authority recognized at Tsintau is that of the Germans. With a pick-up crew the Hesper sailed for Puget Sound July 20, and is now due. The reason given by Lewis for the Hesper's crew refusing to return is cruel treatment from Capt. Sodergreen.

Fire Insurance Troubles.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 18.—The New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company has given notice that it is to withdraw from the Western Union at the expiration of the ninety-day's limit, Nov. 1. President French gives as a reason the hostile attitude of officials in many western states. The recent action of the Supreme Court of Missouri in declaring the Western Union to be a trust is believed, among insurance men, to have had an influence in the matter.

Prof. Norton Speaks at Dinner.

Ashfield, Mass., Aug. 18.—The twenty-first annual dinner in aid of Sanderson Academy was held with hundreds in attendance. Among the after-dinner speakers were Prof. Charles Elliot Norton, on the dangers of imperialism. Prof. Norton commended Senator Hoar for his resistance last winter to the confirmation of the treaty with Spain, and spoke of the "George III. policy" now being carried out in the Philippines.

Offers for Print Cloth Mills.

Fall River, Aug. 18.—Offers have been made for the stock of nearly all the seventy print cloth mills in this city by the New York promoters of the combine of yarn mills which formed some time ago. The print cloth mills of Fall River are controlled by thirty-six corporations. The offer was made to the various treasurers, with a view of forming a great print-cloth combine.

Challenges Glencairn.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The Chippewa Yacht Club, of Ogdensburg, in behalf of C. Allen Hardin and his boat, the Arkance, has challenged the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, of Montreal, for a race with the Glencairn over its eleven-mile triangular course on the St. Lawrence River for $300 a side. Dates between August 25 and September 2 are pending.

To Travel With Wild West Show.

Orange, N. J., Aug. 18.—Stephen Van Rensselaer, Jr., a broker at No. 26 Broad street, New York, has decided to travel for a year with a Wild West Show. Van Rensselaer is a grandson of the late Mrs. John G. Heckscher, and his mother is a sister of Mrs. John Christopher Wilmerding, well known in New York society. He was a "Rough Rider."

Church Badly Scorched.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 18.—The First Presbyterian Church on Broad street, which is the oldest in Newark, had a narrow escape from destruction. Fire was discovered in the cellar. By prompt action the flames were confined to the lecture room. The damage is about $3,000.

Cheers Against Jersey Trusts.

Flemington, N. J., Aug. 18.—Jersey farmers are rising against the trusts of which this state is the great fountain. At the county picnic here they cheered wildly the speech of Congressman W. D. Daly, of Hudson, who declared that the time has come to get the trusts under control.

Bandits Driven From Train.

Denver, Col., Aug. 18.—Colorado & Southern train No. 1 was held up near Folsom, N. M. One shot struck Mail Clerk Bartlett in the jaw, but the passengers, who were nearly all well armed, delivered such a well directed fire that the bandits fled.

Five Lost in Schooner Wreck.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 18.—The schooner Aaron Rappard is a total wreck on the North Carolina coast, near Gull Shoals life saving station. Capt. Wessel and three of the crew of eight escaped. The ship was bound from Philadelphia to Savannah.

Think Dreyfus Will Lose.

London, Aug. 18.—The correspondents of London papers in Rennes are almost unanimous in taking a gloomy view of the prospects of Captain Dreyfus. They seem to believe it likely that he will be found guilty.

Union County Orphans' Court.

IN MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF Jacob Blimm Administrator OF William Blimm, DECEASED, FOR SALE OF LAND TO PAY DEBTS. } Order to Show Cause.

Jacob Blimm, Administrator of William Blimm, deceased, having exhibited to this Court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay his debts, and requested the aid of the Court in the premises: It is, on this nineteenth day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, and real estate of said William Blimm, deceased, appear before the Court, at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the twentieth day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments, and real estate of the said William Blimm, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require. And it is further ordered that this order be set up and published in one of the newspapers of this State as by the Statute directed by the Court.

HAD A THRILLING VOYAGE

Overdue Steamship Arrives Safely in the Harbor at Savannah, Ga.

WAVES LIKE MOUNTAINS.

New York Vessel Forty-Eight Hours Overdue, in Worst Storm Her Captain Ever Saw.

Tossed About Like a Chip at the Mercy of the Heavy Seas—Wind Reached a Velocity of 100 Miles an Hour—Passengers Present Captain With Testimonial.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 18.—The overdue steamer City of Augusta, four days and six hours out from New York, has arrived here, after a thrilling experience with the hurricane.

For forty-eight hours the ship was exposed to what Captain Doggett describes as the worst storm he ever saw.

"We struck the storm near Charleston," said the Captain, in telling the story, "and I thought I had better get out to sea while I had the opportunity, so we headed out to sea and stayed there.

"The storm increased in violence hour by hour. I have faced a good many storms, but I think this was the severest yet."

"If there had been any way of taking a record I am satisfied the wind would have shown 100 miles an hour. The seas were tremendous, sweeping over the ship every moment. It was just like climbing mountains.

"The ship behaved beautifully and rode the sea like a duck. There was considerable rain, but most of the time there was a dense mist, the hurricane mist, we call it. The wind came in sharp, heavy gusts, like the shot out of a gun. When the storm ceased I found myself a good distance out at sea.

"The entire crew, both officers and men, behaved splendidly. Not a soul of the crew got any rest from the time the storm began until after it had passed. When I ordered the engines stopped at sea the men in the engine room would not go to their bunks, but they were so tired they slept right in the gratings. The passengers behaved admirably and showed less excitement than was to be expected. They were frightened, of course, but the ladies did not go into hysterics. It was pretty rough, and a few of the passengers received bruises, but none were seriously hurt."

The passengers presented the captain with a testimonial for bringing them through in safety.

Fears for the Vigilancia.

New York, Aug 18.—Five days overdue in Havana, and reported only once since sailing from this port on August 9, is the depressing record which leads the friends of the sixty passengers aboard the Ward liner Vigilancia to believe that something has befallen her. But they are only too anxious to accept the hope thrown to them by the officers of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, in the form of the stereotyped statement: "We expect to hear from the Vigilancia at any moment."

George H. Thomas Dead.

Little Falls, N. Y., Aug. 18.—While en route to New York on a trin, George H. Thomas, of Middleville, was stricken with apoplexy. He was put aboard a returning train at Albany and died five minutes later.

Mr. Thomas was a prominent Republican politician, and one of the leaders of the Platt-Sheard organization in Herkimer County. He constructed a large tannery at Middleville, and was engaged in other extensive industries in northern Herkimer County. He was 57 years old.

Nearly Engulfed Three Hundred.

Chapinsville, Conn., Aug. 18.—Three hundred excursionists had a narrow escape from being drowned here. Their train, which was running from Rhinecliff, N. Y., to Hartford, was derailed when within fifty feet of a place where the track runs on a narrow embankment between two deep lakes. No one was hurt. A misplaced switch was the cause.

Anti-Imperialists Plans.

Boston, Aug. 18.—Secretary Ewing E. Winslow of the Anti-Imperialist League says that while it is not likely that the league will organize a national party and put a ticket in the field, it is proposed to call a national convention in October for the purpose of demonstrating the opposition of the people of the country to the present policy.

Kissing Bug Kills Baby.

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 18.—Little Peter Bantler, two years old, is dead here—the victim of a kissing bug. The child was bitten a month ago on his right thigh. The leg swelled to three times its natural size and he died from blood poisoning.

Helen Gould Makes Gift to Navy.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Miss Helen Gould has again shown her interest in the navy by donating a photograph and stereoptican to the crew of the United States training ship Hartford, which will be placed in commission next month.

Captain Power Found Dead.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 18.—Capt. Power of the United States engineer corps, who was in charge of the government survey for a waterway connecting the Mississippi with Lake Michigan, was found dead in his tent at Millsdale, two miles south of Joliet.

Admiral Dewey's Movements.

Nice, France, Aug. 18.—It is announcede that the United States cruiser Olympia, with Admiral Dewey aboard, now at Leghorn, will arrive at Villefrance, two miles east of here, Aug. 22.

TO MAKE CRIMINAL CHARGE

Industrial School Scandal May Be Taken Into Court.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 18.—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has decided to institute criminal proceedings against Mrs. Eyler, principal, and the trustees of the State Industrial School for Girls at Trenton.

Arthur W. Bishop, of Paterson, N. J., president of the society, is confident that the laws under which his society works permit the prosecution, and will at once make charges, based upon the sworn testimony he has had taken before Justice of the Peace John Keys.

The most important testimony will be that of Sadie Weisman, who has lived at No. 164 East Main street, with her mother for the last two years. It is claimed that she was made an invalid for life by her treatment at the institution. Her sworn statement contains the following:

"I had been accused by Mrs. Eyler of breaking a rule of the Sunday school, but I denied doing so, and was ordered to the dungeon. I refused to go, and she sent for Tim, the gardener. Mrs. Eyler and Miss Sickles were holding me down. Mrs. Eyler weighs nearly two hundred pounds, yet she sat on me with all her weight.

"Mrs. Eyler ordered Tim to choke me till I was black in the face. He stopped twice but she ordered him to continue choking me. Then she sent Miss Frances Day for a straight-jacket, and while Miss Day was putting it on me Mrs. Eyler continued to strike me with the leather strap. She struck me at least twenty times.

"After the third day they put me in a board cell. It had two windows, but these were boarded up by order of Mrs. Eyler. I was kept there for four days on bread and water. Miss Day told Mrs. Eyler I would not live long unless I was nursed better. Then Mrs. Eyler became frightened and allowed me a bowl of hot milk.

"She got me a woman doctor, who could not treat me, as I was too far gone. I was then taken to the hospital, where the best of food was given to me to save my life. My side pained me so that I could hardly sleep or move about. My throat has been so sore I can hardly swallow food yet. My tongue has never recovered from the fever and swelling caused by the choking."

Pullman Estate Pays $158,282.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—A tax of $158,282 has been paid by the estate of the late George M. Pullman (the largest sum yet paid under the Inheritance Tax law) by Norman B. Ream and Robert T. Lincoln, executors of the Pullman estate. The Pullman heirs made a strong legal fight against the payment of the tax, but the County Court decided against them. The entire Pullman estate taxable under the Illinois law amounted to $8,182,000.

Pugilist Franey Dying.

San Francisco, Aug. 18.—The condition of "Jim" Franey, of Cincinnati, who was knocked out by Frank McConnell in the fourteenth round of a twenty-round glove contest given under the auspices of the National Athletic club, is extremely precarious. Extreme unction has been administered by Father Hickey, of the Catholic church, and the friends of the fighter have abandoned hope of his recovery.

Dewey to Arrive in September.

Washington, Aug. 18.—A letter received by the Secretary of the Navy from Admiral Dewey indicates definitely that he will arrive at New York between September 25 and 30. He will leave Gibraltar about the middle of September. The run from Gibraltar to New York is from ten to fourteen days. Admiral Dewey's letter puts an end to the report that he would go to London after leaving the Mediterranean Sea.

Dynamite Causes a Panic.

New York, Aug. 18.—A quantity of dynamite stored in a shed at 135th street and Willis avenue exploded, and caused a panic in the lower section of the Borough of the Bronx. Buildings for some distance around the scene of the explosion were shaken, and windows were shivered. Several persons were injured by falling glass and flying debris, but none of the injuries are of a serious nature.

Southern Coal Mines Sold.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 18.—The Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Company of Bristol, has bought the Looney Creek coal mines of the Interstate Coal Company. The consideration is said to be $500,000. Five hundred coke ovens are to be built at the mines to furnish coke for the fourteen iron furnaces controlled by the company in eastern Tennessee and southwestern Virginia.

It Troubles Mr. Frick.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 18.—H. C. Frick is having trouble financing the deal to buy out Andrew Carnegie's interests in the iron and steel business. He has gone to Scotland to confer with Carnegie on the subject. It is believed that J. P. Morgan will be asked to get the money for the concern.

Plague Cannot Come Here.

Wshington, Aug. 18.—The surgeon of the Marine Department announces that there is no danger of the plague getting into this country. Surgeon Irwni, of the service, is at Oporto investigating the disease, and the United States will guard against it on both sides of the sea.

Automobile Trip Postponed.

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—The proposed automobile trip from Chicago to New York, to transmit military correspondence from Gen. Anderson to Gen. Merritt, will be postponed for a week or ten days.

Whitney Syndicate Branches Out.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Announcement is made here that the Whitney-Elkins-Widener syndicate has acquired possession of all the electric light and power concerns of Chicago.

Russian Crops Damaged.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Reports from southwest Russia says that the recent drought in that portion of the country has caused the utter loss of the winter and spring wheat crops.

Don't trust your shoeing to any one who as not made a study of the horse's foot, it is too delicate in its construction to be handled by a carpenter or butcher. We are having great success in leveling and balancing horses that have been ungaited by being shod by inexperienced men and boys. I try to give Ripans Tabules their just dues, but can not say sufficient in regard to myself. I am a storekeeper, aged forty-six years. Dyspepsia was the chief trouble I took the Tabules for. I can not say how long I suffered with it, but I can say I no longer need be afraid of what I eat. From night until early morning I have walked the floor and could not sleep I had been trying various remedies with but little success, until about six months ago I started to take Ripans Tabules. They have cured me. At first I took them very sparingly, being naturally afraid of them, but I kinder noticed a change and I took three each day until now I only take one a day or one whenever I feel bad. They were brought to my notice by a gentleman who was taking them for a disordered and bad stomach such as vomiting, headaches and bad breath. He has been positively cured.

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES packed in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents. RIPANS TABULES may be also had of some grocers, general storekeepers, news agents and at some liquor stores and barber shops. They banish pain, induce sleep and prolong life. One gives relief.

THE MYSTERY CLEARED UP

New York Police Have the Alleged Krouman Murderer.

New York, Aug. 18.—William Neufeldt, who has been arrested on suspicion of having murdered Mrs. Annie Kroneman on Aug. 7, has been positively identified at Police Headquarters as the man in black who visited the Kronman flat on the day of the murder. Mrs. Innes, who lives in the house and saw the man in black, made the identification in Capt. McClusky's office. As soon as Neufeldt saw her he collapsed and said:

"It's all up with me now."

Capt. McClusky has recovered all of Mrs. Kronman's jewelry except a small gold neck chain. The watch and chain were discovered in the possession of Benjamin Korn, of Brooklyn. Korn was brought to headquarters and identified Neufeldt as the man who had sold him the watch and chain.

Capt. McClusky said that he had not the slightest doubt of Neufeldt's guilt, and that the case to be presented against him will be clear and conclusive. The backbone of the case, Capt. McClusky said, consisted of these facts: That Neufeld knew that Mrs. Kronman had valuable jewelry and knew where she kept it; that he pawned a part of that jewelry, and that since August 7, the day on which Mrs. Kronman was murdered, he had sought to disguise himself.

Nathan Kronman, husband of the murdered woman, was in the room when Mrs. Innis identified Neufeld and before the officers could restrain the frenzied man, he dealt the prisoner several terrific blows nearly felling him to the floor. His rage made him almost a maniac and it was with great difficulty that the detectives could separate him from the man whom he has every reason to believe brutally murdered his wife and destroyed his home.

Detectives say that Neufeld has made admissions that amount practically to complete confession of the crime charged against him.

Find the Motorman Guilty.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 18.—The jury in the inquest into the cause of the accident on the Shelton Street Railroad Company's bridge at Peck's Mill Pond Aug. 6, has rendered its verdict. The finding of the jury is that the motorman of the wrecked trolley car, George S. Hamilton, was guilty of criminal carelessness, and that the Shelton Street Railway was negligent. The jury also recommended a special session of the state legislature to enact certain laws which it recommended for the protection of persons riding on trolley cars.

Forty Fire Companies in Line.

Canandaigua, Aug. 18.—Nearly 25,000 persons witnessed the monster parade of volunteer firemen of Chemung, Ontario, Schuyler, Yates and Seneca Counties this afternoon. Forty fire companies and twenty bands were in line. The newly elected officers of the association were chosen from the firemen of Waterloo, where next year's convention will be held, and are as follows: President, Malcolm Love; vice president, T. Malone; secretary, Louis Ferrenbaugh; treasurer, William D. Lord.

Can't Lie About Your Age.

Washington, Aug. 18.—It is impossible to lie about your age, according to a ruling just made by the Comptroller of the Treasury. He has decided that as a person can have such information only through others he cannot be absolutely sure as to his age, and therefore it is not perjury to misstate it. The ruling is in the case of a surfman who got into the service after the legal age and who wants a pension. This ruling applies to women also.

Six Drowned in a Carriage.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 18.—A carriage containing six persons was precipitated into White River as it was being driven oboard a ferryboat and all were drowned. The dead are:—Mrs. Albert Hensel, four Hensel children, and Miss Amy Dillon. The horse had just stepped aboard the ferryboat when the hawser parted and the boat swung out, dropping the carriage with its occupants into the river.

Hearse Siezed for Water Tax.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The village hearse is in the hands of the Tax Collector at Pawling, and the people are so mad that not a man will die until it is released. It comes of a water tax the owner of the hearse, Samuel Mason, refused to pay. Many others decline to pay the tax. The hearse may be needed if the suit in court now pending does not end as the defiant ones wish

Boers to Back Down.

London, Aug. 18.—Advices from Johannesburg are to the effect that the Boers are ready to grant all the reforms asked for by Great Britain, and thus avert hostilities.

Circumventing a Shell.

Most thrilling is the story of Major William Duffield Bell, surgeon of the Seventy-first Regiment, of a battlefield scene during one of the battles in Cuba, as told in Leslie's Weekly. The Major says: "I had just begun to examine a poor fellow's wounds when I saw a shell coming toward us high overhead. I thought it must surely pass beyond, but it struck a tall tree and ricocheted to the ground, exploding at the very spot where we were standing. As I saw the danger I gave the wounded man a sharp push forward, throwing him to the ground, also in a forward direction, as I knew that the fragments of the shell would be driven backward by the momentum.

"The explosion came not ten feet from where we were lying, and both of us were buried in the dirt hurled violently over us. There was a hole in the ground where the shell struck big enough to set a barrel in, but neither the soldier nor I got any hurt. The others about thought this quite a miracle, and came running up, thinking to find us dead. All these details I remember with the utmost distinctness."

ROOT MAKES DECISION.

An Idea Looking to the Interchange of Troops That Are Stationed in Tropical Climates.

General Miles' Revised Opinion in the Matter to Be Overruled—Over Eight Hundred Filipinos Make an Unsuccessful Attempt to Recapture Angeles.

Manila, Aug. 18.—Eight hundred Filipinos attacked Angeles, but the Twelfth Regiment drove them into the mountains and three ditched locomotives were captured. The attack was made for the purpose of recapturing the town from the Americans.

None of the American troops was injured. The Filipinos loss is unknown.

Mr. C. T. Spencer, of Kentucky, a reporter on the Manila "Times," was killed during the fight at Angeles.

The Twelfth Infantry left Calulet and advanced up the railway. Capt. Evans's battalion deployed to the right of the track, and Capt. Woods's to the left. Two companies remained on the track with the artillery.

The natives were found well intrenched in front of the town, their trenches having been dug within a few days and since the occupation of Calulet.

At a distance of 1,500 yards the Filipinos opened fire. Their force was estimated by Col. Smith at 1,500, although Calulet people afterward said it exceeded that figure by 1,000.

The enemy sent heavy volleys agines the whole American line. Most of their shooting, as usual, was high; but they concentrated their heaviest fire down the track upon the artillery.

Col. Smith kept the whole line moving rapidly, with frequent rushes. The Filipinos attempted to flank Capt. Evans, and, therefore, two companies were sent to the right and drove them back.

Unable to stand our continuous volleys, the Filipinos abandoned their trenches and retreated through the town northward. It appears that they had only just received their supply of ammunition. Had they been attacked sooner they could have made little resistance. The intense heat caused much suffering among the Americans.

Lieut. Howland, of Gen. Wheaton's staff, who knew the country thoroughly as the result of reconnoisances, and who assisted in directing the movement, received a volley while riding across a field close to the trenches, but he escaped unharmed.

Ten New Regiments.

Washington, Aug. 18.—An order has been issued directing that ten additional regiments of infantry volunteers be organized for service in the Philippines.

The regiments will be numbered from thirty-eight to forty-seven and will be organized at the following places, in the order named:

Fort Snelling, Minn.; Fort Crook, Neb.; Fort Riley, Kan.; Camp Meade, Pa.; Fort Niagara, N. Y.; Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Jefferson Barracks, Mo.; South Framingham, Mass.

The new regiments will be organized under the general instructions issued at the time the first ten regiments were called out. In the list of lieutenant-colonels announced it is not known whether Bernard A. or Charles Byrne is intended. Both are captains in the Sixth Infantry. Gen. Otis has been cabled for the full name, as the officer was designated to him.

With the thirteen regiments already called into service, the ten ordered will now make a total of 30,000, in round numbers, of the 35,000 volunteers authorized.

Miles' Opinion Overruled.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The home battalion system, the adopting of which has been under consideration for several months is at last to be put in force. Five battalions, one from each of five regiments now stationed in Cuba, will be brought to the United States, leaving two battalions of each regiment in Cuba. The "home" battalions, without losing their identity with their regiments, will remain stationed in this country. There will be a constant interchange of men between battalion and regiment, the idea being in this way to provide for the continual refreshing and recuperation of the troops in tropical countries, for the same system will be adopted in the Philippines, should it prove successful. The home battalions will receive the recruits, who will be drilled in them for service in the field, and in turn they will receive from the regiments those men who are sent home invalided. The system is in force in almost every European army which has to garrison tropical possessions, and it has always been found to work effectively. It has been adopted by Secretary Root, in opposition to the recommendation of Gen Miles.

Yaquis Driven From Bacum.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—A despatch to the Tribune from Guaymas, Mexico, says: "The Yaquis have been driven away from Bacum, which is now occupied by government troops. At Cuesa Alta the rebels are in force. They have thrown up earthworks and constructed forts and will make a desperate resistance. The government forces are being pushed to the front."

Fatality on Grade Crossing.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 18.—While George E. Frank, Jay Gould and two young women of Meadville, Pa., were crossing the Lake Shore tracks here, their carriage was struck and destroyed by an engine. Gould and one of the women were so badly injured that they died later in the hospital. The other woman is in a precarious condition.

COMING EVENTS.

August 20—Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m.

Municipal Ownership to be Argued.

The League of American Municipalities, at its third annual convention, to be held at Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 19-22, will add materially to the information now in circulation on that most important of all municipal questions, the public ownership of light and water plants, which will have great interest for Plainfield in view of agitation for city ownership of the water works. Nothing has attracted more earnest public attention in recent years than the municipalization of public service industries in this country.

As the movement has progressed it has had to meet a most substantial opposition from those who do not believe that industrial enterprise should be attempted by the government. Despite this serious opposition the movement has grown with rapidity throughout the United States, until political parties have considered it expedient to place in their local platforms the most emphatic declarations in favor of municipal ownership. This question has been paramount in political contests waged in New York, Chicago, New Orleans, San Francisco, Denver, Detroit, Milwaukee, Toledo and other large cities.

That the municipalization of light and water plants has gained ground rapidly is shown by authentic statistics. Ten years ago there were scarcely more than a score of publicly owned electric light plants in this country; today nearly 400 municipalities own and operate works of this kind. In 1890 only 42 per cent. of the water plants in the United States were publicly owned and today the percentage is about 54.

Municipal ownership, like all other questions, has two sides. The arguments, both pro and con, are well founded and intensely interesting. At the two preceding conventions of the League of American Municipalities this question has been discussed at length, but only the affirmative side has been presented. The programme committee for the coming Syracuse convention have determined upon a plan that will bring forth the most comprehensive and the fairest discussion of this question ever presented in this country. They have decided to set aside one whole day for the treatment of the subject, and to have it discussed from every standpoint.

It was interesting news which The Daily Press exclusively published yesterday concerning the probable intentions of the Feltville Water Company to enter the local field as a competitor of Senator Kean's moncpolistic enterprises. Competition from such a source would undoubtedly result in a reduction of the excessively high rates now exacted from Plainfielders for their water supply. Competition that would result in this condition of affairs would be welcomed, but, notwithstanding, what Plainfield needs and wants is municipal ownership of the water works.

The principal Democratic event in Union county previous to the holding of the county convention is the outing of the Elizabeth Democrats, which will be held this year at Whitestone, L. I., August 31st. The arrangements for the affair have been practically completed and it promises to be a notable occasion for the Democrats of Union county. At that time the big and little leaders will confer as to the best policy to pursue during the fall campaign, and then also will the candidacies for the county officers probably be announced by the various aspirants.

There is poetic justice in the fact that the Somerville officials have been sensible enough to cling to the plain name of Bridge street for one of its thoroughfares, that appelation carrying some historical meaning to it, while a few of the aristocratic residents of the community wanted to relegate the time-honored name to oblivion and substitute the English title of Northfield road. In recent years there has been altogether too much changing of names to cater to the high-toned and new-fangled ideas of street nomenclature possessed by some people.

Former Congressman Johnston Cornish has created some surprise by announcing his candidacy for State Senator in Warren county, and as a consequence ex-County Clerk Wildrick, Sheriff Mackey and Robert Petty, all of whom are said to be anxious to go to the Senate Senate, are not feeling as serene as formerly.

What a sorry sight the crusty malicious old Gen. Roget made on the witness stand in the Dreyfus trial yesterday.

MODERN RUTHS OF THE WEST.

The severe rains and fierce wind storms which have visited the great agricultural sections of the west and northwest during the latter part of the summer have occasioned heavy losses to the farmers. The harvesting time for wheat, oats and similar grains is short at best, and in such seasons as the remarkable summer of 1899 great loss of grain is caused by the inability of the farmer to get his crops in betimes. But many fields have been saved this year by the heroic labors of the wives and daughters of the farmers. These brave women have gone forth as reapers, binders and stackers to supply the deficiency caused by the scarcity of farm laborers, and graineries will this fall be filled to the rafters because of the efforts of these modern Ruths of the west.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Lawyer Clarence L. Murphy has just received a letter from his father, Rev. T. Logan Murphy, former rector of the Holy Cross church. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy and Miss Murphy are now traveling through England. Rev. Mr. Murphy writes of a general round of sight-seeing. After a stay at Chester, they visited the home of Shakespeare at Stratford. Then they journeyed to Oxford and Kenilworth and Blemheim and finally on to London. At London they were particularly fortunate. Through friends in Scotland the courtesies of the Houses of Parliament were extended to them by a Scottish member, and they met a number of distinguished people including Hon. Thomas Reed, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, who is now abroad. They also witnessed the confirmation of the Duke of Albany, a grandson of the Queen.

Not the least interesting among the family group awaiting the arrival on Saturday of General W. J. Sewell was Richard Heyl, or "Indian Dick," as he is popularly known in Camden. Heyl is a full-blood Apache and son of a great chief of that race. Nearly thirty years ago, when General Krook defeated the Apaches in Arizona on the battlefield, one of the General's officers found a papoose—a wee, copper-faced, long black-haired baby, smiling and chuckling, while around it were bleeding and mangled forms. The child was taken East by General Sewell's brother-in-law, Major Heyl, and afterwards sent to the Indian College at Carlisle, Pa., where the young Apache made remarkable progress. There he was known as Richard Heyl, being named after his foster-father. General Sewell took great interest in the young man and placed him, after leaving college, in the Pennsylvania Railroad shops, at Altoona, Pa., where he now is. Mr. Heyl is now thirty years of age and a well informed and highly intelligent gentleman. He took much interest in his sail up the lordly Hudson after the arrival of the St. Paul.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about ¼ as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 18—The enterprising Call this week calls attention to the importance of the citizens awakening from their lethargy with regard to improvements and the necessity of offering inducements for people to come to the borough to locate. It says: "Dunellen has a charming location, a well-governed borough, with well laid out streets desirably shaded, with electric lights, steam and trolley traveling facilities and a water service soon to be inaugurated, which places us in a position for improvements as any place within twenty seven miles of the metropolis." The writer can endorse all The Call says, and add, too, that Dunellen can boast of a good class of people. No better place to establish a home can be found in any of the New Jersey towns. There is no reason to doubt that with increased railroad facilities and a reduction in fares that many people can yet be induced to come here and locate.

Charles J. Register, of Wilmington-Del., has been appointed by the Central Railroad Company as superintendent of bridges for this section, in place of R. J. Swackhamer, resigned.

Among those who enjoyed the excursion to Asbury Park yesterday was Miss Mildred Gaskill, the popular and accommodating clerk at the post-office.

Rev. A. I. Martine, having returned from his vacation, will occupy the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday.

Rev. Robert Clark and wife and Mrs. Charles Apgar, of Westfield, are the guests of Mrs. Emily Apgar, of Front street.

The sale of property upon which the taxes for 1897 are unpaid will take place at the borough hall this afternoon.

Mrs. O. A. Douglass has been entertaining her niece, Mrs. Walter Smith, of West New Brighton, S. I.

Miss Emma Nelson is enjoying the invigorating sea breezes at Asbury Park for a few days.

The regular meeting of the Building and Loan Association will be held Monday evening.

The new band, recently organized, hold weekly practice in Sirisky's barber shop.

Miss Emma Apgar has been visiting friends at Neshanic and Centreville.

Thomas Baron has returned from a short visit with friends at Ocean Grove.

John Beethan, of Green Brook, has been visiting friends at New Brunswick.

Miss Gypsie Earl has been entertaining Miss Lottie Jewell, of New York.

Miss Louise Brown, of Reading, Pa., has been visiting Mrs. W. H. Terry.

Master Willie Staats, of Raritan, has been visiting his uncle, Barney Sirisky.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—Moderate prices and excellent quality mark the display of fresh Jersey vegetables at Neuman Brothers, these days.

—Buy your shoes of Flynn Brothers, 222 West Front street, near Music Hall, and you will get seasonable, fresh goods that give you good wear and great comfort, and you will find their prices right.

—The Queen City Laundry, Park avenue, Miller building, still continues to do good laundry work. A. E. Dealaman, the proprietor, is very particular to look after all details so as to make his laundry up-to date. If you give him your laundry once you will do so again.

A special meeting of the Board of Education will be held tomorrow evening.

W. H. Terry has been entertaining his friend, Wm. Dove, of Metuchen.

Mr. and Mrs. James McElvare have been visiting friends in Trenton.

Miss Terresa Courelle, of New York, has been a guest at "Earl Villa."

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 18.—W. S. Emery entertained about 250 guests at his annual clam bake held at his summer garden in the rear of the hotel, yesterday afternoon and evening. The garden was prettily decorated with the Stars and Stripes while the band stand, from which Drake's Zouave Band, of Elizabeth, of 18 pieces, discoursed sweet strains, was covered with bunting. As the afternoon waned into evening every trolley car was taxed to its utmost to accommodate the crowd who were wending their way to the tempting bake. Mr. Emery was here, there and all over looking after the welfare of his guests and seeing that everyone was getting all they could possibly eat. After the last clam had been devoured dancing in the large pavilion was in order and continued until 12 o'clock when all departed, singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Emery runs his 16-mile road race tomorrow afternoon over the Mountain avenue course and there will probably be another large gathering. The race will be followed by a dance in the evening.

The interesting meetings of the Thursday Evening Literary Club of the Methodist church have been discontinued for the rest of the month. The society intends resuming their work again early in September.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, are entertaining Mrs. Westcott's brother-in-law, George C. Strong, of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hall and family, of the borough, are spending several weeks at Spring Lake.

Mrs. E. L. Hand and Mrs. George Schick spent Thursday with friends in Newark.

Mrs. James Ritchie, of Plainfield, is spending a few weeks with Miss Susie Parse.

Miss Kizzie Naegle, of Plainfield, is visiting her cousin Miss Nellie Whitenack.

Mrs. Loftus Hollingsworth, of Scranton, is visiting relatives in town.

Miss Kittie Buckley has been visiting friends in Netherwood.

Goodwill Lodge met in their rooms last evening.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, N. J., August 18.—Moreland Townley, who went to the convention of the Epworth League, at Indianapolis, recently, as a representative of the Epworth League of the Westfield Methodist church, gave a very interesting description of his trip and of the convention, at the church last evening.

The Bayonne Tennis Club will come to Westfield Saturday, September 16th. to play a return series of games with the Westfield Club on the latter's courts. After the games there will be a dance for which music will be furnished by Prof. Westervelt, of Newark.

There will be a first class game of baseball at Cranford tomorrow afternoon, when the local team will play the O. N. T., of Cranford, which team played the Cranford team a ten-inning game recently.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard street, Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

BOEHM'S.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Preußen.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Das deutsche Kolonialmuseum wird im September d. J. in den umgebauten Räumen des früheren Marine-Panoramas eröffnet werden. Es wird folgende Abtheilungen umfassen: Einfuhrausstellung, Geschichte und Verwaltung der Kolonien, Missionen, Kamerun, Togo, Südwestafrika, Ostafrika, Neuguinea, Kiautschau, überseeische Interessen in nichtdeutschen Ländern u. s. w.—Die Wiedereröffnung des Cirkus Renz in Berlin soll, wie eine Lokalkorrespondenz versichert, gesichert sein. Direktor Albert Schumann und Kommissionsrath Franz Renz in Hamburg hätten die Absicht, das Unternehmen gemeinsam zu leiten. Damit wäre die Frage, was aus dem alten Cirkusgebäude in der Karlstraße werden soll, gelöst. Mit dem vollständigen Umbau des seit dem Krach des Olympia-Riesentheaters leerstehenden Gebäudes soll bereits in den nächsten Tagen begonnen werden. Die neue Firma soll die Absicht haben, den Cirkus bereits Anfangs Oktober zu eröffnen.

Dobrilugk. Während eines Gewitters fuhr ein Blitzstrahl in einen großen Stall des zum Rittergut Kleinhof bei Dobrilugk gehörenden Schulz'schen Vorwerks. Dabei fanden 24 Schweizer-Ziegen, 20 Schweine und 10 Schafe in den Flammen ihren Tod.

Rathenow. Beim Baden in der Havel unweit Milow ertranken zwei dort zum Besuche weilende Töchter des Lehrers Kahle aus Brandenburg, die sich bemühten, eine dem Versinken nahe Gefährtin zu retten. Letztere wurde durch Fischer gerettet.

Provinz Hannover.

Hannover. Hier hat sich auf der Kraftstation Sehnde der Linie Hannover-Haimar der elektrischen Straßenbahn ein eigenartiges, bedauerliches Unglück ereignet. Der Ingenieur Cyriakus aus Gera und der Arbeiter Münstermann aus Sarstedt, junge Leute in den zwanziger Jahren, hatten sich zur Untersuchung der Wasserverhältnisse in einen Brunnenschacht begeben, in dem das Wasser circa 40 Centimeter tief stand. Giftige Gase führten den Erstickungstod der beiden jungen Leute herbei. Rettungsversuche konnten nicht vorgenommen werden, denn seltsamer Weise wurden die beiden Unglücklichen erst zwei Tage später vermißt, und erst die daraufhin vorgenommenen Nachsuchungen führten zur Auffindung der beiden Leichen.

Osnabrück. Nach einer sehr anstrengenden Felddienstübung des 78. Infanterie-Regiments wurde der zu einer Uebung eingezogene Postsekretär Folkens aus Elze von einem Hitzschlag befallen und starb nach kurzer Zeit. Mehrere Musketiere wurden in Folge der großen Anstrengungen und der tropischen Hitze marschunfähig.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Frankfurt. Hier feuerte der frühere Spezereihändler Burkhardt auf seine Frau zwei Schüsse ab, die den rechten Vorderarm und den Rücken trafen. Hierauf schoß Burkhardt auf die zu Hilfe eilenden Personen, ohne jedoch zu treffen, und brachte sich selbst einen Schuß in die Magengegend bei. Schwerverletzt wurde das Ehepaar in das Krankenhaus gebracht, wo der Mann seinen Verletzungen erlegen ist.

Wiesbaden. In Holzappel bei Diez hat ein Großfeuer, das fast den ganzen Tag währte, 18 Wohnhäuser, 6 Scheunen und fünf Ställe vernichtet. Viele Familien, meist arme Bergarbeiter, sind in Folge dessen obdachlos. Als Ursache des Brandes wird Selbstentzündung des Heues angegeben.

Bad-Nauheim. Der Polizei ist es gelungen, zwei russische Hochstapler zu verhaften, von denen der eine aus Nizza, der andere aus Antwerpen zugereist war.

Provinz Pommern.

Stralsund. Die in auswärtigen Blättern angezweifelte Nachricht, daß sich in unseren Gewässern ein jedenfalls von einer größeren Heerde verschlagener Walfisch gezeigt habe, beruht nichtsdestoweniger auf Wahrheit. Hunderte von Menschen haben ihn gesehen, und viele Jäger haben versucht, die seltene Beute zu erlegen. Allein bis jetzt haben sich alle Jagdmittel als unzulänglich erwiesen, selbst das Geschoß unseres kleinkalibrigen Infanteriegewehres blieb wirkungslos.

Swinemünde. Die verstorbene Frau Emilie Hepse hierselbst hat der Stadt ein Legat von 1,000,000 Mark zum Bau eines Waisenhauses und der evangelischen Kirchengemeinde ebenfalls 1,000,000 Mark zum Bau einer neuen Kirche vermacht.

Provinz Posen.

Schrimm. Im hiesigen Landarmenhause brach kürzlich eine Revolte aus. Die Anstaltsbeamten, welche die Ruhestörer, etwa 50 Männer, beruhigen wollten, wurden mit Messern und Knüppeln angegriffen und mußten weichen. Auch Gendarmen und Polizei, die geholt worden waren, wurden angegriffen und mußten blank ziehen. Mehrere Ruhestörer wurden schwer, andere leicht verletzt. Der Aufwiegler, ein Sträfling, ist entkommen.

Schneidemühl. Der Besitzer Köntopp aus Kreuz an der Ostbahn wurde auf der Jagd von einem Jagdgenossen, der ihn für anschleichendes Wild gehalten, versehentlich erschossen.

TYPES OF WOMEN YOU KNOW.

Charity Neil Tells of the Great Adjuster and The Gentle Hearted Overlooker.

There is a type of woman in this world who prides herself upon being able, under all conditions and circumstances in life, to speak her mind freely.

She never goes "behind the bush" about anything, and if she has anything unpleasant to say about you she does so "boldly and aboveboard," right to your face, not mentioning what else she may say behind your back also.

RIGHT TO YOUR FACE.

This type of individual lives in every community, and wherever you go in life as sure as you find a town pump and a postoffice you find this type of woman.

She seems to have the idea in her head that people have either buried their feelings so deep that nothing can ever affect them or that they lie so callous on the surface that every "jab" and "dig" she delights in giving you does not even leave a dent, let alone a sore place.

She always takes a lively interest in your affairs and is not averse to telling you how you ought to manage them. She seems to be laboring under the delusion that nature has singled her out from all the world as the great adjuster of the human race, and she most assiduously fulfills her mission.

She is the sort of person who takes delight in telling you that you look ten years older than you did two years ago; that the mole on your face looks as hideous as ever; that you are not near so good looking as you used to be.

She has a penchant for gray hairs, and nothing gives her greater pleasure than to discover the first one that creeps its way through your nut brown tresses and pull it out for you.

She likes to remind you that you are growing old.

She is always saying, "I told you so," when anything goes wrong with you.

If she ever has the sacred privilege of entering your home, she at once discovers a need in an adjustment of the furniture and tells you so. She is always ready to tell you how she would have things if they were hers, and if you do not at once accede to her wishes she looks at you in utter amazement.

She is also interested in your anatomy and tells you that you are too thin, your bones stick out at haphazard angles. She notices if you are growing stout and tells you that you eat too much and that you sleep too late.

She began this outspoken habit when quite young, for she was led to believe that it was a very bright thing to do.

A few of her friends encouraged her in it because they said they admired outspoken people. So, with the mistaken idea of gaining friends, she has gone through life saying anything and everything that was in her mind upon all occasions, not caring whom she hit or how many she hurt. If she had only found it in her heart to express herself in a way which might have been helpful to any one, she might today be able to count her friends by the hundreds instead of on the fingers of her one hand, not counting the thumb.

NOT CARING WHOM SHE HITS.

She is to society in general what a wasp is to the young boy in his first encounter with that vitreous offender.

We feel very sorry for this type of woman when she sits alone sometimes and wonders why she has so few friends.

She might turn a little sweetness into her disposition, a little forbearance into her soul, and be another person in a short time, for down deep in her heart, so deep that few people have ever discovered it, there is a kernel of genuine good in this woman's soul which, if she would only take the trouble to cultivate it, might save her from the fate of a friendless old woman and the reputation of a rattling magpie.

Then there is another type.

I know a dear old woman whom the world would justly call the "overlooker" if it only knew about her as a few of her friends do. She is the dearest, sweetest old lady in all the world, and in her tongue is verily "the law of kindness."

She is never known to say a harmful word of anybody, and her influence is such that you dare not do so yourself in her presence, for you are bound by the gentle sway she wields over your soul to overlook all the faults and failings you see in others, just as she does, and own that it is the best thing to do after all.

When you come to this old lady to relate some experience with the perfidy of your race and tell her how shamefully you have been abused and your feelings hurt in the tenderest spot, she has a kind way of patting you on the shoulder and saying: "Now, just sift the matter down, dear, and you will find it is not half so bad as it seems. No one really means to be as mean as he really is. Don't give people the satisfaction of knowing they have hurt you; it might please them too much.

"If you have been ill treated, misunderstood and persecuted, just bring to bear upon it all the sweets of your nature, and the hurt feelings will take wings and fly away. It is by looking and seeing and realizing that things grow in such magnitude as to keep us hurt. What you need to do is to cultivate the habit of overlooking everything, and you will soon find that sensitive part of your nature healing up and growing so firm as to become immune against the little rebuffs you meet.

"I do not mean that one should become hardened, but just be sensible. I know what it means to be misunderstood, wounded and misjudged, but I've learned from experience that it doesn't pay to go through life wearing such a tender heart on your sleeve that every time anybody runs against it it is going to be hurt. Some one has beautifully said, 'There is an inner heart, a heart of hearts, wrought of a peace such as the world cannot give, that nothing can ever disturb.' Cultivate that inner heart, let it be as a life within a life to you and your peace will flow as a river.

SHE PATS YOU KINDLY ON THE SHOULDER.

"When I was quite young, my feelings were always getting hurt. Everything people said or did that looked or sounded a little awry I thought was meant for me, and I grew to be the most sensitive creature alive.

"Life was miserable, unbearable. I was never happy, for my feelings were in a perpetual state of sensitiveness, the result of my own cultivation. Later I found that I could not go through life in that fashion and ever expect to be anything but a self centered, unhappy pessimist.

"So I began to cultivate the opposite disposition and look for the good, the beautiful and true in everybody and everything with which I came in contact, and life has been brighter ever since.

"Now, when anything is said or done that I might take exception to, as so many old people do, do you suppose I stop to wonder whether it is meant for me or not? Oh, no! I just simply overlook it and go on my way rejoicing. The only way to be happy in life is to overlook everything which tends to make you unhappy or miserable, for goodness knows there is sorrow enough that really must be borne without dwelling upon the little vexations of everyday life, which in themselves amount to nothing after all.

NOW I AM AN OVERLOOKER.

"I used to be an onlooker, but now I am an overlooker. I just look right straight over the head of every little vexation right into the heart of some great blessing I know is left me, and that is the reason why I'm as happy now at 70 as though I was 17."

Then as you look at the peaceful old face beside you, lit up by a joy that comes from within, you go from her presence resolving to look upon life with a more optimistic view after this and cultivate the spirit of an "overlooker."

CHARITY NEIL.

Crossing the Siberian Steppes.

Mrs. M. M. Stevens, wife of the manager in Russian Asia of the Baldwin Locomotive works of Philadelphia, has the distinction of being the only American woman who has ever made a trip across Siberia. She accompanied her husband across the great wastes and steppes over the uncompleted Transsiberian railway from St. Petersburg to Vladivostok.

A WOMAN CROESUS.

ALABAMA'S COTTON PLANTER WHOSE ESTATE IS BIG AS A PRINCIPALITY.

Not a Club Woman nor a Female Suffragist, But She Can Make and Unmake Congressmen—Besides Managing 1,600 Acres, She Runs a Bank as Well.

Lelia Seton Wilder is the name of an Alabama woman cotton planter who has added lustre to the fame of the woman of the South, and seems destined to add still more. She is a wealthy widow of Decatur, and is the largest woman landed proprietor in the State, if not below the Mason and Dixon line.

Instead of confiding the direction of her estates to superintendents and overseers, and living a life of ease, Mrs. Wilder is her own superintendent and overseer, and has made such a success of it that the men of the State recognize her as a very shrewd business woman.

Mrs. Wilder is a unique figure. She belongs to one of the oldest families in the country, of which Mgr. Seton, of New Jersey, is a connection, and on the distaff side descends from Roger Williams. She is a descendent of the famous Seton family, several members of which had their heads chopped off and their estates confiscated for their loyalty to Mary Queen of Scots. In the New York branch of this family is now held a painting of herself, given by the unhappy Queen to David Seton, who was Controller of the Revenue in 1595.

Possibly some of Mrs. Wilder's love of politics comes from the old adherents of Queen Mary, for her home on the Decatur plantations is a rendezvous, and Mrs. Wilder a favorite house party hostess of national and State politicians, and the woman planter is not without that political influence so dear to the soul of the true Southern woman as she wields it in drawing room and across the dinner table.

Mrs. Wilder persistently declines to enter clubdom or champion woman suffrage. "All the political power I want," she often says, "is that which my men friends will exercise for me, and it's a heap more fun than those Western women have who run for office and go to Legislatures. I can always find two or three men to vote my way for me."

Among Mrs. Wilder's possessions is the old bank in Decatur, under which she hopes some time to discover a buried treasure. The bank was built in 1832 for a State bank. During the civil war it was used both as a hospital and fort, and was one of the five buildings left standing at the close of the struggle. Several yeare ago an old soldier wrote to Mrs. Wilder saying that he knew of a large sum of money being hidden in the bank, but he was too poor to come to show where it was unless his fare were paid. It was too fishy a story to notice, but later Mrs. Wilder's brother-in-law, who was in the war, said that while camped at Decatur he heard money was buried in the bank, and was supposed to be the proceeds of the robbery of a government pay car near Decatur. Of course Mrs. Wilder is not tearing down a stone bank for nothing, but any one who can locate the buried treasure will get a hearing from its owner.

Ninon d'Enclos, Duelist.

Woman as a duellist is not a nineteenth century feminine development, as might be inferred from the representation on the stage with foils or from Bayard's celebrated picture, "Une Affaire d'Honneur." In the New Illustrated Magazine Col. Willock tells a story of the famous and beautiful Ninon d' Enclos, who, stung by a slight to her good name, donned manly attire and publicly slapped the face of a young noble who had affronted her. There was not the slightest suspicion that this most deadly insult had been dealt by a woman's hand. So swords were drawn and crossed on the spot, and after a few rapid tac-a-tac passes had been exchanged Ninon, a consummate swordswoman, made a fresh boutonniere in the gay satin doublet of her opponent and gave him a sharp wound in the shoulder.

Cradles of Indian Babies.

Babies of civilized nations would open their eyes in wonder if they should see the queer contrivances which babies of the native tribes of North and South America and Africa have in place of cradles and cribs. The Indians of North America strap the infant to a board, which is slung over the mother's shoulder or over the bow of a tree when she is busy. In South America and some parts of Africa reeds are woven together in a long strip, and the ends brought together, forming the letter "U." The infant is placed in it in a sitting position and securely fastened with cords. While in this contrivance the child has free use of its legs, although its arms are securely fastened by the cords.

A Pertinent Question.

When people come to learn that bread kneaded by machinery is just as good as that made by hand, then there will be lots of labor saved and the bread will be cleaner. Nine times out of ten, probably, cook washes her hands before she begins the bread, but how about the tenth time? And then, too, will the four seconds she holds them under the faucet remove as much foreign substance from hands that are roughened with wind and work as fifteen minutes in most dough will? Think it over.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 20, "The Leaven and the Meal." Text, Math. xiii, 33; Dan, ii, 31-35, 45.

"The God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed."

It seems strange that men could have lived so long without discovering many of the things which were absolutely unknown until, in very recent times, the progress of modern science has made them known. Most fascinating is the study of all parts of the physical world. Plant life, insect and animal life, the human body and mind, the development of life on the earth, are full of interest. Far more attractive, however, is the story of human progress from the dawn of history. The gradual rise in the scale of being, the various races which have held the scepter of power and passed, the growth of the religious ideas and elevation of ideals, all show a plan in human history as plain and more wonderful than any plan of growth and life seen in the lower orders of plant and animal organizations.

The most thorough research of recent times in the field of history and the progress of current events serve to emphasize remarkably the fact that there is a purpose working steadily through all the ages, lifting mankind into a higher, broader, purer and more powerful life.

For I know that through the ages
One increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widening
With the process of the suns.

The most striking fact in all this upward movement is that the power that uplifts a people or an individual is righteousness. At the foundation of all civilization lies moral worth. No nation rises above its past self and its neighbors until it gains moral impulse, sees a higher ideal and strives to reach a higher plane.

The knell of every abomination, of tyranny and vice was sounded when the Bethlehem plains rang with the celestial anthem, "Glory to God, Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will." The doom of evil was sealed when Jesus cried on Calvary, "It is finished!" The kingdom of heaven had come among men. The leaven had been hidden in the meal, the mustard seed had been planted, the pearl of great price was waiting a seeker, the treasure was in the field ready to be discovered. It needed only time and Pentecost and Spirit filled men would come to power. The stone had been cut from the mountain. No human hand had held the chisel and hammer and struck the blow. But the stone was cut and began to fill the earth. Christ began to triumph. From 120 persons, how the church has grown! Today Christianity rules the world—politically, commercially, socially. But the whole mass is not yet fully leavened. Much remains to be done in the most Christian of lands.

Every Christian, especially every young person needs to have some knowledge of the progress of the gospel during the past century. The modern missionary work is one of the most remarkable developments of this most remarkable of all centuries. Let our leagues give some time to the study of our own missions, their history, present condition and prospects.

How Much and How?

Nothing shows the character of a person's religion more accurately than the way he gives his money. Some never get the idea that all they have is a sacred trust to be administered for God's cause. Many regard their means as something belonging to them of right and to be used as they please. The Scriptures plainly declare that we are only stewards of God. All belongs to Him, and we are placed in charge to administer it for Him. Every one should settle definitely how much can be used of his income for charitable and benevolent purposes. Then as he receives his money this proportion should be sacredly put aside for the purposes decided upon. Haphazard giving is bad in all respects. Under the pressure of special pleading one gives more than seems wise in sober moments, and then follow regret and future refusal of even just gifts.

Settle what proportion of your income you should give away. Lay it aside as it comes in. Study the benevolencies of the church and decide how much to give to each. Do all systematically, regularly, gladly. "Honor the Lord with thy substance."

It is not what one knows about God which makes him religious. That is theology, not piety. A man may be a great theologian and a very indifferent Christian or indeed no Christian at all. The question is, "Do you know God—know Him as purifier of thought and desire, as inspirer of all good and giver of holy purpose and peace?" He who knows God in this way may be a poor theologian and ignorant of worldly wisdom, but he has that which makes him rich.

Fear Not.

Fear not, oh, soul! The winds that blow
Come from the heavens and cannot harm;
They only bring the deeper calm—
His peace, who bids them "Come or go."

Fear not the waves that vainly war,
The angry surges' sullen beat;
They make a pavement for His feet,
Who leads thee to a safer shore.

Fear not the cloud that darkly lowers,
With muffled thunder, rain of tears;
It comes to bless the after years
And make the earthly heavenly hours.

Fear not the fire, if thou art tried
In pain or sorrow's furnace heat;
He seeks to make thy life complete,
As gold by fire is purified.

Fear not what future days may bring;
They only bring what He may send.
The veiled morrow is thy friend,
With harp beneath her angel wing.

And so I bid my craven fear
Spread her dark pinions and away!
The shadows flee at break of day,
For Love, Eternal Love, is near.

—Rev. Henry Burton.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 20—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The leaven and the meal.—Math. xiii, 33; Dan. ii, 31-35, 45. (A missionary meeting.)

The ultimate diffusion of Christianity throughout the world and its triumph over the kingdoms of the world are assured. Christ's parable of the leaven and the meal bears testimony to the first statement, and Daniel's interpretation of the dream of Nebuchadnezzar to the second. But these references also point out some of the characteristics of the worldwide spread and triumph of Christ's kingdom.

1. Christ's kingdom is to spread gradually throughout the world. Small in the beginning, yet gradually the leaven diffuses itself throughout all the meal. One part is leavened, and it leavens another until the whole is leavened. How characteristic of the growth of Christ's kingdom. First two disciples called; then 12; at the ascension, 500; at Pentecost, 3,000; today millions under every clime in the world. First Asia Minor, which touches continental Europe, which in turn leavens England, which leavens America, and today England and America are touching and leavening the world. Gradually, but surely, the kingdom spreads, and, if discouraged that it is not fast enough, let us recall the parable of the leaven.

2. The spread of Christ's kingdom is to be universal. The spread of the leaven was gradual, but at last it leavened the whole lump, and the stone not only smote the image, but became a great mountain and filled the whole earth. Christ's kingdom is to be a worldwide kingdom. Men have tried to found universal kingdoms, but have failed. Worldwide empire has been the dream of more than one earthly potentate, but has always failed of realization. But Christ will not fail. His kingdom shall extend from sea to sea and from the rivers to the ends of the earth.

3. Christ's kingdom will triumph over all other kingdoms. In Nebuchadnezzar's dream the kingdoms of the world were represented by an image composed of various metals. Christ's by a stone cut out without hands, and the stone smote the image, and break in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver and the gold. Thus symbolizing the final triumph of Christ's kingdom over the kingdoms of the world. The kingdoms of the world that oppose the kingdoms of Christ shall be overthrown. Those that accept Him shall be governed by Him, and thus all kingdoms shall be conquered by Him.

What a blessed privilege we shall esteem it to have some part in this universal spread of the kingdom of Christ. Are we doing our part of the work? If we have been leavened, are we leavening others at home, abroad, that the whole world may be leavened? If not, may we not question our own leavening? Can we be saved and not interested in the salvation of others?

Bible Readings.—Ps. ii, 1-12; Isa. ii, 1-3; ix, 6, 7; lii, 7; lxii, 1-12; Dan. ii, 44; iv, 3; Neh. i, 15; Mic. iv, 1-3; Math. vi, 10; xxviii, 19, 20; Luke xxiv, 48; Acts i, 8; Rom. x, 14, 15; Rev. vii, 9, 10.

A Minister's Business.

A minister of the gospel should be looked upon as as much of an authority and as skilled an adviser in things spiritual as a doctor is in matters of health and a lawyer in matters of property. And it is the minister's business to be as well informed and able to advise those in his care as the family physician or the family lawyer. To be such he must be not only familiar with his doctrine, but saturated with the spirit of the Bible, imbued with the mind of Christ, have the heart and genius of a pastor and such knowledge of human nature and fact in dealing with all classes of men as will enable him at once to know and appreciate the needs of his people and satisfy them by dispensing to them the rich treasures of truth and grace over which Christ has made him a steward.—Reformed Church Messenger.

A Time For Common Sense.

Now is the time for the sober, thoughtful, intelligent body of the American people to assert itself. We must not be stampeded in either direction or by any leaders, no matter how distinguished. No false glitter of patriotism must be allowed to dazzle us into losing sight of what true patriotism means. Now is the hour for common sense—shrewd, hard, dogged common sense, which cannot be fooled or cajoled or browbeaten—to assert itself. Whatever our decision, let it be made calmly, intelligently and as in the Divine sight. Thus only can we reasonably expect the Almighty to bless the United States henceforth, as heretofore.—Congregationalist.

"Desperately Wicked."

["The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked."]

We talk much about "victory over self."
Is self, then, sin?
Ah, me! There lurks not greater foe without Than dwells within.

We gird us for life's conflict and go forth
Seeking our foe,
Nor dream that he has met and vanquished us
Long, long ago.

But we are proud, so slow to learn the truth
The Master taught—
That deadlier enemy to self than self
Mortal hath not.

Life's issues or of good or evil trend
Lie all within;
He who would not lift up holy hands must guard
His heart from sin.

Oh, Thou Eternal One, whose searching eye
Sees everywhere,
Burdened with conscious guilt, to Thee we come
In mute despair.

Cover our mortal weakness with Thy strength
And make us bold
To rid of every evil tendency
The heart's stronghold.

Thus, with life's fountain head made clean and pure,
Life shall be pure,
Nor can deceit or wickedness long vex
Heart so secure.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

Jerusalem is now nothing but a shadow of the magnificent city of ancient times. It is about three miles in circumference and is situated on a rock mountain.

The public entrance doors of the great building of the Bank of England are so finely balanced that a clerk, by pressing a knob under his desk, can close them instantly.

Peking has a tower in which is hung a large bell cast in the fifteenth century and another tower containing a huge drum which is intended to be beaten in case a great danger should threaten the city. No one is allowed to enter these towers.

It is a rule at the well-known banking house of Coutts & Co., London, that none of the bank clerks wear mustaches. It has long been considered a point of business etiquette that all the gentlemen employed at the bank should wear frock coats during business hours.

Travelers in Australia complain that almost the only trees in the continent are eucalyptus, and they afford little shade, as they have learned to turn their leaves edgeways to the sun. The botanical gardens in the cities are, however, declared to be dreams of beauty.

A Belfast, Me., man, Elbridge S. Pitcher by name, has a leather wallet of an extremely old pattern, on the inside of which is written: "This pocketbook was taken from Benjamin Wentworth's pocket after he was wounded in battle, by Sion Wentworth, his brother, in the French war, 1756."

A German scientist states that mustaches among women are commoner at the present time than they used to. He has observed that in Constantinople and Madrid one woman out of every ten has a distinct mustache, while in Philadelphia quite 3 per cent of the ladies bear unmistakable signs of down upon their upper lips.

A Lewiston, Me., merchant has in his store an old fashioned clock which is peculiarly sensitive. It sometimes stops, and if anyone steps into the store or goes by, it will start again and if a horse steps on

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World

The Kennedy players, who began a week's engagement at the Delevan opera house last night, were greeted by a large and an enthusiastic audience. No popular priced company appearing here this season has made a more favorable impression on the opening night, and the indications point to another successful week of repertoire. "The Midnight Express," a delightful comedy drama written by John J. Kennedy, the leading comedian of the company, was the attraction and it was a remarkable strong one, as it furnished plenty of laughter and amusement and still served to show the full strength of a well-balanced company. As a fun maker John J. Kennedy is easily in the front rank, and there is an irresistible charm about his rich, melodious voice. He is certainly surrounded with most capable support. His charming young daughter, Nellie Kennedy, has blossomed out into a leading lady and she gave a finished rendition of the principal role last night. She is an excellent actress.—Daily Journal, Meriden, Ct.

Lovers of minstrelsy, such as presented by George Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels, will be able to enjoy to the utmost the many stirring features to be presented at Stillman's Music Hall tonight. Mr. Thatcher has been at the head and front of minstrelsy for many years, having been with the most famous companies the world has ever known, not alone in minstrelsy but in comedy as well. He has no equal in his line, and from the praise that his present company has received from press and public where it has appeared this year, he has surpassed all his previous effects.

PARTICULAR :MENTION.

D. D. Rogers, of Daytona, Fla., is in this city for a few days.

D. M. Cook and family are stopping at the Hotel Kensington.

Miss Adleman, of the West End, has returned from a visit with relatives in Newark.

Mrs. H. C. Runyon has returned from a visit with friends in Centreville, Hunterdon county.

The conditon of Horace J. Martin, of the borough, who has been seriously ill, is considerably improved today, and his recovery is now thought to be assured.

It is now Father Carman Sutphen and Grandfather Wm. J. Pearson Mother and girl baby doing well. The addition of grandfather caused Wm. J. to greet his friends most cordially.

The American Transport Liner "Manitou," among the passengers of which were E. P. Williams, Miss Florence Williams and Miss Eleanor Williams, of West Seventh street, this city, arrived safely on the other side Wednesday.

James Blair, of the borough, has now been quite ill for nearly a month and there is no noticeable improvement in his condition. He is confined to his bed. His illness is similar to typhoid fever.

Miss Carrie A. Heidt, of East Second street, who has been spending the summer at her home, Kenoza Lake, N. Y., returned Sunday with her sister, Mrs. W. H. Addis, where she is stopping at present. Miss Heidt's health has been much benefited by her summer outing.

A Kissing Nation.

In no other part of the world is kissing so much in vogue as in Russia. From time immemorial it has been the national salute; indeed, it is more of a greeting than a caress.

In public affairs, as in private, the kiss is an established custom. Fathers and sons kiss; old generals with rusty mustaches kiss; whole regiments kiss. The emperor kisses his officers. On a receiving day there are almost as many kisses as shots exchanged. If a lilliputian corps of cadets have earned the imperial approval, the imperial salute is bestowed upon the head boy, who passes it on with a hearty report to his neighbor, he in his turn to the next, and so on throught the whole juvenile body.

On a holiday or fete day the young and delicate mistress of a house will not only kiss all her maid servants but all her men servants, too, and if the gentleman does not venture above her hand she will stoop and kiss his cheek.

To judge, also, from the number of salutes, the matrimonial bond in these high circles must be one of uninterrupted felicity. A gentleman scarcely enters or leaves the room without kissing his wife, either on her forehead, cheek or hand.

LOVES A DUSKY MATABELE

Infatuation of An English Girl For An African Barbarian

SHE DID A-WOOING GO

Followed Him To London and Admired Him At the Ethiopian Show.

The Wealthy Girl's Fancy Alarms Her Friends Who Are Determined To Break Off the Match—The Wedding Postponed—An Extraodinary Romance Not Yet Ended.

Verily Africa is fast becoming civilized. An English girl has actually fallen in love with a dusky African. And no ordinary girl is she, but one with an abundance of money and no small share of good looks. Her name is Florence F. Jewell, and she is the daughter of Jos. Jewell, a mining engineer, who made a fortune in Mexico.

Miss Jewell happened to be at Bloemfonstein, the capital of the Orange Free State, some time ago, and there one sultry afternoon her attention was attracted toward a young Matabele warrior. He was clad in his picturesque, if decidedly barbaric, native costume, and the ordinary traveler would have seen in him nothing more than a stalwart African savage. Miss Jewell, however, saw a great deal more in him—so much so in fact that she lost no time in finding out who he was.

She was told that he was a pure-blooded Matabele, that he was known as "Prince" Loben, or Lobengula, and that he professed to be a relative of the famous Matabele king of that name. She learned further that he was going to England, where he was to be the leading figure in an Ethiopian show to be held in London.

Miss Jewell thereupon concluded that London would be a pleasanter place for her than the Orange Free State, and so she bade farewell to Bloemfonstein, and followed Lobenguela. In due time the dusky potentate appeared at the Ethiopian show, and all London went to see him. Miss Jewell went with the others, and her admiration for the Matabele youth increased. There were other Africans in the show, equally picturesque and almost as stalwart and high-born, but for them she had no eyes, all her attention being concentrated on Lobengula.

Day after day she went to see him and admire him, and, being a man, he naturally soon saw what an impression he had made on her. They talked to each other, and the young lady was surprised to discover that her dusky Adonis could talk fluently both in English and Dutch. What they talked about only they two know, but every one can guess. Anyhow they soon came to an understanding and the result was that all arrangements were made for a speedy wedding.

Meanwhile, however, Miss Jewell's friends had not been asleep. They saw how the African had fascinated the wealthy girl, and they were determined that he should not profit by it. They hoped that it was merely a girl's wayward fancy, but they were undeceived when the news of the proposed wedding reached them. Then they rose up in arms. They vowed that a cultured and wealthy English girl should not become the wife of an uncouth savage. But how could they prevent the wedding? Miss Jewell is 22 and can do as she pleases. And so, instead of remonstrating, they pleaded with her not to ruin her young life in this mad fashion. She listened patiently to these pleas, and finally so much pressure was brought to bear on her that she consented to postpone the wedding.

No more extraordinary romance than this has occurred in our day, and thousands who never saw Miss Jewell and Lobengula will be anxious to know how it will end. That Lobengula should have spent so much of his time in lovemaking while in London is certainly surprising, for the reason that other Matabeles who have gone to the English capital have apparently had no time to do anything except to wonder at the extraordinary sights around them. King Lobengula sent emissaries to Queen Victoria a few years ago, and London was to them the most wonderful place on earth.

Some strange marriages are made nowadays, but this is apparently the first time that a wealthy and cultured white girl has set her affections on a native African. That there should be a strong opposition to the marriage is not surprising. Lobengula may be, and very probably is, a first-class fellow in his own country, but there are very few persons in England, if indeed there are any, who think that he is fit to become Miss Jewell's husband.

A New Swindle.

A good-looking young woman who said she was the daughter of a Western broker who had failed in business sold tickets in Allegheny City, Pa., recently at 10 cents each, entitling the bearer to have their shoes shined by this bright and fashionably-dressed young woman. She appealed for patronage on the ground that she was thus working her way to New York, where she would finish her musical education. It was promised that she would fulfil her obligations as a bootblack at a certain barber shop. The maiden fair is estimated to have sold about $50 worth of bogus pasteboards in Allegheny, as some of the victims confessed to buying twenty and thirty of the promises. For several days an interested crowd of Alleghenians went to the barber shop but the "lady bootblack" failed to appear.

"Yes, his business reputation is blasted."

"How did it happen?"

"He dropped a can of his new process dynamite."

"Blasted him, eh! Blew him up?"

"No, it didn't go off!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store'

BISHOP WIGGER TO BORROW $1,500,000.

Head of the Catholic Diocese of Newark Will Effect a Loan.

A BIG SAVING IN INTEREST.

PARISHES WHICH PAY FIVE AND SIX PER CENT. WILL BE RELIEVED.

Under the New Arrangement Only Three and a Half Per Cent. Will Be Exacted From the Church—English Syndicate Made the Offer, and Will Save Money for the Churches.

Bishop W. M. Wigger, of the Roman Catholic diocese of Newark, will complete within a few days arrangements for a loan of $1,500,000. The loan will be used by the rectors whose churches now carry mortgages upon which five or six per cent. interest is paid.

Under the new arrangement only 3½ per cent. will be exacted for the church mortgages, and it is said the result will be a net saving to the churches of the Newark diocese of many thousands of dollars.

The big loan is being secured by the Bishop from an English syndicate, and it is said if he finds the amount specified not sufficient to take up all the mortgages in the diocese he is in a position to get $1,000,000 more from the same syndicate.

Bishop Wigger was not at Seton Hall College yesterday. Rev. George Doane O'Neill, chancellor of the diocese, said he was not in a position to discuss the details of the loan. However, the loan has practically been made, and in a few days the Bishop will be in a position to enter into negotiations with any of the parish priests who desire to cancel the mortgages they now have on their churches and upon which they are paying five per cent interest or more.

The Bishop, it is said, did not experience much trouble in negotiating the loan, the foreign syndicate having implicit confidence in the Catholic church property in Newark diocese. It is regarded as gilt edge security. It is approximated that the church property in the diocese is worth $6,000,000 or $7,000,000.

Several Jersey City priests have already signified their willingness to make their loans from the fund to be raised by Bishop Wigger.

By this loan the Bishop, it is said, will save for many parishes an amount equal, if not more, than the sum they are taxed on account of the new cathedral. He does not propose to have this edifice mortgaged at all. The idea is to have it completed in ten years and to pay for it as the work progresses.

UNDER THE TREE A SKELETON.

Workmen Were Lifting a Fallen Tree in the Old Cemetery.

Workmen clearing up in the First Presbyterian church cemetery, Elizabeth, recently devastated by a tornado, attempted recently to raise a maple tree that was blown down. Fast among the roots of the tree they found the skeleton of a man, the upper part of which was in an excellent state of preservation. How the skeleton escaped being seen by the thousands of people who have roamed about the graveyard hunting for relics is a surprise to the church officials.

The body was clothed in a black coat. The remains were carefully put back in the hole caused by the uprooting of the tree, which was planted in its original position. It is hoped the tree will grow as the roots did not appear to be injured.

Grangers at a Basket Picnic.

The nineteenth annual basket picnic of the Grangers of Essex, Morris and Union counties was held in Tuttle's Grove, on the banks of the Passaic river, near Swinefield bridge, yesterday. About 15,000 people were present. Franklin Dye, of the State Board of Agriculture, and former Judge W. W. Cutler, of Morristown, made addresses. State Senator Pitney, of Morristown, John J. Farrell, "Farmer" VanRiper, of Belleville, and James Braddock were present.

Ran Into The Curb.

Last Thursday evening while going to the fire on South avenue, William Thorn, of East Second street, met with an accident which nearly cost him his life. He was riding his wheel and almost ran into one of the apparatus. To avoid a collision he ran into the curb and completely wrecked his wheel, injuring his knee also.

BRYAN MEN ARE ACTIVE.

PLANS FOR A NEW STATE COMMITTEE IF FOUND NECESSARY.

Congressman Daly Will Become the Leader—The Movement to be Considered at Conference of Bryan Men.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 19.—It was learned from very good sources yesterday that there are plans on foot for the organization of a new Bryan Democratic committee in New Jersey in case the present State committee persists in its attempts to keep the Bryan Democrats under cover. The new movement is to be brought to a head in the Ridgeway House, in Philadelphia, September 2d, when a conference of Bryan Democrats is to be held. Clarence Atkinson, of Camden, Congressman Daly, of Hoboken, and Congressman Solomon, of Adams county, are arranging this meeting. Daly is to be asked to assume the leadership of the Bryanites in New Jersey. If the conference goes so far as to favor the organization of a permanent Bryan State committee, Daly will probably be made chairman of it. The Bryan men are determined to send Bryan delegates from New Jersey to the next National Democratic convention, even if a new temporary State committee has to be put into the field to bring this about. It is said that Bryan has consented to visit New Jersey next December and address general meetings.

STRICTLY BOROUGH AFFAIR.

Why City Fire Departments are Not Invited by Warren Engine Co.

The members of Warren Engine Company, of the borough, do not wish it to be understood that they in any way slighted the Plainfield firemen in their invitations for the parade to be held October 12th. The city department is a paid one, and is not in a position to engage in a firemen's parade, especially in another county. Besides they are not all provided with uniforms. The borough firemen's parade will probably not come to the city, it being their desire to make the affair strictly a borough affair. They do not propose to ask Plainfield for any support in arranging or giving the parade, and they want to keep the celebration in the borough. There are no hard feelings among the borough and city firemen for each understand one another and that is sufficient.

BABIES WILL PARADE TODAY.

Entry List for Asbury Park's Show Is Longer than Ever.

Every one at Asbury Park, and in fact all the resorts near by, are praying for good weather for the parade of the babies on Senator Bradley's famous board walk today. The event has for many years been one of the most interesting features of Asbury Park's season, and judging from the number of entries received up to last night the parade will be one of the largest that has ever been given. Over 500 boys and girls will be in line.

To Destroy 2,500 Coal "Jimmies."

The Central Railroad Company has recently purchased a large number of new coal cars of the gondola size, which they are now using quite extensively. The cars were furnished by the American Car and Foundry Company, with which B. A. Hegeman, Jr., of Washington Park, is associated. This company has bought up about twenty-five hundred coal cars of the jimmy style from the Central Company and they will destroy them, there being no further use for them.

Hope Chapel's Excursion.

The excursionists from Hope chapel to Asbury Park this morning, filled eleven cars, despite the threatening weather. The train started from the Grant Avenue station at 8 o'clock There a majority of the excursionists were taken aboard. A stop was made at Plainfield for the remainder.

SIX-YEAR-OLD BOY WAS A TRUE HERO

Gave Up His Life to Save Brother and Sister.

RUNAWAY TEAM KILLED HIM

BENT ON RESCUING THE OTHERS HE WAS FATALLY INJURED.

The Children Were Playing in Street Down Which a Runaway Team Was Coming—Little Rudolph Becker Saw the Danger and Acted With Heroism Quite Remarkable for One of His Years.

Rudolph Becker, six years old, was killed at Metuchen yesterday afternoon while making a brave and successful effort to save the lives of his younger brother and sister. A team of horses attached to the delivery wagon of Mrs. H. B. Zimmerman, of New Brunswick, had been left tied in front of a hotel in Menlo Park, while the driver, Martin Zimmerman, a son of the owner, was inside. The horses, bothered by flies, broke loose and bolted down the road to Metuchen. Several men tried to stop them, but they turned into New street at full gallop.

The three children of Rudolph H. Becker, Jr., proprietor of the New Brunswick Hotel, were playing in the street. They were Rudolph, 6 years; Nathan, 4 years, and Elizabeth, 2 years. The older boy heard the clatter of hoofs. He was near the curb and out of danger. He might have saved himself, but instead he ran out, caught his sister and drew her to one side. Then he darted directly in front of the horses in a brave effort to get his younger brother.

The horses struck him and knocked him down, both wheels of the heavily-loaded wagon passing over his body. His legs were broken and his abdomen was crushed. Nathan was struck on the forehead and knocked down, too, but caught the pole of the wagon and saved himself. He lost his grip after being dragged about fifty feet, but the hoofs of the horses missed him, and he was not struck by the wheels. Rudolph was conscious when picked up.

"Did baby and Nathan get hurt?" he asked, and fainted. He died in two hours from his injuries. Nathan was badly hurt about the head, but it is hoped that he will recover. The little girl is unhurt, thanks to her brave little brother's sacrifice.

ELECTION DAY PREPARATIONS.

Secretary of State Sends a Batch of Books to County Clerks.

(Special to The Daily Press

Trenton August 19.—The official books and blanks for use at the fall election have just been sent to the several County Clerks from the office of the Secretary of State. The stationery filled forty-two large boxes and eight packages, and contained in all 30,000 pieces. This, of course, does not include ballots and other forms, which are gotten out later by the County Clerks. The lot, however, contains books, blanks and other articles for the 1,057 voting districts in the State.

Here are some of the details of the articles in the County Clerks' boxes: Oaths, 2,200; canvass books, 1,350; challenge books, 2,192; registers of voters, 3,505; registry sheets, 2,408; poll books, 1,057; precinct election return blanks, 4,000; county blank statements, 1,000; copies of laws, 5,850; copies of instructions to election and other officers, 5,850.

Copies of the election laws and instructions for Township Clerks are included, which the Township Clerks can procure by applying to their respective County Clerks.

Cranford's Busy Preparations.

(Special to The Daily Press.

Cranford, August 19—Postmaster J. Z. Derby has engaged L. R. Jessell to number the houses at this place for the free delivery system. The work is to be completed Tuesday next. The postmaster is making requisition for the necessary furniture needed for the postoffice in connection with the free delivery system, which will start Oct. 1st. The Postoffice Civil Service Board will meet at the postoffice Thursday, September 7th, at 9 a. m., to examine applicants for the position of carriers, two being needed, with a substitute carrier.

CAN CEMETERY BE SOLD FOR TAXES.

Collector Brown Called Upon by Many Who Object to Proceeding.

The article published in yesterday's Press regarding the proposed sale of the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield, has aroused a storm of indignation among a certain number of people. Last evening Collector Geo. F. Brown was besieged by a number of people who questioned his right to sell the property. They claimed that the property is exempt from all taxes or assessments.

The collector could only refer the objectors to Counsel Reed, on whose authority the action is taken or to the Mayor and Council who have ordered the sale if the assessment is not paid. Mr. Brown wants it understood that he has been ordered to take this procedure, and that he is not responsible for the action.

Funeral of F. W. Martin

The funeral services of the late F. W. Martin were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house on Duer street, in the borough. Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, of Grace P. E. church, officiated. The members of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which the departed was a member, attended the funeral in a body and took part in the services at the grave. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives, and the floral display was very pretty.

AWOKE AND FOUND ROOM ALL ABLAZE.

Frightened Italians Fled From Burning Shanty.

LAMP WAS CAUSE OF FIRE.

PATSY CHRISTMAS' STORE AND LODGING HOUSE DESTROYED.

Shanty Is Located By Old Railway Embankment Near "Count" NanNess' Farm—Lamp Is Supposed To Have Exploded—Four Italians Were Asleep There, Rest Of Boarders Spent the Night Outdoors.

The explosion of a lamp in Patsy Christmas' shanty near East Second street, early this morning, wrought general destruction to the establishment and the four Italians sleeping there had to hustle to get out alive. As it was one of their number was badly burned.

The shanty serves the double purpose of store and lodging house for the Italian employes of Contractor Christmas. There also Christmas sells the neccessities of life to the occupants of the Italian colony in that vicinity. The shanty is located close to the old railway embankment, just west of "Count" Van Ness' farm.

A lamp was left burning in the store last night. Most of the tenants preferred to sleep in the open air on account of the heat, but four remained inside. At 4:30 o'clock this morning something happened to the lamp. As nobody was awake at the time they do not know exactly what occurred. One of the Italians dreamed that the end of the world had come and that he had descended to unknown depths where it was extremely hot. He woke up to find the room all ablaze. With a yell he departed without taking time to collect his thoughts or his wearing apparel.

The other occupants heard the yell and there was no delay in their departure into outer darkness. John Micco was somewhat slow in leaving and the flames enveloped him for a moment. His face, side and arms were badly burned.

There was no attempt to extinguish the flames which soon reduced the shanty to a heap of smouldering embers. Patsy Christmas had just laid in a new stock for his store. Yesterday he purchased $150 worth of goods from J. A. Smith & Brother.

Patsy did not hear of the fire until this morning. He places his total loss at $800. The building and contents was insured for $600 through the agency of W. V. Mundy.

THE CHARGE WAS UNTRUE.

Correction of an Erroneous Statement Concerning an Elizabeth Lawyer.

On August 11th The Daily Press published a dispatch from Elizabeth, headed "Warrants Out for a Missing Lawyer," in which the name of Samuel Schleimer was mentioned as one who was to be apprehended. The item was received by The Daily Press through the regular telegraphic service which is received day by day. As the service is usually very reliable the item about Mr. Schleimer passed into the columns of The Daily Press without question. No one on the staff of the paper had personal knowledge of the statements alleged in the item.

Nothing further was heard of the item until yesterday when The Daily Press received a letter from Mr. Schleimer, in which he states that there was absolutely no truth in the statement. It is the least of the intention of The Daily Press to injure the standing of any one in the community by publishing erroneous news, and therefore, in accordance with Mr. Schleimer's request, we give publicity to his statement that the charge made in the item in question was untrue.

PRINTERS AS FARMERS.

Industrial Experiment at the Herbert Farm Said to Be a Success.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, August 19—The industrial experiment of Typographical Union, No. 6, in establishing a printer colony on the Herbert farm at Bound Brook, where sixty typos have been engaged ever since spring in the culture of potatoes and other garden crops, is declared to be a success by those who are in charge. J. W. Sullivan, chairman and treasurer of the "printers' farm," who is in direct supervision of the colony, states that notwithstanding that about eleven acres of produce were destroyed by the drought early in the summer, the receipts have been slightly in excess of the expenditures. The average cost of a meal per capita is said to be 5½ cents. The sixty printers who have been on the farm all summer seem to be well satisfied with their work.

A FEUD IN THE ALLEY.

JIM BABBITT TRIED TO ACT AS A PEACEMAKER.

Lugged Off Paradise Alley Resident to City Jail—An Explanation of the Trouble Was Given to the Judge This Morning.

Special officer Jim Babbitt was defied right in his own lair on Fairchild's Alley early last evening by a denizen of Paradise Alley. Jim says that the peace of Fairchild's Alley must be preserved at any cost so he trotted the valuable Mrs. Louisa Jenkins down to the station house and locked her up. Through the solicitations of her husband, Charles Jenkins, the colored woman was released.

Babbitt says that visitors come to the joint home of Lee Wells and John Cuff every day and rush the "growler" without delay or hindrance. Then they get to fighting. Yesterday the trouble was between Mrs. Louisa Jenkins, of Paradise Alley, and Miss Mary Hurlick, who lives with John Cuff Louisa had been fishing at Tier's Lake with Mrs. Maggie Benford. Louisa said they came round by Fairchild's Alley just for the exercise. It is evident they got it.

An exchange of compliments was continued with vigor so that Babbitt heard it nearly a block away. When he arrived on the scene of festivities, the air had assumed a sulphurous hue. He tried moral suasion, but in vain. Then he assumed the role of an arm of the law and arrested them both and locked the Paradise Alleyite up in jail.

This morning all the combatants and the audience appeared in the City Court and fought the battle all over again for the benefit, this time, of City Judge Runyon. The Judge came to the opinion that there must have been disorder and fined both women $5. The Paradise Alley delegation promised to make things hot for the gang from Fairchild's Alley if they ever invaded the sacred precincts of Paradise Alley hereafter.

COLLISION OF BICYCLISTS.

Alfred Adams Ran Into a Tandem and Severely Bruised.

Alfred Adams, of 135 North avenue, was severely injured about 2 o'clock yesterday morning while riding his wheel through Fanwood on his way home. It was very dark along the road he was traveling and he failed to notice in time a tandem coming toward him. Before he could prevent a collision the two wheels came together with sufficient force to completely wreck the wheel which Adams was riding, and injured the rider to such an extent that he had to be assisted to the railroad station and sent home on the train reaching this city about 3 o'clock. At the North Avenue station Patrolman Myers had to assist the man to his home.

The riders of the tandem, whose names could not be learned, escaped without injury, although their wheel was slightly twisted. Adams' injuries consists of bruises, lacerations, and his arm and leg were injured so that he will be unable to use either for several days.

Jolly Time at Columbia Lodge.

There was a jolly time at Columbia Lodge last evening. The oppressive weather did not prevent the usual weekly game of quoits. Messrs. Lounsbury and Nischwitz were pitted against Messrs. Forrestel and Bauersachs. The latter team won two games out of three. The prize was a box of cigars. After the game refreshments, consisting of cake and ice cream, were served.

On a Camping Expedition.

Borough Recorder Long, Percy Long, the Misses Long and Miss VanDeventer, of the borough, started this morning with horse and wagon for Lake Hopatcong, where they will camp out for two weeks. It is needless to say that the Recorder will try his luck at fishing, and some great catches no doubt will be reported.

THATCHER'S MINSTRELS OPENED MUSIC HALL

Local Theatrical Season Has Auspicious Beginning.

WAS STANDING ROOM ONLY.

THE VETERAN MINSTREL DREW A BIG CROWD TO PERFORMANCE.

His Company Gave a Very Creditable Entertainment Last Night—Hall Was in Good Order For Season—Manager Edwards Expects a Successful Year For Music Hall—Will Announce Details Later

It was the same George Thatcher that Plainfield knew of old who appeared before the footlights in the Stillman Music Hall last evening and marked the opening of the theatrical season in Plainfield Although the night was uncomfortably warm, the theatre-going public of this city gave the veteran minstrel a rousing welcome. Every seat was filled and the sign of "standing room only" was hung out at the box office early in the evening. It was one of the largest audiences that ever assembled in Music Hall.

It was the intention of Manager Maze Edwards to open with some popular attraction. At his expressed solicitation Mr. Thatcher arranged to have "Thatcher's Greatest Minstrels" start the theatrical ball rolling in Plainfield. A better selection could have hardly been made. The minstrel show has been on the road a short time and was just in good running order. Just the fact, however, that George Thatcher was to appear was sufficient for the Plainfield public. They thronged to the hall and filled it from the orchestra chairs to the back row in the gallery.

The performance was a very creditable one. The first part was lively and full of fun and good music. The jokes were comfortably new and the singing by excellent talent. Thatcher and Dan Waldron made a very clever and amusing pair. In the olio there was plenty of diversity of entertainment. Thatcher appeared in a monologue and had some new stories to tell in his inimitable manner. The vocal part of the programme was particularly creditable. The performance closed with the pantomime, "The Haunted Mill at Darktown," in which the fun was fast and furious. The company had its own orchestra, which was a good one.

"Yes sir," said Manager Maze Edwards as he stood at the little window in the box office previous to the performance, "Plainfield is going to have the best theatrical season this year that she has ever enjoyed. I will be able to announce in a few days some of the many attractions that have been booked to appear here during the year. I liked the people of Plainfield when I came here two years ago and I like them better every day. I believe that they will stand by me in my attempt to give them good legitimate performances.

"George Thatcher is a strong card to open with. The hall clean as a whistle and all ready for a successful season. And that's just what we're going to have, I believe."

All Manager Edwards claims for the neat and clean appearance of the hall were more than fulfilled. At the entrance the glint of new paint and varnish told that the painters had been at work there. Soap and water had been used freely on the floors and woodwork. The auditorium had a bright new look, while everywhere there were signs of the thorough renovating and cleaning that Music Hall had received.

Some of the best companies on the American stage today will appear in the hall during the season. There will be a round of everything from the musical farce comedy to the classical tragedy. Manager Edwards is working hard for the success of the local theatrical season, and intends to give the people of Plainfield plenty of opportunity to see the best performances and still patronize home institutions. A fuller announcement of the performances booked for this season will be made in a few days.

There was a lawn party at the Coontown Congregational church last night. A large crowd attended despite the threatening weather and all the crowd declared it a great success. The church lawn was prettily decorated for the affair.

HE DENOUNCES ESTERHAZY

Colonel Picquart Says Prisoner's Accuser is Guilty Instead of Dreyfus.

THE WITNESS CHEERED.

The Very Dramatic Exclamation is Made After Detailing the Results of His Investigation.

Picquart's Testimony Before Court of Cessation Virtually Repeated—But it is All Unpalatable to the Court Martial—Full Day's Proceedings.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—The climax of Colonel Picquart's testimony in favor of Dreyfus at the trial was the dramatic exclamation:

"I am convinced that Esterhazy is the guilty man!"

It was made when the witness had detailed the results of his investigation and the efforts of the General Staff to prevent his following the trail of Esterhazy.

There was something more than a mere murmur of applause at Colonel Picquarts declaration against Esterhazy and there were several outbursts of cheers which were quickly checked by the officers stationed about the room.

Is Not Labori's Assassin.

Paris, Aug. 19.—Considerable excitement was caused in Paris by the reception of a despatch from Rennes to the effect that the man who shot M. Labori had been captured in the neighborhood of Dol, a small town twenty miles from Rennes. He is said to be named Glorot. He was reported to have made a full confession.

Later despatches, however, threw doubt on the correctness of this news, and say that the man under arrest is not the assassin. He has made no confession.

The Rennes police declare they know Glorot well, and that he is simply a drunken vagabond.

The Trial at Rennis.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—The second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus on the charge of selling French military secrets to a foreign government was resumed in the hall of the Lycee.

Col. Picquart entered the witness box the moment the court reconvened, and the same masterful style he has shown constantly, with lucid reasoning, and in vigorous language he resumed his exposition of the numerous doubtful points in the stupendous affair. He spoke clearly and forcibly, though rapidly. Without a superfluous word he seized one by one each fact, held it up for a moment to the light while he pointed out its significance of and its relation to the whole plan, and then put it swiftly in its proper place. In Picquart's hands the Dreyfus case was a great puzzle map, which he reconstructed bit by bit under the eyes of the judges and the world. He went out of his way for a few moments to dispose of a few of Gen. Roget's charges against him, saying that he was ready to reply to every point in them.

Gen. Roget arose where he was sitting in the audience, and asked the court if he might speak. He was not permitted to do so.

Resuming his evidence after recess, Col. Picquart described a series of plots against him in the War Office, when it was found that he would not join the anti-Dreyfus party. "Colonel Henry," he said, "especially declared war against me, and all the world knows what followed."

As soon as Picquart finished his direct testimony the President asked if he had erased Esterhazy's name from the petit bleu and rewritten it. Witness denied that he had done so.

Gen. Roget was the first to confront Picquart, assuming a bullying manner. Most of his words were inaudible in the body of the hall, but he got into a direct colloquy with Picquart, which Col. Jouaust stopped, instructing Roget to ask his questions through the court. Roget made a theatrical attempt to convict Picquart of falsying dates in his testimony.

Labori's Condition.

Rennes, Aug. 19.—M. Labori is recovering marvellously from his wound. He now walks about and has a big appetite. Maitre Labori has sent a message to M. Demange, saying that he will be with him on Monday.

Interior City Telephone.

LEATHER TRUST'S PROFITS.

Estimated that New Company Will Pay 10 Per Cent.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Four well-known Chicago houses are among the companies which form the American Hide and Leather combination as finally organized—W. N. Eisendrath & Co., the Walker Oakley Company, the Lambau Leather Company and Grey, Clark &Engle. Other western properties included are the C. T. Roenitz Leather Company, Sheboygan, Wis., and F. Rueping Leather Company, Fond du Lac, Wis. Sales made by the combined firms whose plants are acquired aggregated more than $24,500,0000 in 1898. Net profits during the last ten years—the time the concerns have been in business—have averaged, according to the official announcement now given out, more than $2,000,000 a year, or about 10 per cent. on the sales.

The promoters estimate that the profits on the business are to be sufficent to pay 10 per cent. on the $12,000,000 of common stock to be issued. That requires an additional $1,200,000, or a total of $2,780,000 for interest and dividends. According to the estimates of the prpmoters there would remain, besides that amount, $1,720,000 for a sinking fund and surplus.

Negro Hanged and Shot to Pieces.

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 19.—For being in the bedroom of a white girl, Tom Keith, a negro, was hanged to a tree and shot to pieces by a mob of infuriated citizens. Keith was found in the bedroom of the thirteen-year-old daughter of T. B. Hawkins, Jr., a farmer who lives about eight miles from here. Keith was an old and trusted farm hand, and when he protested that he was drunk and had wandered in there accidently Hawkins let him go. The occurrence was soon noised around the neighborhood and a mob quickly organized. The negro was caught, and his body, after the lynching, was weighted with stones and thrown into the Saluda River.

Chicago Bridge Collapses.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—An order has been issued by Mr. Ericson, city engineer, closing two bridges over the Chicago River, condemning seven as dangerous and labeling two as "very suspicious." The order resulted from a bridge inspection suggested by the collapse of the Calumet River Bridge at Ninety-fifth street. That bridge, while swung open for repairs, broke squarely in half over the centre of the pier. The condemned bridges are old, and at least $2,000,000 are necessary to repair them or to build new bridges. The situation is serious, since there is no appropriation for bridge repairing.

New Temple Dedicated.

Shiloh, Me., Aug. 19.—More than 5,000 people assembled in Durham, on the Androscoggin River, to dedicate the temple erected by Rev. F. W. Sanford and his adherents, as the headquarters of believers in the Church of the Living God. Work on this structure, which is one of the largest in the state, was begun in March, and Mr. Sanford and his followers hold that it has been completed through a miracle, claiming that unless the 200 builders who have worked night and day for the past twenty days, had been inspired with strength not their own, they never could have finished the work.

Tried to Kill the Priest.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 19.—Adam Porrecca, recently discharged from the Morris Plains Insane Asylum, will be returned to the madhouse for trying to kill Father Parretta, pastor of St. Lucy's Church. Father Parretta was in front of the altar conducting a service when Porrecca, who had strolled up the aisle, drew an axe from under his coat, and had raised it above his head to fell the priest. John Serra, the sexton, sprang on Porrecca's back and disarmed him. Porrecca has been declared insane.

Diver Loses His Life.

Seattle, Aug. 19.—Diver William A. Baldwin was killed near Tacoma while trying to reach the sunken British ship Andelana, lying at the bottom of the harbor with eighteen of the crew. Baldwin was 150 feet below the surface when some accident happened to the pumping gear which supplies the air. It is believed that the terrific pressure of water on the mechanism and the great air pressure necessary to force the draught through the pipe at so great a depth broke the connecting tubes.

President Reviews Troops.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The day was pleasant and warm and the President and Mrs. McKinley went driving as usual. The only caller of importance was Hon. Smith M. Weed, of Plattsburg. The President reviewed the Twenty-sixth Infantry at Plattsburg Barracks, and Mrs. McKinley presented the regiment with a handsome silk flag.

Siege of Guerin to be Raised.

Paris, Aug. 19.—The Figaro says that the Government has resolved to take no action of any sort against the anti-Semites barricaded in the house in the Rue de Chabrol. The police and military watching the house will be withdrawn and M. Guerin and his friends will be left free to come out or stay in, just as they please.

Think Body That of Missing Lawyer

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Friends of Josiah Sullivan, a lawyer, who disappeared from Rochester last month and was supposed to have committed suicide by jumping from a Fall River boat, believe the severed body found a few days ago off Greenport, L. I., is that of the missing man.

PROPERTY SWEPT AWAY.

Unprecedented Flood in Manatoba Carries Away Much Valuable Property.

RAIN CONTINUES TO FALL

Bridges and Steamships Demolished and Many Lives Placed in Peril by Rushing Waters.

River Rises Forty Feet in Twenty-Four Hours and Overflows Many Miles of Territory—People Driven From Their Homes—Water Continues to Rise Rapidly.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 19.—An Edmonton despatch says:

"The Saskatchewan River has overflowed. It rose forty feet during the last twenty-four hours, and continues to rise fast. Two and a half inches of rain fell in twenty hours. Already bridge piers are four feet under water. Thousands of feet of lumber are adrift. Floating islands of wood are passing the town. The ferries have broken away and mail communications cut off. At present the water is rushing over the Hudson Bay Company's flats, and the end of the flood is not in sight.

"The historic steamship Northwest of the Hudson Bay Company broke from her moorings, struck the middle pier of the bridge and went down the river, a total wreck.

"Citizens on the river bank are moving out."

The damage already sustained as a result of the unprecedented flood will reach fully $2,000,000 and many more large structures along the river bank and on the low lands are sure to be swept away by the strong current before the end comes. It is reported here that half a dozen families have been drowned but the report is not verified on account of the wrecked condition of the telegraph service between this city and the flood stricken districts. At Edmonton at least half of the town is under water, and a dozen buildings have been carried away and millions of feet of logs and lumber lost to the owners.

Hundreds of families have lost all their household effects and great suffering will result among the poorer classes.

Destitute Gold Seekers.

Seattle, Aug. 19.—The steamship Alliance, ten days from St. Michael, has arrived here with 200 passengers. Her crew reports that the river steamship Susie, which started up the Yukon with two barges in tow, ran aground and was compelled to return to St. Michael. There was a large amount of United States government hardware supplies on the scows, and they were considerably damaged. About 600 of the 1,000 destitute prospectors brought by the revenue cutter Bear from Kotzebue Sound to St. Michael had sailed in a small schooner for Seattle two days before the Alliance left.

Collision Near Newburg, N. Y.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Two trains on the Newburg, Dutchess and Connecticut Railroad, had a head-on collision at Matteawan. One of them was a fast express due at Matteawan at 7.30, loaded with wealthy Millboro residents on their way to New York. A few of them were slightly bruised, but none seriously hurt. The two engines piled up on one another. Baggageman William Bloomer, of the express, was thrown through a door of the car. The damage was about $25,000.

Governor Addresses Farmers.

Warsaw, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Yesterday was a great holiday for the farmers of Western New York. Whole towns were almost depopulated by the excursion trains to Silver Lake, where the twenty-seventh annual picnic of the Wyoming Co. Pioneers was held. Gov. Roosevelt gave two addresses, one at the Pioneer ground and one at the auditorium. He was surrounded on the platform by all the leading politicians and editors of this section. He arrived by special train.

Another Company Incorporated.

Albany, Aug. 19.—The Southfield Beach Railroad Company, to be either operated by steam or electricity, about two miles in length, has been incorporated with the Secretary of State. Its termini are South Beach, in the Fourth Ward of the borough of Richmond, and Midland Beach, near Lincoln avenue, in the same borough, New York City.

Oregon Silver Mine Sold.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 19.—The Silver Knik Mine in Crook County, Oregon, has been sold to a syndicate represented by P. J. Quealy of Rock Springs, Wyoming, and J. F. Edwards of Salt Lake. The consideration is said to be about $1,000,000.

Still Trying to Float the Hooker.

Manila, Aug. 19.—The former Spanish gunboat Espana is assisting in the work of floating the United States cable steamer Hooker on a reef in Corrigidor Harbor. The Hooker is badly damaged and her hold is full of water.

The Chicago Will Arrive Too Late.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The Navy Department expects that Rear-Admiral Howison, with the flagship Chicago, will not arrive at New York in time to participate in the welcome to Admiral Dewey.

FIRE SPREADING RAPIDLY.

Widespread Destruction is Threatened in the Adirondacks.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The fires which have been raging in the Adirondacks for the past week have got such headway as to be well nigh a conflagration.

The officials of the forestry preserve and of the fisheries, game and forest commissions are greatly alarmed and several representatives of each department are on the ground endeavoring to get aid for the fire wardens of the various towns in which the fires are burning.

Reports from all sections of the Adirondacks show that the fires have already reached a greater extent than did those of ten years ago, which laid waste thousands of acres.

Great difficulty is being had in procuring men to fight the fires, and the officials ascribe it to the fact that many of the men who usually perform the duty have recently been fined for violations of the game laws. To this fact is also ascribed the origin of some of the fires, although the abnormally dry season and the carelessness of the hunters who smoke tobacco are probably the most potential cause of ignition.

From Hamilton County comes information that the men usually called upon for aid in fighting fires by the fire wardens have almost unanimously refused to come out. In this county there have been many cases of fines and other punishments for infractions of State regulations.

No estimate of the damage can be made, but the officials hear that unless heavy rains come to the State's rescue, they will amount into the hundreds of thousands. The greatest fires which are now in progress are those at the Upper Lake, Paul Smith's, and between Seventh and Fourth Lakes.

Fires Raging at Saranac.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Forest fires raging in this vicinity threaten the summer hotels and camps. Two thousand acres of woodland are now in flames and 100 men fighting the fire have been able to do little. The hotels are the Ampersand and Delmonte, both filled with guests. The camps of New Yorkers are those of M. Morganthau, of 35 Nassau street; L. W. Ehrich, 54 West Seventy-fifth street, and Richard Limburger, of 46 Wall street.

Ten Boys Inhumanly Tortured.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—Ten boys have been tortured in a manner as awful as that of the Inquisition, by foremen in the Belgian iron works in the Caucasus. These boys were suspected of having stolen some money which disappeared in a mysterious manner from the company's office, and the directors of the company attempted to entrap the boys into a confession. Three days of starvation being unavailing, the boys were stripped and beaten. Their eyelids were pierced with needles, and crazed and bleeding the boys were dashed against the walls of the cell till they were insensible. Not satisfied, the foremen restored the boys to consciousness with cold water, and renewed the tortures. They broke out their teenth, filled their mouths with stones, and finally beat them on the head with the butts of their revolvers. The police have denounced the men to the Public Prosecutor. The district is wildly wrought up, and a rising against the company is imminent.

Alleged Murder Excites Havana.

Havana, Aug. 19.—Over 8,000 persons attended the funeral of Senora Esperanza Azcarreta, wife of the former Cuban officer Pinan de Villegas, who died in the hospital, it is alleged, from the effects of poison administered by her husband. A committee of the Cuban club Siempreviva called on Gen. Brooke to demand that justice be meted out to the alleged poisoner. Gen. Brooke was indisposed, and could not see the committee, which was received by Gen. Chaffee, Gen. Brooke's chief of staff. Crowds are parading the streets shouting "Death to Pinan de Villegas," and the prison in which he is confined is heavily guarded by police, to prevent his being taken out and lynched.

Bingen Made Fast Record.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Aug. 19.—J. Malcolm Forbes's bay stallion Bingen trotted the fastest mile seen in four years at the Grand Circuit meeting's trot here. He beat The Abbott in the second heat for the free-for-all, finishing in 2:06 1-4, a second faster than this season's record. Bingen's mile places him very near Directum's record of 2:05 1-4 for a trotting stallion. Although Bingen proved himself faster than The Abbott, the latter won the next two heats and the race. Forbes's stallion being very unsteady.

Lyncher Turns State's Evidence.

Gainesville, Ga., Aug. 19.—Taylor R. Hamilton, a member of the mob that lynched Silas Smith a few days ago, has made a confession before the grand jury, implicating a number of prominent merchants of this county. Hamilton acted the part of a pretended prisoner in the hands of the mob which thus got the sheriff to open the jail.

Bankruptcies in England.

London, Aug. 19.—The Board of Trade bankruptcy report for 1898 shows an increase of 256 in the number of failures. Commenting upon the Hooley failure, the report says: "Reckless and extravagant methods of promotion converted a profit of £5,000,000 into a loss of £89,300. Investors are warned to distrust ornamental directorates."

Lynching Offence May Be Capital.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Lynching will be made a capital offence if the will of the National Afro-American conference shall prevail. The conference passed a resolution here calling for the enactment of a national law to that effect. Booker T. Washington is a prominent mover in the matter.

Dewey Has Fully Recovered.

Leghorn, Aug. 19.—Admiral Dewey has completely recovered from his recent illness and received visits from Mr. James A. Smith, the United States Consul here, and members of the American colony. Mr. Smith gave a luncheon in the Admiral's honor.

The organist of one of the principal Methodist churches in Hartford, Conn., says: "I was troubled with gastritis and nervous dyspepsia for two years. I would go to bed at night feeling perfectly well and wake up next morning with a splitting sick headache. I would be so hot at times that my flesh seemed burning up and flashes of light and darkness would come before my eyes. These spells continued sometimes for a day and a half and while they lasted I was so stupid I hardly knew my own name. I commenced taking Ripans Tabules, and before I had used three dozen of them they made me entirely well. I take a Tabule occasionally now just to keep my stomach in order when it shows any slight indication of a disposition to rebel."

A new style packet containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores—FOR FIVE CENTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (120 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York—or a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

THE SHAMROCK'S ARRIVAL.

She Was Towed Two Thousand Miles In Fourteen Days.

New York, Aug. 19.—The Shamrock, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's cup, which is to contest with the Columbia for the famous trophy, is here, after a voyage of two weeks, accompanied by her owner's steam yacht, the Erin. The passage had been a quick one and the Irish cup challenger's arrival was unheralded and almost a surprise. She goes to Erie Basin, where preparations have been made for her reception and where she will be rigged with her spars and fitted for racing.

The only passenger aboard the Erin was Chevalier Martino, marine painter of the Queen, who is to place some of the historic scenes of the races on canvas. Capt. Matthews said that Sir Thomas Lipton had engaged passage on the Campania before the Erin left Scotland, and expects to be here soon. Will Fife, Jr., the Shamrock's designer, Sailmaker Ramsey and the Hon. Charles Russell, son of Lord Chief Justice Russell, and Sir Thomas's personal friend and representative, will be with him on the Campania.

Before the yachts left Quarantine Capt. Hobarth gave some details of the voyage. He said: "We came on a southerly passage and had light to strong northwest and northerly winds with frequent squalls to the Azores, which we reached on Aug. 9. From there we had moderate weather, so moderate in fact that we were obliged to take tow from the Erin. We towed for about 2,000 miles through the lightest kind of wind. The Shamrock's total sailing distance was something more than 1,200 miles, and the best day's run under canvas was 268 miles. The worst blows we encountered were only small squalls, and the Shamrock comes in in what may be called very good condition."

Americans Arrest Jiminez.

Havana, Aug. 19.—In view of the fact that Colonel Bacallao, Chief of the Secret Police, persisted in his declaration that General Juan Isidro Jiminez, the aspirant to the Presidency of Santo Domingo, was in Havana—either not having left here or having returned—the military authorities telegraphed to Cienfuegos, instructing Captain Stamper, Collector of Customs there, to ascertain whether Jiminez was on the steamer Menendez, and to arrest him if that should be the case. Just as the steamer was about leaving Cienfuegos Captain Stamepr found Jiminez and arrested him. Jiminez denounced the arrest as an outrage. He said he had broken no law and would not yield except to force. Captain Stamper replied that he was ready to use force if necessary, and Jiminez yielded, remarking that he did so only because he could not help himself.

Kid McCoy Knocked Out.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Jack McCormick of Philadelphia knocked out Kid McCoy in about one minute. The bout was to have been for six rounds, and it generally was thought that McCormick stood no show at all. He himself said before entering the ring that he was going to do his best, and let it go at that. The fight was so short and so quickly over that there was also nothing to it but the punch that put McCoy to sleep. The fight was under Queensberry rules, hitting with one arm free being permitted.

Bernstein Defeats Solly Smith.

New York, Aug. 19.—Joe Bernstein of New York won almost as he pleased from Solly Smith of California in their fight in the Broadway Athletic Club. Bernstein beat his adversary down to unconsciousness in the thirteenth round. All that was exciting and dramatic came in the twelfth and thirteenth rounds, and when John White, the referee, counted off the ten seconds the ring was surrounded by a crowd that howled itself hoarse. Bernstein showed himself the better man throughout the entire fight.

They Want Ammunition.

Lourenzo Marques, Delagoa Bay, Aug. 19.—The Government of the South African Republic is making strenuous efforts to persuade the local Portuguese authorities to permit the passing of ammunition. President Paul Kruger personally has wired a request to that effect, stating that a modus vivendi with Great Britain is assured. Two thousand cases of arms are due to arrive here to-day on the German steamer Konig, from Hamburg.

Will Start Home Soon.

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—All arrangements for the special train which will carry the Tenth Pennsylvania to their homes have been completed. C. E. Clark of Company E and Morrison Barclay of Company I will be the only men left behind. Barclay is ill, but the surgeons hope for his recovery.

ODD THINGS IN LIFE.

We never realize how absolutely ignorant we are until a small child begins to ask "why?"

It is noticeable that women are reading much more serious books than they were wont to do.

When it comes to a matrimonial engagement, every girl thinks she is a self-appointed board of strategy.

The obtrusive air of innocence that some women wear makes you suspicious that it is far from being the real thing.

To be told that your eyes are nondescript in color is a polite way of disguising the fact that they are either green or yellow.

Curiosity both in men and women makes itself very pronounced directly a cab with curtains drawn looms up before their vision.

She who is an expert needlewoman possesses an accomplishment that the girl who strums on the banjo or piano might well envy.

The way some women yank children along by the arm makes every one who sees them long to give them a taste of the same treatment.

Why is it a man can apparently derive more mental inspiration from a book or paper if he puts his feet up considerably higher than his head.—Exchange.

AFTER OUR VOLUNTEERS.

Agent of English Army Trying to Get Them to Enlist for Service in Transvaal.

LOOKING THE BOYS OVER

Their Display of Courage and Fighting Qualities in the Philippines Recommends Them

Officer of Tenth Pennsylvania Says His Men Have Been Approached on the Subject—Secretary Root's Announcement Caused Surprise—Other Washington News.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—Secretary Root gave people a surprise when he announced that the President had authorized the enlistment of ten more regiments for the Philippines. It had been supposed that the plan was to recruit only five regiments, and the Secretary enjoys greatly the fact that he kept secret his plans until he was ready to announce them.

The way the Secretary worked gave the Washington people their first introduction to his methods. He went ahead without taking any one, except Adjutant-General Corbin, into his confidence, and after he had his plans perfected, he laid it before the President and secured his approval.

The Secretary is to announce in a day or two the company officers, for the list of captains and lieutenants has almost been completed, and many of the names are in the hands of the President, only awaiting his approval to be announced. If the politicians come to Washington now they will get little patronage to pay for their trouble, because they will find the Secretary's mind made up and the appointments about made.

The War Department does not expect that the ten new regiments of volunteers will be organized so promptly as those which have just been recruited; but Secretary Root and Adjt.-Gen. Corbin look for speedy work nevertheless. The recruiting is to be done in the sections which respond most generously to the first call. No recruiting is to be done in the South or on the Pacific slope. It is hoped that many of the best men who served as volunteers during the war with Spain will be induced to enlist. In the regiments recruited it is found that about 40 per cent. of the men saw service during the Spanish war, and they will be of value in helping to season the raw recruits. In some companies only 10 per cent. of the men have seen previous service, in others 60 per cent. The lieutenant colonels appointed have been chosen, with one or two exceptions, from Gen. Otis's army. The majors, captains and lieutenants will be appointed from among officers of the volunteer regiments that served in the war with Spain. It is planned to have five reimnets leave San Francisco on transports before Sept. 15, and the last transports are to leave before the close of September, so that all the new regiments thus far recruited may be put down in Manila by Nov. 1.

In speaking about the courage and splendid fighting qualities of the volunteers in the Philippines, it is interesting to note that word coming to Washington from San Francisco shows that agents of the English army are now at the Presidio, San Francisco, looking over the returning volunteers and trying to induce them to enlist in the British army, so as to be ready to engage in the possible South African campaign in the Transvaal. Lieut.-Col. Barnett, of the Tenth Pennsylvania, says that he knows of several of his men who have been approached on this subject, but as the term of enlistment for the campaign in the Transvaal is fixed at seven years, the Pennsylvania boys think that too long a time to be away from America, and none of them has enlisted. It goes to show, however, that England is looking with envious eyes upon our volunteers, and would like to secure some of them to defend her flag if a war results in South Africa.

Since the fire at the Capitol, when the robing room and other apartments belonging to the Supreme Court were damaged, and many valuable documents and papers injured by flames and water, the Justices have come to the conclusion that vaults or heavy safes are necessary to store the valued papers belonging to the court. Within the last few months, therefore, when the repairing of the apartments damaged by the fire was under way, the officials of the court ordered that several large fire-proof vaults be constructed in the Capitol under the court room, and so by the time the court opens in October, the Justices will find these vaults ready for their papers, and they will prove an additional place in which to keep the important decisions, so that they cannot be stolen or given out for publication before they are delivered by the court. Oftentimes, the Justices have been greatly embarrassed by having opinions appear in the papers before they are delivered, and now they think that if they are placed in fire-proof safes they will be secure until wanted.

A letter has been received in this city from one of the private soldiers in the Minnesota regiment still in the Philippines, in which the writer, Elmer Schooley, gives some interesting facts as to the situation and scores the anti-imperialists in their attempt to make the volunteer soldiers now fighting in Luzon appear as weaklings and "homesick babies."

Ex-Congressman Baker No Better.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—A despatch to the "Tribune" from Belleville, Ill., says: "The condition of Jehu Baker has changed little. His fever has abated somewhat, but he is weak and his heart's action is faint. With the exception of one or two old friends, callers are not permitted to see him.

COMING EVENTS.

August 20—Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m.

The plan of employing convicts in road-building, in successful operation in many of the Southern States, and being slowly adopted in a few of the Northern States, has been made permissible in Pennsylvania by an enactment of the recent Legislature. The law operates by counties, each county to use its own prisoners, and not to work them longer than eight hours per day. Preference in the road-making must be given to the roads connecting directly with the county seat, and all roads must conform in width and grade to the provisions of the general road law of the State. Work is to be done in sections of five miles, and no more than that distance may be completed on any road until a like mileage has been improved on all main lines connecting with the county seat.

The Trenton True American explains that girls are sent to the State Industrial School "not to be educated in a taste for eleemosynary fruit cake, but to be taught good manners and good habits, and to be instructed in the best and most moral way of repressing their natural and acquired habits of disobedience and willfulness and immoral practices." The Newark Advertiser thinks that the method of inculcating these moral lessons was peculiar. "Good manners and habits" and the "best and most moral way" are taught by calling in two male laborers and stripping shrinking girls to be castigated before their eyes. It is strange to hear the moral precepts of the institution quoted in defence of its immoral brutal practices.

Here is the way Rahway views it, according to a correspondent: "County Clerk Howard's friends are getting to work now to secure delegates enough to renominate him at the Republican county convention. Their programme, it is said, is to form a combination with the friends of Assemblyman Houston, of Elizabeth, who claim they will capture the delegates in seven out of Elizabeth's twelve wards for Houston for Sheriff, and this, added to Rahway's five wards, would give Houston and Howard almost enough to win on the first ballot. Howard will also have some of the townships."

It is customary for politicians to take their disappointment philosophically. An exception recently occurred in Australia. A man in the town of Junee wrote to the local Coroner that if the referendum in New South Wales resulted in favor of federation, he would "give him a job" by cutting his throat. The Coroner laughed at the joke, as he thought it. The referendum was favorable to federation and next day the man was found in a hut with a terrible gash in his throat. He was in a hospital at latest advices, and there were faint hopes of his recovery.

No man should indulge in the luxury of divorce unless he is able to provide his wife with means to fight him.—Vice Chancellor Pitney.

But how about it when he has already furnished a varied assortment of flat irons, tea kettles and other culinary utensils.

A North Georgia candidate says: "We want the office because we think we deserve it; and we deserve it because we have lived here ten years and have never had anything except the opportunity of running for it." The Georgia man has his counterpart in this State.

In the centre of the city Plainfield needs a pavement that will stand the wear and tear of heavy traffic for several years. However good macadamizing may be it will not do this without great expense for frequent repairs.

There is no question but what Mr. Hobart is one of the most popular and influential Vice-Presidents this country has ever had. His fame adds lustre to New Jersey.

The boom of Augustus VanWyck for the Democratic nomination for President is damaged beyond repair.

New Jersey contributed $8,974,261.18 to the internal revenue receipts of the Government for the last fiscal year.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The name of Samuel S. Childs of Bernards township is mentioned by many Democrats throughout the county in connection with the Senatorial nomination. Mr. Childs' remarkable success in business gives him notable standing among conservative voters and all concede that he possesses the requirements that go to make an able Senator. The younger element would have in Mr. Childs a firm friend; one ever ready to listen to and assist them if in his power. He has in his employ at his several city restaurants many young men from various parts of this county, he is himself much better known than when he ran last fall for the Assembly and many feel confident that if he should be selected as the Senatorial nominee this fall he would surely be indorsed by the vote of the party and by hosts of others who are favorably impressed by his commendable business sagacity and wonderful success.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Mr. Higgins, the Lehigh Valley Railroad's superintendent of motive power, writes to the New York Sun to controvert the statement which has been going the rounds to the effect that the Brooks' Locomotive Works, of Dunkirk, will turn out within a few days a locomotive for the Illinois Central Railroad larger than any in the world, the weight of the engine being 218,000 pounds, and with tender, 330,000 pounds; tractive power, 52,000. Mr. Higgins gives the following figures for engines in service on the Wyoming Division of the Lehigh Valley: Tractive power, 55,653; weight on drivers, 202,232; weight on trucks, 22,850; tender, 120,000; total weight, engine and tender, 345,082.

J. W. VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, received Thursday from Walter S. Martin, now in Porto Rico, a copy of the San Juan News under date of August 9th, containing an account, as complete as possible, of the terrible hurricane that visited the West India Islands on the day previous. The paper is very ably edited and the account of the storm compares favorably with work done in this country. Of course, those in charge of the paper were greatly handicaped in securing the news on account of the damage to wires throughout the island, thus making it very difficult to secure news from various points. The fact that the News was able to get out on time the morning following the hurricane speaks well for itself. It also contained a good diagram of the direction of the storm and the storm centre.

The story is told that a certain engaged couple living in this city were the means of changing the method of pay of the caddies of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. When the Plainfield avenue links were first in use, it was the custom to pay the small boys by the round. This couple used to start forth in good form, but when they reached a cozy spot they gave up golf and devoted themselves to each other while their disgusted caddy roamed about despondently looking for lost golf balls. Other couples saw the advantage of such charming tetes, and the caddies demanded that some new method be arranged whereby they might be recompensed for the time thus wasted. So, when the new course went into use, the caddies were paid by the hour. The Park Golf Club young people have not yet learned the trick and the caddies at those links are still paid by the round. When the game there becomes less of a new thing, and the young women take a more prominent part in it, a similar state of affairs may be expected.

THEATRICAL.

John J. Kennedy, comedian of "Kennedy Plays" who begin a week's engagement here next Monday night, comes of a family that have been connected with the stage for over fifty years, his grandfather was a well-known theatrical manager, and his father has been identified with a number of successful plays and players and at the present time is advance agent for "Kennedy Players." John J. Kennedy has three brothers living and all successful actors. His only sister, Lillian, was one of the most popular soubrettes on the stage at the time of her death last spring. His daughter Nellie, who plays leading roles with "Kennedy Players," is also an exceedingly clever young actress. She is but eighteen years old and made her first appearance with "Ullie Akerston's Company eleven years ago. So it can be truly said the Kennedys are born actors.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug.19—Charles Wulfing, of Lincoln, and Miss Ella Wagner, of Bound Brook, were married at St. Joseph's church Wednesday, after which they entertained their friends at Chimney Rock. They will occupy a part of the Goering residence on Harrison avenue.

The chandelier in the First Baptist church fell last Monday and came near seriously injuring the sexton, James Maitland. The lamps were smashed and the oil scattered about, doing considerable damage to the carpets. Mr. Maitland was struck on the shoulder, but was not much hurt.

Dr. Nelson, of New Market, shot a large blue heron in Piscataway Thursday. The bird measured about six feet from tip to tip. It is on exhibition at Carman's meat market.

Tax Collector Geo. Day yesterday sold at the borough hall all the property on which taxes had not been paid. It was bid in by Henry S. Gaskill, for the borough.

Mrs. Harold Tomlinson, of Plainfield, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Dunham, of Church street.

F. H. Martin will conduct an evangelistic meeting in the Dunellen M. E. church tomorrow evening.

Garretson & Gray have shipped about thirty car loads of crushed stone to parties in Seawaren.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton have returned from a visit with her parents at Westfield.

Miss Addie Fenner, of Pluckamin, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Swackhamer.

Mrs. William Pizie, of New Market, who has been quite ill, is able to be about again.

Mrs. Henry Lyons has been entertaining friends from Plainfield this week.

The new house being built for Mrs. Louise Terry is now being shingled.

Joseph Dunham has returned from a week's outing at Asbury Park.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 19.—Frank Allen, who broke a small bone in his hand two weeks ago during an encounter with a stubborn mustang, is able to use the injured member some again but it will be some time before it is entirely well.

Pickerel are biting very good at the Passaic River fishing grounds and nearly every day there are some of the followers of Izaak Walton in town seen along the river's edge angling for the finny creatures,

W. S. Emery's 16-mile road-race this afternoon starts at 4 o'clock from in front of the liberty pole. There are a number of speedy riders entered and a fine race is assured.

Rev. Mr. Shott will hold service in the Fanwood fire house tomorrow evening. There will be no service in his own church after the young people's meeting.

Rev. J. S. Braker, who is visiting friends in town, will occupy the pulpit in the Gray Stone Baptist church, of Elizabeth, tomorrow.

Miss Annie Parse, who has been visiting her uncle, Stites M. Parse, for several weeks, has returned to her home in Springfield.

Rev. Mr. Woodruff has returned from his home in Dover, and will occupy his pulpit again tomorrow.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held an important meeting in their rooms last evening.

It is expected that work will begin in a day or two on the trolley extension to Westfield.

Mrs. Nellie C. Crane, of Plainfield, is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Parks.

Mrs. Maria Nobbles is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Talmadge, of Newark.

Miss Susie Parse has been visiting friends in Trenton.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 19.—Members of Empire Engine Company, of the Westfield Fire Department, has asked the department to hereafter supply the funds with which to hire horses to drag the chemical engine to fires. This request has created considerable comment, not only in the department but among the townspeople. Some think that the town should own several horses as every month a large amount of money is expended for horse hire, several of them being used on the streets daily. The township owns a road roller and a scraper and other wagons and vehicles and should it decide to purchase horses they could be used for taking the apparatus to fires and also could be used in collecting the garbage from the residents about town.

The members of Hook and Ladder Company have decided to hold a clambake, which has always been an annual affair with them, and have appointed the following committee to make the necessary arrangements: Messrs. Charles H. Denman, W. H. Grogan, Irving I. Ross, English and O'Neil. The bake will be given some time the fore part of next month.

The arrangements for the annual River Carnival at Cranford this evening are about completed and if the weather is right the committee expects to entertain a larger crowd then ever before. The river has been cleaned and sixty boats will be in line.

Late last night a fire started in the fruit store of Louis Dughi, on Broad street, but was discovered and extinguished before much damage had been done. The fire started from an electric light wire which supplied current for the electric fans.

That Throbbing Headache.
Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Press want ads bring results

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—Two candidates will receive the second degree at the meeting of Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F., Monday evening.

—The borough marshals will receive their vacation a day or two at a time, instead of taking a week off according to former custom.

—The cottage prayer meeting held at 431 Watchung avenue Wednesday night, under the auspices of the Second Church of Christ, was a great success. There was excellent music and singing. Rev. Mr. Foster was in charge.

—VanArsdale is closing out his tan shoes and oxfords very successfully, but there is still enough to give plenty of people some genuine bargains. He has been making some alterations in his store previous to his fall opening, and he says the balance of the summer tans must go.

A Thousand Tongues
Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard street, Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

Mrs. Theo. Vroom and family, of the borough, who have been visiting at Sandusky, O., have returned home.

Max Wiertz, formerly chef at the Union County Country Club, was in Plainfield yesterday calling on old friends.

Mrs. William C. O'Donnell, Sr., of Brooklyn, is the guest of her son, Rev. William C. O'Donnell, of Monroe avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Duer street, are entertaining Dr. Buchanan's parents from Pemberton, this State.

Councilman John Valiant and family, of Washington Park, are spending a portion of their vacation at St. Michael's, Md.

Henry B. Drake, of Duer street, left this afternoon for Asbury Park, where he will spend a week of his vacation at the New Arborton.

Miss Mollie and Master Fred Heckman, of Freehold, are spending several weeks at the home of V. Utzinger, of Grandview avenue.

Walter Serrell, son of Harold Serrell, of Washington Park, is detained at home by illness, with symptoms similar to that of typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin O. Bowers, of Franklin place, left yesterday for Asbury Park, where they are registered at the Minot House for several weeks.

Mrs. Julius Williams, of Elmwood place, who is spending the summer at Warrenville for the benefit of her health, is reported to be much improved.

A. J. Foster, who is now pastor of the Second Christian church, and his wife, who have been residing in Cranford, have taken up their residence in this city.

A. J. Gavett, street commissioner, is expected to return next week from Kennebunkport, Me., where he is enjoying his usual summer outing with his family.

There is a slight improvement noted in the condition of Horace J. Martin, of Jackson avenue, who is ill with typhoid fever, and the physician now thinks that he will recover.

A recent letter from Rev. Dr. Honeyman, who, with Mrs. Honeyman, is spending a pleasant vacation at the Thousand Islands, states that both are well and enjoying life very much. They expect to return in about two weeks.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Königsberg. Die erste Bismarcksäule in Ostpreußen wird auf dem Hegeberge, einem im Samlande nahe bei Königsberg gelegenen Berge, errichtet. Die 18 Meter hohe Säule wird von einem etwa fünf Hektar großen Gelände umgeben, das Promenaden, Spiel- und Turnplätze erhalten soll, so daß dort Volksfeste abgehalten werden können.

Lötzen. Im Rathhause brach neulich Feuer aus, das das Rathhaus mit Anbau einäscherte. Der Geldschrank der Stadthauptkasse blieb im Feuer; die Akten wurden gerettet. Das Seil der Feuerglocke im Rathhausthurm war zuerst durchgebrannt.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Marienburg. Ueber den bereits telegraphisch gemeldeten großen Brand verlautet noch: 50 Wohngebäude und Stallungen sind vernichtet, darunter das alte Gymnasium und die Töchterschule. Personen sind nicht verletzt. Das Hochmeisterschloß war des entgegengesetzten Windes wegen niemals gefährdet. Der Schaden ist zumeist durch Versicherung gedeckt.

Elbing. Der Schlosserlehrling Neuber, ein arbeitsscheuer Bursche, hatte seinen Meister, Namens Hall, erschossen, lediglich, weil er entlassen worden war. Kürzlich erkannte ein Arbeiter den Mörder, der in der Nähe von Elbing sich umhertrieb. Mit Hilfe eines Schiffers wäre die Festnahme Neubers gelungen, doch sprang der jugendliche Mörder in den Elbingfluß und tödtete sich durch eine Revolverkugel.

Rheinprovinz.

St. Goar. Ein mit dem Zuge nach Koblenz transportirter Arrestant sprang in dem Tunnel bei St. Goar aus dem Zuge. Der Fluchtversuch kam dem Mann theuer zu stehen, denn er fiel unter die Räder, wobei ihm beide Beine abgefahren wurden.

Dülken. Die Maschinenfabrik Felix Tonnar hatte ausständische vertragsbrüchige Arbeiter auf Schadenersatz verklagt. Das Gewerbegericht hat sämmtliche Arbeiter verpflichtet, den geforderten Schadenersatz zu leisten.

Trier. Ein Großfeuer zerstörte in Adelsgund a. d. Mosel zehn Wohnhäuser und Wirthschaftsgebäude.

Provinz Sachsen.

Freyburg a. U. Hier wurde neulich der Grundstein zu einem Monument des Turnvaters Jahn gelegt. Der Präsident des Leipziger Turnvereins, Goetz, hielt die Festrede.

Jessen. Ueber das Unwetter, das kürzlich hier wüthete, wird Folgendes berichtet: In dem eine Stunde von hier entfernten Dorfe Clossa wurde die Windmühle des Besitzers Kuhrmann umgeworfen und die Stalldachung abgehoben; die stärksten Bäume wurden wie Strohhalme zerknickt, so daß die Straße nicht passirbar ist. In Clöden wurde die Windmühle des Besitzers Kettmann umgeworfen. Dem Gutsbesitzer Heede in Schützberg wurde von einem Eisstück das Auge ausgeworfen, derselbe begab sich nach Halle in die Klinik. Es sind Eisstücke von 150 Gramm und darüber gewogen worden. Alle Versicherten fast meldeten Hagelschaden an.

Provinz Schlesien.

Breslau. In dem benachbarten Dorfe Schmolz wurden der Bahnarbeiter Becker, seine Frau, Mutter und ein vierjähriges Kind durch Kohlenoxydgas erstickt aufgefunden.

Groß-Strelitz. Die Häuslertochter Watzrawczy in Tschamerellgut verbrannte ihr neugeborenes Kind.

Oppeln. Ein Opfer seines Berufes wurde der Todtengräber Mika hier. Zusammenstürzendes Erdreich beim Ausschaufeln eines Grabes verschüttete den 66jährigen Mann.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Büsum. Seit längerer Zeit werden in der Nähe von hier Versuche gemacht, den Wellenschlag für elektrische Kraftübertragung auszunutzen. Nach den „Kieler Neuesten Nachrichten" ist es jetzt gelungen, die Wellenkraft in Elektrizität umzuwandeln. Die Versuche werden von Gehre aus Rath bei Düsseldorf ausgeführt. Derselbe hat zunächst bei Büsum eine Leuchtboje konstruirt, welche selbstthätig elektrisches Blinklicht durch Wellenkraft erzeugt. Das Licht ist sehr intensiv und gibt bei Nacht einen prächtigen Anblick. Demnächst wird Gehre versuchen, die Elektrizität an's Land zu leiten.

Kiel. Bei Friedrichsort kenterte der Kutter des Hafenkapitäns. Die Matrosen Oellerich, Dachner und Münsterberg sind ertrunken.—Ein heftiges, mehrere Tage währendes Unwetter tobte kürzlich in dieser Provinz. Namentlich im Westen ist viel Schaden angerichtet worden. Verschiedene Besitzungen, darunter die Thiessen'sche Mühle in Jarrenwisch und die Groth'sche Mühle, sind eingeäschert beziehungsweise stark beschädigt. Auf der Insel Tellworm vernichtete der Blitz zwei stattliche Höfe. Heftiger Hagelschlag hat die Felder zahlreicher Landleute arg verwüstet.

SOME WOMEN'S OCCUPATIONS.

Millionaire's Daughter a School Inspector—College Bred Girl Who Runs a Sawmill.

BY ELIZABETH LYON.

Miss Elsie Clews, Ph. D., the daughter of the eminent financier, was lately appointed inspector of the public schools of New York. She is known to her father's intimate associates as "My Girl Elsie." Mr. Clews has the most exalted admiration for his talented daughter, and when he speaks of "My Girl Elsie" there is pride in his voice and a tender light in his eyes. He has been in complete sympathy with her ambition to shape for herself a distinctive career and has always encouraged her in her studies. To the public Mr. Clews has no desire to laud his daughter's deeds, but to his friends he speaks freely of his delight in her achievements. To one of these the other day he said:

"My Girl Elsie is a treasure. She combines the most lovable of womanly traits with the level head of a business man.

"Look how she worked to get a college education. Many a girl, less determined, would have been discouraged and given the thing up. But that is not my girl. She had promised her mother that she would not neglect her social duties if she adopted a college career. It was hard work to combine the two, but she succeeded. How she did it has always been a wonder.

"Her class record at Barnard shows that she did good work, and yet she kept up a round of society diversions. Furthermore, she left town before the college closed and would not return until some time after the fall term had opened, so that she had not only her regular work to keep up, but conditions to remove.

"She will enter upon her duties as inspector with an equal amount of determination. Her social duties are heavy, but Elsie is exceptional, to my mind, and she will come through all right."

Miss Clews is one of the most charming and popular young women in New York society. Her face is sweet and vivacious, she has soft brown hair and beautiful mouth and teeth. She is rather above middle height, but with a graceful carriage, which adds to her attractions.

During the present season she is one of the reigning belles in Newport. Her days are filled in with dinners, balls, drives and the thousand and one dissipations which make the society girl a slave. She returns to New York in September to take up her duties as school inspector. The dinners and balls will continue, with a change of scene, but the career of a society girl will be balanced by the arduous duties of inspector.

Daily rounds of duty will be necessary. Every nook and corner of the big school buildings must be inspected thoroughly, so that no bad sanitation may jeopardize the hundreds of young lives within the walls. Reports must be filed. Committee meetings and lectures claim a share of attention, besides the usual duties incident to the position. She receives no compensation for her services, Miss Clews having refused to accept the salary which belongs to the position.

Sits in a University Chair.

Miss Lucille Eaves was recently elected to a position on the faculty of the Leland Stanford, Jr., university. Miss Eaves looks little more than a girl, yet she is to succeed Mrs. Mary Sheldon Barnes, who is one of the best known women of the United States. Mrs. Barnes' reputation is international, her historical works having become textbooks in schools and colleges.

Miss Eaves' chair is that of pedagogical history. In California every teacher in the public schools must take pedagogical training in her own special line, whether it be history, geography or languages. Without that training even graduates from Stanford university and the University of California must take an examination in methods.

Miss Eaves' success is the greater from the fact that the system she teaches she has herself evolved. She believes in teaching history from the sociological standpoint, not only in colleges, but in high schools and through all the grades of the public schools. Under this system she takes up such branches as "The Nature and Formation of Social Institutions," "Characteristics of Personal Leadership in Society," "The Influence of Crowds on History."

Miss Eaves has advanced ideas on social and educational questions and expresses them with clearness and force. She developed these ideas while teaching in Peoria and later in Portland, Or., and for three years at the Indian school at the Nez Perces reservation, in Idaho.

A course at Stanford in history, sociology and ethics gave her ideas form. In 1894 she graduated from Stanford and immediately commenced teaching in San Diego. For four years she has been giving a practical test of her theory. Her success is attested by her election to a professorship at Stanford.

Miss Eaves has taken a special post-graduate course in history and economics at the University of Chicago, receiving the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Miss Eaves is an enthusiast upon athletics for women. She played in the first basket ball game of the Stanford team and excels also in tennis and rowing. She also believes in the advancement of women and advocates woman suffrage.

This Girl Runs a Sawmill.

Miss Amelia Judson successfully conducts an extensive lumbering business in Arizona. Some years ago her brother, Andrew B. Judson, left St. Louis and went to northern Arizona (having inherited a considerable fortune from an uncle at his birthplace, Gulton, Mo.), convinced that there was money in developing the sugar pine forests in Coconino county, between Williams, A. T., and the Grand canyon of the Colorado river. Inside of a year he invested $38,000 in timber lands and built a sawmill and established the Judson lumber camp, 22 miles northeast of Williams. He made a specialty of timber suitable for boxes for the California fruit trade and from the start was successful.

In 1898 young Judson's mother and sister came to visit him. Miss Amelia Judson had just finished a course at Cornell university and expected, after leaving Arizona, to go to Paris to study art.

But misfortune prevented. Only a week before she and her mother had intended to return to St. Louis Andrew Judson became suddenly ill with typhoid fever and died. That was last October.

There was but one thing to do. Three important contracts for lumber and box material were in course of fulfillment when the ambitious young lumberman died. Both mother and daughter realized that thousands of dollars of their money was tied up in the lumber camp and that the only way to save it, avoiding the sacrifice of a forced sale, was to keep the plant in operation.

And so it was that college bred Amelia Judson became a sawmiller in the heart of the Bill Williams mountains of Arizona.

She went to the office and took charge. The rough men who saw her wondered at her temerity and hardihood. Then they admired her pluck and determined to help her in every way possible. She went into the woods with the logging teams and learned every detail of the work of converting a standing tree into lumber or fruit boxes. She got out her brother's contracts in time, took further orders and prospered at every turn.

MISS AMELIA JUDSON.

Cleaning Piano Keys.

An effective way of cleansing and whitening the keys of a piano is by using clear alcohol, applied with a piece of soft cloth and rubbed dry with a fresh piece.

When the polish has become dull, an application of piano polish, using a soft cloth and afterward rubbing briskly with chamois, will restore its brightness.

For dulled pedals a mixture of fine wood ashes, sifted through muslin, and a little kerosene is rubbed on the pedals and then polished with a woolen cloth. Ammonia and whiting are also good, using flannel or chamois to rub on the mixture and a fresh piece for polishing.

Lift the keys very gently when wiping them and never allow pounding upon this beautiful and sensitive musical instrument.

THE PALMS.

How to Care for the Decorative House Plant.

If there is one thing harder to do than anything else it is to keep palms and ferns green and hardy the year round. They add so much to the loveliness of a dainty flat or a stately home that it is no wonder housewives buy them, tend them, see them die in spite of tender care and end by throwing them out in despair. Yet their wants are few and simple. In the first place, if one's furnace is apt to go out and reduce the temperature of the house to freezing point with no warning, only the hardier varieties of palms and ferns should be selected. Cabbage palms, fan palms and date palms are all hardy.

Much of the success some women have in caring for palms lies in the attention given to cleansing the leaves, for the minute pores get clogged with dust the surface of the leaves suffers as does the human skin when unwashed. Once a week is not too often to use a soft sponge, warm water and perhaps a little soap.

If insects attack palms a small quantity of the liquid cure sold for the purpose may be added to the warm water. Watering also is responsible for the death of most house plants. No hard and fast rules can be laid down; all depends on the conditions of the plant's life, the warmth of the room and size of the pot. Examine the state of the upper soil, and if dry pour on enough water so that the surplus will run out of the hole in the bottom of the pot. It is a good plan to stand the pots in a basin of water for half an hour so the coil of roots can absorb all the moisture they want.

What may be called the system of "death by driblets" is responsible for the loss of many plants. Water (generally colder than the atmosphere surrounding the plant, which it should never be) is poured on the top soil twice, three times, or perhaps every day in the week in minute quantities, with the result that, although the palm never appears to be neglected, no water ever reaches its roots, and under these circumstances it naturally expires, although its death often remains an unexplained mystery to its owner. Shortness of the water supply often accounts, too, for brown tips to the foliage.

A Novel Cure for Headache.

The German Medical Weekly announces a novel headache cure by mechanical means.

It is a common practice of people suffering from headaches to press upon certain parts of the head, usually upon both temples, to alleviate the pain. This prompted Dr. Sarason, of Hanover, to experiment with an apparatus that will exert a light pressure upon the temples.

NEW HEADACHE CURE.

It appears that the results were surprisingly successful. The pressure upon the sides of the head seemed to work like facial massage, while the impression of the pulsating arteries in the temples caused a wholesome regulation of the circulation of the blood through the head and brain.

Proper Time for a Bath.

Regarding the proper time for a bath, a simple general rule may be given. Take cold baths on rising in the morning and warm ones just before retiring. In taking Turkish baths the hour need not be considered, except as in all baths, none of which should be taken less than an hour or so before or after meals.

Where it is possible, use fresh, clean rain water for the bath. This is the nearest approach to distilled water, which is too expensive for general use. Soft water is next best to rain water, and a little borax or ammonia in hard water will soften it.

Brisk rubbing should always follow a bath: then the bath will do all that is claimed for it in the way of renovating the person, invigorating the system, increasing the fineness and softness of the skin, and making one look and feel younger.

Cleanliness of the skin has a great effect on the general health, and it is well known that if one has been exposed to infection the best thing to do by way of precaution is to take a hot bath immediately.

It is a mistake to remain too long in a tepid bath. Thirty minutes should be the limit. Throughout the winter and early spring it is best, if one is at all liable to chills, to take one's bath at night, just before going to bed. If taken in the daytime, brisk exercise immediately afterward—either walking or dumb bell practice—is highly beneficial.

Elephants Take Care of Children.

Siamese women entrust their children to the care of elephants, and it is said that the trust is never betrayed. The babies play about the huge feet of the elephants, who are ever careful never to hurt the little creatures. And if danger threatens the sagacious anamil will curl the child gently up in his trunk and swing it up out of harm's way upon his own broad back.

Use for Old Table Cloths.

Another use for the worn out table cloths is to make them into tiny cloths for the table to be used under the platter and vegetable dishes at the end where these things are served. These tray cloths save a table cloth from soiled spots more than one who has not used them can think.

MRS. FRANCES S. LEE

THE FIRST WOMAN TO PRESIDE OVER A LEGISLATURE.

Colorado Law Makers Did Not Know How to Address Her, But She Holds Them All With Firm Hand—Her Success in Office.

The Colorado Legislature has bent the knee to the yoke of a woman. The burden was not oppressive, for the happy natured mistress of the gavel made her sway felt lightly, and the members kindly avoided raising difficult points of order. The lady in question is Frances S. Lee, Representative from Arapahoe county, on the populist ticket. Mrs. Lee is not a speaker of tried strength, but she possesses a fund of wit and resource that prevented the members from catching her napping, if they intended to trip her up on her rulings in the chair of the Speaker, when the Assembly was sitting as committee of the whole. She had no warning of the honor designed for her, but was called to the chair by some one who admired her energy in making a splendid race for office.

Mrs. Lee tried to decline the honor and blushed furiously when her name was mentioned. She was uncertain of her ability to handle the reins of government when fifty odd Representatives were clamoring for pie. But she took the chair and gavel with a certain dignity. Then the embarrassment fell upon the members when they came to address the Chair, for, be it known, there is no set rule for the recognition of women in the Legislature, and it is left to the ingenuity of each member how he shall address a lady who occupies the chair.

Some called her "Madam President" and others "Madam Speaker," but these were the men from the city, who possibly had wives in a woman's club and were better schooled than their colleagues in the femininity of parliamentary law. Representatives from the mining and rural districts came to the front with quite a variety of addresses, including "Mrs. Speaker," "Mrs. President," and one, in the fulness of his misery, blurted out a protest to "Mr. President."

In the general excitement there was ample opportunity for the avoidance of solecisms of a political nature, and everything proceeded nicely for the first five minutes, so that the Speaker grew accustomed to her position before the House could confuse her on points of order. Mrs. Lee was capable of holding her own, and quickly demonstrated that fact, to the surprise of several members who knew as much about legislative rules as an elephant knows about gruel. They madly rushed to their own fate, and plunged headlong to oblivion when they were ruled out of order and compelled to sit down and allow others of more intellect to have a say.

It was amusing to see this little woman manfully assume the new role, and imperatively enforce her orders with a smile that was apt to mislead the controversialists into presuming on the Speaker's good nature. At the end of a tedious session of three hours the gavel fell for adjournment, and Mrs. Lee proceeded to the cloak room blissfully content, just as though it were part of her daily routine to preside over the deliberations of a legislative body.

Mrs. Lee was elected by the labor vote, owing to the eminent ranking of her husband in labor circles. He is a member of the State Executive Committee of the Federation of Labor, and is reputed to be one of the brainiest and most conservative of laboring men. He holds one office, so he was not eligible for further honors, but with the grace of a true suffragist was proud to allow his wife's name to go before the convention. A nomination by the silver vote was equal to election, so there can be no means of learning from the returns how her popularity stood the test of the polls, for it was a walkover for the fusionists, and good and bad fared alike in catching the same vote. She is a member of the Committees on Education, Election and Appointments, Temperance, Medical Affairs, Public Health, Labor and the City of Denver, and is a conscientious legislator.

Women's Adaptability.

The adaptability of women is one quality greatly in their favor. Set down in the midst of uncongenial surroundings, a woman's first impulse is to improve them. She quietly gives a deft touch here, straightens out a little there, and though poverty may be still apparent, yet order has succeeded chaos, and she has imparted to everything within her reach some expression of home comfort. She carries the same instinct into business, and, after a month's apprenticeship, if she succeeds at all is mistress of the situation. Almost everyone can recall instances where women, thrown unexpectedly upon their resources, have developed business qualifications of a very high order which they did not know they possessed, and would not have known but for the need of doing something.

Value of Exercise.

One writer says, if you would keep young take a few gymnastic exercises, not to develop your muscles but to keep your joints limber and free from rheumatism. Keep in mind that these exercises taken spasmodically won't accomplish the result.

THE JUDGMENT DAY

Scientists and Alleged Wise Folks Figure Out the Date.

Scientists do queer things sometimes. One of them has attempted to calculate in cold mathematics how soon we may expect the Judgment Day; and he has prepared a paper on the subject. Starting with the total amount of energy stored in the sun and the fact that the orb of day is continuously distributing energy equivalent to the work of seven men for each area of the earth's surface of the size of the human body, our statistician calculates that it will require 3,375,000,000 years of outpouring before a sensible diminution of the quantity of energy given out can be detected. Up to this distant period mountains will stand, rivers will run, plants will grow and animal life will exist much as it does to-day.

If you realize that solar energy as soon as used reasserts itself in some other form, either as sound, electricity or simple motion, it is easy to see that this estimate is too small rather than too great. At any rate, the world is not liable to stop going for a few years yet, according to his reasoning.

Some idea of the vastness of the force that is meted out to us from the physical source of earthly life may be gained, he says, by considering that if the energy that the sun gives to earth in a single day could be bottled up and directed against Niagara Falls it would cause that great body of water to dash back again up hill for 4,000 years. If turned into a single blast of heat it would cause every living creature instantaneously to blight and wither; the ice around the poles would be melted in one and three-quarter minutes and in another eleven seconds all the oceans would be turned into steam.

If transmuted into electricity a spark would flash from the earth as far as the planet Jupiter. If collected into a single sound the vibration thereof would not only break every ear drum in the world, but would uproot the giant trees of the forest, and even level mountains. If changed into a momentary flash of light its burst would be so blinding as to penetrate the walls of the deep dungeon and destroy the sight of every living creature. In brilliancy this flash would exceed the brightness of the sun itself over a million times.

For one man to expend an amount of energy equivalent to that which the earth receives from the sun in the tenth part of a second it would have to work hard continuously for 87,000,000 years.

This calculation is remarkable in that it differs by more than 3,374,000,000 years from the period which scientists generally believe that the world will come to an end. Such experts as Darwin and Huxley believed that it could not sustain life two million years hence.

A FREAK OF JUSTICE

Trying to Solve a Question of Suicide or Murder.

There was an odd freak if court justice out in Santa Fe, New Mexico, a few days ago. It was in a puzzling case of suicide or murder.

The point to be decided was whether the dead man, Fred Merrill, had committed suicide by shooting himself or had been shot by Walter Locke, his brother-in-law, who had been suspected of murder.

A note was found in the dead man's room purporting to give reasons for committing suicide. This note, the prosecution claims, was a forgery. The friends of Locke, the prisoner, insisted on the suicide theory.

The court and jury went to the cemetery. The pistol which was found in Merrill's hand was placed against the head of a lately-deceased pauper, dug up for the purpose, and pointed in the direction that it is alleged the bullet went through Merrill's head.

The skull was cracked to splinters and torn apart in much the same manner as was Merrill's head. The wounds were, however, different in character, and no clean cuts appeared. The face was powder burned immediately around the bullet wound and pieces of skull on the left side were thrown outward, one piece being blown thirty feet against the wind. The recoil of the revolver was such that had it been in the hands of a man committing suicide it would have been thrown thirty-five feet or clutched so tightly that force would have been necessary in removing it from the dead man's hand. It is claimed there were no powder burns on the dead man's face.

A Priceless Treasure.

The National Museum at Washington has just received an almost priceless treasure in the shape of the ensign of the Bon Homme Richard, Paul Jones famous frigate.

The evidence collected seems to prove that this is the first American flag bearing the Stars and Stripes, and is undoubtedly the first National colors ever hoisted over an American warship and the first to be saluted by a foreign naval power.

This flag is the gift of Mrs. Harriet R. P. Stafford, of Cottage City, Mass., who inherited it from her ancestor, James Bayard Stafford. When President McKinley and Secretary Long received the valuable relic, there accompanied it conclusive proof of its authenticity.

Verdict For the Plaintiff.

Heard a couple of good ones on this trip," announced one of Detroit's traveling men. "At a little town in Oklahoma court was in session and I dropped in while waiting for the train. The prosecution had taken the testimony of a stationary engineer and the attorney for the defense took hold. 'Where were you the day this thing happened?' he inquired.

"'Running' a injun.'

"'What tribe did he belong to?'

"The day before a case had been tried in which a man had climbed to the top of a freight car, laid up on a siding. He had no business there, but loosened the brake. The car started down grade, gained speed rapidly for five miles, and then turned a summersault over an embankment. His collar bone was broken and he got a verdict for $500 because a smart lawyer convinced the jury that the railroad was guilty of contributory negligence."

Professional etiquette prevents the French Judges and judicial officials from riding in omnibuses.

Among the birds the swan lives to be the oldest, in extreme cases reaching 300 years; the falcon has been known to live over 162 years.

An old Scotchwoman, when advised by her minister to take snuff to keep herself awake during the sermon, replied: "Why dinna ye put the snuff in the sermon, mon?"

It seems that when Fitzhugh Lee was in West Point he went by the name of "The Flea," partly because he signed himself "F. Lee," partly on account of his light stature and activity.

One of the most remarkable instruments on record has been recently completed, and actually measures one-millionth part of a second. The instrument is necessarily very complicated, but the vibrations of a very sensitive tuning fork form the basis of the measuring process.

Somebody played a mean trick on a Philadelphia girl not long ago. She went shopping on a rainy day and when she wasn't looking a naughty joker painted upon her umbrella the words, "Kiss me," in big letters. Then she went trudging around all day under the impression that everybody smiled upon her because she was beautiful.

The woman who is said to possess the longest head of hair in the world, is Mercedes Lopez, a Mexican. Her height is 5 feet, and when she stands erect her hair trails on the ground 4 feet 8 inches. The hair is so thick that she can completely hide herself in it. She has it cut very frequently, as it grows so quickly, enabling her to sell large tresses to hair dealers every month.

A QUARTETTE OF DEMONS.

Three Serving Life Sentences In the Penitentiary At Columbus, Ohio.

FOUR DESPERATE MEN,

The Prison Warden Proposes to Make Them Work in a Novel Iron Cage.

Worthless Creatures Who Are a Constant Menace to the State—An Experiment in Penology Which Will Be Closely Watched—Plotting Against All Prison Rules.

Whether it is best that desperate murderous prisoners should be made to work, rather than allowed to sit idle day after day in solitary cells, is the question Warden Coffin, of the Penitentiary in Columbus, Ohio, is seeking to solve by placing the four most incorrigible prisoners of that institution in a new steel "demon cage," especially constructed for them.

These four "prison demons" are Ira Marlatt, Otis Hurley, John Atkinson and Frank O'Neil, all of them murderers serving life sentences, except Hurley, who has thrice vainly attempted murder within the prison walls, and has a twelve years' sentence before him. Until a few days ago all of these men were kept in solitary confinement, their desperate character and dangerous disposition precluding the possibility of their working in the crowded shops.

"The State of Ohio can no longer afford to employ special guards to watch these desperate degenerates in solitary cells," said Warden Coffin, "and I propose from this on to make them work. That is my chief reason for having this special cage constructed. It is simply a large steel lattice work box or cage, built across one end of a corridor, into which five small cells open. Being about 11 by 21 feet, it will afford the 'prison demons' ample room for stretching themselves and doing whatever work I may see fit to give them. As soon as they have become accustomed to their new quarters and quieted from the excitement of their removal I shall put them to sorting broom corn, a light work, which they can easily perform in their cage."

This assemblage of the most desperate characters of the institution, where they will have abundant opportunity to plan together plots against the guards, and perhaps the lives of each other, is an experiment in penology which will be closely watched by prison reformists everywhere. Marlatt and Hurley have on numerous occasions attempted the lives of guards with curious weapons, which they have manufactured out of the wire from their cell pails; a case knife or any piece of iron which might fall into their hands in the hundreds of mysterious ways that baffle the authorities.

Only a few weeks ago Hurley dangerously stabbed a guard, whom he induced to enter his cell on the pretext that he would give him a package of saws taken from another prisoner contemplating escape. When the guard entered the cell Hurley thrust the steel wire stilletto into the guard's abdomen. The weapon was taken from him, but a similar one has ben found concealed in his shoe since his transfer to the new cage.

It is this cunningness of all four of the "demons" to secrete material for weapons and to manufacture needle-pointed stilettos and daggers almost under the watchful eyes of the guards that raises the question whether it will not be possible for them to some time make an organized attack upon their keepers, or, perchance, quarreling among themselves to engage in a combat for the survival of the fittest. When the latter possibility was suggested to Warden Coffin he smiled and said:

"That would settle the problem, then. They are worthless creatures and a constant trouble to the State."

Marlatt was received at the prison October 31, 1891, on a life sentence, for second degree murder, committed in Mahoning county. He disputed with a miller over a mortgage, lost control of his violent temper and shot the man. On his way home from the scene of the murder he attempted the lives of several persons he did not like. He is now thirty-seven years old. When received at the prison he was placed at work on the stone pile, but did not take kindly to his duties and rebelled. When Guard Scott attempted to punish him Marlatt showed his demoniacal character by rushing on the guard like a fury. His ravings were so frightful that he has since that time been confined and has done practically nothing.

Of the four "demons" John Atkinson and Frank O'Neil have served longer terms than the others. They were both originally from Cuyahoga county, Atkinson being imprisoned in 1883 for grand laceny and picking pockets, and O'Neil, alias James O'Neil, in 1889, on the same charge. Both are professional robbers and thieves of the most desperate character. They never allowed any person to stand in the way of their carrying out a plot, and, though they never committed murder until after they had been in the prison for several years, they have committed many desperate deeds in their nefarious operations.

Both men are now serving their third term from Cuyahoga county for robbery. O'Neil having been sent up November 24, 1896, for fifteen years, and Atkinson June 5, 1897, for the same time. The terms of both would have expired in 1906 had they not killed Lauderbaugh, a guard, on November 18 of last year in an attempt to escape from the prison. They had secured revolvers from some unknown source, and on the day of their attempted flight encountered Lauderbaugh in their way.

They deliberately shot him dead, and would hve killed another guard had not a third interfered. For the killing of Lauderbaugh they each got life sentences, and will enter upon their forth sentence upon the expiration of their present one in 1906. The prison authorities never had any trouble with any of them before the murder of Lauderbaugh, and both worked industriously in the shops, though O'Neil complained of having ill health and not being able to work.

IRA MARLATT

They are surly and sly and continually plotting against the prison rules. Like Marlatt and Hurley they have a penchant for making weapons, but aside from the deadly use of their revolvers in the murder of Lauderbaugh they have never had an opportunity to use their deadly weapons.

Otis Hurley, the youngest member of this quartet of crime, is now serving his second term as a conviet, with another term before him to commence at the expiration of the present one next November. He was at first received at the penitentiary for one year for grand larceny from Dayton, Ohio, in February, 1895, and though he was discharged December 26, of the same year, he remained out of prison only a few months, being returned July 21, 1896, for five years for stealing a bicycle.

He was well behaved for a time, but for some reason took a special hatred to Miss Daisy Sprague, a clerk in the glove department of the penitentiary. Hurley had made a dagger while working in the shops, and had succeeded in keeping it concealed about his person. One day while Miss Sprague was crossing the prison yard, he dashed at her, and without a word stabbed her. The wound fortunately was not serious, and she soon recovered. Hurley was tried for assault with intent to kill, and received a twelve years' sentence, to begin at the expiration of his present term. He was shackled with ball and chain for a while, and afterward placed in solitary confinement.

He openly boasted that they could not keep him confined, and one day he appeared before the deputy warden in the latter's office and asked to be put to work. The look of astonishment on the deputy's face was ill concealed. Hurley noticed it and smiled. "I said you could not keep me in there," he said.

The Home of a Wild Man.

A cave on a hillside at Mount Washington, is the home of a wild man. Whence he came is a mystery, but he lives on fish, snakes, lizards and anything else he can catch, and his powers in this line are as well developed as those of a wild beast.

Squire N. L. Harris, near whose home the cave is situated, discovered the wild man a few nights ago. While feeding his stock he noticed smoke curling from the mouth of the cave. Going to the entrance he found a lot of bones and feathers scattered around. He did not care to go inside the cave, not knowing what wild animal abode there.

He decided, however, to watch and discover the tenant. A day or two afterward he returned to the place and found the lodger outside the cave. It was the strangest bit of humanity ever seen hereabouts—a little dried-up man not more than 4 feet high, weighing 90 pounds or less and covered with a shaggy coat of hair. His clothing was hardly worthy of attention.

The wild man tried to escape into the cave, but Mr. Harris intercepted him and endeavored to find out whence he came and who he was. The strange creature, however, could talk only in a jargon not understood by his questioners, but the Squire finally made out that he came from South America.

Song-Making.

The writer who cannot make a decent living at novel writing may turn to composing odes for patent medicines and rhymes and jingles for soap and candle manufacturers; but if one has any gift in versifying it might prove very much more profitable to turn the talent to song-making. That is the expressed opinion of a publisher of songs in New York, who has made a fortune in both writing and publishing songs that have attracted the public attention.

AN ESCAPE FROM BONDAGE

This Man Says He Was Tricked Into An Insane Asylum.

WILD RACE FOR LIBERTY.

Through Tennessee Swamps, Cut By Barbed Wire Fences, In a Strange Country.

Story Told By a Man Who Says He Was Put Out of the Way For His Little Fortune—His Escape From Louisville—The Utmost Limit of Endu a ce.

Moses D. Morris tells a thrilling tale of his escape from the Great Western Insane Asylum, in Bolivar, Tenn., in which he was incarcerated for several weeks, although, he declares, he was perfectly sane. He was tricked into the asylum, he says, and the object of those who had him placed there was his little fortune of $35,000.

Mr. Morris's favorite among the unfortunate inmates with whom he was locked up was "Mike" McDermott, who had been educated for the priesthood, and who was at times entirely rational. The two talked over plans to escape from the asylum, and finally consulted with another patient, Dr. B., who had become insane through drink.

"To-night," said the Doctor to them one day, "there is a ball in the North Hall. You will file over from here, and on the way will traverse a long narrow corridor. At the left of it and midway there is a winding stair down to the ground floor. At the end of the lower corridor is a door. For an hour every evening it is unlocked, but you must pass the watchman's door. If he sees you all is lost. If you reach the door you may succeed. Try it, and God save you."

Mr. Morris and "Mike" decided to adopt the Doctor's suggestion. When night came Mr. Morris put on his evening dress suit, even to patent leather shoes, in order not to excite suspicion, though it was storming hard and he knew he ought to have heavier clothing if is plan to escape succeeded.

"When the warder marched us over to the hall," said Mr Morris, "I was walking as in a dream. Down the long, dimly lighted corridor we snafled like a company of flagellants. I looked ahead with blurring eyes. There was the spiral stairway—my heaven of escape. I slunk behind the unfortunate in front of me, trying to make myself smaller. I reached the head of the strairway, gave a glance around, and then down it I dashed like a madman in reality—down, down, down, reaching the ground floor with my head in a whirl.

"I looked forward. A flood of light poured through the opening of the watchman's door. How could I ever get by it? My blood froze with the thought of capture now. I tip-toed along, then made a sudden dash through the blaze of light like a spectre. I reached the door unseen. My brain was on fire. I seized the great latch and threw my strength into the last stroke for liberty and home. Thank God, the door yielded. That gust of wind-swept rain enveloped me like a thousand angels sent for my deliverance. Into the darkness I plunged, not knowing, not caring, possessed only with the conviction that I was free, free, free!

"On and on I raced. I was hundreds of miles from home, in a strange country. The December rain pelted me in torrents, the mud was almost to my knees. I did not know a single road, but plunged on and on, with the hope of finding some sort of a path—anywhere on earth, so long as it was out of sight of that accursed place. I dared not look back, still breathlessly I paused, and, from a distant hill, I saw the bleak turrets illuminated by the lightning's flash, and then they faded from my sight forever.

"I found that in tearing through a barbed wire fence in my flight I had torn one of my fingers almost from my hand. It bled profusely, but, binding it up as best I could, I set my face from the scene of my miseries, scanning the darkness for one evidence of the habitat of civilized man. Knowing that they would soon bee after me, I dared not lapse into a walk, but kept up a fierce gait, over ridges, through creeks, surmounting every obstacle, the mud of the Tennessee valleys often to my knees, falling into ponds whose thin ice cut me as I plunged."

Finally when almost totally exhausted, Mr. Morris heard dogs barking in the distance, and, following up the sound, came to a little cabin. The negro who owned it took him in and cared for him for two days. He was fourteen miles from the asylum and a hundred miles from home.

"Afterward I offered my watch for fare to Nashville, but the young man of the house said, 'The lightning express stops for water just a half minute down here about a mile. Conceal yourself nearby and board the blind baggage car. You are safe till you get to Louisville.' I thanked him, bade these good people adieu with tears of gratitude, and, with the help of my friend, an hour later boarded the blind baggage car of the mid-night express. 'God bless you all!' I screamed out as I sped away through the darkness toward home and my dear people, pelted with cinders, stifled and strangled with smoke, but with my heart beating fast with triumph. I arrived at Louisville at daybreak to face my accusers, who saw the miracle of my escape from the prison asylum with consternation and terror. How I ever survived it I do not know, but here I am, safe, sane and sound, proving that where there is a will to break from unjust bondage, with right on your side, there is no limit to human endurance."

They gently chid the poet in that he always took the gloomy view of things

"Do you ever write on an empty stomach?" he asked.

The poet glared up at them with glassy eyes.

"Often there is no stationary in the house," he moaned, for behad now became delirious.

GOLF.

Despite the fact that most of the enthusiastic golfers of the Park Golf Club are now away on their summer outings, there are still enough remaining to keep up competition for the Mrs. C. W. McCutchen Cup. Today will see a continuation of the play for the trophy on the club links.

Among the Plainfield young women who have turned their attention to the royal game of golf during their summer vacation is Miss Ruth Maxson, of West Seventh street. Miss Maxson is summering with her parents at Long Lake and is an almost constant player at the golf links there. She is rapidly acquiring considerable skill in the game.

September is the great month for golf in this section and Greenkeeper Barrie of the Park Golf Club is making every effort to make the club course in the very best of condition for that time. The fair green is in good shape and is being cut constantly. The putting greens are also improving in condition. The brush at the side of the course has, most of it, been cut down and the rest will soon meet a like fate.

Jefferson, N. H., August 19—The semi-final round in the tournament of the Waumbeck Golf Club was played Thursday. In the consolation match, G. B. Tilton defeated Harvey Fisk, of Plainfield, 7 up and 5 to play. Miss Louise Fisk, of Plainfield, qualified for the final round by defeating Miss Barrett, 3 up and 1 to play. Yesterday, the final in the women's championship, Miss Agnes H. Davis, of the Lakewood Golf Club, defeated Miss Fisk, 5 up and 4 to play.

Use Allen's Foot-Ease in Your Gloves.

Mrs. Andrew Stiglitz, of Chatham street, is improving from a recent severe illness.

Chief Marshal Campbell, of the borough, is able to be out today for the first since his recent illness.

Miss Mary G. Holton, of the borough, has returned from a pleasant visit with out-of-town friends.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—There will be a hop this evening at the Hotel Hunterston for the benefit of the hotel orchestra.

—The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Frank Scott will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

—Fred Ocverly, of West Second street, who has been conducting a dancing pavillion and summer house along the line of the trolley between Somerville and Bound Brook, has given up the business for lack of patronage.

THE COURTS.

JUSTICE MOFFETT.

Judgment for the full amount has been rendered in the case of the Union Beef Co. against Geo. Scheelien.

Tame Talk for Dave.

Our North Plainfield correspondent resents the venomous attack of the Plainfield Press for simply making a statement of facts in these columns week before last. He says the blackguard tactics employed by The Press show to what depth they will resort when crossed, and further states that if any more is said about the case he will publish the whole affair and force the lie down their throat.—Bound Brook State-Centre.

Staking Out Trolley Line at Rahway.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, August 19—The work has been commenced of staking out the route on Westfield avenue for the tracks of the Westfield and Rahway Electric Railway, which is to be a branch of the Hine-Riker syndicate road, the Elizabeth and Westfield, now being constructed through Union county.

Regimental Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Thirteeth New Jersey Veteran Volunteer Association will be held at Bound Brook Wednesday, October 4th. A number of members of that regiment who live in Plainfield will attend.

Several Responses Expected.

Warren Engine Company will soon hold a regular meeting when it is expected that a number of responses will be received from companies invited to participate in the firemen's parade October 12th.

Ready for the Smoker.

A meeting of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men was held last evening. The committee in charge of the smoker and entertainment reported that all the preparations were completed for a successful affair.

At Gospel Meetings.

John T. Mawson, who recently held gospel meetings in the tent at the corner of West Fourth street and Arlington avenue, will preach tomorrow. He will sail for England early next week.

SOME PECULIAR ANIMALS.

The Philippine Islands Will Add New Beasts to Zoological Gardens.

A REMARKABLE BUFFALO

Tunnels Pathways Through Thick Bamboo Undergrowth—Hunted on Hands and Knees.

Philippine Squirrel Another Odd Creature About the Size of a Mouse—A Wild Pig Dignified With a Latin Name—A Monster Fruit-Eating Bat—A Much-Prized Alligator.

One freak beast which will excite curiosity in our zoological gardens is the tamarau, a dwarf buffalo found in the forests of Mindoro of the Philippine group. It is a stunted form of the Old World buffalo, not of the American bison. It sometimes occurs high up in the mountains. It tunnels pathways through the thick bamboo undergrowth covering the mountain sides above 6,000 feet. Hunters must go upon hands and knees to follow these trails. The aborigines never hunt this little beast, being deadly afraid of it.

The midget Philippine squirrel is another odd creature. It is about the size of a mouse, has legs longer in proportion than those of the ordinary squirrel, large eyes and rounded ears. A large brown rat, gray underneath and with a squirrel-like head and eyes, but black, cord-like tail, is of still greater interest from an evolutionary point of view. It is discovered to be the last link long needed to complete the chain of relationship between the true rat and the water rats. A wild pig, dignified by the name of "Sus celebensis Philippinesis," is found throughout the whole Philippine group. It is exceedingly exclusive during the day, when it hides in the forests, but sallies gaily forth during the night into the native maize and rice fields, where it does much damage. The natives call this badly beloved pig "Babul."

The Philippines will also contribute a giant fruit-eating bat. All American bats, of course, subsist entirely upon insects, and are provided with sharp teeth with which to nip them. The fruit-eating bat of these islands is larger than a rat, has a long head and blunt teeth. It makes nightly inroads upon the banana plantations and other fruit preserves. During the day it sleeps hanging head downward from a tree.

In Bataan, of the Philippine group, is found a chevretain, or a "mouse deer," a tiny little pigmy as cunning as a fox, and which when snared feigns death until freed, when it leaps up like lightning flash and takes to the forest, leaving the inexperienced trapper in great surprise. The Philippines also contain civets, wildcats, porcupines, lizards, snakes and alligators. The "chacon," one variety of alligator, is prized by the natives as affording immunity against earthquake shock.

Education Among Filipinos.

The Review of Reviews translates from a Spanish book some information in regard to the extent of education among the Filipinos that will be startling to most American readers. The author is Senor Juan Caro y Mora, who for some years was editor of a Spanish newspaper in Manila. His book was written before the war between the United States and Spain, but while the Filipino insurrection under Rizal was in progress. It was intended for the enlightment of the Spanish people, the evident purpose being to show that the native Filipinos were worthy of a more generous system of government than the arbitrary rule by which Spain had goaded them to revolt. Senor Caro y Mora says:

"The indigenous Filipino possesses fundamental, rudimentary instruction (what we agree in calling primary instruction) in, perhaps, as much or greater perfection than any other people in the world. He shows himself desirous of learning, and in the immense majority of the natives can read, write and figure. He knows the rudiments of religion and morality, and shows a happy disposition to acquire that general tint of superficial culture which is all that the great mass of laboring people can aspire to anywhere in the world. On this point statistics furnish us eloquent and irrefutable data. The number who cannot write is very small, including the women, and the number is much less of those who have not learned to read, while those who lack at least the most fundamental and necessary religious and moral insructions are very rare indeed. The correctness of this observation may be proved if the first native one meets, even in the most remote sections, should be questioned, or, what would be still easier, by examining recruits in the army, who are drawn usually from the poorest masses of the people."

OWL COURTSHIPS

Show a Devotion Rarely Met Among More Favored Creatures.

Very funny it is, from the human point of view, to witness the love-making of a couple of owls on a moonlight night, as they sit together on the coping of an old wall, or on the horizontal limb of some giant of the forest. Perched on the same bough, or the same wall or ruin, the lady owl, though usually much bigger and stronger than her mate looks the picture of demure coyness, if a little excited inwardly, like a girl at her first ball.

But the male owl, says the Pall Mall Magazine, is very much in earnest; for a moment or two he remains quite still, then he puffs out all his feathers, bows, and utters a softened scream, followed by a modified hiss that is full of tender meaning, and then he nudges her with his wing; she opens her big eyes very wide, and gives him a side-long glance that may be a hint, for, horrible to relate, from the depths of his interior he instantly brings up a half-digested mouse; and, although she is full of similar rodents and stag beetles as she can comfortably hold, she opens her mouth and accepts the fragrant gift with a murmur of satisfaction that speaks volumes of love and thanks. Then, when the dainty morsel has been disposed of, they caress each other tenderly for a moment or two, and then sit closely pressed to each other's side while the process of assimilation is perfected, after which they simultaneously flit away into the moonlight on noiseless wing in search of further prey.

Not only do the owls guard each other with a devotion that is rarely met with among more favored creatures, they positively idolize their ill-favored offspring, for whose sake they willingly risk not only liberty, but life. A young owl is not an attractive looking object from our point of view, but in its father's and mother's eyes it is perfection, and the way they wait on it, cuddle and caress it, feed it and keep it clean, must be seen to be believed.

Among the Pigmies.

Though it was a dangerous undertaking for the African explorers to travel through the land of the pigmies, there must have been a huge interest in observing the ways of these little imps, who were generally struck spellbound at the sight of the white men. Mr. Lloyd, writing in Chambers's Journal, says he was twenty days walking through the great forest inhabited by the pigmies, a forets so dark that in many places it was impossible to read, even at noonday. The pigmies were fairly intelligent, and peacefully disposed, although their arrows were tipped with deadly poison. They had a frightened appearance, and covered their faces, like shy children, when spoken to. The forest was alive with elephants, leopards, wild pigs, buffaloes, and antelopes. After leaving the forest Mr. Lloyd came to one place where he took the opportunity of screwing together the bicycle which he had brought with him. A spin on the machine brought out thousands of men, women, and children from their villages, and they danced and yelled with delight at seeing, as they expressed it, a European riding a snake.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongued coated, pain continually in the back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store

WHEELING FOR MEDALS AT SCOTCH PLAINS

LeMathy, of Westfield, Wins the 16-Mile Road Race.

HARRY WRIGHT IS SECOND.

EXCITING CONTEST BETWEEN THE TWO SCRATCH MEN.

Colored Rider from Plainfield Defeats Westfield's Crack Rider in a Close Finish—Protest Made by Ransom Not Entertained—Spirited Contest and a Large Crowd of Spectators Present.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, August 21—The sixteen mile road race, held under the auspices of William S. Emery, on Saturday afternoon, was the most interesting event of the kind that has been held in this borough in some months. The heat was very oppresive, but this did not interfere with a large attendance from Plainfield, Netherwood, Westfield, Cranford and other near-by places, many ladies being present.

The races were not run under any rules, save those made by the proprietor of the Scotch Plains hotel. The provisions of the race were that the contestants should start from the hotel and ride four miles to a point opposite Miller's farm, and return and repeat the trip, making a distance of sixteen miles.

The prizes were gold, silver and bronze medals, with a silver cup to the man who shall win the first prize three times.

The start and finish were at the hotel. Landlord Emery was master of ceremonies and saw that each contestant had a fair chance.

Frank Shuck was clerk of the course, William Walters, scorer; Harry Lister, starter and time keeper, while Walter Hetfield filled the position of checker at the four mile turn.

Following are the names of the contestants and the handicap placed against them:

Charles E. LeMathy, Westfield, 4-minute handicap.
Harry G. Wright, Springfield, 4-minute handicap.
Arthur Chapin, Scotch Plains, 3-minute handicap.
Joseph Hamilton, Berkley Heights, 3-minute handicap.
A. N. Ransom, Netherwood, 3-minute handicap.
John Townsend Cranford, 2-minute handicap.
William Christian, Westfield, 2-minute handicap.
Joseph Burke, Plainfield, 2-minute handicap.
William K. Embleton, Westfield, 1-minute handicap.
Fred L. Walters, Berkley Heights, 1-minute handicap.
Peter J. Simmons, (colored,) Plainfield, scratch.
Charles Embleton, Westfield, scratch.

The race was started at exactly 4:11 o'clock in the order named above. The fact that one of the contestants was a colored man from Plainfield served to bring out a large number of that race, and there was much interest taken in the match between Simmons and Charles Embleton, the scratch men.

The race was won by Charles E. LaMathy in 45 minutes. He covered the first four miles in 21 minutes, being closely followed by Wright. Ransom, of Netherwood, was third.

Walters, of Berkley Heights, found the pace too fast and he dropped after covering the first four miles. Hamilton, of the same place, did not finish, although he made the first twelve miles.

The most exciting part of the race was the struggle between the scratch men. Embleton got the lead at the start and held it for the first half of the contest, but was overtaken on the home-stretch and the colored rider from Plainfield crossed the tape by nearly three lengths to the good, amidst great enthusiasm, both white and colored spectators cheering and applauding the winner generously. The colored contingent gathered around their champion at the close of the race and nearly smothered him with congratulations.

The race was finished in this order: LeMathy, Wright, Ransom, Chapin, Christine, Burke, Townsend, Simmons, Charles Embleton, W. K. Embleton, Walters and Hamilton.

Simmons' time was given out as 45 minutes and that of Charles Embleton 45 minutes and 25 seconds. A protest was made by Ransom and some of his friends over awarding LeMathy the first prize on the ground that he had been paced when on the upper part of the course. This was denied by the winner and his friends. As the race was not run under the rules of the L. A. W., Mr. Emery and the judges decided not to entertain any protests, and the prizes were awarded in the order in which the men finished. The medals, which were very hand-

ANDY BENFORD'S STAFF OF OFFICE WAS HUGE BOULDER.

Passengers Fled From Car Fearing Trouble -- Exciting Trip From Scotch Plains Saturday Night.

When car No. 20 of the Plainfield Street Railway Company made its last trip to Plainfield Saturday night from Scotch Plains Andrew Benford assumed temporary command. His staff of office was a huge boulder with which he promised to break the head of anybody who interfered with him. Many of the passengers left the car, fearing trouble.

Wm. Brown was motorman and Philip Maguire conductor. They used all peaceable means to persuade the obnoxious passenger to leave the car. But contamination with Scotch Plains sin had hardened Andrew against all moral suasion and he remained.

At Fourth street Superintendent Adelmann boarded the car. Something in his broad shoulder decided Benford to leave the car, but Adelmann said he had stayed so long that he had better remain longer. He did so and was turned over to an officer, who locked him up.

This morning Andy was arraigned before City Judge Runyon and fined $10 for his temporary reign. Andy is the son of Mrs. Maggie Benford, of Paradise alley.

FAST TROTTING ENJOYED

EVENTS AT GENTLEMEN'S DRIVING PARK SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Match Race Between "Myrtle F." and "Viola F." Won by the Latter—Several Other Match Races and an Exhibition.

A fair-sized crowd assembled Saturday afternoon at the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association to witness some good racing by local horses. Owing to the very warm weather there was not as many present as on the preceding Saturday, but there was just as much interest. An exhibition mile trot was given by A. C. Vail's speedy mare, and she made the circuit in 2:27 without a break. It was one of the best races of the day.

A match race between Thomas Brantingham's "Myrtle Twig" and Robert Fairbairn's "Viola F." The first heat was the fastest, the time being 2:21, and was won by Viola F.," who also won the second heat in 2:24½. Another exciting race was trotted by D. Darby's "Sunday" and J. W. Johnson's "Barney Williams." "Sunday" captured the heat in 2:32¼, and his opponent the second heat in 2:28.

A race arranged between N. B. Smalley's "Kittie Rue;" A. I. Smalley's "Belle," and Wm. Baldwin's "Jeaness," was interesting. "Belle" won in 2:24, while "Jeaness" scored 2:26 and and "Kittie Rue," 2:27¼.

Another race was between N. B. Smalley's "Frank F.;" J. M. Smalley's "Prince," and F. S. Emmons' "Sam H." "Frank F." won the race in 2:41.

The last event was an exhibition mile by Harry Gwynett's "Sable Wilkes." The time was 2:46.

The three pacers, "Jeaness," "Belle" and "Kittie Rue" will race again next Saturday, when it is to be hoped that A. B. Giddis, of Bound Brook, will enter his pacer, who defeated "Sunday" and "Fairmount Maid" some time ago."

AFTER MEDICINE WHEN HE DIED.

Benjamin Singer Died Suddenly Yesterday Morning.

Benjamin Singer, a well-known resident in this vicinity, who has lived for sometime with his daughter, Mrs. Berrford, of 18 Steiner place, dropped dead yesterday morning at 3:30 o'clock of dropsy. He got out of bed to get some medicine and while his daughter was downstairs he fell to the floor. She heard the noise and going upstairs found her father dead. Coroner DeMott was called and granted a burial permit.

Mr. Singer was 57 years of age and formerly lived at Westfield, where for many years he was a mason. Of late he has been unable to do nothing. He leaves three daughters and two sons. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the residence on Steiner place.

To Build at Somerset Park.

Dr. Wm. A. Taltavall, of 2137 Seventh avenue, New York, a surgeon in the Vanderbilt Hospital, has purchased lots 60 and 61, corner of Empire avenue and Windsor street, in Somerset Park. He intends building a large dwelling house with all the modern and sanitary improvements.

Tingley Family Reunion.

The ninth annual reunion of the Tingley family will be held on the D. F. Blackford farm near New Market, Thursday, Aug. 31st. A band of music will be present and in the afternoon there will be speaking by various members of the family and others.

TROPHY HONORS GO TO CRACK GOLFERS.

Weekly Competition at Park Golf Club Links.

ANDERSON'S LOW SCORE.

ANDERSON AND DRYDEN ARE NOW TIED FOR THIRD PLACE.

Gifford W. Cooley Still Leads in the Competition for McCutchen Cup by Half a Point—Low Scores Made Saturday Afternoon—Most of the Crack Players Were on Hand—Course in Good Shape.

Gifford W. Cooley still leads in the competition for the Mrs. C. W. McCutchen Cup on the links of the Park Golf Club although, as a result of the play Saturday afternoon, his lead was greatly deminished and he only retains it by half a point. The honors of the afternoon's play were carried off by the crack golfers of the club, W. de la R. Anderson without any handicap making the lowest net score.

The less expert element was absent Saturday afternoon, while the leaders were with a few exceptions on hand and made low scores in comparison with those of the last few weeks. There was not many out during the afternoon, but most of those who went round took part in the tournament. The course was in good condition and no high grass to bother. The threatening clouds and the humid atmosphere kept many away, particularly the ladies, who were few and far between on the course during the afternoon.

Anderson was back again and took part in the competition for the trophy. He made the rounds with W. J. R. Thiers, who was playing a better game than usual. At the start neither of them did anything brilliant, but they warmed up to the game and did some very clever work at driving and on the fair green. Anderson completed the eighteen holes in 95, three more than the lowest tournament score made by himself and Fred P. Taylor.

Gifford W. Cooley and Charles E. Faber played together in the tournament round and made fair scores. Both were evidently a little out of their usual good form and failed to score for the trophy. Meredith Dryden, the club secretary, came to the top with a rush again that gave him third honor for the afternoon. Steady playing and a fair handicap won him a net score of 98. Volney F. Green, who distinguished himself a week ago by winning second honor, was not at his best and failed to do better than 136 for the eighteen holes.

The afternoon's play made several changes in the order of the competitiors for the McCutchen Cup. Colley still leads with eight points. Anderson, who was fifth, and Dryden, who was third, have both stepped up to second place and are tried for it with seven and a half points. C. E. Faber is now fourth and G. W. Faber fifth. Thiers scored for the first time since the competition was begun.

The scores handed in during the afternoon in the cup competition were as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
W. de la R. Anderson	95	0	95
W. J. R. Thiers	108	12	96
Meredith Dryden	115	17	98
Gifford W. Cooley	109	9	100
Charles E. Faber	133	24	109
Volney F. Green	136	18	118

The official standing of the candidates for the cup follows:

Gifford W. Cooley	8
Charles E. Faber	7
Meredith Dryden	7½
W. de la R. Anderson	7½
G. W. Faber	6
Samuel Townsend	4½
E. T. Douglass	3½
H. D. Hibbard	3
Geo. T. Rogers	3
Arthur Peck	3
Fred P. Taylor	2½
S. S. Squires	2½
Wm. A. Townsend	2½
A. B. Laing	2
Volney F. Green	2
W. J. R. Thiers	2
Fred S. Overton	1½
Clarence S. Boome	1½
Augustus VanDeventer	1
C. W. McCutchen	1

Miss Daisy Elsberg competed for the Buttfield Cup and handed in her score for the nine holes. Her gross score was 80, and after deducting her handicap of 18, gave her a net score of 62. Miss Elsberg has been a regular competitor for the cup almost every week. Miss Saidee Mae Howell has also taken part in the contest occasionally. There is little doubt, however, but that Miss Elsberg will win the cup.

BAPTIZED IN THE BROOK.

ANDREW COX AND WIFE WERE THE CANDIDATES IMMERSED.

Pastor Foster of the Second Church of Christ Performed the Ceremony Yesterday Afternoon From the Borough Side.

Baptism by immersion was administered by Rev. James Foster, pastor of the Second Church of Christ, yesterday afternoon. The place selected for the ceremony was east of the Elm place bridge in Green brook. The pastor was assisted by David Blow, a colored lay preacher. The candidates for the holy rites of the church were Andrew and Mrs. Lizzie Cox, husband and wife, of 431 Watchung avenue.

Long before the services began men, women and children began to gather along the banks of the sluggish stream, whose waters are roilly and in some places covered with a green slime, suggestive of anything but purity. It was nearly 3 o'clock before a suitable place had been selected by Pastor Foster.

The exercises began by the members of the church uniting in singing, followed by a short prayer by the pastor. Rev. David Blow then made a short address, at the close of which a collection was taken up. The baptismal rite was then performed. Rev. Mr. Foster, provided with a long pole, which he used to feel his way, entered the brook from the borough side. After satisfying himself that a safe place had been found, he signaled to Mr. Blow that he was ready to perform the solemn rites of his church.

While the congregation sang "Shall We Gather at the River," Pastor Foster read the charge to the candidates for baptism.

The first to receive the rite was Mrs. Cox, who appeared attired in a light colored wrapper. She was assisted to the water's edge by Mr. Blow and her husband. As Mrs. Cox entered the water Pastor Foster clasped her hand and drew her toward him. Walking a short distance into the middle of the stream the minister faced the audience on the embankment, and in a clear voice said: "Lizzie, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, I baptize thee. Amen." The candidate was then immersed in the stream. Mrs. Cox's husband was then given the same sanctification.

The ceremony was very impressive. During the services the small crowd that had gathered to witness the baptism stood silent and reverent spectators to a scene which some years ago was quite common, but which long since became obsolete.

Two weeks from yesterday, weather permitting, Rev. Mr. Foster will again administer the rite of baptism in Green brook at the same place.

Plainfield Business College.

This school enters upon its 5th year Sept. 1st. It has tried to do such honest and thorough work as to deserve the continued and liberal patronage of this community. It has pleasant rooms and all conveniences, in the City Bank building, corner of Front street and Park avenue. Competent teachers have been secured for all departments. Our system of bookkeeping—Sadler's—is the best. The author of our shorthand system is the fastest writer in the whole world. Our present rates are so low that nobody should plead poverty as an excuse. We offer any or all of our courses, 43 weeks, for $50, or for easy monthly payments. Decide at once. Call at the office, or write for further particulars to Prof. A. A. Phelps, A. M., president.

A CONCRETE PLATFORM.

Splendid Improvement to be Made at North Avenue Station.

The Central Railroad Company is about to make an improvement that will be appreciated by every patron of the road. At the North Avenue station the wooden platform now doing service in front of the station will be removed and in its place will be put down a solid concrete platform extending from the stone pavement to the tracks. The cement and sand have arrived and the work will be started within a very short time. The company find s it to their advantage to replace wood with concrete whenever they can, and the improvement in this city will be welcomed by all.

Sold at Sheriff's Sale.

The Thompson property on North avenue, where the Bard Company store was formerly located, was sold at sheriff's sale last Wednesday under mortgages held by the First National Bank, of this city. The property was bid in by Wm. M. Stillman for the bank.

Appointed Appraisers.

Mulford Estil, J. W. Gavett and Frank Jones have been appointed appraisers of the personal property of the late Lemuel Wright Serrell.

GRIM REAPER BUSY IN THE KLONDIKE.

Hundreds Lose Their Lives Hunting For Gold.

A RARITAN MAN RETURNS.

HE WENT TO THE KLONDIKE WITH TWO PLAINFIELDERS.

Underwent Many Trilling Adventures in Getting to the Land of the Gold, and After Staking Out a Claim He Came Back to His Old Home—Those in the Klondike Used to Death Now.

John F. MacGregor, formerly superintendent of the Raritan woolen mills, has returned to his home in Raritan, after spending over a year in the Klondyke region, where he went in April, 1898, in company with Messrs. Gaston and Underhill, of Plainfield. To a reporter Mr. MacGregor related an interesting experience in the land of gold.

Mr. MacGregor entered the Klondyke by way of Chilkoot Pass, and had some thrilling adventures at this part of his journey. He saw the dead bodies of many unfortunates on the pass who had fallen by the way during the previous winter. After a severe illness at Lake Bennett, Mr. MacGregor continued to Dawson City. Near there he staked out two claims, and dug or rather "burned" for gold. He met with considerable success and left his claims in good hands.

After a year's experience Mr. MacGregor left Dawson City as the ice broke in the Yukon river last spring and started on a perilous journey of 1,900 miles down the river in an open boat to St. Michael's.

In passing through the rapids and canyons Mr. McGregor saw several men perched on the rocks crying or praying for deliverance. He was powerless to help them, as his own boat was dashing along at a terrificrate, and it required a sharp eye and a steady nerve to keep it from striking on the tracks.

After spending thirty-two days in his open boat, which had drifted with the current at the rate of seven miles an hour, Mr. MacGregor arrived at St. Michael's, where, after a brief rest, he boarded a steamer for San Francisco. When he arrived in the latter city his gray hair reached far below shoulders, and his beard covered his breast. Here he once more donned the garb of civilization and started east.

Mr. MacGregor states that the death rate in the Klondyke is enormous. Many deaths result from scurvy, caused by the absence of vegetable food. There are a great many suicides. The disappointment of many miners, after digging thirty feet to the bed rock and finding no gold, is so great that a bullet through the brain often ends the search for gold. Death is so frequent and common, Mr. MacGregor says, that the inhabitants are hardened and indifferent to it, and they scarcely take time to bury the dead. The postoffice at Dawson City contains bushels of letters from inquiring ones at home, who seek information of friends who may have been lost on the trail, drowned in the rapids, or buried in the mountain gulches.

TEN DAYS IN BOROUGH LOCKUP.

Punishment Meted Out to Five Men Who Were Drunk and Disorderly.

There was a little excitement in the borough yesterday afternoon when five persons, drunk and disorderly, were arrested and landed in the jail. One was Patrick Coleen, who was arrested on Brook avenue by Marshal Campbell. The others were Italians, two of whom held the names of Michael and two were Johns. Their last names are beyond pronunciation. They were arrested by Marshal Kleiner on Somerset street. They were celebrating, and the officials thought it was time to call a halt. This morning they were arraigned before Mayor Smalley, who is acting Recorder. Patrick Coleen was given his choice of $5 or five days, while the Italians were given preference of $10 or ten days. All decided that they would prefer to go to Somerville, but the Mayor thought differently, and he consigned them to the borough lockup.

A New Feed Store.

A. Kane, the contractor, is about to open a new store at 409 East Third street, where he will conduct a feed business, and he expects to keep everything in that line in large quantities. He will remove his present office from 103 East Fourth street, to the above address, and he asks for a continuance of the patronage of the public.

—There will be a regular meeting of the Board of Trade in their rooms in the Babcock building this evening.

EXCURSIONISTS BELATED

HOPE CHAPEL PEOPLE DID NOT GET HOME UNTIL MORNING.

Stalled by a Wreck Near Elizabethport—Overseer of the Poor Hansen Bought Milk for the Little Babies.

The attendance at the Hope chapel services yesterday morning and afternoon was smaller than usual, which can be accounted for by the fact that Saturday the members went to Asbury Park for the day and did not reach home until nearly 1 o'clock yefterday morning. The excursionists occupied twelve cars and left Asbury Park at 8 o'clock to come home. Everything was all right until Elizabethport was reached.

Just previous to their arrival there was a wreck of two freight trains by a rear end collision. Two oil tank cars and a freight car on the eastbound track were overturned and they completely blockaded all traffic for nearly three hours.

The Plainfielders were stalled and great anxiety was felt concerning the babies and young children on the train. Overseer of the Poor Hansen, of this city, was on board, and he thoughtfully secured a large quantity of milk for the babies. Everyone on board realized the situation and made the best of things. The older people gave up their seats for the little ones who were given a chance to sleep.

PRESS CENSOR? NEVER!

THE LITTLE JUSTICE'S EFFORTS TO SUPPRESS A CASE.

Refused to Exhibit the Court Records Until Threatened With Legal Proceedings—An Arrest Was to be Kept Quiet.

George Huff, who has been a collector for the Metropolitan Savings and Loan Association of Newark, has been held by Justice Mosher to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of embezzlement. The complaint was made by Fred. W. Snover, superintendent of agents, who charges that Huff between Sept. 1st, 1897, and April 1st, 1898, had embezzled $64 from the above company.

The accused lives in Dunellen. The complaint was made Wednesday, August 9th and the warrant for Huff's arrest was issued by Justice Mosher the following day. The arrest, however, was not made until Tuesday, August 15th, when Huff was arranged at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The reason the arrest of Huff was not made public before is because Justice Mosher had attempted to suppress the facts. He told a reporter of the Press that he had "promised not to made the case public and he didn't propose to give it out." By accident a reporter learned that Huff had been arrested. When a Press reporter asked Justice Mosher regarding it the latter declined to make a statement. The reporter than requested the justice to show him the depo-ition and complaint. This also was refused.

The reporter sought legal advice and was told that the court records were open to public inspection and that the reporter could compel the magistrate to allow an inspection of his books. The demand was made, but the little justice flatly refused to hand out the books or to show the papers in the case.

Justice Mosher did not relent until he learned that steps were being taken by the publishers of The Daily Press and News to institute legal proceedings to compel the justice to exhibit records of his court.

It has not developed why Justice Mosher wished to suppress the facts in the above arrest. The position he assumed is certainly strange, and contrary to precedent. The records of the court are open to the public. Any attempt on the part of a magistrate to keep from the public the business of the court subjects that official to open criticism. Justice Mosher's efforts to act as a censor of the press will miscarry.

A Newsboys' Union.

Some time during this week the newsboys of the city will form a union for themselves and will make an effort to secure papers on time and pay monthly or weekly. Dues will be charged and every boy will have protection against other boys who only sell papers when some exciting features are published, such as yacht races, etc. It is expected that about twenty-five boys will join the union. At the meeting to be held this week officers will be elected and by-laws will be adopted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 21—F. W. Hargraves, who has conducted a planning mill at this place for sometime, made a general assignment today for the benefit of his creditors to C. H. Angleman, of Westfield. The liabilites are placed at $900 with liabilites $28,000. The mill is closed.

BRILLIANT PAGEANT ON CRANFORD RIVER.

Annual Carnival of the Cranford Boating Association.

WAS HELD SATURDAY NIGHT

THREE THOUSAND VISITORS CAME FROM ALL PARTS OF COUNTY.

Carnival Was a Great Success—Great Crowds Came By Train, Awheel And Every Sort of Vehicle—Sixty-three Crafts In Line—Handsome Decorations On Lawn and River—Prize Winners In The Parade.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Cranford, August 21—Cranford was the Mecca Saturday evening for more than three thousand people who journeyed to this place by train, awheel and in every imaginable kind of vehicle to witness the annual river carnival of the Cranford Boating Association. These pilgrims thronged the banks of the Cranford river for nearly a mile and joined with the good folk of Cranford in watching the brilliant water pageant and admiring the handsome decoration of the river crafts and bodering lawns.

The carnival is an annual affair, and the one of Saturday evening was the thirteenth of its kind. There was nothing unlucky about it, however. It was declared a great success by all who saw it. The decoration and illumination of the town was by far the most elaborate of any year. The streets leading to the river and the river bank were strung with thousands of Chinese lanterns. On the lawns along the river, lanterns and other means of decoration were built into artistic structures. Colored fire and fi e o ks were used at intervals.

The trains from both directions came into Cranford literally running over with expectant sightseers. The threatening clouds undoubtedly influenced many to come in that manner. There was no lack of cyclists and carriage parties, however. They were so numerous that it was very difficult to navigate the streets of the town.

The scene on the river was a beautiful one, with its border of lights and the fleet of small craft, all decorated with many colored lights, moving up and down the river. The procession was a little slow in starting. It was preceded by a band concert by Bartow's Band, which occupied a stand close to the river at a central point. Near by was the judges' stand at the boat house of Santiago Porcella. The judges were J. Austin Dennis, chairman of the Westfield Township Committee; E. C. Webb, of Brooklyn, and Sergeant C. Lawrence Barry, of the U. S. Marines, whose home is in Cranford.

The procession started at 9 o'clock and was led by Commodore George Harvey Miller and Vice-Commodore D. P. Smock. The band followed on a large float. Then came 63 canoes, rowboats and floats, all variously decorated.

The prize for the best decorated canoe, a silver loving cup, was awarded to Howard Cox, whose canoe represented a huge crown, all hung with lanterns. Honorable mention was given to W. W. Buckley, whose canoe was surmounted by a bower of white. Wright Newcomb had two canoes in line which were both decorated with electric lights. One was propelled by himself. The other, which represented three white pond lilies, was in charge of Miss Edith Newcomb. Many thought these were the best and most artistic of the canoes

J. P. M. Joseph received the first prize for the best decorated row boat, a silk club pennant. He had a charming little tea party in his boat. A clever idea was a canoe, propelled by two young Indians, entered by E. A. Hopkins. H. C. Hopkins had a very unstable float in line, the only one to compete. Consequently he received first prize.

All five bridges in Cranford were gaily bedecked for the occasion. The most elaborate was that of the Springfield avenue bridge which represented a huge diamond of colored lanterns. The decorations were in charge of D. P. Smock and B. D. Chandler. James M. Moore had a great firey "Dewey" on his lawn.

Commodore Miller had a general supervision over the whole affair and to his energetic efforts are due most of the success of the carnival. He was given splendid support by his club members and townsfolk who all aided in the success of the affair.

TO DEAL CRUSHING BLOW

New Philippines Campaign is Virtually Commenced By Secretary Root.

TWO MORE TRANSPORTS.

Three New Regiments Ordered to San Francisco Soon as Transportation Can Be Secured.

Several Regular Army Men Named As Majors—War Department Map Out Plan to Put a Speedy End to Hostilities—Recruiting in South is Satisfactory.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Orders have been given which virtually inaugurate what is believed to be the final campaign in the Philippines. From now on the preparations will be pushed along the lines indicated by the latest order, which shows that the winter campaign against Aguinaldo has been mapped out at headquarters, and all that remains is the carrying out of instructions.

The colonels of three of the first new regiments of volunteers—the Twenty-seventh, Thirty-first and Thirty-fourth—have received the following:

"Orders of to-day will direct that your regiment be placed en route for San Francisco as soon as transportation can be provided by the Quartermaster General. On arrival at San Francisco your regiment will go into camp at the Presidio and its instruction in target practice continued until transports are ready to take your command to Manila. Acknowledge receipt, with any remarks you may have to make for the information of the War Department."

The Twenty-seventh regiment is at Camp Meade, the Thirty-first at Fort Thomas, Ky., the Thirty-fourth at Fort Logan, Col.

The Quartermaster's Department has directed that the Glenogle and Tacoma of the Northern Pacific Steamship line be chartered for carrying the troops. The Glenogle will carry 800 and the Tacoma 650 men.

Orders were issued placing all majors, captains and lieutenants appointed for the new regiments on recruiting duty. They will assist the nearest recruiting officer for about one week, and will then conduct their recruits to the rendezvous.

Speaking of the orders issued to the three regiments to proceed to San Francisco, General Corbin said that not only would the other regiments follow soon, but the ten recently ordered would be sent to Manila as soon as they could be organized.

Despite reports to the contrary, the department is satisfied with the results of the recruiting in the South for the first ten regiments. Both the regiment at Fort McPherson, Ga., and at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., were filled with Southerners. It is true there were more rejections at the Southern recruiting stations than in the North. This was due to the fact that the physical standard fixed for the army is too high for many of the Southern boys. Their principal defect was in chest measurement and weight.

Although the department has not provided for the organization of any of the new regiments in a Southern State, many Southern enlistments are expected. One of the regiments will be formed at Jefferson Barracks. This post is convenient to several Southern States, and, no doubt, many Southern boys will enlist there.

The department in fixing the rendezvous for the new regiments was desirous of having them on a direct route to the points from which the troops are to be embarked for the Philippines. It is the intention to move the regiments to the front as fast as formed.

The situation is satisfactory in the Philippines to those acquainted with the manoeuvres about to be executed. The American line now extends from Imus, fifteen miles south of Manila, to Antipalo and Morcug, on Laguna Bay; from Pasig north to Malolos; from Bocalor to Angeles, sixty miles north of Manila. Included in territory thus indicated are the provinces of Cavite, Morong, Manila, Bulacan and Pampanga. This is practically all the Tagal territory in the Philippines.

With the inhabited territory completely under American protection, local governments can be established and the natives encouraged to conduct their own internal affairs under the protection of troops. Thus it will be shown that there is no purpose of holding the Filipinos under subjection more than the maintenance of orders requires, and the benign purposes of the Government will have free scope in execution. Gradually, it is believed, the Filipinos must tire of the wilderness and come in to surrender. A decisive engagement is believed to be impossible, but, wherever the enemy is caught, he will be attacked. Whatever territory is captured, there will be a garrison established for occupation until peace is declared.

Filipinos Kill Lieut. Drew.

Manila, Aug. 21.—One lieutenant of the Twelfth infantry was killed and another was wounded seriously while reconnoitering north of Angeles.

The Americans encountered a large force of natives and drove them from their positions.

Lieutenant Cole of the Sixth infantry, with eighty men, encountered 100 Filipinos intrenched in the mountains of the Island of Negros and routed them after an hour and a half of severe fighting.

The Americans had three men slightly wounded. Nineteen dead natives were counted in the trenches.

Six rifles and a quantity of reserve ammunition were captured.

The natives recently cut the cable in Laguna de Bay leading to Calamba, on the south shore of the lake, but the break has been repaired.

General Otis is to Stay.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Secretary Root makes official denial that Gen Miles is to relieve Gen. Otis of his command in the Philippines.

FIRES ARE UNDER CONTROL

The Trouble From This Source in Adirondacks is Over.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Dispatches received from Commissioner Charles H. Babcock of the State Fisheries, Game, and Forest Commission, and Col. William F. Fox, Superintendent of State Forests, who went into the Adirondacks in the Saranac region to investigate the forest fires reported to be raging in that region, state that the fires are under control, and that the reports that Hotel Ampersand and other hotels are in danger of destruction are not true.

Chicago Platform Democrats.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 21.—According to the programme announced by Chairman Calvin E. Keach, of the Chicago Platform Democrats, the speakers who will address the conference called for Tuesday, Aug. 22, by Mr. Keach, will include the following: Hon. James P. Tarvin, Kentucky, "A Free Lance in Politics"; the Hon J. J. Lentz, Ohio, "Suppressed War Reports"; Col. William Hepburn Russell, New York city, "The Democratic Outlook and Party Harmony"; John Clark Redpath, New York city, "Jeffersonian Democracy"; John S. Crosby, New York city, "Single Tax and Direct Legislation"; Hugh P. McGuire, New York city, "The Danger of Trusts"; A. M. Pippin, U. S. S. Indiana, "The Spanish and Philippine Wars."

Big Whisky Plant Seized.

Statesville, N. C., Aug. 21.—Revenue Offier Britt detained the entire wholesale whisky and rectifying establishment of the Key Manufacturing and Distilling Company of this place last week for alleged violation of the internal revenue laws. Acting under orders from Collector Harkins, who received instructions from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Deputy Collector J. M. Davis has seized the entire establishment. About 8,000 gallons of spirits were seized. This establishment was the largest whisky house in North Carolina, and it shipped great quantities of spirits to all parts of the country.

Beardslee Must Be Tried for Murder

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Elmer Beardslee of Unadilla, who is now in the Matteawan State Hospital, will be tried for murder in the first degree. On Aug. 9, 1894, Beardslee shot and killed G. Homer Pomeroy in his dooryard because Pomeroy, who was path master, had notified Beardslee to cut the brush in front of his premises. After a stay in prison Beardslee was declared insane and sent to Matteawan. The commission now decides that he is perfectly sane and the District Attorney has begun preparations to place him on trial for his life.

Jersey Republicans in Conference.

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 21.—Leading Jersey Republicans met here and held a conference over matters relating to the coming fall campaign. Among those who were present were: Comptroller William S. Hancock, Congressman Henry C. Loudenslager, United States Senator William J. Sewell, President of the Senate Charles A. Reed, Senator Johnson of Camden, Senator Miller of Salem, Senator Hand of Cape May, Sheriff David Baird of Camden, and ex-Congressman George Hires of Salem.

Jiminez is Ordered Released.

Havana, Aug. 21.—It is asserted that the arrest of Gen. Juan Isidro Jiminez, the aspirant to the Presidency of Santo Domingo, who was captured on board a steamer at Cienfuegos just as the steamer was about leaving that port, was not caused by orders from Havana. Immediately upon learning of the arrest Major-Gen. Brooke, Gov.-General of Cuba, gave orders for the release of the prisoner. As soon as released Jiminez started on board the Polaria for Manzanillo and Santiago.

Typhoid Fever in an Almshouse.

Belvidere, N. J., Aug. 21.—Typhoid fever broke out in the Warren County Almshouse two or three days ago and now threatens to spread beyond the powers of the doctors to care for it. The steward of the institution, Y. A. Leida, is ill and two of the nurses have been stricken. The greatest care has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease among the inmates.

Dewey to Sail Friday.

Leghorn, Aug. 21.—Admiral Dewey, it is reported, will sail from here next Friday. He has not accepted invitations from the Leghorn authorities on account of illness. He gave a luncheon to the English Consul on board the Olympia and afterward accompanied a party of Americans and Englishmen on a drive.

Transport Sails for Manila.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 21.—The transport Garonne has sailed from here carrying horses to Manila. She will be followed by the Athenian and the Victoria. The St. Paul arrived from San Francisco with 200 recruits, who were sent to Camp Robinson to join the regiment.

CRISIS BECOMES ACUTE.

British Supremacy in South Africa Really the Principal Point at Issue at Present

Premier Schreiner, of Cape Colony, Accused of Aiding the Boers—Serious Signs That Bloodshed Will be Precipitated in South Africa Before Trouble Ends.

London, Aug. 21.—There are serious signs that bloodshed will be precipitated in South Africa by means of a stroke similar to the Jameson raid and in the same interests as that venture. Cecil Rhodes is probably personally inactive, but his henchmen are active in anti-Boer menaces. The lapse of a week without any further friction between President Kruger and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain is regarded as presaging a pacific settlement of the franchise dispute, but concurrent with despatches suggesting that this is probable come cables such as the following, published in Cecil Rhode's weekly organ in London: "The Cape Town Colonists are thinking less of the Uitlander's cause than the general question of British influence in South Africa." The article proceeds to argue that war is imperative to prove that supremacy. It is evident, however, that a majority of the Cape Colonists are with Premier Schreiner and against Cecil Rhodes.

There is considerable astonishment that Portugal, at Great Britain's instance, refused to forward the Boer's munitions of war. Two versions of the affair are current. One is that the officials at Lorenzo Marquez are merely waiting for fuller information and that when they learn the Government's desire the consignment will be forwarded immediately. The other version is that the Lisbon Government, at the instance of England, has ordered the Lorenzo Marquez officials to hold the supplies until further orders, England maintining that they will endanger the peace of South Africa, and are unnecessary as England has not threatened the independence of the Transvaal. It is certain that Mr. Chamberlain will not allow President Kruger to turn the Transvaal into an arsenal and will rather himself take the aggressive.

Gen. Sir Frederick Forestier-Walker, the new commander of the British troops in South Africa, has sailed for Cape Town.

Created a Sensation.

Cape Town, Aug. 21.—A sensation has been caused here by a statement in the "Times," a local newspaper, that Premier Schreiner, since the crisis assumed an acute phase, has allowed 2,000,000 rounds of cartridges to be removed from Port Elizabeth to Bloemfontein for the purposes of the Transvaal. Mr. Schreiner, in an interview an hour prior to the writing of this despatch explained that the incident was five weeks old, the cartridges, he said, were the absolute property of the Orange Free State, the relations of which with England were perfectly friendly. He said that he saw no objection to their removal.

The Reply Was Withheld.

Pretoria, Aug. 21.—The Pretoria Government is incensed at the detention of the munitions of war in transit to the Transvaal by the Portuguese authorities at Delagoa Bay. President Kruger and Vice-President Joubert are openly opposed to the Volksraad's report on the dynamite concession. It is said that the Government was on the point of returning a favorable reply to England's invitation to a joint inquiry into the Uitlanders' grievances when the news of the Delagoa Bay episode arrived and the reply was in consequence withheld.

An Anglo-Italian Agreement.

Rome, Aug. 21.—It is officially announced that an Anglo-Italian agreement has been entered into whereby British subects in the South African Republic are placed under the protection and jurisdiction of the Italian consuls in the event of hostilities in the Transvaal.

Yaquis Lose Another Battle.

Chihuhua, Mex., Aug. 21.—The military authorities here have been notified of a battle that took place between a force of about 300 Yaqui Indians and three troops of Mexican cavalry about thirty miles north of Torin. The Yaquis were defeated and their forces scattered into small bands. Three Yaquis and one Mexican soldier were killed.

New Electric Plant for Sing Sing.

Sing Sing, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Warden Johnson of Sing Sing Prison is making a number of big improvements, one of the most important being the putting in of a complete electric plant to run all the industries of the prison and do away with steam as a motive power.

Iroquois Safe at Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 21.—The Clyde liner Iroquois has arrived here, fifty-three hours overdue from New York. She came in safe and sound with all passengers well. She held up in the face of the storm without going far to sea.

To Visit Portsmouth Next Year.

Portsmouth, England, Aug. 21.—The American consular authorities here have officially assured the Mayor of Portsmouth that a squadron of American warships will visit this port next year.

Another English Stake For Croker.

London, Aug. 21.—The Robin Hood Plate was won by Richard Croker's Salina, with L. Reiff as jockey. Martin was second, on Lord William Beresford's Blast.

SULLIVAN MAY BE ALIVE.

Rochester People Not Willing to Believe the Lawyer is Dead.

Rochester, N. Y, Aug. 21.—Several dispatches have been received in this city making inquiries regarding Josiah Sullivan, the Rochester lawyer who is supposed to have committed suicide by jumping into Long Island Sound from the steamer Puritan on July 25 last.

The authorities are not inclined to believe that the dismembered remains that were fished out of the water near Greenport, L. I., are those of Sullivan. They think it strange that no information has been given them from this city, and no inquiries made regarding the remains. About the only things on which an identification could be based, were the shoes. These were size 8, width D.

J. S. Hunn, who is attorney for Mrs. Sullivan has been asked why it is that Mrs. Sullivan has not made some effort to find out about her husband's death. He said:

"I do not believe that Mr. Sullivan ever wore a No. 8 shoe. He was tall and very fond of walking and had a large, well-formed foot. He wore a 9½ shoe. Mrs. Sullivan is at present with her mother, near New Haven, Conn., taking care of her, as she is in very poor health."

Since the report of Sullivan's death a dozen or more actions have been brought in the Rochester courts showing that his property was very much involved. Mrs. Sullivan's lawyer says that Sullivan was insolvent, and declares that to be the reason why she has not tried to look up his estate. This attitude is what leads many Rochester people to believe that Sullivan is alive and well.

One Boy Shoots Another.

Bridgeton, N. J., Aug. 21.—Robert Hand, aged fourteen, a son of Capt. Ellis Hand, a wealthy oyster planter of Port Norris, lies at his home dangerously wounded, with a bullet in his side. William Burke, aged seventeen, of Dorchester, has been committed to the county jail without bail to await the result of young Hand's injuries. Burke has been in the habit of riding his wheel over to Port Norris and the boys there have guyed and tormented him. On his last trip he took a revolver along and when the boys assailed him he pulled it out and used it. The ball struck young Hand in the right side, near the sixth rib, and it is feared the wound will prove mortal.

Runaways Located in England.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 21.—Chief of Police Kline has received a cablegram from London, which says that Mrs. Alice A. Jones and George Stevenson have been arrested. The pair eloped from Parsons, near here, about ten days ago, after forging several papers, by which they raised over $1,000. The woman is the wife of John A. Jones, a well-to-do miner of Parsons, and Stevenson was a boarder at the house, a good looking man of about thirty-five. Mrs. Jones is ten years older. Proofs of their guilt will be sent to England at once, and extradition papers will be asked for.

Merritt Sees the President.

Hotel Champlain, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Major General and Mrs. Wesley Merritt have arrived from Governor's Island. The General will go over the situation in the Philippines with the President. Governor Roosevelt arrived here yesterday afternoon in a special car attached to the newspaper train. He will remain at Hotel Champlain until this evening, when he will go to the Catholic Summer School grounds, at Cliff Haven, where a reception will be tendered him in the Auditorium.

Fusionists in a Turmoil.

Lexington, Neb., Aug. 21.—After an all-night session the Democratic and Populist Conventions called to name a candidate for the unexpired term of Congressman W. L. Greene, who died, adjourned in a wrangle in which fists were shaken and "Traitor" hurled back and forth. The Populist Convention nominated W. Neville of North Platte, and the Democrats M. C. Harrington of the same city. The latter withdrew. This is regarded as the beginning of the end of fusion in Nebraska.

Congressman Reed Will Resign.

Alfred, Me., Aug. 21.—Amos L. Allen of Alfred, private secretary to Thomas B. Reed, has given out the information that Mr. Reed's resignation will be in the hands of Gov. Powers before the session of the Governor and Council on Tuesday, and that it is to take effect Sept. 4. Mr. Reed expects to begin his law practice in New York early in September.

Special Train For Soldiers.

Omaha, Aug. 21.—Gov. Poynter has announced the failure to raise by popular subscription the $37,000 required to furnish a special train to bring from San Francisco the First Nebraska Regiment. He said $20,000 was lacking. D. E. Thompson of Lincoln advanced that amount and the special train has been hired.

Coxey is a Magnate, Now.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 21.—Coxey, who led a tramp army to Washington in 1895, is now the head of a mining company, which has just made a strike of lead ore that will make Coxey a magnate. He organized a company at Massillon, O., and began operations on the Shoal Creek Mining Company's lease last spring.

Star Pointer Does Two Fast Miles.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 21.—Star Pointer reeled off two fast miles in his practice at Charter Oak Park, one being in 2:03¾ and the other in 2:05, accompanied by a runner. The big racer will endeavor to lower his mark at Charter Oak Park a week from next Thursday.

Sandbagged the Mail Carrier.

Hymera, Ind., Aug. 21.—S. H. Barton, who moved to Springfield, Ill., to take a contract to haul the mails, has been sandbagged, the injury depriving him of his reason. He has been brough back to his old home in this village. It is said that he was opposed because he was a non-resident.

A St. Louis paper hanger and contractor, in enumerating some of his past troubles, said: "My wife and I swear by Ripans Tabules. Many a morning I have gone to work on a job and had to quit. I can't begin to tell you all the suffering I have gone through. I lost my appetite and nearly starved myself in trying to work up a relish for food; but indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and headache constantly attended me. I took bitters, tonics, pills, but they didn't cure me. My wife had also some trouble with her stomach and it was a friend of hers who first told her to try

ARRESTS WERE A BLUNDER.

Authorities Apologize for Outrage on Military Clerk at Havana.

Havana, Aug. 21.—Mr. Harris, a clerk in the headquarters of the Governor General, was arrested by the civil authorities on charge of being connected with attempted forgeries, involving the signature of General Adna R. Chaffee, General Brooke's chief of staff, to the amount of $4,000. His wife was also accused. Both were kept twelve hours in incomunicado, despite the preemptory orders of the military administration that this practice should be discontinued. They were then released with an apology and the assurance that there was no case against them.

The military authorities consider that the civil authorities exceeded their right in the matter, which was purely one for the consideration of the military authorities. In any event, Mr. and Mrs. Harris should have been taken before General Chaffee. Much sympathy is expressed for the victims of a serious blunder.

Boys May Have Been Kidnapped.

Toledo, O., Aug. 21.—Willie Missig of Sandusky, Ohio, aged 11, and Joseph Wirth, aged 10, were playmates and school companions. On July 13 they were seen together near the West House. Several persons remember having seen them, and that is the last trace which a diligent police force and hundreds of friends can find of them. There is no reason for thinking that the boys were drowned, and their parents believe they were kidnapped by gypsies who were about Sandusky at that time. Friends have raised a purse of several hundred dollars to prosecute a search for them.

Ten Thousand in Strike Parade.

New York, Aug. 21.—Organized labor, ten thousand strong, with banners fluttering and bands playing, marched up Broadway, shouting defiance to the Sun. The demonstration had been planned by Typographical Union No. 6, and it was witnessed by thousands. All classes of trades were represented, from the striking printers on the Sun, who headed the line, to the tattered but happy newsboys, who brought up the rear. Cooper Union, where many speeches were delivered, was crowded and the meeting was an enthusiastic one from the time it opened until the close.

A Crowd Watches the Shamrock.

New York, Aug. 21.—All day Sunday the Shamrock was surrounded by a crowd of yachtsmen curious to see the lines of the cup challenger. The work of stripping her of the cruising rig which she used in her trip across the Atlantic was begun Saturday. The topmast was taken down, the short boom removed and the braces below the deck taken out. With these went the bunks in which the crew slept. Mr. Barrie, Sir Thomas Lipton's representative, denies that he has asked for a police patrol boat to guard the yacht.

The Havana Safe in Port.

New York, Aug. 21.—The Ward line steamship Havana, over which considerable anxiety had been felt on account of her being three days overdue from Havana, has arrived safely in port here. Her officers and passengers tell some thrilling stories of how the ship battled with the hurricane and finally rode out the heavy seas without injury to any one. The big steamship was driven far out of her course by the gale which became so fierce that everything movable was washed overboard.

Serious Rioting in Paris.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Armed and rioting mobs of Anarchists caused a reign of terror here yesterday and last evening. They burned and pillaged Church property, fought the police with desperation, using knives and hatchets for weapons. Many were injured, several fatally, before the police could get the mob under control. Fierce anarchistic speeches delivered in the street was the cause of the disturbance.

Prof. Perry Leaves Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 21.—Prof. Bliss Perry, A. M., a graduate of Williams College, who has occupied the chair of oratory and aesthic criticism at Princeton University for the past seven years, has sent in his resignation, to take effect Nov. 1. Prof. Perry will become the editor of the Atlantic Monthly, to succeed W. N. Page.

Fatal Attempt to Drive Balky Horse

Flemington, N. J., Aug. 21.—Peter Stiger, 80 years old, was injured fatally while trying to drive a balky horse. The animal gave a sudden lunge, and threw Stiger under the wagon, which passed over him. Three of his ribs were pulled loose from the backbone and one penetrated his lung.

Ingersoll Administrator Wanted.

White Plains, Aug. 21.—Application has been made to the Surrogate of Westchester County for blanks for the appointment of an administrator of the estate of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, the noted agnostic, who died recently in Dobbs Ferry, leaving no will.

Russell Harrison Has Yellow Fever.

Santiago, Aug. 21.—Major Russell B. Harrison, adjutant general, is critically ill with the yellow fever. The disease has been progressing for three days, although not pronounced yellow fever until last evening.

Uses for Stale Bread.

All bakers, retail and wholesale, seek to produce at their several bakings through the day only so much as may be required to supply the wants of their trade, but in making sure to provide enough there is likely to be some demand for stale bread for household uses—for making toast and for cooking purposes,—but the demand is limited. Such stale bread as may remain unsold in this manner is never wasted; it is sold to farmers and market gardeners who drive into the city with produce to sell, and who buy more or less supplies here to carry back to feed stock. When finally disposed of thus it is sold by the barrel, at so much a barrel; the price being very low, but depending somewhat on the surplus stock on hand on the day of sale.

THE RESULT IS IN DOUBT.

Plotters May be Able to Again Thwart Justice in Dreyfus Court Martial.

DANGER OF CIVIL WAR.

This is What is Urged as an Excuse For Sacrificing the Liberty of an Individual.

Compromise Verdict May Release Dreyfus But Not Restore His Rank—Nothing Worthy of the Name of Evidence Produced Against Accused—More Witnesses to be Heard.

Rennes, Aug. 21.—Most of the correspondents of foreign newspapers came to Rennes with the impression that after a full hearing of the evidence the acquittal of Dreyfus of the charge of treason would be the inevitable verdict. The trial has now proceeded a fortnight, and absolutely nothing worthy of the name of evidence has been adduced against the accused, yet scarcely any one is now confident of the result. This change does not imply, as it would at first appear, that the prisoner's judges are dishonest or corrupt. It means that the case is in the hands of a jury who are unconsciously prejudiced, or, to put it fairly, who are incapable of forming an impartial opinion. It means that they are the victims of undue pressure and illegitimate influences which require moral heroism beyond that of ordinary men to successfully resist. Dreyfus's judges are genuinely entitled to the sympathy and commiseration of the whole world.

Foreigners at Rennes realize now for the first time, perhaps, the intensity of the passions which are blinding reason and destroying the sense of fair play in France. It is this realization which makes these alien observers no longer confident of the vindication of the innocent man before the Rennes court martial. It is now clear what policy the enemies of Dreyfus have relied on chiefly for thwarting justice once more. It is reasons of State, based not on pretended danger of a foreign war, as in 1894, but upon the civil war which the acquital of the prisoner would precipitate, according to the anti-Dreyfus declarations. In other words, they plotted to demonstrate by uprisings at Rennes and elsewhere that it is the patriotic duty of the court martial to save the country by again sacrificing the individual before them. The Paris Government became cognizant of the plot, and it remains to be seen if they will further succeed in forestalling it.

In regard to the prospects of the verdict, many believe that it will be an unsatisfactory compromise, namely, 4 to 3 against the prisoner, which would result in his discharge, but not in his restoration to rank. No one expects a decision before the end of the month, and it may be deferred ten days later.

There remain eighty-three witnesses on the list, and this number will undoubtedly be augmented, inasmuch as any witness can be recalled for confrontation, which is a favorite feature of French trials, if anybody subsequently contradicts him. It is impossible to estimate the time required to complete the evidence. The next witnesses to be called are not prominent personages and may, therefore, be expected to contribute facts instead of haranguing the Court with their views as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, based entirely upon hearsay. The trial will undoubtedly proceed henceforth more speedily.

Maître Labori's desire to return to court is evident, and he says that he will have Gen. Mercier recalled, so as to have an opportunity of cross-examining him.

Paris Green in Public Spring.

Newburg, N. Y., Aug. 21.—What is believed to have been an attempt at wholesale poisoning was discovered at Matteawan, just in time to prevent fatal results. A large spring in Teller avenue in that place is used by the summer residents for nearly all of their drinking water. One of the residents went to the spring and noticed that it was stirred up. At the bottom of the spring was a can containing paris green. It is believed that no one had taken any water from the spring before the poison can was found. The authorities are making an investigation.

Send Cash to Proto Ricans.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The Secretary of War has received three checks from Lake Champlain to be applied to the fund for Porto Rican relief. One was from President McKinley for $250, another from Vice President Hobart for $250, and the third from William Barbour, of New York, for a similar amount. Another check received was from August Belmont, in New York, for $500. To these Secretary Root also added his check for $250, making a total to the fund of $1,500.

Mormon Designs on Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 21.—President Rich of the Mormon Southern headquarters has announced that Ohio has been added to the division work of the Mormon missionaries. He also states that a conference of elders will be held in Columbus in November and that Twenty elders have been detailed from the headquarters in Chattanooga, Tenn., to work among the Buckeyes.

Freight Wreck Delays Excursionists

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 21.—A rear end collision between freight trains on the New York & Long Branch railroad at the Elizabeth avenue station, blocked travel and delayed a number of excursion trains for several hours. No one was hurt.

Call For Gold Certificates.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The call for gold certificates in exchange for gold coin, according to the last reports, amounts to $20,821,800. The estimated amounts of additional withdrawals not yet reported is $2,000,000.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 20—Rev. Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist, will speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m.

The Governor Not Convinced.

It is evident that Governor Voorhees does not intend to take the severe steps that many are urging him to take in respect to the disclosures in the management of the State Industrial School for Girls. Yesterday the Governor declared that some of those who have told scandalous stories of the school management and methods are totally incapable of telling the truth, and the only thing that he is going to do towards bring about a reformation is to appoint a new board of trustees and leave it to them to say whether or not Mrs. Eyler, the superintendent, should be removed. The Governor says that so far as he is able to learn the same methods are used in the Industrial Schools of other States as in the one at Trenton.

Since our esteemed friend Bunyon, of the News, has been discharged as local correspondent for the New York World, Journal, Press, Sun and Herald, his services in that capacity having been of an inferior quality, he seems possessed of the idea that the suburban news of the metropolitan papers is going to the dogs. We suppose that as long as Bunyon's name is not associated with the New York papers as correspondent the halo of success will not hover around these journals. Probably if the New York editors regarded Bunyon with some assurance of ability as a newspaper worker that he does himself he would be engaged at a salary of immense proportions, which, however, would be reduced to a normal size by the constant expenditure for iron bands needed to circle his head to prevent it exploding from unnatural expansion.

Summit's secret is out. The Record declares this week that the Republican leaders of that city are going to demand an Assembly nomination for their City Solicitor, Corra N. Williams. With every municipality in Union county asserting its right to a nomination of some kind it looks as though there was going to be fun in the G. O. P. convention this fall.

Woman, as a rule, holds the household together, and this is strangely exemplified by an elderly maiden lady who died a few weeks ago in Athlone, Ireland. She left a fortune of $130,000, to be spent in the erection of a church, provided that her body should be converted into ashes and used in making the mortar for building the edifice.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

It is very evident that the automobile will prove a thorn in the side of the trolley enterprises. It must result in one of two things—spur the trolley people to a better or more complete service, or else compel them to give up. There is a big corporation, with a capital of $1,200,000, that proposes to introduce this new-fangled wagon without a horse in all our Jersey cities, and it now is said to own about 5,000 vehicles, capable of seating sixteen each. Hackensack is bound to have rapid transit before long of some kind. Let's get the best.—Hackensack Evening Record.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A reader of The Daily Press has requested the publication of the following legend with reference to three races of mankind—Caucasian, Indian and Negro: "When the Great Spirit created the world he made three men of the same color. They were sent to a pond to bathe. One of them jumped in quickly. He came out perfectly white and clean. The others waited a few moments before entering the water. Then one of the others made bold to enter. He staid in so long and stirred up the water so much that when he came out he was found to be of copper color. The third and last man then jumped in the pond. He had seen the man who proceeded him stir up the water and felt as though he was supposed to do the same. When he came out his companions were surprised to see that he was jet black. It was thus that the white, red and black man were created. The Great Spirit then threw down three packages and told the men to each chose one. The black man was given the first choice. As was exected, the negro selected the largest bundle, which upon being opened proved to contain shovels, pitchforks, saws and tools of all descriptions. The red man then selected his package. He found it to be filled with a quantity of bows and arrows. In the white man's package, which was very small, was found simply a few pens and a bottle of ink. Thus had the Great Spirit provide each representative with the tools and implements he was supposed to gain a livelihood.

Jerry Simpson tells a story of a traveler who, just as he was writing his name on the register of a Leavenworth hotel, saw a cimex lecticuralius which took its way across the page. The man paused and remarked: "I've been bled by St. Joseph fleas, bitten by Kansas City spiders and interviewed by Fort Scott graybacks, but I'll be darned if I was ever in a place before where the bedbugs looked over the hotel register to find out where your room was."

THEATRICAL.

A decidedly favorable impression was made by the Kennedy Players at the opera house last night on the occasion of their first appearance in this city through the medium of "The Midnight Express." The piece was an excellent vehicle to bring forth the best efforts of each member of the company. John J. Kennedy provoked much merriment in the character of Bob Backers, and Miss Nellie Kennedy is a very bright winsome little lady who played the leading role of Bessie, the fisher maid, in a very happy style. Mr. Butler as Davie Holt, the coast guardsman, was consistent and strong throughout and made an excellent impression. The villian Meridith by Priestly Morrison was complimented with many hisses which proves his efficiency. Miss Marshall as Amy Sedgewick, Miss Hasson as aunt Tabitha and Mr. Danvers as Caleb Brandon all rendered good support. The risibilities of the large audience were aroused and kept alive for nearly ten minutes by the original funny method of John J. Kennedy in his before the curtain speech.—Scranton Truth.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee 15 and 25c.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 21.—Rev. Mr. Shott, who has been trying to raise the moral standard of the town ever since he took the pastorate of the Baptist church, and through whose effort the Citizen's League was organized, preached another strong sermon from his pulpit Sunday morning. Mr. Shott took for his text John 16:8 to 11. Mr. Shott's sermon was partly and explanation of why the work of reformation was started. He said: "Only a few Sundays ago I stood in this pulpit and preached a sermon calling for a higher moral standard and the erasing out of some of the vices in our village. The sermon was taken up by the residents of the village and, I am sorry to say, the sermon was shot full of holes by a number of you. But when I stand with my master on the other side and present this battle scared sermon, he will see some of the holes you have shot through it."

The large tribe of Gypsies that have been camping along South avenue for nearly two months folded their tents and started for new pastures green. If their advertising agent is as successful in other places as he was in this, the camp will have a very profitable season in Jersey.

It is expected that the trolley people will have the right of way through the Cook estate by Wednesday. When this is secured work will be pushed and the extension to Westfield, by way of Jerusalem road, will soon be completed.

Notwithstanding the large number of people in town attending the race Saturday afternoon, all was quiet and orderly.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Emery have been the guests of Mr. Emery's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Emery.

Miss Gertrude Smalley has returned from a month's visit with her aunt in Hazlet, this State.

Miss Lizzie Nichol led the young people's meeting in the Baptist church last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stillger entertained friends from out of town yesterday.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 21—C. D. Winans, of Mountainside, is being tried in the town rooms today before Justice of the Peace Collins for alleged cruelty to a horse. The complainant is the State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, represented by G. Whyte Smith, the colored officer of the society, who resides near here. The charge is that Mr. Winans left a horse out in the recent heavy storm without covering, and that the horse was not properly fed or attended to.

The remainder of the Linden cockfighters will be tried before Justice of the Peace Collins in the town rooms tomorrow afternoon. Ex-Judge Coddington, of Plainfield, is the prosecuting attorney, and ex-Senator Fred C. Marsh, of Elizabeth, is counsel for the defense.

BOUND BROOK.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Sachsen.

Dresden. Der Redakteur Eichhorn von der sozialdemokratischen „Sächsischen Arbeiterzeitung" wurde hier zu sieben Tagen Haft verurtheilt, weil er das verflossene Sozialistengesetz ein „Schandgesetz" genannt hatte.—Im Betriebe der sächsischen Bergwerke ereigneten sich im vorigen Jahre 4022 Unglücksfälle, von denen 42 mit dem Tode der Betroffenen endeten. Beschäftigt wurden auf sächsischen Gruben 27,569 männliche und weibliche Arbeiter.

Leipzig. Die vom sächsischen Kultusministerium gebilligte Centralstelle für Vermittelung des internationalen Schülerbriefwechsels, der vom sächsischen Neuphilologenverband in Leipzig in's Leben gerufen worden ist, hat seit ihrer Gründung 5559 deutsche Schüler in ihren Listen eingetragen. Von Frankreich aus haben sich bis jetzt 185 höhere Schulen der Leipziger Vermittelungsstelle bedient.

Plauen. Hier wurde der Führer eines Personenzuges von einem anderen Zuge auf dem Bahnhof Herlasgrün überfahren.

Wickrath. Die Kaninchenplage nimmt hier immer mehr zu. Auf einem mit Drahtgewebe eingefriedigten Grundstück von 1½ Morgen wurden beim Kornmähen nicht weniger als 45 Kaninchen erschlagen. Der Schaden, den die Thiere verursachen, ist bedeutend.

Thüringische Staaten.

Gotha. Der am 21. Juli verstorbene Rentner Cosmar vermachte sein gesammtes Vermögen, 700,000 Mark, der Stadt zu milden Stiftungen.

Saalfeld. Bei dem Dorfe Reschwitz fuhr eine Maschine auf einen von Station Eichicht abgegangenen Güterzug, von dem mehrere Wagen zertrümmert wurden. Ein Heizer wurde tödtlich, zwei andere Personen schwer verletzt. Der Zugführer des Güterzuges rettete sich durch einen Sprung in die Saale, wohin Gepäckwagen nachstürzten.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die von der französischen Deputirtenkammer zum Studium der europäischen Freihäfen eingesetzte, aus sieben Mitgliedern bestehende Kommission traf kürzlich hier ein. Sie unternahm unter Führung der Senatoren O'Swald und Dr. Burchhard, in Begleitung des Generalzolldirektors Pochhammer und anderer zuständiger Persönlichkeiten eine mehrstündige Fahrt durch den Hafen, bei der unter Anderem einer der großen neuen Schuppen am O'Swald-Kai und die Werft von Blohm u. Voß besucht wurden. Bei einer sich anschließenden Frühstückstafel erwiderte der Präsident der Kommission, Deputirter Muzet, auf die Begrüßungsansprache des Senators O'Swald mit einem Trinkspruch auf Hamburg, indem er sich voll hoher Anerkennung über den Hamburger Hafen aussprach. Später wurde das Rathhaus besucht.

Bremen. Hier wurden Georg von Noden, John Hehlst und John Tomfore, Passagiere eines von New York angekommenen Norddeutschen Lloyddampfers, verhaftet, weil sie mit einem anderen Passagier verkehrten und an denselben eine Postkarte geschrieben hatten, der in dem Verdacht stand, einem Mitreisenden 50,000 Mark gestohlen zu haben. Nach zweitägiger Gefangenschaft wurden sie in Freiheit gesetzt, worauf sie disgusted beschlossen, sofort umzukehren und sich wieder nach dem Lande der Freiheit zurückzubegeben.

Lübeck. Aeußerst heftige Gewitter gingen kürzlich über die Stadt und die Umgegend nieder, theilweise erheblichen Schaden anrichtend. Bei Oldesloe wurde ein Feldarbeiter vom Blitz getödtet, ein anderer gelähmt. Feuersbrünste, durch Blitzschlag verursacht, werden von vielen Orten gemeldet; es sind nicht nur Gebäude eingeäschert worden, sondern auch viel Vieh ist in den Flammen umgekommen.

Oldenburg.

Ueber die durch die schwedische und dänische Konkurrenz bedrohte Klinker-Industrie wird in einem an den Verband deutscher Thon-Industrieller gerichteten Gutachten ausgeführt, daß in Oldenburg im Jahre 1897 148 Betriebe vorhanden waren, die 85,590,000 Mauersteine und 3,180,000 Dachziegel herstellten. Während der Versandt nach dem Binnenland einen stetigen Fortschritt zeigt (1880 6610 Metercentner, 1890 12,711 Metercentner, 1895 57,173 Metercentner, 1897 83,962 Metercentner), ist der Versandt nach Hamburg und seewärts nach Kiel zurückgegangen. Absatzgebiete wie Kiel, Rendsburg, Lübeck, Wismar, Rostock, Danzig, Königsberg und andere Plätze der Ostsee sind für die Oldenburger Ziegeleien verloren. Das Unterliegen im Konkurrenzkampf wird auf die Differenz in den Transportkosten zurückgeführt.

Mecklenburg.

Rostock. Der Bürgermeister und Rechtsanwalt Schmidt zu Kröpelin ist von der hiesigen Strafkammer wegen eines Betrugsversuchs unter Annahme mildernder Umstände zu 1000 Mark Geldstrafe oder 80 Tagen Gefängniß verurtheilt worden. Der Staatsanwalt hatte wegen vollendeten Betrugs vier Monate Gefängniß beantragt.

ROUND-SHOULDERED GIRLS

Some Good Advice Toward Making Them Shapely and Healthy.

Health and beauty depend upon the symmetry of the body.

A round-shouldered girl is a girl out of drawing, unsymmetrically out of harmony so far as her looks go. She is in the same relative condition physically.

The idea of health is that happy condition of unconsciousness of the body which is only possible when every part of it is perfectly developed.

No round-shouldered girl can be healthy, for the secret of health is in the proper and harmonious development of the entire organism.

Girls with round shoulders never even once breathe properly, and correct breathing is as essential to perfect health and beauty as sunlight is to flowers. Many girls with stooping shoulders go painfully to the end of their shortened lives without realizing that health and straight shoulders with well expanded chest, rosy cheeks and bright eyes, are theirs to have if they will but make the effort to acquire them.

A girl of average inteligence by practising the movement here illustrated five minutes night and morning for six months will find herself not only with straight shoulders, but with a chest expansion.

Try it. Stand with the feet close together. Stretch both arms horizontally as far as possible, palms outward.

Slowly make the circle described in the diagram, without bending the elbows. Repeat several times, rest, repeat again, rest, repeat, &c., until the exercise has covered five minutes of well-spent time.

The exercise may be taken first with one arm, then with the other, then with both together. In either case the exercise should be accompanied by very deep, slow breathing.

A variation of the exercise is furnished by holding the arms out at full length and slowly turning them as far as possible, so that the palms are now up, now down.

The exercise is also excellent for the shoulders and upper arms.

Successful Women Inventors.

One of the significant signs of the times is that women are becoming successful inventors. An improved corset, recently invented and patented by the talented wife of Pere Hyacinthe, has been a considerable success. Also, the widow of a military officer is to be credited with an invention the ingenuity and utility of which are acknowledged by the whole world of industry.

The ex-Empress Eugene has exhibited a good deal of inventive ability. Some time ago, when ladies' dresses were fuller than they are now, she contrived an ingenious arrangement for her robes to descend from the ceiling, so that when she stood under the apparatus her dress and petticoats were put on at the same time, just as if if were all done by a fairy wand. She caught the idea germ of this at the time she was recovering from an illness, when dressing in the ordinary way was a source of difficulty. The ex-Empress also devised a mysterious dress improver, which eventually developed into the crinoline.

A baby carriage invention has produced for its lady designer $50,000 already, and a big fortune was realized by a young member of the fair sex who invented a very ingenious machine for making paper bags; while the invention of copper tips to children's shoes was a still more profitable affair, bringing the splendid sum guerdon of about two million five hundred thousand dollars.

Danger in Cold Ankles.

Doctors say that cold ankles kill more women than nerves and disease put together. This may be an exaggeration, but it is not to say that when the ankles are well protected and kept perfectly warm their owner is not likely to suffer with colds.

"Stock breeders say that cold can be borne by animals only at an expense of fat or muscle or vitality, and so it is with women," said a fashionable bootmaker recently. "And yet they persist in wearing thin stockings and thin, low quartered shoes long after the summer has passed. But they are improving in this respect as well as in every other as time goes by. Ten years ago we sold as many low shoes in winter, shoes with an excuse for a sole, as we did in summer. Not so now. When a woman comes in and buys a pair of low shoes at this season for out-door wear we know that she is one of two things, vain or silly."

Quiet Women.

Quiet women are women of power. The noisy, blustering, arrogant, self-asserting among them make the air hot with their voices and trouble the world with their superabundant activities. But this cannot be called strength—it is more generally a sham or a show, which breaks down under the pressure of personal and private trial; while the true power of those who, as wives, influence the present, and as mothers, mould the future, lies hidden from the public, all the more valuable because of its reserve.

Would Take Them In.

The housewives who deem it strictly hygienic to leave the bed clothes hanging out of windows until the middle of the day have never had a glimpse of them from the opposite side of the street.

FASHION NOTES.

Novel Styles In Parasol Handles and Millinery Ornaments.

No expense is spared in making parasol handles. They are veritable works of art, being set with jewels and incrusted with silver and gold. The opal is largely employed as a decoration this year, after having suffered a long retirement from public favor. Large garnets set in red gold, lapis lazuli, malachite, cut rock crystal, carnelian and onyx are all used. Then there are fantastic handles made in the form of the head of a horse, swan, duck, cock or rabbit. For simple parasols to accompany plain toilets, fashion decrees Indian cashmere foulards, with an undecorated handle of wild cherry wood.

Some of the latest Parisian millinery models are ornamented with dragon flies, butterflies or beetles. These insects are greatly exaggerated in size and are of a brilliant and decorative character. In one case an enormous butterfly, placed in a chou of pink and white silk gauze, was the only trimming of the hat.

The costume illustrated is of ash gray voile. It is in the princess style and has a redingote effect over a plain lower skirt. The redingote is bordered with double bias folds and is divided into three parts by horizontal arrangements of similar folds. The bodice shows a corselet effect, adorned with bias folds, the upper part and the sleeves being of ecru guipure over cream satin. The accompanying hat is of white straw trimmed with gray ostrich plumes.

PARASOLS.

Novel Arrangements For Changing Covers and Handles.

The parasol being a necessary adjunct of the summer costume, plain or elaborate, it follows that a number of different parasols are a necessity of the wardrobe, in order that each gown may have an appropriate accompaniment. This involves much expense, as costly handles are in vogue, so an ingenuous method has been devised by which the same handle may be used for several parasols. The rods are so arranged that the handle may be detached at will, thus facilitating the packing of the parasols and permitting it to be changed from one to another. Moreover, there are parasol frames so arranged that the silk covering is adjustable. It is supplied with little eyelets to catch on the tips of the ribs, while the ribs themselves have little hooks which fasten to the inside of the cover. With several covers of different colors, one may have a number of different parasols at small cost.

The costume illustrated is for a girl 12 years old. It is of thin mastic cloth, the skirt having two circular ruffles around the foot, headed by two bands of white galloon. The bodice opens over a guimpe of renaissance embroidery and is trimmed with white galloon, as are also the cloth sleeves, which have embroidery at the top to match the guimpe. The hat of rice straw is trimmed with white plumes and white ribbon.

TRAIN THE CHILDREN.

Do Not Permit Them to Grow Up With Harsh and Disagreeable Voices.

Train the voices of your children. Do not let them grow up with a harsh, disagreeable voice, which grates on the ear every time they speak. French parents are very particular about this, and that is one reason we admire the manners of the French children. They are seldom rude and coarse when playing among themselves. They have games which teach politeness, and some of the street songs and games played by the children of French peasants, are almost as pretty as our kindergarten songs and plays.

A learned writer says: "There is no power of love so hard to get and keep as a kind voice. A kind hand is deaf and dumb. It may be rough in flesh and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels; and it is very hard to get and keep it in the right tone."

One must start in youth and be on the watch night and day, at work and play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or a tone that is sharp and it sticks to him through life, and stirs up ill-will and grief, and falls like a drop of gall on the sweet joys of home. Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the pearl hid in the sea. A kind voice is to the heart "what light is to the eye. It is a light that sings as well as shines."

Juliet's Tomb in Italy.

The tomb of Juliet, in Verona, Italy, is to restored and renovated. It is proposed to make the edifice twice its present size, the small arches now only in the front of the structure being continued along the sides.

Romeo and Juliet are not the creations of Shakespeare's brain. They lived, loved and died in Verona, and the accompanying illustration shows Juliet's tomb as it is to-day.

The home of Juliet's parents is to be seen in Verona, as is also the famous balcony on which Juliet stood when Romeo made love to her.

That balcony has been made immortal by the love scene which has drawn every schoolgirl's tears:

THE TOMB OF JULIET.

O, Romeo, Romeo! wherefore art thou, Romeo?
Deny thy father, and refuse the name;
Or, if thou wilt not, be but sworn my love,
And I'll no longer be a Capulet.

'Tis but thy name that is my enemy;
Thou art thyself, though not a Montague.

O, be some other name!
What's in a name? That which we call a rose,
By any other name would smell as sweet;
So Romeo would, were he not Romeo called,
Retain that dear perfection which he owes.

The history of Verona is in itself interesting, having been founded and made a Roman colony in B. C., 89, which became one of the most prosperous towns of upper Italy. It is now the capital of a province and has nearly seventy thousand inhabitants.

It is situated on both banks of the rapid River Adige, which is crossed by six bridges, and, next to Venice is the most important and interesting town of ancient Venicia. It came into the possession of the Austrians in 1814, and, after having been strongly fortified, was one of the four towns which were the chief support of Austrian rule in Italy, but was restored to Italy in 1866.

Bridal Rice.

The custom of throwing old shoes and rice, which has prevailed for many years in America, England and Scotland, came from the Eastern nations, and was originally intended as a sign of relinquishment of their authority over the bride by the relatives. An old Jewish custom provided that a brother of a childless man had the first privilege of marrying the widow, and until her brother-in-law refused her she could not marry again. Another authority maintains that the throwing the shoe was a sham assault on the bridegroom, who was supposed to be carrying off the bride.

A Debutante Idea.

Now and then a debutante has a really clever idea.

Recently one of our Boston girls distinguished herself for her graceful tact. She was bountifully remembered with bouquets of the rarest and choicest flowers. They were effectively banked near her. Instead of carrying just one bouquet the entire evening, the tactful maiden changed bouquets every little while, and thus she did honor to as many of her friends as possible.

Splendid Gingerbread.

Splendid soft gingerbread is made with one cup of good molasses, one-half cup of water, one-half cup of butter, one-half tea-spoonful of ginger, one-half tea-spoonful of soda or salaratus, two cups of flour, two eggs and a pinch of salt. Bake in square tins and cut in squares. Cut the squares open and put in bits of preserved ginger, and cover each square with frosting.

SKETCH OF PORTO RICO.

An American's Observations of Picturesque Adjuntas and Its People.

A VERY PRETTY TOWN

The Plaza Filled With Roses of All Kinds, Palms and Various Flowering Bushes.

People Dark in Color, Bearing Facial Characteristics of Both Negro and Indian—Their Ignorance Is Surprising—Their Chief Article of Food is Plantains, a Species of Banana.

Situated as it is in a valley, with mountains on all sides, Adjuntas, aside from being delightfully healthful, is picturesque. The town is exceedingly pretty with its litle square plaza in the centre, filled with the ceedingly pretty with its little square all sorts of flowering bushes. In the centre of the plaza is a lamppost with a lamp that is seldom lighted. Near one entrance is a little store, built like an American garden house, and in this can be bought all kinds of liquors, coffee, bread and fruits. At intervals around the plaza are placed seats; and among the flowers are the remains of two fountains. All the best stores—two—the casino or saloon, shoe shop, hotels, tailor shops, Alcadia, and as many houses as can be crowded in, face the plaza. All the stores sell liquor at remarkably cheap prices. For instance, a fine grade of cheap sherry can be had for 60 cents, American money. Linens and laces are especially cheap; but the stores carry very few dry goods, as the people depend chiefly on the venders of small goods, who go through the streets with baskets on their heads, from whom you can buy anything from a baby's rubber ring to a very pretty dress.

All the saloons, or casinos as they are called, have gambling rooms that are constantly crowded, for, like France, this a great gambling country. Every afternoon a cock fight is held to which all go, both young and old; even the children of seven or eight betting. A priest there gambles and is said to win more than any one else at monte. On nearly every corner are little stands with oranges, bananas and peanuts for sale at ridiculously low prices. Two centavos or a cent is the price of three oranges and the little bananas, as they are called, sell six for a cent.

The hotel from the outside looks like a shanty, and as far as building goes it is one. Entering, you find yourself in a large square room; in the centre is a table with a pot of flowers, and facing the table, a row on each side, are rocking chairs; against the wall are straight-backed chairs. The only other furnishings are a large mirror and two other tables, one bare, the other with plants. The room opens into the dining room, where a long table covered with brown oilcloth and the chairs are the only articles of furniture. The bedrooms are small, with two single beds in each, devoid of springs, or mattresses; simply with sheets and one blanket drawn over the canvas; but a canopy or mosquito bar, made of muslin and tied back with ribbons, is supplied. The only other articles are a single chair and an old-fashioned washsand and dresser combined, on which is an agateware wash basin filled with water, in which both occupants are supposed to wash. The only redeeming feature is that everything is clean.

The people are dark in color; even the Porto Ricans of the better class look as though they had a tinge of negro blood and a little Indian. The latter is seen in the very lowest classes, in the high cheek bone, sunken eyes and very straight, black hair. The Spaniards seem purer blooded, more intelligent, in fact superior in every respect to the Porto Rican. These people are not only lazy, but ignorant and dirty; they never bathe and always appear to have on the same clothes. As a general rule both men and women go without shoes or stockings, and the children often wear no clothes. Their chief food is plantains, a species of bananas, which they boil; oranges, bread and bananas. Meat is so expensive that many of them have never tasted it, and they show it, for they are undersized and anaemic looking. Their ignorance is sometimes surprising. One day I heard the town physician ask a man his name.

"I don't know," was the reply.

"What is your mother's name?"

At that the man's face brightened and he said: "Just wait until I go up the street. I see a man that knows her name, but I don't." That is one instance, and many more of similar nature could be cited.

During the coffee picking season the peons or laborers work, receiving 50 centavos, or about 30 cents, a day. At the end of the season instead of looking for other work, they gamble and enjoy life until their money is gone; then they begin to steal. This is the way they bury their dead—a rude box, shaped like a coffin, is made by a carpenter, or, if the friends have not enough money for this, they rent the box for the occasion. It has no cover, but over the body is thrown a sheet. Many of these boxes are not even painted. This coffin is carried sometimes on the shoulders of four men, offener two long sticks are fastened to the sides and in this way it is borne by only two. Other men relieve the bearers when they are tired, for usually these funerals come many miles. The body is first taken to the church, and then to the cemetery, where, if the coffin is not a rented one, it is buried, but if the coffin is hired, the body is taken out and thrown, not any too gently either, into the grave.

A REAL TREASURE ISLAND

Romantic Spot of Unusual Interest Which Is Located Near Porto Rico.

THE HAUNT OF PIRATES.

An Ideal Spot for Freebooters to Hide Their Booty—Caves Galore, Intricate and Inaccessible.

Some of the Caverns of La Mona in the Vicinity of Cape Caigo Present Still the Undoubted Traces of Pirates—Walls Are Graven With Sinister Designs—$120,000 in Coins and Jewels Unearthed.

At the centre of the sea of the Antilles, at the middle of the passage which separates St. Domingo from Porto Rico, there raises itself above the waves a steep rock, to which the ancient Spanish navigators gave the name of "La Mona," or "Monita," the Little Monkey. Among the sailors of the Antilles, La Mona is always called the Island of Pirates, and it is thought to conceal mysterious treasures.

It is an immense chalky block, seven kilometres long and four or five wide, rearing its summit, flat as a table, to thirty or forty metres above the sea. The waves, always agitated in these coasts, have shaped this block into a pedestal of pointed cliffs, and, except in two or three points, where narrow stretches of shore advance, the island is almost inaccessible. Ships are kept at a distance, as much by the violence of the waves as by a chain of rocks which surround it, and where alone open a few passages for small vessels.

At the southern point of the island an enormous rock seems miraculously suspended from the crest of a cliff. The sailors have named it "Caigo o no caigo," which means, "Shall I fall, or shall I not fall." In spite of its perilous position, the rock in equilibrium has resisted for many ages the attacks of storms and waves.

But one of the most curious particulars of this island, so strange from many points of view, is that its chalky mass is throughout pierced by immense caves, innumerable grottos, which ramify in all ways, and, having their entrance under the face of the cliff, conduct by sinuous passages to the very summit of the plateau. The grottos, inhabited by bands of seabirds, were but lately in part obstructed by guano, which has been nearly all taken away.

The adventurer intrepid enough to engage himself in this formidable struggle soon finds himself arrested by two very unexpected obstacles; in effect, among the tangles of plants are hidden swarms of immense wasps, which, at the least rustling, precipitate themselves on the intruder, and can by their dangedous stings put his life in danger; again, if he escapes from these guardians of the jungle, he has to their dangerous stings put his life in dwarf cactus, which in many places stud the earth, and the pricks of which, without being as dangerous as those of the wasp, are very painful, and cause a high fever.

One can understand that this rocky isle, so well defended by the forces of nature, may have offered a refuge to the daring filibusters, who have been during many centuries the terror of the Antilles. After having passed by secret passages in the belt of rocks, they sheltered their vessels in some intricacy of the cliff and established themselves in these grottos which formed impregnable natural fortresses.

There no one could reach them, and supposing that a daring assailant had succeeded in forcing an entrance to their haunt, the bandits would fly through the detours of the inextricable labyrinth and would gain the impenetrable thicket of the upper plateau, where it would be impossible to track them.

Some of these caverns in the vicinity of Cape Caigo present still the undoubted traces of pirates. One of them called Cueva Negra—Black Cave—from the thick coat of soot which covers its vault, is a vast chamber, around which spreads a network of other chambers and passages. The walls of this chamber are still craven with sinister designs, representing gallows supporting rows of bodies and above which are inscribed the names of the victims, names where are found represented all the nations among which these rascals recruited their band, and which are doubtless those of traitors or rebels executed by their companions, unless they were the unfortunate captives sacrificed by these wretches. Some cannon balls, still encrusted in the walls of the cliff, near the entrance, also prove that the place was besieged, without doubt, by some war vessel sent in pursuit of the pirates.

These grottos did not serve as places of refuge merely; the pirates used them as storehouses and kept in them the products of their captures. So, when at the close of the last century, France and England had succeeded in destroying this breed, it was thought that the island must contain some of the immense treasures which the pirates had hidden there during many years. Searches were made, but the extent of the caverns to be gone over was so great that no result was obtained. However, about forty years ago, an American, guided, it appears, by a mysterious document, landed on the island with a troop of negroes from San Domingo and succeeded in unearthing in one of the grottoes an iron box containing $120,000 in ancient golden coins and jewels. Allured by this result, an American company was formed in 1880 and undertook to search methodically while taking up the thick bed of guano deposited by the seabirds on the floor of the grottoes; but outside the precious guano no treasure was gained.

The Samoan at Home.

When native Samoans are not at war they seem to foreigners to have a very easy and agreeable life. There is never very much to do, and what there is is not arduous or tiring. The old women, for instance, braid mats or sit upon the rocks and beat and strip the bark for making tapa, the native cloth. The brewing and perfuming of cocoanut oil is another industry in which women play a prominent part. The men spend much of their time in making fishing nets and tackle.

A HONOLULU BELLE

Miss Helen Wilder, Heiress to Sugar Millions—Beautiful and Eccentric.

Honolulu, the city of the Pacific isles, has a policeman. Her name is Helen Wilder. She is a beauty and the heiress of many millions made in Hawaiian sugar. She is twenty-three years old.

Miss Wilder is a regularly appointed special officer of the Hawaiian police force. She wears a soft felt hat on which glitters the silver star that proclaims her a policewoman. She also carries a revolver and is not afraid to use it. She has made several arrests unaided.

The honor of being a policewoman was not forced upon Miss Wilder. To be exact she solicited it. The Hawaiian heiress loves children and animals, and it was to protect her small and lowly friends that she asked an appointment on the police force.

It was reported recently that the captain of a steamship that had put into port at Honolulu had mistreated his children. Miss Wilder boarded the ship and found that for a slight offence the captain had locked the children in a stateroom for several days, keeping them on a bread and water diet. To the astonishment of the protesting captain she promptly marched him down the gangplank and straight to jail.

Recently Miss Wilder has come into the courts through her zeal as a "cop." She detected one Olaaf Hollefson, a street car driver, in the act of driving a mule whose shoulder was bleeding from a chafing collar. She compelled him to leave his car and passengers and go with her to the police station, where she had him "booked" for cruelty to animals.

Hollefson claimed that as Miss Wilder had no warrant the arrest was illegal. He claimed $5,000 damages. The couts decided in favor of Miss Wilder.

Miss Wilder is a belle. She can dance like a fairy. She is past mistress of the feminine art of coquetry. Two men testify, in gloom of spirit, to the fact that she is an adept at the game of hearts.

She rides a horse with the daring of a vanquero. She handles the reins with the deftness and daring of a stage driver. She swims and rows with the grace and strength of a Kanaka. But wherever she is or whatever she may be doing, she carries a pair of handcuffs to snap on the wrists of the enemies of children and animals. News has recently come by way of San Francisco that Miss Wilder has been married.

Sunday in Mexico.

Any unfortunate citizen of the United States who, from an unwillingness to work or take part in the various concerns of life, has acquired a reputation among his neighbors for being trifling, should emigrate at once to Mexico. Life there seems to wear about as serious an aspect as a comic opera, and such a citizen would be looked upon as a worthy addition to the chorus.

One of the important things in Mexico is to own a game cock, and on Sunday mornings if you leave him tied by the leg to a convenient awning post while you attend services in the church, you will excite no comment among your neighbors. In fact, the voice of the priest is often almost drowned by the crowing out on the street. Cock-fighting and bull-fighting, as every one knows, occupy the same relative places in the affections of the Mexican as baseball and football hold in the American heart, and Sunday afternoons is reserved for them.

The policeman in a Mexican town is an official of importance and dignity. His uniform may be dirty and ragged, but he wears a cartridge belt and six-shooter in addition to his club, and is usually seen with a cigarette in his mouth. Five or six of these worthies will drag a poor trembling wretch to the police station with a flourish worthy of the capture of a brigand.

The Mexican wears a hat covered with gold and silver braid, that is usually worth more than all the rest of his and his family's wardrobe, and it is this, together with the gay-striped blanket and the swagger of the fellow that gives him such an air of stage make-up.

It is always dangerous to judge the people of a town by those most in evidence on the street, but if I were called upon to set a valuation of the people I saw in some of these Mexican towns I should be tempted to make my calculations by the dozen or hundred rather than by the single native. With all their love of finery, neither the men nor women are much given to gay colors. Black and white predominate, but the bright sun makes it all gay and fetching.

When a Mexican grows old he seems to shrink up until there is little to be seen of him but a big hat and a scrap of blanket pulled tight over his meagre shoulders. His beard and hair stand out white and distinct from his dark, shriveled face, which looks like that of a mummy in its frame of white. Life in one of these towns is as absolutely different from what one sees in an American village as though it were a bit of Egypt or India. Yet it may be seen at the end of a three-days' journey from almost any of the Eastern and Northern States, and is well worth the journey.—Harper's Weekly.

ORIENTAL CANOES.

Curious Craft With Outriggers Still Used for Inter-Island Communication.

There is only one race of primitive men which makes its entrance upon the page of history by way of the sea. Other early races creep over mountain passes and evade the great water courses by flanking the distant fountains. They fear the great sea. It takes ages before they gain the courage to coast from cape to cape, and always in sight of land. The Polynesian of the South Sea bursts into hazard of deep-water voyaging. In all the families of his race save one, his story begins with the daring of the Pacific, the greatest ocean of all.

Call the roll of these families and see whence they came and how.

Hawaii? By canoe from Kahiki, which may be Tahiti, certainly is no nearer than the Marquesas.

HAWAIIAN CANOE.

The Marquesas? From Hawaii, far across the Western sea.

Tahiti? From Hawaii in the West.

Raratonga? From Awaiki, a land in the West and down to the leeward.

The Maori of New Zealand? From Hawaiki.

All of these families tell of the tempestuous voyages of their ancestors from this mysterious land, of which all retain the name. It was the home of the race in the beginning. It was at that home that they learned to become sailors and ocean adventurers. The only family of the Polynesian race which does not begin in a legend of a dangerous trip across the waters is the Samoan. They believe that the earth was made at their archipelago, that they are themselves the first race of human beings. Ethnologists are agreed on one point; they acknowledge that even if Samoa is not the nest of the Polynesian race, still its largest island, Savaii, is carried in all these traditions as at least the place of the final dispersion of these colonies.

This gives us the shortest and the most direct line in the evolution of naval construction. By it we can judge how primitive man first essayed to build ships, a primitive man who was not afraid of the water. Compared with the brown race of the South Sea, the Tyrian navigators of remote antiquity and the Viking rovers of more recent ages are nothing but longshoremen. We are able to see in the present day what the primitive savages did in remote ages when he ventured on the sea. The Polynesian vessel is a type which has been reserved with almost absolute uniformity in all the wandering families of that race. It is the type of what the floating log became when human ingenuity was exerted to fit it for emergencies which arose early in savagery.

As Samoa is acknowledged to be the dispersal centre of the Polynesian race, the Samoan type of vessel may not improperly be assumed as containing all the elements of naval architecture as known to the race at the time of the great dispersal, and therefore the most simple development of the early type of vessel. There is just time to catch the Samoan type before it vanishes. Already the boat copied after Caucasian models is displacing the native craft from end to end of the archipelago. Fifteen years ago there were many sailing canoes in Samoa; this year there is but one, and it is drawn up on a remote beach and left to fall into decay, never again to be used. The same change will continue to work; it will not be long before this primitive type of vessel will be but a museum curiosity.—Forest and Stream.

Filipinos Never Swear.

The native Filipino does not know the vice of blasphemy; he is not ordinarily obscene in his speech; he is not quarrelsome; he is respectful to those who display authority; is docile and obedient, although he is weak and remiss in the performance of his duties; he bears his punishment and believes it to be just when he is guilty of a fault, but he becomes irritated if personally insulted, and he awaits with rancor and in cold blood the moment to avenge outrages done to his person or his family.

He likes very much to pass hours in idleness or in not very animated conversation with his companions and friends. He is fond of feasts and pilgrimages, of play and betting, and easily spends in a day what has cost him months and even years to acquire. In his dealings with the European, when he attempts any business whatever, he is cunning and crafty and tries to come out the gainer, to which end he will use deceit and even puerile artifices. He is fond of ostentation, pomp, noise, and spectacular display.

The senses exercise a greater influence upon him than is usual in other races, and from this cause proceeds the infantile vanity that makes many array themselves in elegant clothes, jewels, decorations, etc. He loves sensual pleasures, but not to the point, as some have alleged, of disregarding the laws of blood, not to the extreme of falling into abominations.

Although he appears silent and submissive, he is much given to quiet murmuring and to criticising the acts of his superiors, especially those of the European, but this is done more in the way of curious and inciting conversation than true criticism. He possesses normal intelligence, a good memory, and an aptitude for mechanics. He is a good workman when habit, necessity, or passion influence him, and for hours and hours can perform rough and most laborious work, as is demonstrated by those employed in rowing, in the cultivation of sugar, or in the work of day laborers. Lacking incentive, however, he inclines to idleness, in which he sees nothing worthy of censure.

CUBAN RAILWAY LUNCH

Natives Usually Carry Eatables But Visitors Would Not Do Well By Imitating.

The railway lines which do not have regular eating houses along the route have a buffet lunch on the train. It is commonly located in the car given over to the third-class passengers. A hungry passenger who finds his way there can have his choice of poor wines, good bread and cold baked fish. There is also a case of "graciosos" or pop, with sometimes a little fruit. Beer is sold. Cubans who have occasion to travel generally carry their lunches with them. The practice is not a good one for American visitors to imitate. Three Americans who were going on a day's journey had the hotel prepare a lunch for them. It consisted of a skinny chicken, two loaves of bread and two bottles of cheap wine. When they came to settle their hotel bill they found a charge of $13 for railroad lunch. Others have had similar experiences. It is better and cheaper to go hungry than to have a Havana hotel prepare a railroad lunch.

Most of the railroads now run what are called "trens de cargo," or mixed local freights. Sometimes the passenger coaches are the chief part of the train, and sometimes they are merely the caboose. These local freights give the traveler an excellent chance to see the country. A good walker can keep up with them when they are going at ordinary speed. With the stops for switching, it is possible to take an occasional excursion into the fields and back again. The engines are always very thirsty, for every other stop appears to be at a water tank. At the stations the start is announced by the primitive method of a hand bell. A porter walks up and down the platform and rings the bell two minutes in advance. Five or six minutes later the train pulls out. It is the literal truth that no train in Cuba is supposed to start on schedule time. The line out of Havana which has most of the suburban travel has a time scedule on the exact hours. No Cuban or Spaniard thinks of getting to the station on the hour. He allows himself five minutes, with the certainty that he will have two or three minutes to spare. The manager of this road was once asked what would happen if he were to start the trains for three or four days in succession on the advertised time. "No passengers," was his laconic response.

One morning at Matanzas I had left word with the hotel keeper to have a cab to take me to the train which was due from Havana at 9:30. The cab was ready at 9:15. Just then a party of friends arrived direct from the train, with reproaches for the failure to meet them. It was all the landlord's fault. He smilingly explained that, while the schedule time of the train was 9 o'clock, it never arrived until 9:30. How it happened to get in on time that morning he did not know, but he was sure the mistake was not intentional.

Curious Panics in Manila.

All of the letters from Manila, when the American soldiers were fighting around that city, refer to the panics which seized the inhabitants of the city at frequent intervals. One of these stampedes is thus described by Captain Elliott, of the Coffeeville company in the 20th Kansas: About 2:30 o'clock the natives and Chinese were observed to be running in every direction. Presently the soldiers began to come from every avenue in the direction of the barracks. They moved quickly, but with remarkable coolness and steady demeanor. Corporal Baber, whom I had sent on an errand near the barracks of the First Battalion, came to my room, saluted like the good soldier that he is, and said: "Captain, there is something wrong going on in the city; the natives are fairly flying in all directions, the Chinese are running like rats to their holes and the stores are being closed."

Like reports came in from every direction from men who had been in all parts of the city. The call to quarters was sounded, the rolls were called, and every man of my company not on duty answered, "Here." The same was true of the other companies of our battalion. Two or three officers were caught away from home and did not get in on good time.

On the Escolta, at the Bridge of Spain, and in the walled city of the scene that followed was beyond my power of description. No one seemed to be aware of the cause of the stampede. I never witnessed anything like it in my life. The wave of excitement swept over the entire city after the manner of a cyclone. The street cars were jammed together in groups; carrabos' piled up against one another and barricaded the narrow streets, quilez and interlocked, overturned and their occupants thrown out; doors and shutters are closed and barred; men, women and children ran hither and thither and crowded and jostled one another in their frantic effort to escape some dreadful, direful impending calamity.

The soldiers alone behaved with admirable coolness. Guards were doubled and tripled. In an incredibly short space of time platoons of infantry were thrown across each approach to the great bridge, and no one but soldiers afoot were allowed to pass. Armed men took possession of the Escolta and the avenues leading thereto, and used their "persuasive powers" to calm the storm and bring order out of chaos. American courage and a display of American sense and judgment prevailed. In less than an hour the "whirlwind" had passed and trade and traffic were resumed. The question with the soldiers was, "What in the —— was it all about, anyway?"—Kansas City Journal.

In spite of the simplicity of the national attire, the Samoans are rather vain and spend a good deal of time in beautifying themselves. The hair is often plastered with white lime, giving it, when dry, the effect of a white wig. The lime is washed off by night. The result is a gradual change in the color of the hair from a red to a bright yellow. Apart form this strange fancy Samoans quite share the European ideas in regard to beauty. They particularly admire tall persons.

A fad of the young men of Samoa is to wear the name of his sweetheart tattooed upon the forearm. As the Samoan wears no sleeves this ornament is always visible, and he is very proud of it, which is easily understood, as the young lady herself does the tattooing, it being impossible to intrust to a professional workman a task so full of sentiment.

IN THE DAYS OF LAFITTE

The Famous Pirate Who Held the Whole Sea at His Command.

ONE SHIP THAT HE LOST

How His Plans Were Completely Foiled By the Elements in Corpus Christi Bay.

The Sailors of the Ship He Was in Persute of Sailed Behind Mustang Island, and After a Long Fight, Scuttled Their Ship and Swam Ashore.

As far back as the memory of men still living goes the hull of an old ship has been seen in Corpus Christi Bay on the west side of Mustang Island off the coast of Texas. When the wind blew from the shore and forced the waters of the bay through the Pass Caballo and Pass Corpus Christi enough of the wreck could be seen fifty years ago to enable a sailor to make out a good deal about the old ship. Sea dogs said that she had been a swift sailor, and that she had carried cannon, and some of them would shake their heads and intimate that they had serious doubts concerning her good character and her business in these shoal waters when she met her doom. A dozen or more Italian fishermen say they have seen gold enough taken from the wreck to sink a fishing smack.

PIRATE SHIP AND SPANISH GALLEON.

An enormous amount of treasure has been taken from the old wreck by the crew of a strange craft that visited the bay a short time ago. The stranger was a trim little steam yacht, plentifully supplied with bright flags and streamers, upon many of the latter was the word "Veloce." The treasure hunter took a notion to show her heels to several fast fishing smacks.

The wrecked ship was a Spanish galleon that had sailed in 1820 from Matamoras loaded with treasure. Her name was Senada. Lafitte was at that time on Galveston Island. He was at peace with all the world except Spain. He had letters of marque and reprisal from Venezuela against his old enemy, and he never lost an opportunity to capture the richly laden galleons that sailed from the ports of Old Mexico. He had set up a republic on Galveston Island and gathered about him at least 1,000 of the most desperate characters that ever cut a throat or scuttled a ship. He owned a fleet of twenty swift sailing vessels, and with these he rapidly drove the commerce of Spain from the Southern seas. Tomas Vasquez was a spy in the service of the great pirate, and he happened to witness the loading of the rich cargo on the Senada. He learned that a revenue officer was returning to Spain with more than $1,000,000 in gold for his sovereign, and he saw a long trin of burros loaded with silver bars arrive at the pier. This belonged to a rich old miner, whom a political convulsion had scared away from the interir. Tomas calculated that the Senada would sail away from the coast of Mexico with little less than $2,000,000 in gold and silver bars beneath her decks, and he lost no time in carrying the news to his chief.

When Lafitte was informed of the rich prize that was boldly preparing to sail almost within sight of his stronghold, he at once dispatched three vessels to capture her. He would doubtless have commanded the expedition in person, but the American Commissioner had just arrived at the island with instructions to warn the pirate to leave the waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Tomas Vasquez sailed with the pirates, and he says they first sighted the Senada off the southern end of Padre Island. The pirates at once spread all sails and pursued the rich prize. The captain of the Senada evidently recognized the character of his pursuers at a glance, and, realizing that the pirates with the fast-sailing ship would easily overhaul him in a short time, he tracked and ran through Pass Corpus Christi into Corpus Christi Bay, behind Mustang Island. Only two of the smaller vessels of the pirates' fleet were able to follow the Senada on account of the shoal water in the pass. The Spanish vessel barely slipped into the bay without grounding, and sailed north. The pirates soon came up with her, and a desperate battle ensued. The Senada's crew fought with the courage of despair, and after the masts of their vessel had been shot away they jumped overboard and swam ashore.

Tomas thinks that they scuttled their ship, for he says that she sank out of sight quickly. The pirates were so enraged over the loss of the rich prize that they ran in close to shore and sent showers of grapeshot after the escaping crew. They sailed back to Galveston Island, with the intention of returning and raising the prize or rescuing the treasure with divers, but their chief had become so much alarmed at the warning given him by the envoy of the United States that he abandoned the island and sailed away to other seas.

Houston's Lad's Health Not Good.

Victor L. Houston, the little lad recently shot by Halstead Compton, has been taken to Asbury Park by his mother for a few weeks, hoping the change of air will improve his general health, which seems to have been seriously impaired from the shock to his system. He has grown quick. Dr. Fritts now thinks it will be necessary to remove one of the shot imbedded in knee joint.

Willing to Sleep in the Alley.

A day in New Brunswick and Bound Brook left Patrick Donavan in Plainfield last night with an overwhelming desire to go to sleep. So Donavan crawled into a dark corner in Tier's Alley where a policeman found him. This morning, Donavan appeared before the Judge and told his little tale. A night among the creeping and crawling ones was enough the Judge thought. So he suspended sentence.

SCRAPPING FRED FUNSTON

Proved Himself One of the Bravest Officers in the United States Army.

A REGULAR DARE DEVIL.

General Funston Was Born in Kansas and is the Son of an Ex-Congressman From That State.

Spent Eighteen Months in Cuba Fighting and Assisting the Natives to Fight Spaniards—Explored Alaska for the United States Government, and Crossed the Famous Death Valley in California.

C. L. Sampson, First Sergeant of the Salina (Kan.) company wrote home from Manila as follows:

"Now a word about our officers before closing. Col. Funston, or 'Scrapping Fred,' as he is called, has proved himself to be the bravest officer in the line and one that the boys will follow through 'fire or water.' When the fire is the hottest he moves about unflinchingly and waves Mausers aside as flies. He has found a place in the hearts of all men, and if he leads the regiment will drive the hosts into the sea.'"

Sid Barber, of the Abilene company wrote: "Col. Funston is a bird. Around here they call him the 'fighting devil from Kansas.'"

Capt. Bishop, commander of the Salina company in the Twentieth Kansas, wrote of the charge at Caloocan as follows:

"Col. Funston realized that success depended upon haste, and as he hurried up and down the line urging us on to Caloocan we realized that we had the bravest Colonel that ever led a regiment, and a thousand brave Kansas boys responded to the commands."

Writing from Caloocan, Burton Mitchell, of Iloa, said that when the firing commenced on the night of Feb. 4 he was sent to escort the wife of Col. Funston and another lady down to the Kansas barracks in Manila. The next day the regiment got to the firing line, and subsequent proceedings are thus recounted: "It was my first experience under fire, and when the bullets began to drop all around my legs began to shake and my natural inclination was to dodge, but when I saw Fred riding up and down behind the firing line as if on dress parade it seemed to give us all confidence and we braced to the work wonderfully.

"The next afternoon (Monday) we made the niggers run for about three-quarters of a mile, and established a new line. They had strong intrenchments across the road and were well fortified along the line. The Colonel (Fred) led this charge on his horse with his hat off, calling on the men to come on, which they did with a will. I came near getting plugged that afternoon by a sharpshooter who had been giving us lots of trouble, when my companion hollered 'Duck!' and quick as a flash I dropped my head down behind the wall, when a bullet came over where my head had been and hit the ground just behind me. On Friday our regiment got orders to capture Caloocan, and after the gunboats had shelled the place a while we heard the Colonel's voice saying: 'Forward! Advance, double time, firing!' And the way those Jayhawkers did come through the town and a mile and a half beyond!"

Col. Funston was born in Kansas and is the son of an ex-Congressman from that State. He was graduated from the State University of Kansas and then became a newspaper man at Fort Smith, Ark. While there he saw hard fighting during the Indian outbreaks, joining the troops on several occasions and remaining with them through a winter campaign After leaving Fort Smith he joined a Government expedition to Death Valley, in southern California, sent out to make a geological investigation. Death Valley is said to be the most desolate waste in this country. The expedition suffered every kind of privation for nine months, in which time Col. Funston took the record of the highest temperature ever measured for any Government, which was 165 degrees Fahrenheit.

Returning from this expedition he took a commission from the Government to explore Alaska, and for two years he wandered about there alone. After a rest of several months he went to Mexico and Central America on a private venture, it being his object to get options on land for coffee plantations. The project needed more financial support than he could secure in the West, and for this reason he visited New York. The support, however, was not forthcoming, and Funston became assistant secretary for the Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad.

The routine of this post was monotonous to him, and three months later he surprised his friends by enlisting as a private in the Cuban Army. His promotion in that service was rapid. Soon he was made Lieutenant, then Captain, then Major, and finally he was put in command of all the artillery force east of Havana. During the eighteen months he spent in Cuba he was in twenty-three battles, had his left arm mutilated by a shell, received a Mauser bullet in his left lung, and was sick of the fever for two months. Once while leading a battery to a point of vantage, he had his horse shot under him. The horse rolled on Funston's right leg, crushing the thigh. His campaigning had, by this time, rendered him a physical wreck, and not feeling able to continue in the service he asked to be retired. His request was granted. On the way to the coast, however, he was captured by the Spanish. He was condemned to die, but later, being put on parole, escaped and went to New York.

When war was declared against Spain he was commissioned by Gov. Leedy of Kansas as Colonel of the Twentieth Kansas Regiment. Later Gen. Miles sent for him to take a place on his staff. Col. Funston insisted on keeping his regiment, but he spent several weeks with Gen. Miles at Tampa, giving him the benefit of his knowledge of Cuba. His regiment was stationed at San Francisco for two months. Six weeks before it sailed for Manila the Colonel met a beautiful young woman of high social position in Oakland, whom he married the day the transport sailed for the Philippines.

WHEELING FOR MEDAL

some, were presented to the winners in the dining room of the hotel by Mr. Emery in the presence of the judges and newspaper men.

When the bronze medal was presented to Ransom, whom the judges decided was entited to the third prize, that gentleman put up a vigorous kick and said that he wanted the first prize or none. He was told by the judges that they had made their decision and did not intend to reverse it. Then Ransom reached for the medal which he deliberately threw in a vicious manner upon the floor two or three times. When Landland Emery suggested to him that he was not compelled to accept the medal, Ransom tore it from the handsome case and throwing that upon the floor left the room.

The silver cup was presented to LeMathy later in the evening. He will be compelled to win it twice more to have it become his property. The next race will be held Saturday, September 2d. Entries will close the 31st.

A feature of Saturday's races was the absence of any rowdy element or disturbance of any moment.

Newspaper Warriors.

A correspondent in this war had to display many more qualities than audacious enterprise and the capacity for vivid description on short notice. The expenses that must be incurred were something tremendous, and the correspondent who had not in addition to dash and brilliancy a shrewd Yankee notion of driving a bargain could have easily have run his employer into bankruptcy, says Harper's Bazar.

On the outbreak of the war the staff vessels to carry correspondents to the cable offices were increased astonishingly, and were chartered at the exorbitant prices that shipowners were able to charge under the circumstances. One journal had no less than ten sea-going craft in commission, at an aggregate expense of over $1,500 per day for their use only, and as it cost from 50 to 80 cents per word to send press matter from St. Thomas or Jamaica, and $1.45 to $1.80 per word for press cables from Hong Kong, a correspondent was put to his wits to know where to stop.

One New York correspondent paid $6,400 in American gold to get his description of the fight with Cervera to his newspaper. A writer in McClure's gives a good idea of the absolute necessary expenses that were forced upon the newspapers in order to accomplish the remarkable feat of newsgetting that last summer saw. Owing to the threatened hazards of the war, shipowners exacted from $5,000 to $9,000 a month for the use of each of these boats, and the newspapers were each required to bear the additional expense of fire marine, accident and war insurance, which the alarmed underwriters of New York had fixed at the enormous rate of 8 per cent. per month—equal in a year to nearly the total value of the boat.

One managing editor's salary list for a single week, including only war correspondents, amounted to $1,463.51. A single correspondent representing another New York newspaper is said to receive $10,000 a year.

TEXAS' SINGING WELL.

It Gives Out Weird Sounds and Rises and Falls With the Wind.

About three miles west of Cedar Bayou, Harris county, Texas is a remarkable well. When it was dug no one can tell, but it has been in existence for more than 60 years. The well is known as the "Singing Well."

In calm, fine weather a sound like that of an Aeolian harp comes upward between the angles of vines below. At times the sound seems nearer and clearer; then again it recedes, as if far away, and reaches the ear very faintly. These changes take place every few minutes and with great regularity.

With an east wind blowing the water in the well gets very low and the mysterious musical sound very faint. A strong west wind causes the water to rise and the sound to increase in volume and clearness.

But it is just before a great norther that the old well plays its wildest pranks. Then, for several hours, the water rises to within a few feet of the top of the well, and emits the weirdest, wildest noises that ever reached human ears. At such times even the water drawn out with buckets moans and wails as if in anguish.

The well is about 60 feet deep. A few years ago the land on which it is located was bought by a Mr. Watkins, who, not liking the sounds that came from the well, employed two men to fill it up. They shoveled dirt into the well two weeks, but it did not effect the depth of water perceptibly, and they threw up the contract.

From the measurements of the excavations they had made it was calculated that the well should have been filled up a little more than twice.

The water is very clear, with a bluish tint, and is fairly palatable. No other wells in the neighborhood show such pranks as are played by the "Singing Well."

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

RURAL JERSEY TOWNS SEE THE AUTOMOBILE.

It Attracts Great Attention in Country Districts.

OWNED BY WESTFIELD MAN.

HENRY C. SERGEANT FINDS MUCH QUIET SPORT IN HIS TRIPS.

Runs the Horseless Vehicle at Fifteen Miles an Hour on the Average, but Sometimes Lets it Speed Along at Twenty Miles, Causing Open-Mouthed Astonishment Among the Natives.

Henry C. Sergeant, of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company, of Easton, Pa., with which Former Mayor Saunders is connected, and a resident of Westfield, is the first and only man who travels through this section in an automobile, and he has naturally been the object of much curiosity. When the automobile first made its appearance on the streets of Westfield it was considered a marvel. Nearly every one in Westfield who saw the vehicle wanted a ride, and its owner delighted to afford them the pleasure. Mr. Sergeant has traveled all over the country in his horseless carriage, and his wife frequently accompanies him.

Henry C. Sergeant is one of the wealthiest men of Westfield. He is the owner of the Westfield Club house and its furnishings and enjoys all kinds of sport. He purchased the clubhouse two years ago for the benefit of the young men of Westfield and is one of the club's most active members. The automobile is his last diversion.

A few days ago the horseless carriage and its owner whizzed through Washington on its way to Easton. It was the first horseless carriage seen in that section, and the excitement it created amounted to more than a circus.

Mr. Sergeant said: "On Tuesday I thought I would go to Easton. I went over the following route: To Sprinfield, Morristown, Rockaway, Dover, Lake Hopatcong, Hackettstown, Phillipsburg, to Easton, a distance of eighty-one miles, in six hours. Mrs. Sergeant met at Easton, and we returned by way of Glen Garden and Clinton. We were back in Westfield in four hours and eighteen minutes, a distance of sixty-five miles.

"Yes, my horseless carriage created considerable excitement along the routes I took on Tuesday. The officials at Hackettstown wanted to arrest me for going through town at the rate of twenty miles an hour, but I was ten miles away before they recovered from their astonishment. At that place everybody ran from the houses, stores and offices bareheaded to see what many claimed "was just like the new management of the Lackawanna system, to use the public highway to run their switch engines over." The excitement at the St. Cloud Hotel was something great, but I do not anticipate the people will break their necks to see my carriage the next time as they did on Tuesday.

"I have had lots of fun with the carriage, but even more fun watching the people's amazement at the sight of one in the rural districts."

THE CADI ON HIS VACATION.

Judge Runyon to Rusticate in the Catskill Mountains.

Plainfield is to be without a City Judge for a week while that official recuperates in the wilds of the Catskill Mountains with a party of friends. Meanwhile His Honor, Mayor Rockfellow, will try his hand at passing judgment on such offenders of the city ordinance as happen to fall into the hands of the police.

Judge William N. Runyon left yesterday afternoon for the Catskills where he will be a guest at the summer home of Howard Hazelhurst, an old college friend at Yale. He will return to his duties in Plainfield next Monday.

Judgment Against Hargrave.

Judgment was rendered yesterday by Justice Nash in the suit of Wesley R. Brokaw against Fred W. Hargraves, in favor of Mr. Brokaw. There are several other suits pending between these parties which will be tried at the fall term of court at Elizabeth. Irving L. Brady represents Brokaw, and S. W. V. Moy is one of Hargrave's counsel.

TROLLEY'S HUM MAY BE HEARD IN THE NOTCH

Board of Trade Talk of a Line to Washington Valley.

RESIDENTS SHOULD AGREE.

THEN THE EXTENSION OF TROLLEY WOULD BE ASSURED.

Difference of Opinion Between Some of the Residents and Mountain Park Inn Management Has Prevented It—Proposition for Safe Manufactory in Plainfield Dropped Owing to Demands.

Despite the elements last evening seven members of the Board of Trade assembled in the rooms in the Babcock building and transacted some business of more or less importance. Secretary Harry C. Runyon read a communication from the Hazard-Porter Safe Company, who desire to locate in this city. They specified certain conditions that would lead them to come here—a donation of a two-acre lot, a two-story brick building, a one-story brick building and a boiler room. They agreed to put in machinery and shafting. As the Board could not well afford to offer such inducements, the communication was filed.

The resignations of G. O. Stevens, Charles L. Moffett and Crane & Clark were received and accepted, and the action of dropping other members for non-payment of dues was deferred until the next meeting.

Charles W. Runyon, of the committee on trolley matters, reported that a system of transfers had been secured between this city and Dunellen, and that such system was due to the efforts of the Board. A report was made concerning the Washingtonville trolley. It was stated that such a line could be secured if the residents in that locality and the Mountain Park Inn managament would come to some agreement. Their differences of opinion make action impossible, for some want one thing and others want something else. The Washingtonville people also desire telephone connection, which they no doubt can have by paying for it.

Mr. Runyon stated that at one time there was only $290 standing in the way of the trolley to the Valley, but certain difficulties arose which blocked the matter. He also said that the Plainfield Street Railway Company was not inclined to do many things that most companies would be glad to do. He cited the expense that the Brunswick Traction Company was burdened with in comparison, such as building bridges, etc.

A report was also made concerning Arlington avenue and it was stated that there is no doubt but what the extension will be a fact. Over one thousand feet of consents, more than needed, has been secured. The owners of the property opposite the schools on Arlington avenue have agreed to give nine feet of the land to widen the avenue and have deposited $900 as an evidence of good faith. The trolley company is to do the work. The President spoke concerning the right of the Board of Education to sign for the trolley. It was stated that Corporation Counsel Marsh's opinion was that it would be all right if the members signed as a Board.

There was reference made to the macadamizing of Watchung avenue where the trolley made an extension of their switch. Mr. Runyon said that the trolley company was going to do the work, but the Council held them back and said they would do it, and thus the matter rests. It was reported that Superintendent Adleman refuses to remove the side rails from the trolley cars.

Trolley Car Lost Its Wheel.
(Special to The Daily Press.

Bound Brook, Aug. 22.—One of the cars of the Brunswick Traction Company, running between Somerville and New Brunswick, met with a very peculiar accident Sunday afternoon near this place that delayed the service for some time. A south bound car was speeding along near Centennial avenue when the wheel at the end of the trolley poll that runs on the wire suddenly became loose and flew into the neighboring lot. The crew and passengers turned out and hunted for the wheel but it was only after half an hour's seach that the wheel was finally found. It was then replaced and the car went on.

Knights Templar Field Day.

The annual field day of the Knights Templar will be held at Asbury Park, Labor Day, Sept. 4th, and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city, will go in a body. They have engaged the Queen City Band to accompany them on the trip.

WILL REED RETIRE IN INTEREST OF HARMONY

The Jersey City News Says That He Will Do So.

HAS SEEN GENERAL SEWELL

THE LATTER WANTS SOMERSET TO GO REPUBLICAN.

But With a Fight Between Reed and Thompson the Result is Very Doubtful and Sewell May Not Receive the Vote of Somerset's Senator for His Re-election to U. S. Senate Again.

From time to time the Jersey City News has printed what was alleged to be authorative information about General Sewell's views of the fight in the Republican party in Somerset county between Senator Reed and Chancery Clerk Thompson. Yesterday it printed the following, in which it is stated that Senator Reed has consented to withdraw from the candidacy for the Senatorial nomination in the interests of harmony and the re-election of General Sewell to the United States Senate:

"Gen. Sewell allows no grass to grow under his pedals, no matter how enervating the weather, or how conducive to rest and apathy is the general condition of things. So it was that down at his sumptuous cottage by the sea, just below Cape May, at Sewell's Point, to be exact, Saturday, he held a conference with some of his trusty staff concerning the fall elections. Each Senator who will be elected next fall will have a vote for the successor of the General in the United States Senate, and, notwithstanding all the stories about the General's poor health and the one foot he already has in the grave, he is exceedingly active, politically, and has no intention of being succeeded in the Senate by anyone except himself, if he can help it.

"Among those who stretched their legs under the General's mahogany was Charles A. Reed, of Somerset, who presided over the last Senate and whose term is out. Mr. Reed wants a renomination, and it is that laudable wish which threatens the Republican cause in his county. Lewis A. Thompson, the Clerk in Chancery, considers himself the leader of Somerset, and he has declared that Mr. Reed cannot go back to the Senate. This declaration is construed to mean that Mr. Reed cannot be re-elected should he be renominated, even if Mr. Thompson and his friends are obliged to help the Democratic candidate, in order to make the declaration good.

"The condition of affairs means a Democratic Senator from Somerset and one vote lost from General Sewell for United States Senator. Therefore, it is not to be tolerated for a moment, and either Thompson or Reed will have to recede. It appears that the General tried his peculiar powers of persuasion upon Mr. Reed first with apparent success, for it is announced that Mr. Reed has declared his willingness to step down and out if the welfare of the party demands it. As the welfare of the party is the welfare of General Sewell just now, it imperatively demands Mr Reed's withdrawal.

"If this report of the proceedings is true, it by no means ends the difficulties of the Republicans. The feeling between the Thompson and Reed factions is altogether too bitter to be healed by any such means as this. The followers of Mr. Reed will see that the attitude of Mr. Thompson has forced their man out of the race, and they will proceed to "get hunk" with him in the usual Republican fashion. Even the fine hand of General Sewell will be unable to smooth over the trouble and Somerset will be represented in the Senate, next winter, by a good Democrat."

Repaired by Traction Company
(Special to The Daily Press

Lincoln, August 22—The New York and Philadelphia Traction Company has just completed some much-needed repairs to the main thoroughfare of this place along which the trolley line from Dunellen to Bound Brook runs. The road was macadamized when the line was first built, but heavy carting cut the macadam badly, while the laying of water pipes did not improve it. A new surface of crushed stone has now been laid and rolled.

Visiting Old Friends.

Rev. Charles B. LAWYER WANTS HIS PAY

STARTED DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS, WHICH WERE FINALLY DROPPED.

Lawyer John F. O'Donnell Wants Mrs Frank Huff to Pay Him $175 for Legal Services in Suit She Started.

What promises to be a very interesting result of a discontinued suit for divorce will come up for trial next Monday morning in Justice Moffett's court.

It appears that several months ago Mrs. Huff, wife of Frank Huff, of this city, sought the legal advice of Attorney John F. O'Donnell, of 309 Broadway, New York, for the purpose of suing for a divorce from her husband. The fees for the preliminary proceedings amounted, according to Mr. O'Donnell, to $175. After the suit had been started Mrs. Huff notified Mr. O'Donnell that she had decided to remain with her husband and not sue for a divorce, as she was well satisfied.

Mr. O'Donnell claims that Mrs. Huff did not pay him his fees and he now brings suit for the money. He is represented in this city by Lawyer Isaac P. Runyon, who has instituted the suit.

Mr. O'Donnell was in Plainfield yesterday for the purpose of pushing his case, but Mrs. Huff's lawyer, S. S. Swackhamer, was not ready and it was adjourned for one week. The case will be tried before Justice Moffett and a jury.

WESTERN UNION BLANKS.

Used for Fake Messages to Flim-flam the Ignorant.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Aug. 22—This city is the mecca for all kinds of petty games to flim flam people out of small sums of money. Last week it was by forged checks and raised bills, and now it is the fake telegraph message.

Some boys, or a man and a boy, have been getting small sums out of poor women by this method. The plan has been to fill out a fake message on a Western Union blank and charge for delivery anywhere from 50 to 80 cents. The game was usually played on some wash-woman, the message purporting to come from some customer.

The police made several arrests, but the cases were dismissed for lack of evidence. In all cases the messages were on Western Union blanks, some on receiving and some on ordinary sending blanks, which has led the police to believe that the ones doing the work either are now or were with that company.

Louis Says Nay.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 22—Mary Bird, who has been employed at the Westfield depot for four years past as a sort of janitress, has been discharged, and Louis, the Italian, who has bootblack stands at the station, has been informed that when his present contract expires he will be expected to pay $25 per year and do the work heretofore performed by Mary Bird for the privilege of the bootblack stands. Louis has declined the contract.

At the Fresh-Air Camp.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will have charge of the meeting at the Westfield Fresh-Air Camp Thursday evening of this week. Some of the young people will go on their wheels leaving the church at 7 o'clock, while others will take the train leaving the North Avenue station at 7:06. All friends of the society are invited to join them.

Crozier Graduates in New Jersey.

Six young men of the last graduating class at Crozier are settled over Baptist churches in New Jersey. They are Rev. J. M. Stifler, Jr., Roselle; Rev. Thomas C. Bird, at Old Baldge; Rev. C. M. Angle, at Trenton Fifth church; Rev. S. R. Stratton, at Pleasantville; Rev. B. H. Carpenter, at Toms River, and Rev. W. H. Stringer, at Berlin.

Almost the Last Chance.

This is one of the very best times in the year to go to Asbury Park and an opportunity is offered to Plainfielders to spend Thursday at this popular resort. On that day the members of the Warren chapel and their friends will go there for the day. Fine weather is predicted and a good time is promised all.

470 Local Telephones.

The number of subscribers to the local exchange of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has been steadily increasing until it has now reached 470. Before the end of the year Manager Charles W. Runyon expects to have the number up to 500.

WASHINGTONVILLE WANTS POSTOFFICE.

Will Petition Postmaster-General For One.

NOW TWO MILES FROM ONE.

MOST OF THE PEOPLE HAVE TO COME TO PLAINFIELD.

Warrenville and Gallia Have Distinct Offices at Present—Washingtonville Says It is More Entitled to Office Than They Are—Petition is Signed By All Prominent Citizens—Gives the Reasons

Washingtonville wants a postoffice of its own. It has long wanted one, but now steps are being taken to bring these hopes to a successful realization. A petition has been drawn up and signed by all the prominent residents of that district. It sets forth the reasons why Washingtonville is entitled to an office. The petition will be presented to the Postmaster-General at Washington next week.

Most of the residents of Washingtonville and vicinity now have to drive to Plainfield, a distance of two and a half miles, to secure their mail. Others go to Warrenville which is two miles in the other direction. At Warrenville there are twenty-nine families that have the benefit of the office located there. Two miles further away is Gallia, commonly called Mt. Bethel, where thirty-two families benefit from a postoffice located there.

The mail intended for these offices is carried by a wagon that goes from the Plainfield postoffice through the Gap and the Washington Valley, passing right through Washingtonville. The expense to the Government, the residents of Washingtonville claim, would be but slightly more to drop off the mail in Washingtonville.

Washingtonville has, they say, a greater right to a distinct service than these other places mentioned. In Washingtonville there are forty families that would be benefited by a distinct service there. Then Washingtonville has a grocery, a feed store, a hotel, a restaurant, an ice company, a stock and a poultry farm, a glove manufactory and two stone quarries.

All these industries in and near Washingtonville would give the post office, should one be established there a fair revenue from the sale of stamps. The new settlement at Somerset Park where a number of new houses are in the course of erection or are soon to be started is advanced as another argument in favor of the office.

The people of that neighborhood are in one accord regarding the pos. office. They all want it and there wa. no trouble at all in securing the signatures of the leading township officials and property owners for the petition. There are seventy names attached to the petition.

ROLFE'S ROBBERY NO JOKE.

Thought His Friends Had His $700 Roll, But They Deny It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Aug. 22—Augustus Rolfe, proprietor of a local cafe, is now mourning the loss of $700 which he says was taken from him while he slept early Saturday morning in the presence of those whom he supposed were his friends. As soon as he awoke Rolfe noticed that the money was gone but he smiled, thinking that his friends had played a joke on him. Saturday evening Rolfe thought it was time to know what had become of his money. Instead of his friends turning it over to him with a laugh as he had expected, they appeared amazed at the loss and all asserted that they knew nothing of its whereabouts. Yesterday Charles Brayton was arrested on a charge of larceny preferred by Rolfe. He asserts that he knows nothing about the missing money.

DEVICE TO PREVENT REFILLING A BOTTLE.

It Is the Invention of Chas. Overbaugh, of This City.

SAID TO WORK PERFECTLY.

$125,000 STOCK COMPANY TO MANUFACTURE IT.

Mr. Overbaugh Has Solved the Question That Has Been Puzzling Inventors for Years—The Device is a Simple One Which Will Act Effectively—The Incorporators of the Proposed Company.

Charles Overbaugh, of this city, has, after four years of hard work and study, succeeded in inventing a non-refilling bottle. To all appearances Mr. Overbaugh has solved a question that has been puzzling inventors for years. It is claimed that there are no less than three thousand inventions along the same line, but Mr. Overbaugh says he has successfully outwitted his competitors. In view of what he has accomplished a company was organized today with a capital of $125,000. The incorporators are Chas. Overbaugh, who is president and inventor; N. B. Smalley, secretary; Geo. Voehl, treasurer; David Smalley and John E. Beerbower. Reed & Codington have drawn up the papers necessary and the company will begin work at once.

The purpose of the invention is to prevent any person from filling a bottle again after it has been filled and emptied, and in the sale of whiskies, liquors, etc., it will prove especially desirable, for probably in no other business is such deception practiced. A certain kind of liquor is sold to a dealer and after the contents are sold he is apt to fill the bottle with an inferior article. With this invention such practices are impossible. The arrangement is all in the neck of the bottle and resembles an ordinary filter. Inside there are two small balls, one that will float and another of hard substance that will not. Liquid is easily poured from the bottle, but the small balls inside prevent it being poured back or refilled. The neck of the bottle is a little longer than the ordinary, but does not detract from the appearance of it. Mr. Overbaugh has demonstrated beyond doubt the success of his patent and there seems to be no question as to it.

On Monday next Mr. Overbaugh will have the patent on exhibition when all persons interested can see it.

SMITH FAMILY REUNION.

To be Held Near Peapack a Week From Next Wednesday.

Peapack, Aug. 22.—The twenty-fourth annual reunion of the Smith family and friends will be held in the grove on the farm of the late Peter Z. Smith, one mile east of Peapack, at 10 a. m., Wednesday, Aug. 30th.

Rev. T. Walker Jones, of Bedminster, will deliver an address at 2 o'clock. Other addresses will follow. The Raritan Cornet Band will be in attendance to furnish music for the occasion.

All the relations and connections of the family are cordially invited to attend. All are requested to bring their own provisions for the occasion, as no sutler's stands will be allowed on or near the grounds.

The officers of the association are: Isaiah Smith, President; Abraham Smith, vice president; James C. Smith, secretary; J. D. Smith, treasurer.

"PENNSY'S" TROLLEY LINE.

A Small Road Which Gave Rise to Big Reports.

The filing by the Pennsylvania Railroad with the Secretary of State of New Jersey of a map showing the location of a minor trolley line which it is proposed to build in Trenton gave rise to a story of an electric line to be constructed by the company from Jersey City to Washington, D. C. The proposed short line will be built under the charter of the Burlington and Mt. Holly Traction Railroad Company, which permits the company to establish a traction line in any city in New Jersey, but it will in no way connect with the present line of that company from Mt. Holly to Burlington. The officials of the company say there is no intention to build any connected system of trolley linee.

Sues in Tort.

Mary O'Neill, of this city, has instituted a suit in tort against George Leland, also of this city, through her lawyer, Robert M. Clark, on a charge of securing money under false pretences. The plaintiff claims that the defendent secured money from her under an assumed name, and she proposes to get her money back. She claims $100. Lawyer Wm. DeMeza represents the defendant.

FOUND NO PROFIT IN SALE OF MEAT.

So J. Sorenson & Son Have Closed Their Market.

WILL AWAIT BETTER TIMES.

THE WHOLESALE DEALERS EXPLAIN CAUSE OF PRESENT INCREASE.

Say That Increase Has Been Going On for Three Years and That Competition Has Prevented Retail Prices From Increasing Proportionately—A Larger Demand in Prosperous Times.

The doors of the butcher shop of J. Sorensen & Son, on Richmond street, were closed to the public this morning and will remain so for an indefinite length of time. This is a direct result of the general increase in the prices of meat. It wasn't a failure nor an assignment, however. The prices of supplies have risen to such a point that the proprietor decided that there was no money in the business for him at present. So he decided to go out while he could do so in an honorable way and wait until there is a change in the market that will permit the retail dealer to make a fair profit.

A Press reporter visited the offices of the local beef companies this morning to learn just how the situation stood in Plaidfield and the extent of the rise in prices here.

Councilman Ralph I. Tolles, who is at the head of the Union Beef Company, which represents the Armour Company here, gave some interesting facts. The rise has been gradual, he said, for the past three years. It could be accounted for by the increasing demand which came with the advent of more prosperous time. Business was better, people were making more money and consequently lived better. The supply was not equal to the demand and so the price was rising. He laughed at the idea of a beef trust raising the prices. A year ago the live steers were selling at the western yards for $5.25 a hundred weight. Now there was a ready market for the entire supply at $6 65 a hundred weight.

The local butchers, he said, were afraid to make corresponding advances in prices on account of the keeness of the competition between them and that they were all suffering accordingly.

H. S. Taylor, manager of the Plainfield Beef Company, agents for the Swift's, confirmed the statements about the general rise in meats. For every cent of increase in the cost of the beef carcass, the local dealer ought to make an increase of three cents in his retail prices to cover the loss of waste substance in the carcass. At present prices he did not belief there was any profit in retailing here as the retail dealers had been afraid to advance prices proportionately with the rise in the wholesale rate.

CASE WITHDRAWN.

Police Have Not Enough Evidence to Prosecute Bender.

The police authorities have withdrawn the case against Moses Bender, charged with receiving stolen goods. Willie Mullen, the small boy who stole the brass, was cited before Justice Nash yesterday afternoon and given a severe reprimand. Chief Grant gave Bender to understand that the police would keep an eye upon his place and if in the future complaints were made extreme measures will be resorted to. Bender promised that he would be more careful in future what property he bought from boys.

Another Big Deal in Real Estate.

Postmaster Adam Dealaman, of Dunellen, has secured control of thirty acres of land along the Central Railroad, adjoining the Nelson Runyon farm, which has been obtained by S. D. DISPUTED THE WITNESSES.

Captain Dreyfus Gains Four Points in a Spirited Address to the Court.

TESTIMONY IS WEAKENED

Col. Fabre Turns Red in the Face When Demange Puts Him in a Questionable Light.

Proceedings of the Day in a Remarkable Court Martial—Lawyer Labori Is Not Present Owing to the Danger of a Relapse—View of Colonel Picquart.

Rennes, Aug. 22.—The Dreyfus court-martial reconvened at the usual hour.

Maitre Labori was not present. His doctors considered that it would be inadvisable for him to attempt to take part in the proceedings, in view of the danger of a relapse.

The first witness was Colonel Fabre, who deposed that he had discovered a similarity between the handwriting of the accused and that of the bordereau. He reiterated his conviction of the guilt of Dreyfus, saying, "I am sure he wrote that bordereau."

M. Demange asked General Fabre why he was so positive about these things when at the court-martial in 1894 he claimed to have had no personal knowledge of Dreyfus.

Fabre's previous evidence to this effect was then read. As the wide discrepancy between that and his present testimony became evident the witness grew red and stammered an explanation.

Captain Dreyfus then questioned the witness and insisted that Fabre was wrong in his details.

Colonel Abouville was the next witness and he corroborated the statements made by General Fabre.

M. Cochefert, the detective who arrested Dreyfus, told of the test made by De Ciam, who dictated part of the bordereau to Dreyfus. He said the accused exhibited great emotion as he had done also when placed under arrest.

"I thought he was guilty," said Cochefert.

He was careful not to give his present opinion.

Gribelin, keeper of the archives, including the secret dossier, was next called upon, but there was nothing new in his testimony.

Captain Dreyfus then arose, and, speaking calmly, proceeded to refute the testimony of Cochefert and Gribelin. He related the scene of the dictation test.

"I remember it perfectly," said Dreyfus. "I came in from a cold room where I had been waiting. The difference between my writing then and my usual hand was alone due to my cold fingers."

Captain Junck on the stand reiterated the charges that Dreyfus had gambled at a club in Maus and referred to the technical conference of 1893, and other old accusations.

When Captain Junck had finished his testimony Dreyfus, in a sharp, spirited speech, riddled his testimony.

He made four points: First, he never gambled. Second, that he could not have been at the technical conference in 1893 because at the time he was absent in Germany. Third, he had no cousin or other relative in the Department of Foreign Affairs. Fourth, he knew absolutely in June, 1894, that he would not go to the manoeuvres, because he had been officially ordered to the Corps de Troupe for October.

Colonel Picquart said if the court would compare Junck's testimony at the Tavernier and Fabre inquiries, and before the Court of Cassation they would realize their worth. This statement was applauded.

The Paris Turmoil.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Paris is like a city in a state of siege, only that the enemy is within, not without, the gates. Soldiers, Republican guards, police and detectives are everywhere, but the forces of order are necessarily concentrated in the district surrounding St. Joseph's Church and in the Rue de Chabrol where President Guerin, of the anti-Semite League, is still barricaded in his residence.

The excitement is intense, but suppressed. There is fear of a general uprising in some quarters, but the feeling prevails that the Government is fit to cope with all emergencies and that the worst of the rioting is over.

There are 360 persons in the hospital to-day as the result of yesterday's trouble. Eighty persons are still prisoners are of the 15 arrested. Fifty-nine police agents are among the wounded.

The Church of St. Joseph pillaged, its sacred contents burned or broken to atoms, 38 persons injured, and a virtual state of siege in that portion of Paris which includes the Place de la Republique, the Place de la Nation and the house in which M. Guerin, anti-Semite, is barricaded, sums up the result of anarchist riots.

After One Hundred Years.

London, Aug. 22.—Miss Alice McMahon, who at the age of 105 returned to Ireland this week from New York, where she had been for 100 years, was received with cheers whn she landed. She finds not a relative living. She comes to die and be buried near her relatives. She was much affected at Queenstown when she was told that she was on Irish soil.

Father and Son Lynched.

Wetumpka, Ala., Aug. 22.—Peter L. Louin and his fifteen-year-old son, who were under arrest at Electric, near this place, charged with shooting Hall Jordon, a respectable citizen, were taken from jail by a mob of masked men and killed.

London, Aug. 22.—A special dispatch received here from Leghorn, Italy, says that five men have been arrested there on the charge of attacking and wounding some sailors who had come ashore from the United States cruiser Olympia.

FATAL RIOTS IN BOHEMIA.

Four Persons Killed and Others Injured By Gendarmes.

Prague, Bohemia, Aug. 22.—Serious disturbances have taken place at Gradlitz, a town fifteen miles north of Koniggratz, due to racial differences between the Czechs and Austrians. A detachment of gendarmes, who were guarding the municipal buildings were stoned from an adjacent public house. They were unsuccessful in the attempt to clear the house of their assailants, but made several arrests. During the night the gendarmes were fired on, and they charged the mob with drawn swords, the result being that four persons were killed and several others were injured. Troops and further reinforcements of gendarmes were sent to the scene and eventually quiet was restored.

Ingersoll Left Only $10,000.

New York, Aug. 22.—Mrs. Eva A. Ingersoll, widow of the late Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, has filed in the office of the Surrogate of Westchester County at White Plains a bond for $20,000 as administratrix of the estate of her husband. The bond is signed by her and by Mrs. Eva R. I. Brown, wife of Walston H. Brown, and Clinton B. Farrell. Mrs. Brown swears that she is the owner of the estate at Dobbs Ferry known as Walston, where Col. Ingersoll died, and that it is valued at $50,000. Mrs. Ingersoll, the widow, swears that she has made diligent search for the will of her husband, but that to the best of her knowledge and belief he died intestate. The value of his personal property is estimated by her to be $10,000. At the time of his death he held no real property. The heirs to the estate are Mrs. Ingersoll, the widow, Mrs. Eva R. Brown and Miss Maude Ingersoll ,the next of kin.

Zinc Ore Combination.

Denver, Col., Aug. 22.—A combination among zinc mine operators at Joplin, Mo., to demand $46 per ton for ore carrying 60 per cent. of metal, is to be fought by the refineries. Representatives of several large concerns are now in Colorado contracting for ore. E. W. Humphreys of Uplande, Ind., owner of a large refinery, and J. R. Crowe of Weir City, Kan., have engaged the services of an expert, and are exmining several Colorado properties said to yield a good percentage of zinc ore. Mr. Humphreys has already obtained three large properties and has over 100 men at work. A deal is probably to go through for a dozen silver mines in the state that can supply ore carrying 40 per cent. of zinc.

Poisoned By Sardines.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 22.—Mrs. James Mott and her four children, ranging in age from two to ten years, are critically ill from ptomaine poisoning. Doctors have worked over them since Saturday night. On Saturday night Mrs. Mott purchased canned sardines at a grocery store and she and her four children ate them at supper. Late in the night they were taken ill. A physician diagnosed their complaint as ptomaine poisoning and sent for aid. It is announced by the physicians that all will recover.

Director of Cuban Census Appointed.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Secretary Root has signed the order for the Cuban census. The order appoints Lieut.-Col. Joseph P. Sanger, director of the census, and Victor H. Olmstead, assistant director. It was at first intended Mr. Olmstead should be director and Col. Sanger superintendent for the War Department. The change places the direction of the census more emphatically under the control of the War Department. The census is to be completed by November 30.

Accident in Yacht Race.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—An accident marred the first day's yacht races between Beaver, the Canadian yacht, and Genesee, the American challenger for the Canada's Cup. Immediately after the yachts had gone over the line Beaver's cross-trees broke and her sails dropped. She was at once taken in tow and pulled back to her moorings. Genesee went on alone over the 21-mile course.

Mrs. Wm. H. Ludlow, of Jackson avenue, says:-" I was troubled with kidney complaint, backache and a sort of dull pain across my loins for several years. If I sat for any length of time and tried to rise I had a sharp pain in the kidneys. Walking any distance or much standing aggravated the difficulty. I could not rest well at night from the fact that I had to be constantly changing about from one position to another trying to free myself from pain. I used quite a number of remedies but got no permanent relief. I was prevailed upon to get Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store. In justice to them I must say they did me a great deal of good. It is seldom that I feel any pain in my back and when I do a few doses of this remedy never fails to relieve me. I know others who have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. From my experience I can honestly recommend to all who suffer from Kidney troubles."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

THE MINISTRY FORCED OUT

Fight Between Conservatives and the Prussian Government on in Earnest.

CAUSES BIG SENSATION.

The Resignation of Prussian Ministry Has Been Accepted by the Emperor.

Political Excitement Greater Among Germans Than Has Been Known For Many Years — The Socialists Applaud Firmness of the Agrarian Junkers.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—The Tageblatt says that the Emperor has accepted the resignation of the Prussian Ministry.

The fight between the Conservatives and the Government is on in earnest. In the Diet a new measure reorganizing the tribunals in Berlin and the suburbs, introduced by the Minister of the Interior, Baron von de Reche, was rejected.

It became known that Von de Reche threatened those deputies who are also officeholders with dismissal if they voted against the Canal bill. Because of this the Conservatives resolved not to pass any bill submitted by the Minister of the Interior.

This action has caused a big sensation, and is believed to indicate that the Conservatives have entered a finish fight with the Kaiser.

There has been no such political excitement among all Germans in many a year.

The Berlin newspapers recognize that the rejection of the Government's canal scheme marks an epoch in political history. The Socialists are applauding the firmness of the Agrarian junkers in upholding the sacred principles of constitutional right. There is much talk of a dissolution of the Prussian Diet, but this is not likely to occur until the Upper House has approved the new code of laws for 1900.

Shot His Brother By Mistake.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Ralph H. Robbins, of Warren, Mass., is dead here, the victim of a mistake made by his brother William. The young men were hunting in the woods near Seventh Lake. Ralph was in the thick underbrush beating about, and William, thinking it was a deer making the disturbance, fired blindly into the bushes. He ran into the bush with knife drawn, ready to dispatch the deer that he believed he had shot, and almost fainted when he found that his bullet had pierced his brother's breast. The boy died before a doctor could reach the spot. William is superintendent of manual training at the Passaic public schools.

To Honor Vasco Da Gama.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 22—The Portuguese of Boston are to celebrate the quadri-centennial of the voyage of Vasco Da Gama after discovering the passage of India. The festivities will be held on August 29 and 30, and city and state officers have promised to be present. The Portuguese colony is not a very large one in Boston, but it is very progressive, and it expects to spend many thousands of dollars in this celebration.

Failed to Save a Bather.

Seaside Park, N. J., Aug. 22.—D. F. Platt, of New York, and Slocovitch, the Harvard football player, are at Berkeley Arms in a weak condition, the result of a vain attempt to save the life of a bather. The man who was drowned was H. C. Spanton, of East Orange. He was caught in an eddy and the two swam out to get him. They themselves got ashore only to fall unconscious.

Robbers Use Bicycles.

Meriden, Conn., Aug. 22.—Masked highwaymen on bicycles are terrorizing this neighborhood. George W. Holmes, and John Shandon are the latest victims. They were rushed upon by three men who sprang from their wheels and assaulted them with clubs. When the astonished men gave up their money the robbers scorched away on their wheels.

Diaz Will Visit Chicago.

Mexico, Aug. 22.—President Diaz will ask his Congress to let him visit Chicago in response to the invitation of a committee of business men. The President of the Mexican Republic may not cross its borders without the permission of congress. Diaz entertained the Chicagoans.

Prison Delivery Foiled.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22.—Capt. Thorne, post commander at Fort Sheridan, has discovered that a well laid plan has been perfected for a general delivery of prisoners confined in the post guard house. Friends of the prisoners succeeded in smuggling in a large supply of files and knives.

Ice Pack Moves South.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 22.—The ice pack along the fishing coast is becoming denser and is interfering with the most ordinary work of the fishermen. Many boats are arriving here with reports of vast quantities of ice that have come further south than ever before.

Police Take Gambling Devices.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 22.—Gambling paraphernalia worth $1,500 is in the hands of the police. E. C. Mosher, of New York, was arraigned in the police court charged with being the manager of the resort where the stuff was seized. Summer residents urged the police to make this raid.

Cadets Visit West Point.

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 22.—The cruiser Annapolis is here with a crew of naval cadents on a formal visit to the post. The boys are entertained by the military cadets on shore. The Annapolis called here six weeks ago, but none of the boys came ashore because there was scarlet fever aboard.

STRIKE A SECOND TIME

Boilermaker Fitters Go Out Again at Elizabeth, N. J.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 22.—The boilermaker fitters and other workmen employed at Nixon's shipyards have gone on strike again and organized a secret meeting at Mitchell's Hall. The meeting opened in an uproar and promised to be exciting.

These men a short time ago, after staying out two weeks, were induced by their wives to return to work against the order of the Freeport Section of the Boilermaker's Association. They returned to work on Wednesday last, declaring that as they were on a piece work scale they would stay.

Mr. Nixon said he would wait until he learned what action the men take or approach him with a proposition.

Superintendent Charles Ackerman was informed by a committee of the men that a telegram had been received from the Grand Lodge of the Boilermakers' Association at Kansas City ordering them out. The telegram ordered the men to stand fast until the terms of the circular issued by the Grand Lodge at Kansas City on Aug. 1, demanding nine hours were complied with.

Where the men worked by the piece system they could report at any time between 7 and 8 in the morning, and leave when they felt inclined. In most yards workers are required to report sharply at 7, and work steadily until 5 in the afternoon. There are two torpedo boats and a monitor being built at the Nixon ship yards for the United States Government, with a time limit for completion.

About eighty men and helpers are on strike.

Couldn't Corner Milk Market.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Joseph Leiter, who almost cornered the wheat market once, has just failed in an attempt to corner the milk market of this city.

JOSEPH LEITER.

He had his trust almost completed when two or three dealers began to make a disturbance and the whole scheme fell to pieces. He had great trouble getting back the letters he had written to milkmen.

War Cloud Thickens.

Cape Town, Aug. 22.—The report that the Transvaal Government had handed its reply to the British agent at Pretoria, to be forwarded to Sir Alfred Milner, British High Commissioner for South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, is confirmed. It is believed, however, that the proposition of Great Britain for a joint commission to investigate the effort which the franchise reform legislation would have on the Outlanders has not been accepted, but that fresh proposals have been advanced.

According to Afrikander reports the Transvaal's reply is a counter proposal of a five years' retrospective franchise in the election of the President and an increase in representation. It is said that the suggestion is made to submit all other differences to arbitration.

Judge Blizzard Was Firm.

Glenville, W. Va., Aug. 22.—Judge Blizzard of the Circuit Court of this district has just ruled in some interesting cases of contempt of court. When holding court in Clay County recently the judge was compelled to send to Nicholas county for a special venire of jurors. Fourteen of those summoned did not respond and the judge had them arrested for contempt. Three of the defendants gave reasonable excuses for their inattention to the orders of the court. Eleven other men were unable to explain their non-appearance satisfactorily and each was fined $50 and costs. The incident is attracting much attention in the State courts.

Two States Again at Law.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 22.—Further proceedings in the famous boundary dispute between West Virginia and Maryland will be held at once. Depositions for both sides will be taken and the work will be continued at various places in the state until finished. For years a dispute over the possession of a certain section of valuable territory has been waged by the two States, and much inconvenience has been caused by the confusion to residents of the contested country.

Saw His Rescuer Drowned.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22.—Joseph W. Crutcher, a newsboy, fifteen years old, was drowned in the lake at the foot of Fifteenth street. A year ago Crutcher saved Blaine Lisles from drowning, and Lisles made a desperate effort to save the boy to whom he owed his life. Crutcher sank, and though Lisles dived many times he could not find the body. Crutcher and Lisles have lived together since they were little more than babies, shifting for themselves.

Pennies Bear Dangerous Germs.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22.—The sensational discovery has been made that the copper penny is an especially good medium for distributing disease germs. A large number was collected from school children here and only one was found free from dangerous germs. On many the germs could be seen with the naked eye. A movement will be started to have some other metal used in making pennies.

Last fall I went to a doctor who was recommended to me as a good one and with quite a reputation. He gave me medicines for nearly six weeks, and I got no benefit that I could see. A friend of mine called one evening and told me he had been using for a short time and had never found anything that helped his stomach and liver troubles as much as they did. He handed me a circular about them, which I read, and concluded that they were just what I needed and would fit my case exactly. I went over to the drug store and got a 50-cent box of them, out of which I took two a day for awhile, and within three days noticed and felt much improvem nt. That was about the middle of December. Last February I got another box of the Tabules and took part of them only, as I was feeling so much better that I didn't think I needed any more. I now feel no pain whatever in my stomach, liver and bowels active and regular, and eat like a well man should eat.

BISHOP FEARS ASSASSINS.

Polish Prelate in Chicago Makes His Will on This Account.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 22.—The "Record" says: "In the presence of the parochial committee of All Saint's Church—the first independent Polish Catholic Church of this city—Bishop Anthony Kozlowski, head of the independent church movement in this country, made his last will and testament. He bequeaths all of his property to the church which he founded. In explaining his action in making his will the bishop said: " 'I make my last will and testament now because I believe the enemies of the Independent Church movement may murder me at any time. They incite religious fanatics, who believe that killing me would be an act which would take them straight to heaven and make saints of them. Within the last month I have been attacked three times. Stones, clubs and iron were hurled at me, and in the last instance a man attacked me with a club."

Alleged Crooked Racing.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 22.—There was a bombshell for the men who have been indulging in peculiar racing at the end of the contests here last evening. The stewards took snap judgment on two horses and not only punished the horses but owners, jockeys and trainers.

The steeplechase, which was run yesterday afternoon, caused this radical decree. The race was queer from the beginning. Three of the seven starters were heavily backed by the public and when they fell at the first obstruction there was suspicion of dishonest work. An investigation was set on foot immediately.

As a result of it the horse Mr. Dunlop and the horse Populist were considered to have been the means of unfair work. C. W. Penniston, the owner of Mr. Dunlop; Southwood, the jockey, and William Nixon, the trainer, were ordered to leave the track and not appear again on it.

The same judgment was meted out to M. J. Maloney, the owner of Populist; Pope, the trainer and Moxley, the jockey.

This amounts to a suspension. The matter will be aken before the National Steeplechase Association.

Nipped in the Bud.

New York, Aug. 22.—Evidence of the desperate character of William Neufeldt, who is charged with killing Mrs. Annie Kronman, is coming to light daily. The police say that since he came here from Joliet Prison he has organized a band of thieves from among the ex-convicts that frequent the East Houston street cafes. Some of the members are Chicago crooks whom he invited here. The gang, it is said, had planned a trip along the shores of Long Island Sound, where they could prey upon wealthy residents. It is said that it was to raise money for this trip that Neufeldt went to Mrs. Kronman's flat to get the jewelry. His arrest probably stopped a series of crimes.

Seventy Miners Dead.

Seattle, Aug. 22.—Out of 1,000 men who went into the Kotzebue country last fall more than 7 per cent. have died from scurvy or met tragic deaths. This is the statement of J. K. Jones of Sycamore, Ill., brother-in-law of the Rev. W. S. Harrington of Seattle. Mr. Jones arrived on the Roanoke which also brought thirty-five men who have been afflicted with disease.

Bridge Workers Drowned.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 22.—Four men were drowned in a cofferdam at South tract Co., of New York, is building a Company, of New York, is building a bridge for the Midland Railway. The dead are:—Luke Peters, James Wilkes, William Donegan, "Con" Dacey, alias James Donahue. The first three, who were expert bridge workmen, belonged in New York.

The Pope's Health.

Rome, Aug. 22.—The Pope is in unusually good health and believes that he will live to see the end of 1900. He expressed that belief at the celebration of St. Joachim's day—his name day. His Holiness assisted at the impressive function in the Vatican and afterwards walked into the library unsupported and there received the cardinals and high prelates.

Soldiers and Negroes in Riot.

Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 22.—A riot between the soldiers of the Thirty-second Volunteer Regiment and North Leavenworth negroes took place here. Corporal Johnson was shot in the leg. Alexander Johnson was shot in the shoulder and is seriously injured.

Present Their Grievances.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 22.—General Superintendent Russell and the Lackawanna Engineers' Grievance Committee resumed their conferences, but the session ended without result.

40,000 Die From Hunger.

London, Aug. 22.—The Church Missionary Society has received a report stating that 40,000 persons have died of famine on the east coast of Africa.

A Colorado City Destroyed.

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 22.—Fire has destroyed entirely the business portion of the city of Victor, causing a loss estimated at $2,000,000.

Close Figuring.

The friends of a popular preacher who recently died in Louisville, Ky., undertook to raise a fund for his family. One man gave his note for ninety days for a certain amount, and when the committee explained to him that cash was needed he agreed to pay the note in cash if the committee would discount it, which was done.

The Hagfish.

There is a creature known as the hagfish, or myxine, which is in the habit of getting inside cod and similar fish and devouring the interior until only the skin and the skeleton are left.

Observer—Do you think that you can ever learn to ride a wheel?

Beginner—Indeed, I do. After the difficulties I have surmounted in getting one, I feel competent to accomplish anything.

NINE SOLDIERS DROWNED.

Serious Mishap to a Reconnoitering Party in the Philippines.

BIG RAFT SPLITS IN TWO

Soldiers Make Desperate Efforts to Save Their Comrades When Raft Collapses.

Transport Tartar Arrives at Manila With Gen. Wheeler and Two Battalions of Nineteenth Infantry—Hope Expressed That War Will End Before Congress Meets.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Secretary Root's departure for Lake Champlain is believed to have in it more than the routine visit of a Cabinet officer for consultation with the President on the affairs of his department. President Schurman of the Philippine Commission left Chicago for Ithaca, and it is expected that his report to the President on the condition of affairs will be the subject of consideration in which Secretary Root will be able to gain additional information.

The need of additional transports has been cited specially to Root's attention, and the Secretary has directed that every effort shall be made to insure the landing of all the troops possible in season for operations that it is hoped will suppress the insurrection before Congress meets.

There is a hopeful air in the War Department which, no doubt, is due to rumored information from Manila that the failure of Aguinaldo's recent appeal to the Powers for recognition has disheartened the Filipinos.

It is believed that the Filipinos, on discovering the sending of twenty new regiments, will be ready to desert their leaders when the work of occupation is renewed on the comprehensive plans already mapped out. The ability of the Americans to garrison captured towns and protect the native inhabitants from raids and interference while they are engaged in establishing civil governments must have its effect.

Everybody has agreed that if the capture of Aguinaldo can be accomplished the rebellion wil collapse speedily. On this subject the views of Professor Schurman will be exceedingly valuable, and, in the conference at Lake Champlain, there is a possibility that this feature of the campaign can be elaborated with a promise of success. The endeavor of Aguinaldo to stir up strife in the other islands that he may be able to divert part of the American forces from Luzon and thus lessen his own danger, will hardly succeed. Little heed will be given to uprisings in the smaller islands while the American forces are moving on the native chieftain from so many directions that his escape will hardly be possible.

Their Raft Collapsed.

Manila, Aug. 22.—A reconnoitering party of the 24th Infantry, under Capt. Crane, went up the Marquina Valley. In crossing the Mateo River the raft on which they were floating split in two, and nine men were drowned. Capt. Crane was saved.

As soon as the raft collapsed and the gravity of the situation was comprehended, the best swimmers among the soldiers on board put forth every effort to save the lives of their comrades who were unable to reach the shore. In their efforts along this line they were successful in rescuing at least a dozen who would have perished had they been left alone in their struggles against the swift current. Several clung to the wrecked raft and were rescued with boats further down the stream.

Wheeler Arrives at Manila.

Manila, Aug. 22.—The United States transport Tartar, from San Francisco, with Gen. Joseph Wheeler and two battalions of the 19th Infantry on board, has arrived here, but the troops are unable to land owing to the typhoon which is raging.

Orders to Volunteers.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The Secretary of War has issued an order directing that the Twenty-sixth Regiment be relieved from duty at Plattsburg, and proceed by rail via Boston and Providence, R. I., to San Francisco for embarkation for the Philippines.

Carter Holds Best Record.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 22.—William Carter holds the quick wedding record. He is seventy-six years old and was looking for a seventh wife when he met Mrs. Carrie Kummer. He proposed as soon as he was introduced, got a license in five minutes and was married at once. The entire process took but ten minutes. The bride is fifty-four years old.

Rescued by the Montgomery.

Rio Janeiro, Aug. 22.—The United States cruiser Montgomery has arrived here from Montevideo. She reports having rescued the crew of the British steamer Nettleton, Captain Vigors, from Norfolk, July 25, for Rio Janeiro, which went aground at Marica, twenty miles east of the port.

Bridge Destroyed by Tide.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 22.—An unusually high tide destroyed the bridge at Carson's Inlet, and a temporary ferry must be established before the guests at Stone Harbor, Avalon and neighboring places can visit Atlantic City.

Pittsburg Financier Dead.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 22.—Alexander Bradley, President of the Tradesmen's National Bank and the Pittsburg Insurance Company, and a millionaire of this city, is dead. He was eighty-seven years old.

Oporto to Be Isolated.

Lisbon, Aug. 22.—The Sanitary Board has decided to isolate Oporto by means of a sanitary cordon in consequence of the prevalence of bubonic plague there.

When You Are Away

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

New Jersey and the Ramapo Job.

The Ramapo water contract jobbery, which has been a fruitful topic for New York for the past week, is not without its interest in New Jersey. Part of the Ramapo district, from which it is calculated to get the immense water supply for sale in New York, is located in New Jersey, and to divert the waters of this section into another State would be a controversion of proper rights that should not be allowed to pass unnoticed by New Jersey. Several New Jersey streams also find their source in the Ramapo district and the diversion of the source of these streams into acqueducts, from where the water would be pumped into New York, would necessarily mean a reduction in the volume of water flowing in the water-ways of New Jersey. From principles of riparian laws already settled upon by the courts it would seem that this condition of affairs would not be tolerated.

It is stated that the East Jersey Water Company and those identified with it were at one time the owners of practically all the important riparian rights in the Ramapo in New Jersey and it is now stated positively that the East Jersey Water Company and the men identified with it have been made a part of the Ramapo project.

A prominent New York man, in a position to know, says that the stock of the Ramapo Water Company, was freely distributed in the New York Legislature at the time the law establishing the rights and powers of the company was enacted a few years ago, and he said the influence at work through the corporation were so far-reaching and so influential that he believed the city could only escape the clutches of this concern through the determined action of its citizens and taxpayers.

THE SHAMROCK IN CRUISER GARB.

The illustration shows the challenger Shamrock under cruiser rig as she appeared when setting sail for her trip across the Atlantic. She will look altogether different, as to sails, when she is rigged to contest with the Columbia for the America's Cup. Good judges, on both sides, say the Shamrock is a hard one to beat.

Oranges to Become Cities.

The spirit of municipal consolidation having departed from the Plainfields, it seems to have alighted in the Oranges, where, because of the revised township law adopted by the last Legislature, which goes into effect Feb. 25th next, it is probable that two of the Oranges will change their form of government.

East Orange has the proposition to incorporate as a third-class city well under way, and there is little doubt that the scheme will be carried out, as the township, with its 22,000 population, feels too large for the limited municipal powers allowed by the revised law, which provides the same form of government for every township in the State, reduces the number of members of the Township Committee to three and otherwise restricts local legislation and also improvements.

West Orange citizens and officials are unwilling to accept the provisions of the new law, and it is probable that the question of either incorporating as a third-class city or consolidating with the city of Orange will be submitted to a vote at the fall election.

Many Roselle people who are anxious to have the street railway matter settled, and the road in operation, are criticising the Borough Council for submitting the ordinance offered by the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway to Frank Bergen for criticism and approval. Mr. Bergen is the Borough Counsel, but he is also the projector of the county boulevard trolley scheme. While no one questions Mr. Bergen's fairness, they think it is placing too much on him to ask him to pass on a franchise for his opponents.

The recent epidemic of assaults by negroes upon white women at Little Rock calls forth from the Memphis Commercial Appeal the following: "If the guilty party or parties should be caught short shrift will be given. To give such a wretch a formal trial and execution would be to make a farce of law and to desecrate the sacred infamy of the gallows. As well try and execute a mad dog, a cobra, a tiger or any other savage animal." "Benovolent assimilation" is evidently one of the needs of the south.

Having enjoyed the baby parade Asbury Park is now ready to spend the rest of the summer in peaceful content.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

When Rev. Peter Stryker, of Asbury Park, recently occupied the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church in this city he had the pleasure of meeting P. P. VanArsdale. Inasmuch as both are beyond the allotted age in this life, and having known each other for over fifty years, the meeting was a most pleasant one. Mr. VanArsdale knew Rev. Mr. Stryker when he first entered the ministry at the age of twenty-one. They spent a very pleasant afternoon together indulging in reminiscent talk, and a few days ago Mr. VanArsdale received the following blank verse dedicated to him as a remembrance of that visit of old friends:

How peaceful is this summer Sabbath eve!
The sun is setting in the west, and as
We watch the golden tints in deeper blush.
We almost see the gates of glory ope,
And hear the far-off notes of angels, as
They come to us from the celestial sphere.

This is an hour, and this the happy place
When heaven comes down our souls to greet, and where
We sit in conclave sweet with God Triune,
Soon will we reach the blessed summer land,
And hail the Sabbath which will never end.

Fair Plainfield, we will ere remember thee
And those, with whom in converse dear, these hours
Have passed so lovingly.

The Elizabeth Journal says that two well-known Plainfield youths, who took in the Cranford carnival, spent Saturday night in the cars of the Central Railroad. After seeing all they wanted of the carnival they took a train for home, but getting to sleep, they were carried to Bound Brook There they had to remain until after 2 o'clock Sunday morning waiting for a return train. Once on the train they again went to sleep and did not awaken until this city was reached. When seen early Sunday morning they were seated on top of two trunks at the Elizabeth depot, fast asleep again, and a Plainfield-bound train stopped and started again before they awakened. It is not known when they reached their homes.

THEATRICAL.

The Kennedy Players made their appearance in Music Hall last night with new interest because of the debut of Miss Nellie Kennedy as a co-star with her father, John Kennedy, an old favorite with Plainfield theatre goers. Miss Kennedy has been seen here before, but always in minor rules, which, however, have been stepping stones to the stellar place which she is filling now. In "The Midnight Express" she essayed the leading role last night and acted very winningly and creditably. She displays clever talent and was greeted heartily by the audience. "The Midnight Express" is an old dramatic favorite in Plainfield and this season it is being produced with several changes and innovations—the handiwork of its author-actor, Mr. Kennedy—which is quite pleasing and popular. The supporting company is excellent. Tonight the "Little Savage" will be presented. The only matinee will be Saturday afternoon.

Full Dress Suitings

Double-faced plaid golf suiting will be almost universally worn. Splendid, warm, durable and economical goods they are. Require no lining. We are showing some exceedingly choice patterns already, with many others to come as the mills are able to fill orders. Heavy Plaid Sackings also for Golf Capes. They make remarkably stylish garments and are not extravagantly expensive.

Black Crepons

In our opinion no more beautiful goods were ever made from Mohair. Heavy, rich patterns, bright lustre, absolutely fast color, elegant beyond description. The patterns we are showing were selected early and are the best obtainable. Prices 75c to $1.98, the last mentioned we will guarantee to be worth $2.50, or money will be refunded.

Black Goods

Our line of black goods is always complete. Ladies who desire black goods should by all means see our goods. We have a special 46-inch Black Henrietta at $1 per yard, that is exceptional value. French Serges, Broad Cloths, Cheviots, Cashmeres, Velours and Fancy Weaves in variety. Extreme novelties in colored dress goods we carefully avoid, but Broadcloths, Cashmeres, Coverts, Henriettas, Granite Cloths, Cheviots, Storm Serges, Diagonals, etc., we have in the best shades.

New Wash Goods

Flannelettes. The name is very attractive, but the goods are far more so. Rich, warm colors, fine, soft fabrics. We predict for them a very large sale; certainly we know of nothing else so beautiful for inexpensive house dresses.

Outing Flannels

More perfectly finished than ever, and two beautiful to describe. They are pre-eminently the goods for the masses, for everybody from the most humble to the grandest people use them.

About Table Linens

The last large purchase of ours has served simply to whet the appetite of our people for more and has stimulated us to greater efforts along this line. Another large purchase of these goods includes five patterns of 70-inch pure linen damask the actual value of which is 75c per yard. While they last we shall sell them at 50c per yard. We are not sure of being able to get more of the same. If interested BUY NOW. In the same purchase we secured 51 dozen, all hemmed, Huck Towels, 17 x 35. They are selling at 10c each. They are worth 15c each. We show a line of Plaid Glass Towelings that rivals that of any we have seen.

All Summer Goods including Shirt Waists, Crash Skirts, Pique Skirts, and wash goods in general are being shamefully sacrificed to get them out of the way. We have no further use for them and need the room for newer goods.

Come in and get acquainted with us. This is your store as well as ours. With your help we are going to make it an establishment that we may all be proud of.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, August 22—The Board of Education held a meeting Saturday evening to make arrangements with reference to the various grades, with a view to having all children in the fifth and sixth grades, living south of the railroad, attend the school on that side of the borough. After a full discussion it was the sense of the members of the Board that the new superintendent make the desired change in these grades.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowfoot, who are soon to leave for China as missionaries in the interests of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, were given a reception at the home of Mrs. Crowfoot's mother, Mrs. Geo. W. Larkin, Saturday night. Many members of the church and the friends of the young couple were present to wish them Godspeed in their new field of work.

Miss Alice Clawson, who has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. George Wiegand, at Pluckamin, returned home yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday was considered the hottest day of the season in the borough, the thermometer registering 98 in the shade.

C. R. Clawson left yesterday for Westerley, R. I., to attend the annual convention of the Seventh Day Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy and Mr. Fox and Miss Roy were the guests over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Romayne.

Miss Sarah Bergan, who has been engaged in nursing a sick patient at Bound Brook, has returned home.

William Staunch, who has been visiting friends in the borough, has returned to his home in Raritan.

Miss Pauline Kratzel, of Cranford, has been visiting her father, Paul Kratzel.

W. H. Cole has been making some slight improvements about his coal depot.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Randolph spent Sunday with friends at Lake Hopatcong.

John Fenner and his friend have been visiting Mr. VanDorn at Middlebush.

Painters are at work painting the round house of the Central Railroad.

Mayor Swackhamer has been entertaining his sister from Long Island.

Walter Runyon and friend spent Sunday with friends at Cranford.

Henry Garetson went to Seawarren yesterday on business.

Miss Ida Simons is spending a week at Asbury Park.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 22—The death of Benjamin Singer, which occurred in Plainfield Sunday, was a surprise to his friends in the village. Mr. Singer has lived for years on Stony Hill and was considered an authority through this section on hunting and trapping, and his services during the hunting season were often sought, for he always knew where the game was.

NEW MARKET

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.

New Market, August 22—The Dayton family held its first annual reunion at this place Saturday afternoon last at the home of S. A. Dayton. The happy event was held on the lawn and there were about seventy-five people present. The afternoon was passed in a sociable manner by the older folks, while the young people indulged in playing all kinds of games. Later in the afternoon a bountiful repast was served. Rev. Frank Fletcher, pastor of the Baptist church, was present and took an active part in the affair. It was decided by the members of the Dayton family present to hold the re union every year.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, August 22—The residents of Garwood are circulating a petition, which it is proposed to present to the Central Railroad Company, asking that gates be placed at the crossing near the depot in that place. They claim that it is a very dangerous crossing and that besides the ringing of the bell, which tells of the approaching of trains, is a nuisance.

The case against the Italian woman who was charged with keeping a house of ill reputue at Graceland, was dismissed yesterday morning in Justice of the Peace Toucey's court.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. DEED OF HEROISM

Corporal Reno Rescues a Dismounted Trooper Under a Heavy Fire.

Information was received from one of our postal agents in the East regarding a deed of heroism which has so far passed unnoticed in this country. It was performed, says a writer in the Sketch, early after the fight began near Manila, and the correspondent of the China Mail of Hong Kong said that had the hero, Corporal Reno, been an English officer, he would probably have received the iron cross, which is the highest honor in the power of English Sovereign to bestow for valor in the face of the enemy.

A troop of the Fourth United States Cavalry was stationed on the south side of Manila at the time mentioned, under command of Lieut. Carson. The troop had been doing excellent service in reconnoitering work. One day a party of the men, under command of Lieut. Boyd, were sent out to locate the enemy. The party had pushed a long way forward without trouble, and were on the point of returning when the Filipinos appeared from the brush on one side and fired into them. One of the ponies was killed, dismounting Private Davicki and wounding Private Wintler. All hurried to shelter, some 500 yards away, across a deep stream, and it was not until the party had reached it that it was discovered that Private Davicki had been left behind. Without a moment's hesitation Corporal Reno dashed after him, dismounted, placed Davicki in the saddle and brought him in safely to his companions. Reno ran alongside of the pony, his hand on the stirrup. The Filipinos maintained a heavy fire, but the two crossed the stream and rejoined their party without injury.

What makes the case more noticeable is that Reno was a raw recruit, selected by Lieut. Carson to act as Corporal because of his intelligent looks.

Held a Regiment in Check.

The following extract is from a private letter received by a naval officer in Washington from a friend in Manila. It relates to Assistant Engineer Emory Winship of the gunboat Bennington. Mr. Winship is from Georgia and was graduated from the Naval Academy in July, 1896:

"Winship did a fine thing," says the writer. "A landing party of about 125, from the Bennington, went ashore on Malabon in several boats, and a launch remained, with Winship and two men as boatkeepers and to watch steam. The landing party advanced foolishly without scouts and precautions, and were suddenly set upon by a regiment of Filipinos. They fled for the beach to the boats, pursued by the natives, and were hard pressed. Seeing this, Winship unlimbered the revolving cannon in the bow of the launch and turned it loose upon the pursuers. He kept up a deadly fire, and thirty Filipinos were killed or disabled. He stood off the whole gang, enabling our party to get to their boats safely. He then fell, having received five bullets. Tausig says that but for Winship none of the party would have escaped."

Tausig is the commander of the Bennington.

Statistics of Cuban War.

Prof. Arthur Codezo Vinageras, of the Havana Academy of Sciences, has compiled the vital statistics of the late war of Cuba with Spain. He does not claim that it is absolutely accurate, but that it is approximately so.

He estimates the mean population of the island in the years 1895-1898 as 1,546,000, of which 532,000 were colored. Of this number 40 per cent. of whites and 72 per cent. of negroes were illiterate. The percentage of male to female was 54 to 46.

He estimates the number of the Spanish army sent to Cuba during this period as 234,000, and the number of Cubans fitted to take arms as 362,000. Of this number he finds that 71,000 actually rose in arms, while 262,000 remained irresolute. The remainder, almost 30,000, went into exile. The number of armed Cubans killed during the war was 10,300 whites and 6,600 negroes; of unarmed fighting men 11,400 whites and 12,000 negroes.

Weyler's order of reconcentration was responsible, Professor Vinageras estimates, for the death by starvation and disease of 387,000 persons, men, women, and children. Of this number 202,000 were whites. The total loss of Cuban life by the revolution was 418,300. The Cubans in arms at the end of the revolution he estimates at 28,600.

The total loss of the Spaniards was 22,000 in battle and 106,000 by disease.

American Rooster as Mascot.

A rooster taken from Nebraska to Manila by a recruit was named Dewey. This rooster was never whipped. It fought at Camp Merritt, San Francisco; it fought at Camp Otis, Honolulu, and it fought at Camp Santa Mess.

When the boys went aboard the boat at San Francisco they managed by a little scheming, to take the mascot with them.

At Camp Otis there was victory after victory and Dewey was widely known as the victor in every battle, but the career of the noble bird ended Tuesday night, Jan. 24, 1899. The cause of Dewey's death is supposed to have been a very high fever.

The funeral took place the following day immediately after guard mount. The band led the procession, playing a funeral march, and following the corpse was an escort with side arms; a long column of twos followed. A little east of the camp the remains were interred and taps sounded.

The honor done the rooster was because it had a record and had kept it untarnished like the Admiral for whom it was named—the Dewey of Manila Bay.

Increase of Criminals.

Says a Chicago doctor: "The percentage of criminals are increased so rapidly in the past in the United States that we now have one habitual or hereditary criminal in every thousand persons. Criminals propagate, marry and multiply unrestrained, and unless we change our laws, will continue to increase at the same ratio they have in the past, until it is appalling to contemplate the result. If Chicago does not soon have a new code of criminal laws, then it would be wiser to have a Tarpeian Rock, such as the Romans had, from which malefactors and degenerates might be thrown to death."

WRAPS.

Boleros and Jackets of the Prevailing Style.

A novelty in boleros is very short, extending downward only as far as the middle of the back, like an empire bodice. From the edge falls a deep flounce of sun plaited mousseline de soie or lace.

Another novelty is a long cape of white or very light cloth of a soft weave. It is draped like a burnoose at the left side, where it is held in place at the shoulder by an ornamental clasp. Woolen fringe borders the cape, which is lined with white silk. When intended for evening wear, capes of this kind are of crepe de chine, all the fullness being mounted on a richly embroidered square yoke. Deep fringe of knotted silk forms the decoration, and the lining consists of puffings or ruffles of mousseline de soie.

Little capes of a frivolous character, cut so short as to seem merely like wide collars, are used as wraps with thin gowns.

The picture given today shows an attractive bolero of cloth. It reaches the waist to the neck, while in front it is loose and extends downward in two rounded tabs. The revers, edges and seams are finished with stitching, and the bolero fastens by a link across the chest. There is no seam in the middle of the back. The sailor hat of Italian straw has a border and band of black grosgrain and a draping of tulle, making a chou at the side, where black feathers are also placed. JUDIC CHOLLET.

LACE.

It Leads Among Fashionable Trimmings and Accessories.

Lace is the reigning favorite of fashion. Never has it been more worn in all styles and qualities. From the most delicate antique handiwork to the cheapest of modern machine lace there is a place for every variety. Ancestral laces which have been laid away in lavender are now brought forth to enjoy new triumphs not less striking than those of former years.

The products of Brussels, Alencon, Bruges, Valenciennes, the renaissance and other guipures, darkened by age, lend their glories to both simple and luxurious fabrics. They are draped around the shoulders, arranged in cascades or in watteau plaits or form tabliers, panels or flounces. There are also collars, plas-trons and epaulets made in shape and detached lace motifs which may be applied according to the requirements of the garment they are to adorn.

Guipure stoles are another variation. Sometimes they are in the form of a wide panel, covering the front of the bodice and skirt; sometimes they consist of two long bands.

The butterfly hat illustrated is an attractive novelty. It is a round shape, made of mixed braid of straw and horsehair, and is pink. Around the crown is a turban drapery of white tulle and outside that another drapery of black tulle, which forms a sort of ruffle at the back. On the left side is a gigantic black butterfly, speckled with white, the wings being lined with pink. The body and head are of black chenille, the eyes of crystal. Under the brim at the back are arranged shaded pink carnations.

CARE OF THE TEETH.

Dyspepsia Almost Sure to Result If They Are Not Attended to.

One who has bad teeth is almost sure to suffer from indigestion. Why? Well, in the first place, without good teeth one cannot masticate her food properly, and without sufficient mastication the food will not be readily digested in the stomach, and an attack of indigestion is the inevitable result. It should be borne in mind that the digestive process really begins in the mouth; that is, during mastication the food becomes mixed with saliva, which contains a digestive ferment that acts upon certain kinds of food. When this substance is not supplied in sufficient quantity an additional burden is thrown upon the stomach and intestinal digestive apparatus, and the result, an attack of dispepsia.

In the second place teeth with cavities are liable to retain particles of food. These decompose and at the next meal time become dislodged and enter the stomach with food. Once in the stomach, the decomposition goes on apace, and in a short time such symptoms as belching of gas, acid eructation, a sense of weight and burning in the stomach and vomiting of partially digested food appear. These symptoms are all indicative of one thing—fermentative dyspepsia. Those who suffer from this form of ailment will do well to observe the following directions. Have your teeth carefully examined, and, if cavities exist, have them filled at once; always brush the teeth carefully before and after each meal.

Famous Rings.

The smallest wedding ring was that used at the marriage of Mary, daughter of Henry VIII., to the Dauphin of France, son of Francis I. The Dauphin was born February 28, 1518, and as a matter of state policy, and to bring about a union with England, he was married, according to the custom of the time, when 8 months old, to the Princess, who was two years old. She wore a cap of black velvet, covered with jewels, and a dress of cloth of gold. Cardinal Wolsey handed the ring and performed the mass.

The beautiful Miss Gunning, according to Horace Walpole, was married to the Duke of Hamilton with a curtain ring, his grace being hasty. In Mayfair Chapel, and at 12:30 at night. In Ireland, among the impoverished peasants hired wedding rings are often used. In the Greek ceremony the priest gives a silver ring to the bride and a gold one to the groom.

Numerous persons claim to possess the fatal ring given by Elizabeth to the Earl of Essex—the one which the Countess of Nottingham cruelly withheld—while he lay under the sentence of death. It is said that in 1564, when Mary Stuart married Darnley, her royal cousin sent her this very ring in token of her highest regard—regard which history proved worthless. The ring exhibited as that of Lady Francis Devereux, daughter of Essex, appears the most authentic. It was made for a lady's finger and subsequently enlarged, with a portrait of the Queen in sardonyx.

Lady Scroope dropped a sapphire ring from the palace window to announce the death of Elizabeth; her brother hastened with the greatest speed to deliver it to the Scotch Prince.

Rings as tokens or pledges for loans were made for Queen Henrietta while in Holland trying to raise money and troops for her ill-starred husband. "H. M. R." was done in filigree upon them and covered with a crystal. These were to have been redeemed by favors if the royal cause prospered. A topaz set in silver with diamond and rubies was given as pledge to the Penderell brothers for saving Charles II in the oak tree after the battle of Worcester, and a yearly pension of £500 was conferred on the family forever.—Harper's Bazar.

Pussy's Temperament.

Louis Wain, the famous cat painter, professes to believe that a cat owned by a woman is the mirror of its mistress's temperament. He says that if a cat that has been constantly with its mistress is suddenly removed from her society the creature will show the characteristics madam has displayed. If she has been snappish, pussy will scratch; if she has been sulky, pussy will sulk, too. If this were really true, it would pay a prosective husband to steal the cat of his lady love before taking the fatal matrimonial step. As the cat is about the most independent creature alive, one can't help being skeptical of Mr. Wain's theory.

High heels are announced from London. According to the report they are in demand for "ladies moving in the highest circles of society." As the heels are from 3½ to 6 inches in height there can be no question as to the elevated position of those who wear them.

WHEN WOMEN MEET.

THE TOPIC OF CONVERSATION THAT MOST INTERESTS THEM.

It Is Almost Invariably on the Subject of Retaining Youthful Grace—Dieting the Only Safe Method of Reducing Flesh—Use of Drugs for the Purpose Dangerous.

It has been said truthfully that when two women who know each other moderately well are left together their conversation will promptly turn on the subject of flesh. How not to grow stouter and how to get thinner are the phases of the questions with which their talk is most likely to deal. Diet, exercise and even medicines manufactured expressly for the purpose have long been recognized methods of keeping flesh down or getting rid of it after its increase has been too great. At least one of these is known to be unfailing in its effect. Diet will reduce the man or woman most naturally addicted to flesh as well as possessed of it through indulgences that increase this tendency. But diet is based on perfectly natural laws and makes exacting demands that must be satisfied. Somebody said with a seriousness worthy of a greater subject that flesh more than anything else in the world showed that nothing was to be accomplished in this life without a corresponding sacrifice. If work or sacrifice is the secret of everything in this life, it is particularly true of dieting. The process is therefore unpopular, just as walking is when a hansom is at hand. No substitute, however, was ever known to accomplish the same result. "Do you think, doctor," asked a woman of a physician, "that these medicines to reduce people would do me any harm if I stopped eating sweets and starchy food, drank very little wine and took a great deal of exercise? Would it be dangerous then for me to try those medicines?"

"If you are willing to do all those things," was his answer, "it will not be necessary to take any medicine. You will get thin enough without them." The physician explained afterward that he knew what she meant. Taking the medicines was merely intended as an excuse for ignoring the diet or for following it very carelessly.

"The popularity of these remedies for reducing flesh," he said, "comes entirely from the fact that the people who take them are trying to keep from doing without the things which they know it is important for them to give up. So they seek for every excuse. Already the situation has been made easy enough for them. Bread of a very palatable kind is to be had now that is far less fattening than bread used to be, and some of it, if eaten in moderate quantities, is not in the least fattening. Preserves made with a substitute for sugar can be had, and no person need find it now necessary to go without sweetening in tea or coffee. But they want the work made still easier. Last week an intelligent woman came to me with a story about a paste made in Paris. It was somewhat in the nature of an ointment, and could be rubbed into the skin. It was said to have wonderful effect in reducing flesh. 'Tell me, doctor,' she asked, 'can I use it?' I did not see the stuff, and I could have no idea what the elements were, but I told her that it would do as much toward making her thin as rubbing cologne on her hands. Harmful? Possibly; although it is doubtful if the results could ever have been serious, as enough of the stuff would not have been absorbed.

Dress Suits for Boys.

In some families the sons, after they reach their eighth birthday, are required to dress for dinner every night. This does not mean that they are made merely to wash their faces and hands and to put on a clean blouse and sailor suit, but that they are expected to make a careful toilet and to appear in the dining-room in evening dress, a short dinner coat being the proper thing. This is a fine fashion, and mothers who know say that their small boys like it. "Do you know," said one mother, "that every boy whose parents can afford a dress suit for him should provide it and make him put it on every evening. That's good training for a boy. Nothing is better for him than to get into the habit of dressing up, so to speak, and then when he is grown he will not make an everlasting fuss about it, as many men do. I've often wondered whether laziness or pure cussedness was at the bottom of the way some men act about putting on their evening clothes, and I've about decided that it is six of one and half a dozen of the other."—New York Sun.

To Displace the Hatpin.

Although the hatpin in use at present answers its purpose fairly well, there is a demand for something a little more convenient and one which will not have the faculty of becoming mislaid so readily. Another drawback in the use of the present type of hatpin is that it very soon causes unsightly marks in the frame or trimming of the hat. This is true of fabrics of all kinds and colors, but its work is particularly disastrous on those of the more delicate tints. There has recently been invented a little affair which is intended to supersede the hatpin entirely, and which will also be found just where and when it is wanted. It is to be sewed to the hatband on either side. The contrivance consists of a plate provided with means for fastening it to the sweatband and this is provided with a toothed arm working on a pivot or hinge. The latter is manipulated by means of a lever which protrudes downwardly just under the plate and elevating the comb when the lever is depressed. When the hat is adjusted on the head of the wearer the teeth are caused to engage with the hair and the points are locked in any desired position, but are easily disengaged by means of the lever.

TO HOLD WOMEN'S HATS ON.

A PROUD MOMENT

Boy Gets a Ride on the Band Wagon of a Circus Parade.

"The proudest moment of my life," said a Cleveland professional man who was watching the circus parade, came to me when I was ten years old. It didn't happen here. The scene of the memorable affair was the ancient town where I happened to be born. There was a circus there on that ever-to-be-remembered day, and, boylike, I was at the circus grounds bright and early. It was the old Yankee Robison circus, perhaps you remember the name, and one sawdust ring was then considered quite enough. To my mind no modern hippodrome, triple-ringed affair has ever touched the good, old-fashioned tent show for solid enjoyment. Well, I was walking about the Yankee Robison wagon when one of the circus men caught sight of me. I suppose he was somebody in authority. Perhaps I reminded him of a boy at home. Anyway, he picked me out of a small army of other boys.

"'Like a ride?' he asked with a kindly grin.

"I stammered my entire willingness.

"'Up beside the band wagon driver, behind twelve white horses?' the circus man went on.

"He read his answer in my sparkling eyes.

"'Climb,' he cried, and boosted me on to the high seat. The band men were putting on their fancy braided jackets, and in a moment or two we started. What a driver that fellow was! It fairly rained reins all over the dashboard as he steered his duodecimal team into the highway, and how I hung on tooth and nail as the bulky wagon careened.

"Well, we drove around—you notice the 'we'—and went out of town, and then circled about and came back down a long hill, and so on through the entire length of Main street. That hill with the heavy brake on, and the horses plunging and slipping, nearly scared a year's growth out of me, but I forgot it all when we struck Main street. For there my playmates began to recognize me. They jeered me, and taunted me, but what cared I for taunts?

"How did it get out of the cage?" shrieked one embryo humorist, but I only ran my tongue out at him. I knew there wasn't a youngster looking up at me who wouldn't have given his eye teeth to be in my place. And so we swept on, the caparisoned horses proudly curvetting, the band discoursing and diminutive me sitting in throned grandeur beside that mighty son of Jehu.

"Yes, sir, that was the very proudest moment of my life."—Cleveland Leader.

A Rattlesnake Eater.

Moses Henderson is a sable son of Africa and lives two miles from Americus, Ga., in a rocky field, where rattlesnakes are most plentiful. Moses makes a living by capturing snakes and selling them. Whenever he cannot sell them he eats them. This is the truth, as strange as it may seem. Last week he killed a large one with eleven rattles on it. This was a fat snake and Moses ate it. The other day he brought a very large snake to the city, trying to sell its hide. There were twenty-three rattles on it. The snake was very poor, and Moses said it would not do to eat, and he stuffed its hide and sold it for a good price. Every year Moses makes a good deal of money selling snake oil. He says right down in the vertebrae of a rattlesnake is a fatty streak of flesh that makes oil, when fried that will cure any case of rheumatism. It is strange to how many people he sells this rheumatic snake oil. He has a long list of certificates from people he has cured. Some of them are from intelligent whites, who declare that the oil has cured when all other remedies have failed. He sells a vial of the oil for $1 and guarantees a lasting cure. Moses says his father was an African hoodoo doctor and taught him how to cure all aches and pains with snake oil. The negroes of Sumter County venerate and fear him as a mysterious doctor who can cure when all else fails, and look upon his snake oil as something enchanted.

Eastern Carpenters.

In accordance with the invariable custom of all Eastern artisans, the carpenter sits upon the ground while at work. Instead of a bench a strong stake is driven down before him, leaving about ten inches above ground, and upon this he rests his work and keeps it steady with his feet. The facility with which the work is executed in this position has always been a matter of surprise to European workmen. In the royal arsenals English tools are used and a better system of working has been introduced under the superintendence of British officers but in the native workshops the workmen are still to be seen squatting on the ground, and, being used to this position from infancy and their tools being formed to work with more efficiency when used in this way, any alteration is scarcely to be expected. Their principal tools are the frame saw, adze, planes, hammers, nails and a few smaller tools.

Fun for the Dog and Everybody.

At Broken Hill, the other night, says the Sidney Bulletin, during the opening performance of a "Jack and the Beanstalk" pantomime (Broken Hill's first panto., by the way), a stalls patron was accompanied by a bull terrier. The appearance of Jack's "cow" was received by the dog with growls of disapproval, and when the animal came forward and friskly began to "bunt," the little animal could stand no more. Bounding onto the stage, it attacked the legs of the "cow," and the spectacle which followed of the forequarters streaking for the prompt side and of the hindquarters and ribs struggling to a place of safety on the O. P. side brought down the house.

Not Worth Correctivg.

"H'm!" said the editor. "I guess I'll let that error stand."

"What is up?" asked the Impersonal Voice.

"Slug X has made it read, 'He laughs best who laughs least.'"—Indianapolis Journal.

HIS BLACK RECORD

A Pious Criminal Whose Skill and Daring Were Boundless.

Within the walls of the Philadelphia Hospital the curtain is slowly falling on the life drama of a man who for more than half a century has figured in the police annals of the country as a criminal whose skill and daring knew no bounds. At sixty-two, bent, bowed an crippled, "Jimmy" Logue, who in the heyday of his career counted his money by the thousands and drove his coach and pair like a gentleman, has come back to his native city to die. His ill-gotten wealth has taken wings, and only the kindness of Philadelphia's Mayor has saved him from ending his days in the Almshouse. As it is, there is but a shade of difference between the hospital and the Almshouse. Both are under one roof, but as an inmate of the hospital Logue is able to escape the stigma of the city pauper.

When the old man first came back to his former haunts, about two weeks ago, penniless and sick, he threw himself on the mercy of his former enemies—the police—who sent him to the Almshouse. His pride rebelled, and the first day he was able to get out he tottered downtown and into the Mayor's office. Mayor Ashbridge, who knew him in other days, was moved by his pitiful plea, and he ordered that the old man should be given a cot and medical treatment. Sobbing his thanks "Jimmy" Logue went back to the institution, which he will probably never leave alive.

Logue's life story is a wild romance of crime, and one who sees the old man to-day will hardly believe the things the police records tell about him. His personal character has been as odd as his career. Down in his breast he had the instincts of a pious man, who never forgot the lessons he had learned at the knees of a Christian mother. True, he did not heed them, but the maternal teachings lived in his memory. To-day he speaks reverently of his mother as a God-fearing woman, and to-day this crime-stained veteran never closes his eyes in sleep without a fervent prayer to the Almighty. It has been his life's custom, and the detectives used to say of him that "Jimmy" Logue would never set about to crack a safe without first asking Providence to guide him in his work. Logue himself, speaking of his devotions, says epigrammatically:

"When I am awake I can look after myself; when I am asleep I need God's protection."

Logue, too, has been a good husband and father—a good husband to three successive wives; a father to a son who is to-day a respected, hard-working, law-abiding citizen. Of his sixty-two years thirty-four have been spent behind prison bars in various parts of the country. His criminal career must have begun early, for at the age of ten he was sent as an incorrigible to the House of Refuge.

Much of the romance of Logue's life lies about his marriage to his third wife, Johanna Gans, with whose murder he was once charged. Logue had previously been married twice, his last wife being a sister of Johanna. The third wedding was one of the most romantic in local history.

Logue had just been sentenced to seven years' hard labor for one of his many misdeeds when he asked permission to be wedded before he went to jail. Johanna Logue, his sister-in-law, was in court, and the law soon made her and the convict man and wife. She was a faithful wife and waited patiently until her new husband stepped from the doors of Cherry Hill in 1878.

Fought For a Young Women.

George Russman and Roy Lewis, two employes in a lumber camp near Mdidletown, Md., have long been desperate rivals for the affections of a pretty young woman who lives near the camp. She was unable to choose between them, and finally told them they could fight it out, she agreeing to become the wife of the victor. The combatants, after going through the formalities of selecting a referee and time-keeper, went at each other. In the third and last round Russman came up much refreshed and made a dive for Lewis. The latter, finding his strength failing, he called on the seconds to take Russman away and he would give up.

Hence the referee was obliged to declare Lewis knocked out and to award the championship and the young lady to Russman.

How She Disposed of Her Legacy.

Some time ago a woman died at Dendermonde, near Ghent, leaving the whole of her property to her neice, Rosalie V. The latter was constantly worried by the other members of the family, who had been excluded from the inheritance.

Recently the young woman received the amount of the legacy, consisting of twenty-five 1,000-franc notes ($5,000) and the deed of a house. In the afternoon the disappointed relatives again visited her, and worried her to such an extent, that, losing all control over herself, she picked up the deed and the whole of the bank notes and threw them into the fire.

In a few moments nothing remained of the little fortune but a few ashes.

In Norway the average length of life is greater than in any other country on the globe.

ENGLISH STATIONS.

Also the Country Through Which the Trains Pass.

The ways whereby London is reached by those in whose eyes we could wish the mere country to look well are chiefly three: by Liverpool, by Southampton, and—if the American tourist is making England the last point of a European ramble—by Dover, says Collier's Weekly. Between Liverpool and London lie four hours of small fields, small hills, small villages, and here and there enormous towns. But everywhere, as on every line, from the railway carlage is to be seen chiefly that kind of building which is the railway order of architecture. At every station, however small and rustic, are grouped the most squalid of all modern houses, built of yellow brick and roofed with thin blue slate, with their tavern in the midst. From the north to the south, and from the German Ocean to the Atlantic, the English railway architecture is invariable. And this is chiefly why a traveler ought not to be content with a journey on a line of railway. But a little way from every station the yellow brick disappears, the slate roof is no more seen; the farms are hooded in their thatch, the cottages ruddily covered in with tiles that dip and dimple with age, and make velvet shadows in the sun. It is no small humiliation to an Englishman to know that the dusky-red and warm-white villages are there, but that nothing is to be seen except swarthy yellow brick and slates that look as thin as paper.

Londonward from Dover is one of the most smoky journeys in the south of England, but there is the best cultivated land in England. Here the little green grass fields stops for a time, and the croft and the fruit gardens are in bloom.

If the American would indulge us, he would go away upon the country roads; would not see any more of the Thames than suburban Richmond can show him; would sail the little Dart in the south; would pace the sands of the northwestern coast, under the castled walls and basalt, by Holy Isle, where there are millions of sea birds nesting on the ledges; would walk the wildflowers of the chalk; would follow the trout streams in Cornwall. For even at Stratford upon Avon stands—more conspicuous than the little houses of pilgrimage—the universal railway station the sttion of numberless repetition, with its unalterable circumstance.

Secret of Longevity.

Dr. Romaine J. Curtiss, of Joliet, Ill., an eminent authority and writer on becteriology, -who formerly held the chair of this science in the Chicago College of Physicians and Surgeons, has written an open letter to Andrew Carnegie in which he states that if the human being adapts his environment of his life and the possibility of his organism he can live 1,000 years; that the secret of long life is the destruction of parasitism, and that the establishment of an institution for the teaching of hygiene would require $50,000,000, but would be the greatest investment made for human welfare since the birth of Chistianity. Further, he invites Mr. Carnegie to supply the necessary money and so become the world's greatest benefactor to mankind. Dr. Curtiss writes in part:

"The average longevity is from twenty-five to thirty years, and the average death rate is twenty-two per thousand. One person in a milion lives to be 100 year old.

"It is a scientific truth that parasitism is the cause of death. Therefore the absolute distruction of parasitism can increase the duration of life to 1,000 years.

"The whole tendency and custom of the world is to shorten life. Latterly a new energy of the most powerful proportions is at work to slide the scale of hereditary days a notch further toward infancy. This is the custom of employing only young men and discharging all hands at thirty years of age. This force alone will a hundred years from now will so change mental powers that men will be in their prime at twenty-five and unfit at forty.

"Andrew Carnegie can do this work. It will require $50,000,000."

CAT KILLS AN EAGLE

Then Saved Her Own Life by Using Her Victim as a Parachute.

A tiger cat belonging to Farmer Hazard, of Herrick, Susquehanna county, Pa., was strolling out toward the barn a few days ago, carrying in her teeth a piece of meat for her young. A bald eagle, which had been hovering over the farm for a week, suddenly descended upon her and whirled her upward in a rapid vertical flight.

The path of ascent, to the eye of a spectator watching the scene, was clearly indicated by loose feathers violently tossed from the point of combat. In a brief time the struggling pair came to a standstill in the sky. The eagle's wings had drooped now and then, and he had given plain evidence of pain and terror, yet not once had his awful grip appeared to relax. At length a descent was begun, with a rapidity which increased every moment, and the two animals struck the ground at the very point where they had at first encountered each other, but the eagle was dead, and the cat, as soon as she felt terra firma beneath her feet, shot away for the barn, still carrying her bit of meat.

Investigation proved that the cat had cut the eagle's throat and so lacerated is breast that its body was literally laid open. After the death in midair, however, the cat had been too clever to relax her hold and thus fall to the ground, but had let her enemy serve as a parachute to ease her descent.

The cat is none the worse for her aerial flight and battle.

Told by the Hand.

A large hand is always better than a small one, says the Ladies' Home Journal. It indicates a person of some unusual powers. The possessor will be a good worker, principally as to details; he will be careful not to make promises, but will keep the few he makes to the letter, even at a loss to himself; he will be easily offended, very quick to imagine slights and not ready to forgive either real of imagined offenses.

The possessor of a small hand will attempt almost anything, rarely, however, finishing anything he undertakes; is easily satisfied, both with himself and with the world in general; is fond of gayety and excitement; makes and loses friends with the same easiness, is impressionable and inflammable to a high degree; is religious, but not deeply so; will make promises and break them without conpunction, and will be unable to bind himself to details.

It is the thumb that betrays the weakness or strength of the whole character. With a weak thumb a hand that otherwise shows great possibilities will be nerveless, unsuccessful and remain undeveloped. With a large, strong thumb, whatever faults or virtues the subject may have, he will never be petty; he may be either good or bad; he will never be ordinary. A large thumb indicates one who is independent in both thought and action, who is ready to take the consequences of his own wrong doing, who is swayed only by reason, and is only disgusted and hardened by a display of emotion.

The combination of a large thumb and a broad palm shows courage to the point of rashness; with a long, clear headline, absolute lack of fear, and great calmness and decision in the moment of danger.

A small thumb always indicates a sentimental, impressionable nature, incapable of forming any very high aims or of executing work of any value. The opinions of subjects are formed for him, never by him, although he will believe himself to have thought them all out, and will quote them as his own.

A thumb easily bent back shows extravagance of thought, adaptability and a tendency to "fad." The first, or nailed, phalanx of the thumb represents will power; the second logic. If the first is long and the second short, the subject will be self-willed and violent, having no restraint whatever over his passions. If the second is long and the first short, he will be logical, calculating and will rule every action by reason; but the energy and desire for action may be materially decreased.

Emeralds in Russia.

Emeralds, some of which are very fine, are found in the district of Ekaterinburg, along the banks of the Tokova River, about fifty-two miles from the capital of the district. Mining for this precious stone began in 1841, and at the beginning gave very good results. The first emerald was found by a peasant named Maxim Kojevnikow, in 1839, while he was examining the roots of a tree which had been uprooted by a storm. It is pretty certain, however, that discoveries of the same kind had already been made in 1669. It is even possible that finds had been made prior to then, as the Czar Boris Godounow presented the Venetian engraver, Francis Ascenti, with a sable fur and 100 ducats for having cut a large emerald for a ring. The finest emeralds were found when these stones were being mined for the account of the Government. During this period, that is, up to 1862, 5,600 pounds were extracted. The Government afterward farmed out the mines to private parties, who were not successful. The emeralds of superior quality have been found near the surface of the soil, while those found in deep ground were of inferior quality.

Stevenson and the Beggar.

An American who visited the Stevensons at Samoa, says the Philadelphia Saturday Post, relates that the Samoans have a practice of begging. They boldly ask for whatever they may covet wherever it may be found. The novelist became tired of this practice, and therefore said one day to a Samoan friend who had acquired from him a necktie, "Is there anything else you want?"

The Samoan made a hasty survey of the room.

"There is the piano," suggested Mr. Stevenson ironically.

"Yes," replied the native, "I know, but," he added apologetically, "I don't know how to play it."

All His Fault.

"You don't seem to have much faith in that reformer?"

"No; he's a fraud. Why, in this very town he has started dozens of reforms that we have utterly failed to carry out."

GEN. OTIS AT MANILA

He's Never Caught Off His Guard and When He Fights It's for Keeps.

Major-Gen. Elwell S. Otis, U. S. V., has a reputation throughout the army as one of the ablest all-around general officers in the service.

When the civil war began Gen. Otis, who was born in Maryland, had finished his college course and had just been admitted to the bar in New York. He went to the front as a Captain of the 140th New York Infantry. That was in September, 1862. In a little more than a year he was Lieutenant-Colonel of the regiment, and he was honorably mustered out on Jan. 24, 1865. In the following March he was made a Brigadier-General of Volunteers by brevet. During the war he was twice brevetted for gallant and meritorious services at the battles of Spottsylvania and Chapel House, during the Peninsular campaign. In July, 1866, he was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel of the Twenty-second Infantry, and he served with that regiment until 1880, when he was made a Colonel and transferred to the Twentieth Infantry. In 1893 he was made a Brigadier-General.

When the war with Spain began he was the senior brigadier of the army, in command of the Department of Colorado. When Shafter was ordered to Tampa, Gen. Otis was assigned to the Department of California, with headquarters at San Francisco, and there he remained until he sailed for the Philippines in command of the second expedition. An officer who knows him well tells how Gen. Otis happened to be chosen as Gen. Merritt's chief lieutenant. The work of the court-martial which tried Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, Corps of Engineers, had just been completed. Gen. Otis was the President of that court, having been selected both because he was a lawyer by profession and because he was known to have a judicial mind.

The President imagined that the man who was to be second in command in the Philippines might come into closer contact with the Spaniards than the commanding General. He wanted a man of tact and firmness, and he wanted a man capable of quickly whipping into shape the volunteers, who were in the majority in our army in the Philippines. He asked to have a man recommended to him. Gen. Otis's was the one name considered after several had been passed. Gen. Merritt was one of Gen. Otis's strongest supporters and Gen. Otis was selected.

Gen. Otis has been married twice, and has two daughters by his first wife, who died several years ago. One of the daughters is married. His second wife was the widow of Col. McAllister of the Quartermaster-General's Department. Gen. Otis moves like a very nervous man. He appears, when walking, to be always in a hurry. Yet, when he has any question under consideration, he is a man of infinite patience and attention to detail. He has shown this characteristic particularly when sitting on court-martials. It is said of him that he has presided over more of these courts than any other officer in the army.

He is a man of great personal bravery and great determination. In 1877, when he was attached to the Twenty-second Infantry, Gen. Miles was carrying on a campaign against Sitting Bull and the hostile Sioux. His headquarters were at what is now Fort Keogh, Montana. Otis, with 130 men, had been ordered to take up a supply train to Gen. Miles from a point several miles south of the General's headquarters. On the way and while passing through a ravine Otis and his train fell in with Sitting Bull and several hundred braves. The Sioux chief ordered Otis to turn over the train and surrender his command.

"That isn't what I'm here for," was Otis's reply. "My chief wants these supplies. I intend to take them to him, and if you don't get out of the way I'll remove you."

The Sioux outnumbered the whites about six to one. They began to surround Otis's little band. Leaving his train, with a few of his men as a rear guard, Otis advanced. The fighting lasted all that day and the next. Before sunset of the second day Sitting Bull had had enough. About 100 of his braves had been killed and many others had been wounded. Otis lost about a dozen in killed and wounded. The Sioux fled and Otis delivered his supplies to Gen. Miles.

As a post commander, Otis was considered the most exacting man in the army. It came to be understood that wherever Otis was in command, there would be the best "policed" or neatest post in the department. A department commander once said of him:

"That man Otis spends more time scrubbing and polishing and drilling than any other officer in the service."

Owing to this characteristic, he was attached to the Inspector-General's office for a time, and so exacting was he in the matter of discipline and personal appearance of officers and men that the regiments he inspected came to be known as "Otis's fighting dandies."

He is a man who is always busy. A friend of his said that Otis usually worked about nineteen hours out of every twenty-four. His official work, however, before he left for Manila was always completed each day, before nightfall. He has a fine library, and there, among his books, he insisted upon spending his evenings. He has never given up altogether the study of law, and it was said of him that he is a better international and constitutional lawyer than many in active practice. On the literature of war he always keeps up with the times, and it is said of him that there is not a work on tactics or the science and art of war with which he is not familiar.

Stonewall Jackson's Apology.

Jackson had occasion to censure a cadet who had given, as he believed, the wrong solution of a problem. On thinking the matter over at home he found that the pupil was right and the teacher wrong. It was late at night and in the depth of Winter, but he immediately started off to the institute, some distance from his quarters, and sent for the cadet. The delinquent, answering with some trepidation the untimely summons, found himself to his astonishment the recipient of a frank apology.

Statistics show that fire destroys 6,000 lives and $150,000,000 worth of property in this country every year. This shows that the science of construction is still a perilously long distance from what it should be.

GOLF.

During the last week there has been an unusual number of visitors at the links of the Park Golf Club. The cool weather has been delightful for golf and there have been quite a number who have taken advantage of it. September, however, will be the best month of the year, and the course at that time will no doubt be very largely attended.

There are a number of golfers in Westfield, although that town cannot boast of a course. The links of the Baltusrol Golf Club are less than four miles away and there the Westfielders usually go when they want to play. There is some talk of the Westfield Club starting a movement for a golf course by another season if the interest in the sport continues to grow at the present rate.

The golfers of West Hampton, L. I., have a great respect for the ability of Plainfielders at golf. Raymond A. McGee, of Washington Park, who is summering there, recently visited the golf course there in company with a friend. McGee had never tried to play golf before, and the golfing friend probably thought his first attempts might be rather amusing. If he did think so he was sadly mistaken for McGee completed the nine holes in 54, winning from his more expert friends by several points.

CYCLING COMMENT

T. J. Carey, of West Front street, has been indulging in a wheeling trip through Hunterdon county.

The Kenyon fifteen mile road race will be run over the Plainfield-Pumptown course next Saturday afternoon begining promptly at 4 o'clock.

THE COURTS

JUSTICE NASH

Summons—Young against Finerty, demand of premises, returnable Aug. 28th.

COWS MISBEHAVED

And a Complaint Made Against Their Owner.

W. W. Wilson, the West Third street grocer, is the owner of several cows. Because of these same cows, Grocer Wilson will have to appear before His Honor, the Mayor, this afternoon. Wilson says they are well behaved cows but Mrs. Green, who lives at 210 Lee place, is of a different opinion.

The trouble that will bring Wilson to the court this afternoon occurred a week ago Sunday. Mrs. Wilson alleges that Wilson's cows wandered out of the lot where they belonged and wandered on her lawn. They calmly browsed on her flowers and displeased Mrs. Green exceedingly.

Mrs. Green brought the matter to the attention of Chief Grant and gnally made a complaint against Wilson for the misbehaviour of his cows. Wilson says there is no fence in front of Mrs. Green's place and that the cows may have wandered in while passing along. Mayor Rockfellow will have a chance to hear the circumstances of the case.

HOME FOR UNION MEN

THE SCHEME PRESENTED TO FEDERATION BY MAYOR DRAKE.

Mr. Drake Says That He Met With a Very Favorable Reception and That the Idea Was Approved of by a Vote.

Mayor Silas D. Drake, of Lincoln, went to Orange yesterday to attend the congress of the Federation of Labor and Trades Unions of New Jersey and presented the scheme of the Home for Aged Union Workingmen which it is proposed to locate at Lincoln. Mr. Drake met with a very cordial reception trom the delegates. He explained the scheme in all its different phases and advantages, and exhibited the drawings of the proposed home as designed by Architect French, of this city.

Mr. Drake says that the scheme was approved of by a vote of the delegates and that contracts are all ready to be signed.

After the business or organization was finished the annual electtion took place, and the following officers were chosen: President, Henry Hubsmith, of Passaic; vice-presidents, Charles Curtiss, of Newark; W. Callaghan, of Passaic; secretary, B. Frank Dunphey, of Camden; assistant secretary, George B. Gannon, of Passaic; treasurer, J. Howell Reeves, of Bridgeton; sergeant-at-arms, Henry Winter, of New Brunswick.

H. J. Gottlob, chairman of the executive committee, presented a report, taking to task the legislature for failure to guard and help laboring interests. On the recommendation of Butler Sheets, chairman of the committee on resolutions, the congress passed a series of resolutions, demanding, among other things, the passage of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

MATRON EYLER VERY ILL

PROSTRATED OVER INVESTIGATION OF GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The Strain Under Which the Woman Has Been Laboring Proves Too Much and Her Condition Reported Critical.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, August 22—It was said last night by Dr. E. B. Witte that the condition of Mrs. Myrtle B. Eyler, whom he is attending, is critical. Mrs. Eyler is suffering from nervous prostration, brought on by the investigation at the State Industrial School for Girls, and at which her management of the institution was severely criticized. Mrs. Eyler's condition has been rendered more serious by the threatened charges which are to be brought against her and the trustees of the school for the ill treatment of the inmates.

Mrs. Eyler is a woman of exceedlingly nervous temperament, and the strain under which she has been laboring for the past few weeks has been too much for her. She is confined to her bed and no one is allowed to see her. Her condition yesterday was greatly improved, but today she had a relapse and her attending phyeician is fearful of the result. She is not allowed to talk of the investigation, a topic that is always uppermost in her mind.

Arthur Bishop, president of the Passaic branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and Lawyer John Backes, who acted as prosecuting attorney in the recent investigation, will meet today to prepare charges upon which Mrs. Eyler and the board of trustees will be prosecuted.

It was reported here that the condition of Mrs. Eyler had been greatly exaggerated by her friends in an endeavor to aid her to escape the impending criminal charges. This report her physician strenuously denies.

Death of Samuel Parks.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Garwood, Aug. 22.—Samuel Parks, aged 74 years, a resident of this place for fifteen years, died yesterday afternoon as a result of a bilious attack. He was for many years associated with the Equitable Gas Light Company, of New York, and was highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves a wife and four sons. The sons are Robert Parks, of St. Louis; Edwark Parks, of Roselle; William and S. C. Parks, of Garwood. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and Rev. Joseph Greaves, of Westfield, will officiate.

CLAMBAKE AT THE INN.

FINE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE ADVANCEMENT ASSOCIATION.

Use of the Hotel Secured for the Afternoon of August 30th—Details of the Event Have All Been Completed.

Mayor Smalley, president of the Plainfield Advancement Association, who took the initaive action towards having a clambake to push the interests of the organization to a greater extent among the business men, has secured the use of the Mountain Park Inn for the event of August 30th. As originally arranged by the Mayor and the clambake committtee it was the intention to have the bake in the vicinity of the hotel, but on Sunday Mr. Smalley completed arrangements for practically the use of the house for the afternoon of the 30th.

The dinner will be served on the broad piazza of the hotel, the dishes, table ware, etc., of the inn being used. The hotel waiters will be reinforced by a sufficient number of others to serve all promptly and thoroughly with the delicacies that will form the menu. After the dinner the guests of the Association will be at liberty to stroll about the inn and the grounds as though they were registered guests there.

Two hundred invitations to the clam bake will be issued to a selected list of gentlemen, a portion of which will be sent to out-of-town people whom it will be advantageous to have meet Plainfield's leading citizens in a social way. The tickers for the dinner will cost $1 a piece and are not transferable, as it is the intention of the committee in charge to avoid entertaining any persons whose presence is not agreeable.

There will be an orchestra present to furnish music during the dinner, after which there will songs by a glee club and probably a few brief speeches by some of the guests whose ability in this line is well-known.

ONE NEGRO PATIENT.

Slightly Disabled, But Still in the Ring.

Mirth and misery commingle oddly at times to lighten the burden of wretchedness and woe which is the lot of unfortunates who are inmates of New York's great hospitals. A sort of wan-faced sufferers were distributed among the neat white cots of a medical ward in the Bellevue when a new patient was brought in. He was a diminutive colored man, short, squat, thick-set, black as ebony, with heavy protruding lips and a bullet-shaped head sparsely sprinkled with kinky gray black hair. He said he was George Smith, 33 years old, and was born in "Loudon county, Virginia, sah." All was quiet in the ward save an occasional groan from some weary sufferer, when the doctors, four of them, grave faced and dignified, came to examine the new arrival.

"Well, George, how do you feel?" asked the house physician, bending over the cot.

The little darkey looked at the doctor askance for a moment, rolled his big eyes around and said mournfully:

"I'se hungry."

"Have you any pain?" asked the doctor.

"No, sah, 'cept I's hungry."

Then the doctors proceeded to make the usual examination. In the middle of his back they found a criss-cross cicatrix.

"How did you get this?" the doctor asked.

"Cow-bunkle," replied the patient tersely.

"What's this?" continued the inquisitor, placing his finger on a big depression in the calf of the patient's left leg.

"Dorg chawed it," said Smith, apathetically.

A smile flittered across the face of the doctors and a patient in the next cot forgot to moan. Next the physician found a mass of irregular scars, which looked as if an eight-inch shell had exploded and left its marks upon the patient's face and neck.

"Explosion?" queried the doctor, pointing to the spot.

"Mewl kicked me," said Smith, with a you-make-me-tired air.

Even the grave equanimity of the men of medicine was disturbed, and patients in adjacent cots laughed outright. Further examinations showed a network of scars on the face and neck, resembling the tracks in the New York Central freight yard.

"Razor fite," was Smith's explanation.

"And where did you get these?" said the doctor with an amused smile, laying his finger on three big welts on the negro's scalp.

"Cakewalk. Kin I hav a chaw of terbacker?" he went on, and the ward was in an outburst of laughter.

Smith came to New York from Chicago on a freight train a short time ago. He has no home, no relatives, no friends. He said that he had passed most of his time traveling through the South and East for his health.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by L. W. Randolph, Druggist.

WORKINGMEN WILL NOT FOUND A HOME.

Mayor Drake's Philanthropy Goes Amiss.

THE PROJECT TURNED DOWN

WARM DEBATE OVER IT IN STATE FEDERATION OF UNIONS.

Arguments That the Proposed Institution Could Not Be Conducted Successfully—The Proposition of Mayor Drake Rejected By the Delegates—The Vote Against Was Overwhelming.

Silas D. Drake's philanthropic scheme of establishing a Home for Aged Union Workingmen at Lincoln has been killed by the annual congress of the Federation of Trades and Labor Unions, which was asked to stand as sponsor for the project. The closing act of the congress of labor union delegates in East Orange was to vote down the movement to father the scheme evolved from the original brain of Mayor Drake.

The opposition to the plan was led by Ferdinand C. Lampe, of the Newark Typographical Union, while Henry J. Gottlob, also a member of that union and chairman of the executive board of the Federation, stood sponsor for the scheme.

When Delegate Lampe got the floor to speak on the home proposition, Delegate Gottlob offered a resolution to accept Mr. Drake's offer, and providing that a board of seven trustees be appointed with power to further the scheme, but not to make any contract or incur any obligation involving any union or the Federation financially.

Mr. Lampe said: "No doubt the Federation would receive the moral support of 50,000, or more, but moral support is not going to pay the expenses of running a home for union men. A fact not to be overlooked is that the Federation has no guarantee of a permanent income. Any union now affiliated may withdraw, and the regular running expenses then must be borne by those remaining.

"This building," continued Delegate Comes, "would cost $20,000. According to the offer that was made to us we are to get 100 building lots at Lincoln, and we have got to sell them for $200 apiece to get even. I don't believe anyone is so charitable as to give away $20,000 without expecting some return for it. Then we are supposed to take eighty shares in something at $100 a share. Where is the Federation going to get $8,000 for that? If you decide to build this home you may get the cellar dug, but I doubt if the foundation will ever be started. It will remain a hole in the ground and a monument to folly and nonsense."

"While I believe the people who are advocating this plan are sincere," said Delegate Gehling, "they have been misled. This man Drake is a landshark, and if the metal polishers and buffers were not in his power today I'd give facts and names. He is the agent of the land company that owns Lincoln, and he gets the first month's rent of every house there. The consequence is that the people are kept moving from house to house every second month. Our union had this same scheme saddled on us. We went so far as to buy land, and it's a white elephant for us."

Mr. Gottlob objected to the statements and said he didn't believe them He added that they should have been made while Mr. Drake was present at the secret session in the afternoon.

When a vote was taken on the proposition to accept Mr. Drake's offer it was lost. Only seven votes were recorded in favor of the plan and there were twenty-seven against it.

TOOK A HEADER FROM A HORSE.

Former Sheriff Kyte Thrown From the Steed He Was Riding.

(Special to The Daily Press.

Fanwood, August 23—Former Sheriff Kyte, of Fanwood, had a narrow escape from serious injury several evenings ago while out horseback riding. Mr. Kyte had been on a trip through Washington Valley and when returning his horse stumbled coming down Spencer's hill. Mr. Kyte was thrown over the horse's head and landed upon the hard roadbed, bruising him quite badly. The horse was on one knee and the former Sheriff was obliged to walk the remainder of the journey.

A New Grocery Store.

C. E. Gulick & Co. will open a first-class grocery store at the corner of Lincoln place and Duer street, Saturday, September 2d. They have taken great care in purchasing their stock and nothing but the finest will be sold.

A FAMILY IS BROKEN UP.

MOTHER SENT TO HOSPITAL AND TOTS TO CHILDREN'S HOME.

The Father is Out of Work and Unable to Care for His Family His Wife Having Been Seriously Ill for Sometime.

Last evening Mrs. George Rockafellow, of Elmwood place, corner of West Second street, was removed to the hospital for proper treatment. She has been quite ill for a number of weeks and was unable to take care of her three children, one of whom is five months old. Dr. Currie has been attending Mrs. Rockafellow, but owing to the absence of anyone to look after her in the meantime she did not recover as she would otherwise.

Friends of Mrs. Rockafellow took an interest in her and after securing the admission of two of the children to the Children's Home, they were able to get her into the hospital. Overseer of the Poor Hansen was sought and he has made provision for the infant baby so that he will be taken care of properly until the mother can recover her health and strength.

Mr. Rockafellow has been unfortunate lately in losing his position owing to a discontinuance of the business, but it is understood that he will soon secure work again, and in a short time will be able to continue housekeeping.

BROUGHT HOME A TURTLE.

Louis Mohring Made a Big Catch One Day Last Week.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mohring, of West Fifth street, and Roger Meletski, of Watchung avenue, have just returned after a delightful camping and sailing trip They made their headquarters on the Staten Island shore of Princess Bay, where they had a comfortable camp. Most of the time was spent in sailing about the island, and in New York Bay.

Thursday they went after bluefish and Mohring hooked a huge turtle that weighed 80 pounds. He was landed in the boat after much trouble and brought home alive in a rope harness. He wanders about the Mohring cellar now awaiting his doom. While driving him home in a wagon from South Plainfield he bit Meletski on the arm.

Y. M. C. A Notes.

A party of wheelmen from Orange were callers at the local Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening and were afterwards entertained at the Hotel Hunterston, at Netherwood.

The local wheelmen of the Y.M.C.A. will take a run to Summit tomorrow night.

Rev. Thomas Houston will again speak and sing at the men's rally at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4:15 p. m.

Death of Mrs. Derby.

The death of Mrs. A. H. Derby, formerly of this city, but late of Grove street, occurred yesterday afternoon after a very severe attack of typhoid fever. Mrs. Derby was taken ill the first part of July and since that time her condition was critical. A husband and seven-months-old child survive her. The funeral services were held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the late residence, and were private.

Freeholders Excursion Today

The annual excursion of the Middlesex County Board of Chosen Freeholders took place today. In the party were, beside the Freeholders, county officials, politicians and a few invited guests. Of course the day will be spent in political gossip, and all the aspirants for Shrievalty honors put in appearance and told what claim they have to the office.

His Honor's Plan Worked Well.

The four Italians and Patrick Cahill, who have been spending a short time in the borough lockup, were released yesterday, as they were able to secure enough money to pay their fines. His Honor's plan worked to perfection in this case, and the expense to the borough was slight while the county was clearly exempt from any expense.

Remove the Wires.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Will the telephone company please remove the dead and loose wires from the gutters and hanging from the trees in front of the premises corner Lincoln place and Vine street. By so doing it may save a suit for damages.

Respectfully,
J. B. Hurlburt.

Not to Go as a Post.

At last night's meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., it was decided to attend the National Encampment at Philadelphia on the 30th. The Post will not go as an organization, and will not take any music.

CONFERENCE OF THE 7TH-DAY BAPTISTS.

Ninety-Seventh Anniversary Being Held at Ashaway, R. I.

PLAINFIELDERS ARE THERE.

DR. LEWIS A COMMANDING FIGURE AMONG THE DELEGATES.

But His Flowing Beard Has Been Shorn Somewhat and Many Failed to Recognize Him at Once—Important Parts in the Programme to be Taken by Delegates From Plainfield Church.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Ashaway, R. I., August 23.—The ninety-seventh anniversary of the Seventh-Day Baptist General Conference and of the societies connected therewith opened this morning in this place. Up to last evening 430 names of intending visitors had been received by the people in charge.

There is a large delegation present from Plainfield, including the well known Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, whose commanding figure attracts great admiration. The doctor has allowed his flowing beard to be slightly shorn and the change was so great that many failed to recognize him at first. However, he will take an active part in the conference as usual, to the profit and edification of all present.

The principal meetings are being held in a large tent that will accommodate about 1,200 people, and other meetings will be held in smaller tents, the church and a schoolhouse.

At this afternoon's session A. W. Vars, of Dunellen, will present a report as secretary of the executive committee, and Joseph A. Hubbard, of Plainfield, as a trustee of the memorial board, will also report. At the service tomorrow evening Rev. Dr. A. E. Main, of Plainfield, will take part.

At the session Saturday afternoon D. E. Titsworth, of Plainfield, will give an address on the subject, "The Importance of Adult Attendance at Sabbath-school," and later in the afternoon Miss Ida Spicer, of Plainfield, will conduct the Junior Christian Endeavor service.

Sunday morning J. D. Spicer, of Plainfield, will read the report of the treasurer, to be followed by a report of the corresponding secretary, Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of Plainfield.

Monday afternoon next Dr. Main will again take part, and in the evening of the same day Rev. Dr. L. E. Livermore will deliver the closing sermon and conduct the conference meeting. The conference will close on Monday evening, and the programme evidences many bright and helpful discourses, addresses and reports throughout.

THE TREES WANT A WASHING.

That is the Way Orange People are Advised to Deal With a New Pest.

Much uneasiness has been felt in the Oranges over the recent appearance of a new insect, which attacks maple trees, forming on the under side of the leaves a glutinous, sticky mass, while the insects suck the sap from the leaves, causing them to dry up and drop off. Specimens have been sent to Professor John B. Smith, entomologist, at the New Jersey State Experimental Station at New Brunswick. Professor Smith states that the insect is the Psuedo Coccus Aceris, and that it is more disfiguring than permanently injurious to the trees. He states that arsenical and other medicated sprayings are of no value, but that the insects can be easily washed off and destroyed by a solid stream of water from a hose.

Stopped the Service to Save His Apples.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, Aug. 23.—In the middle of the service in the Polish Catholic church here yesterday, the eye of the pastor lighted on a quartette of boys who were rading an apple tree in the manse yard next door, and he stopped the service while he admonished them from the window in stentorian tones. Yesterday morning he secured a warrant for their arrest. The priest is Rev Steven Szyminowski. He was one of the first trustees of the Perth Amboy Savings Institution appointed after the defalcation of Cashier George M. Valentine rendered a reorganization necessary.

A Jersey Brigade to Welcome Dewey.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Aug. 23.—Governor Voorhees has announced that he would order out the First Brigade of the National Guard to take part in the New York reception to Admiral Dewey. The State has no emergency fund for the expense and a number of prominent gentlemen, including the Governor, offered to stand the bills and trust to the generosity of the next Legislature to recompense them.

MRS EYLER ARRESTED; TRUSTEE COOK IS OUT.

Important Developments In Industrial School Affairs.

CHARGES AGAINST MATRON.

GOVERNOR IN A POSITION TO BRING ABOUT A REFORM.

Arthur Bishop, of Passaic, Made the Complaint Against Mrs. Eyler, and Unless She Produces a Doctor's Certificate She Will be Taken Before a Justice to Plead to the Charge.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Aug. 23—A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of Matron Myrtle B. Eyler of the State Industrial School for Girls. Shortly afterward Trustee Ephraim Rezrau Cook tendered his resignation to Gov. Voorhees, and the Governor issued commissions to former Senator Judson Rue, Republican, and former Assemblyman Howell C. Stull, Democrat, of this city, as two of the new Board of Trustees of the institution.

Arthur Bishop, president of the Passaic County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, came here yesterday afternoon to make the criminal charges. After consulting a lawyer he went to the office of Justice of the Peace William S. Mills, intending to get a warrant based on the affidavit made by Sadie Wisemann, of Passaic. He discovered that under the statute of limitations the complaint could not be taken, the alleged offence having been committed over two years ago. Mr. Bishop then went to the City Hospital to take an affidavit of Katie Barlow, who, it is alleged, is confined to the hospital as the result of the treatment received at the hands of the matron. Dr. Witte, the head physician, refused to let Mr. Bishop see the girl, saying that she was still in the custody of the State authorities. Dr. Witte has been a champion of the matron and testified in her favor at the investigation.

Mr. Bishop obtained a warrant on the strength of a previous statement made by the girl. The warrant charges that Mrs. Eyler compelled the girl to climb up and down three flights of stairs twenty-five times, after having previously confined her in a cell twenty-four hours. It charges that the cell was improperly ventilated, that the girl was deprived of proper food and drink, and that she was afterward imprisoned for two days in a room, "the windows and doors of which were securely closed and fastened so as to exclude air, by reason whereof the physical health of the child was impaired to such an extent that she has since been and now is a patient in the City Hospital in Trenton."

The warrant was handed to Constable Brannin and will be served today. Unless the woman produces a doctor's certificate, she will be taken by the constable before Justice Mills to plead to the charge.

It is generally understood that Governor Voorhees requested the resignation of Trustee Cook, the latter having persistently asserted that he would not resign unless asked to do so.

At Woodhull & Martins.

Among the employes of Woodhull & Martin, who have been enjoying vacations are: John S Johnson of the carpet department is spending two weeks with friends at Hackettstown.

Miss Emma Wyckoff, of the ribbon counter, is sojourning at Red Bank.

YOUNG DESPERADOES PLY THEIR TRADE.

Frequent Robberies Reported at and Near Oak Tree.

VISITED HENRY C. MELICK.

RANSACKED HIS HOUSE DURING THE DAYTIME MONDAY.

Many Petty Thefts Reported From That Section—Tires Stolen Off John Osborne's Racing Sulkey—The Chicken Houses Suffered Much—Said to Meet in Woods Near Lehigh Valley Road.

A gang of young desperadoes have caused general alarm at Oak Tree and Avon Park by a series of depredations that have now continued for nearly a month. There have been a number of robberies of houses and hen roosts, and the desperadoes have been exceedingly bold in their operations. Their last act to be reported was the robbery of the home of Henry C. Melick on the "back road," which took place Monday.

Mr. Melick lives all alone, with only a young colored girl to look after the house. He is deaf and somewhat feeble. Sometime Monday the thieves visited the house and ransacked it, taking a shot-gun, some clothes and other articles that were found about the house.

They were evidently looking for money but failed to find any, although Mr. Melick is known as a wealthy man and as having large sums of money hidden away in the house.

One night last week, the pneumatic tires on a racing sulkey belonging to John Osborne, which was kept at the track at Avon Park, disappeared mysteriously, and the theft was charged to the mysterious gang that has been at work.

For a time, hardly a night passed that one of the chicken coops in the vicinity was not visited. Many of the fowls were lost. Now the owners are laying for the midnight vistants with guns.

So far there has been no clue to the identity of the desperadoes who have been operating there. It is supposed that they are young men who live in or near that vicinity. It is understood that they have a meeting place in the heart of the woods just beyond the Lehigh Valley crossing on Park avenue. Last night, wheelmen passing there saw several figures plunge into the underbrush and afterwards heard strange hootings like that of an owl.

WILSON WASN'T TO BLAME.

So Mayor Rockfellow Dismissed the Complaint Against Him.

The cows belonging to William A. Wilson, the West Third street grocer, did trespass on the lawn of Mrs. Green, of Lee place. So the testimony brought out in the city court yesterday afternoon made it apparent. It was also evident, however, that Wilson wasn't to blame in the matter. He had the cows all penned up safely enough at night but some other cows came along and his cows charged at the fence and broke it down and went forth to seek advanture with the other cows.

Mayor Rockfellow, who acted as local magistrate in the absence of City Judge Runyon, decided that there was nothing the matter with Wilson personally and so discharged him. Mrs. Green will probably bring a civil suit for trespass.

COL. FULLER TO SPEAK.

Notable Jerseymen Will be at Business Men's Clambake.

Senator Charles A. Reed received a telegram last evening from Col. Fuller, of Jersey City, a member of the State Sewage Commission, replying to his invitation to be present at the clambake to be given by the Plainfield Advancement Association next week Wednesday afternoon at the Mt. Park Inn. Mr. Fuller says that he will be present at the bake and make a speech.

The committee in charge of the bake wish that all persons who have received tickets will make some response so that they will know who will be present. They have received word from Somerville that a number from that place will attend.

Bottle Broke and Cut Child.

The little two-year-old daughter of Melville Meeker, 134 East Front street, met with a peculiar accident this morning. The youngster was toddling about holding her nursing bottle in her arms. She stumbled and fell. The bottle was broken by the fall, and one of the broken pieces of glass cut a deep gash in the child's right forearm. Dr. Probasco was summoned and dressed the wound.

CORN CROP TO BE BIG.

YIELD IN NEW JERSEY EXPECTED TO BE LARGER THAN IN YEARS.

Growing and Maturing Crops are Reported to be in Excellent Condition in All Sections of This State.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, August 23.—The weekly bulletin of the State Experiment Station gives the following crop and weather report:

The growing and maturing crops are reported to be in excellent condition, although the excessive cloudiness has not been favorable to the latter. Corn has continued to gain in points, so much so, that many correspondents predict that the yield will be larger than for a number of years past.

Pasture and medow fields are very much improved; in some sections the second crop of clover is now being harvested. Fall plowing is progressing, and in some places nearing completion. A large acreage of grass and clover has been seeded during the week in the Southern section. Orchard fruits are doing better since the rains; the apples will be good in quality; pears very good; peaches fair and generally undersized, owing to drought early in the season; grapes are very promising, and the yield will be unusually large. Cranberries are not so promising; in some bogs in Atlantic county, the grasshoppers and crickets have destroyed the entire crop.

Plainfield's report is as follows: Notwithstanding the lack of rain during the week, all crops are in a good condition; peaches now coming into market are small; plenty of plums and apples; pears not so plentiful; rainfall, trace. John Neagle.

PICNIC AND ENTERTAINMENT.

Afternoon Pleasure and Evening Enjoyment of the Germans.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reformed church held a picnic and entertainment yesterday afternoon and evening for the benefit of the Sunday-school of the church. The picnic was held in the woods back of the church and was largely attended by the young people. All kinds of games were played and a general good time had. In the evening the entertainment was given in the church and there was a very large attendance. The programme opened with a comedy entitled, "Two Beds in One Room," which was given by Mr. Gerhardt, A. Wolf and Mr. Hoffman. This was followed with a tableau entitled "The Guardian Angle," which was given by Miss Auguata Myer and Miss Paulina Schmidt.

The next number was a violin solo by Tony Gaub, followed with a vocal duet by Miss Myer and Miss Claus. The following tableau called forth the greatest enthusiasm. It was entitled "The Army and Navy, or the Crowning of the Victor, Admiral Dewey." Mr. Randolph took the part of Dewey with great credit, and Miss Louisa Caspar represented "Columbia," while Miss Margaret Almer represented Porto Rico. The other participants were Mr. Hoffman, Mr. Vaugh and Mr. Gerhardt.

The next tableau was entitled "The Departure for Manila," and those who took part in the above tableau were in this one with the addition of Karl Hauser. The last number was a fine recitation by A. Wolf. Everyone present thorougly enjoyed the entertainment which netted $45 for the Sunday-school.

THEATRICAL.

Unctious merriment and unfailing interest characterize the performances as presented by the Kennedy Players. The company is a well-balanced one, working with a unanimity of action most enjoyable to their audiences. Last night's play, "The Little Savage," told a story of human interest in a direct and forceful manner. The many intense situations were applauded to the echo, while the lighter side of the picture, the comedy elements, furnished uproarious laughter. Tonight's play will be "Teddy Maguire, the Irish Duke," one of the the strongest in the company's repertoire and which has made a big hit wherever presented.

* * * * *

A show to talk about, "In Greater New York," an operatic satire in three acts, will be presented at Music Hall next Monday night. It was originally produced at Hammerstein's Olympia, in New York, and ran consecutively over 100 nights. The book has been revised and brought strictly up-to-date with all the music retained and a cast of exceptionable strength.

—Neuman Brothers, the popular Watchung avenue grocers, will have on sale tomorrow a particularly choice selection of fine Bartlett pears. The prices are low for such an excellent quality of fruit.

LEHIGH VALLEY MAY BUILD A SHORT CUT.

Will Leave Present Line at Bound Brook.

STATION NEAR PLAINFIELD.

WILL REACH JERSEY CITY BY WAY OF THE ORANGES.

Two Routes Proposed—One Goes From Bound Brook to New Orange the Other Nearly to Jersey City—The Company Will Apply to the Legislature for Condemnation Proceedings.

The officials of the Lehigh Valley Railroad have had under consideration for some time two "cut-offs" that will reduce the length of their present line to Jersey City by several miles and will pass through a much better territory than their present line. Surveys have been made for both of the proposed lines. Both have Bound Brook for the starting point and pass quite near Plainfield, although not actually within the city limits.

From a authoritive source comes the statement that the company will ask the next Legislature for right of way over one of these lines.

The first scheme was to provide a route from Bound Brook connecting the present line again near New Orange. The line after leaving Bound Brook was to follow the mountain, passing through North Plainfield, and on past Westfield and Elizabeth to join the main line again. This route was to be used for the fast passenger trains as well as in giving a local service to Plainfield and North Plainfield. The Lehigh Valley was bound by agreement with the Jersey Central not to enter Plainfield. North Plainfield is not Plainfield, however, and is even in a different county.

The second plan which, it is said, the company now has under active consideration, is to run an entire new line from Bound Brook nearly to Jersey City reducing the distance from twenty-eight miles to nineteen miles. It would leave the present line at Bound Brook as the other and cross the first mountain range either by the way of Chimney Rock Notch or Springdale where the mountain is lowest and would only necessitate a short tunnel to reach the Washington valley. The line would then follow that valley through Warrenville and Washingtonville and on past Glenside Park to the end of the range near Springfield. The course of the railroad would then be directed through the Oranges and North Newark, competing with the D. L. and W. there. Just outside of Jersey City the route would connect with the present line of the Lehigh into that city.

At present the suburban traffic of the Lehigh Valley amounts to very little. With a chance at the patronage of Plainfield and the Oranges, it could be greatly increased.

The statement comes from one who ought to know that the railroad company will ask the state Legislature this winter to grant the right of way and enable them to start condemnation proceedings to secure it. Such action would be a very important happening in this part of Jersey.

M'KINLEY GOING TO LONG BRANCH.

With the Vice President He Will Review a Military Show.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Long Branch, Aug. 23—P. J. Casey, secretary of the Monmouth County military tournament, which will give a two-days' exhibition at the Monmouth County Horse Show grounds on Friday and Saturday, received a telegram this afternoon from Vice President Hobart, announcing that he and President McKinley will reach Hollywood Friday morning and will review the troops.

Troop C, of Brooklyn, will act as their escort, and will accompany them to Normanhurst, the country home of Mr. Hobart. Two companies of marines from the Brooklyn Navy Yard will arrive tomorrow.

RETAIN A FIGHTING SPIRIT.

Recent Defeats Have Apparently Not Discouraged the Filipinos.

ARE STILL VERY ACTIVE.

An Army of Several Thousand Natives Has Been Concentrated in Cavite Province.

Reported That Supplies Are Being Taken From Manila to Aguinaldo's Forces—The Scarcity of Food Increasing—Natives Have Returned to San Mateo.

Manila, Aug. 23.—The Filipinos appear to retain much more of a fighting spirit than might be expected after their defeats recently at San Fernando, and the "drubbings" Gen. Lawton gave them in the south.

Having abandoned San Fernando after a feeble struggle, the natives entrenched themselves at Angeles, working for several days and impressing non-combatants into the work, thus saving the armed men for the fighting. They engaged Lieut.-Col. Smith's regiment and the artillery warmly for four hours, making one of the most stubbron resistences of the campaign. In the Province of Cavite, where it was supposed the natives had been scattered and demoralized beyond recuperation, they have assembled an army of several thousand men, which is distributed among the important towns from the lake to the bay.

After the San Fernando engagement natives attempted to dissuade the Americans from further advance northward by menasing the railroad communication. Several hundred of Gen. Pio del Pilar's men crossed the Rio Grande, between the American outpost towns, and threatened Balinag, Quininqua and other places with small American garrison, while, during Sunday and Monday nights, smaller bands tried to tear up the railroad track at several points between Bigaa and Malolos. Reinforcements of American troops, however, were sent along the railroad from Manila to San Fernando, while the forces at Balinag and Quinqua sallied out against Gen. Pio del Pilar's men, and the natives were easily driven away.

In the brushes, however, the Americans during the three days lost several men.

All reports from the Filipno territory agree that the scarcity of food is increasing and that the commanders at Aparri and other points refuse to obey Aguinaldo's order in regard to closing the ports held by the natives against American ships, and that any ship bringing stores will be welcomed. Several ships from Manila are now at such ports.

Hundreds of persons come into Manila daily and return to the Filipino lines with food and other commodities. The guards stationed along one road reported that 5,000 persons passed through the lines in three days, and that forty-five tons of rice were carried out, in small parcels, on the same road, in ten days. Much of that undoubtedly goes to aid the natives, but the authorities permit the traffic from motives of charity toward the women and children, who are undoubtedly suffering.

Gen. MacArthur is establishing municipal governments in the villages north of Manila.

The mayor of Balinag, the first town where Gen. Lawton established the same rule, who was supposed to be one of the most friendly and trustworthy of the natives, has been placed in jail charged with arranging with the natives for an attack on the town.

The American troops have been withdrawn from all that part of the country, which was half cleared of Filipinos in the expedition of the Americans in June last.

The natives have returned to San Mateo, which was abandoned for the third time after its recent capture.

It is alleged that more than half of the Howitzer ammunition used during the fight at Angeles was defective and failed to explode.

Successor to John V. Dalgrin.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Governor Roosevelt has appointed Eugene A. Philbin of New York City to succeed the late John Vinton Dahlgren as a member of the State Board of Charities. Mr. Philbin is a member of the Bar Association of the city of New York, and was for years a partner of Henry R. Beekman of New York City, before the latter was elected a judge. He is also a member of the Catholic Club, and has been associated with many charitable institutions.

Trouble Among Shoemakers.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 23.—The local boot and shoe workers' labor unions, numbering 3,100 members, have refused to adopt the new constitution of the national union. By the new constitution dues are increased to 25 cents a week and 62 2-3 cents a month, instead of 8 cents, as heretofore, are given to the general office. The referendum is also suspended and the term of general officers fixed at two years.

Five Hurt in Wreck.

Circleville, O., Aug. 23.—A serious wreck occurred on the Cincinnati and Muskingum Valley road by which five persons were seriously and twenty others slightly injured. The eastbound passenger train, belated, was running at a high rate of speed in the edge of the city, when a misplaced switch turned it into a siding on which stood a locomotive. The two engines were wrecked.

Died During Surgical Operation.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 23.—William J. Clark, a wealthy real estate owner, is dead, after an operation for appendicitis. He was taken seriously ill Sunday. The operation was performed and he did not rally from the shock. Clark was a son-in-law of the late millionaire soap manufacturer, M. W. Burwell, of Chicago.

YAQUI WAR DRUM SOUNDED

Battle With the Indians Expected Within Twenty-Four Hours.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 23.—A despatch to the "Record" from Potam, Mex., via Nogales, Mex., says:

"The dull resounding of the tambour, the Yaqui war drum, was heard in the woods about three miles south of Potam. The beatnig of the tambour is the warning that the Indians are to give battle to their enemy, and as Gen. Torres is now within five miles of the Indian camp a fight is confidently expected to take place within twenty-four hours.

"Gen. Lorenzo Torres is in fighting condition again, and will take the field this week. He has gained the reputation of being a fearless fighter against the Indians, and according to all reports has more ability for dealing with the rebellion than any other man the government has at the front. The Indians have an especial hatred for him, charging that he is responsible for all their troubles. He owns vast tracts of choice land in the Yaqui valley.

"Since the fight at Cuesta Alta several desertions have been reported from the Eleventh Regiment, which has suffered more in battle than any other regiment.

"The total number of Indians killed since the outbreak is 205. The Mexican loss is given out as not exceeding forty."

Rockefeller to Fight Meat Trust.

New York, Aug. 23.—Backed by the millions and enormous power and influence of the Rockefellers and the Standard Oil interests a buthchers' cooperative slaughter house is to be erected in this city. The Beef Trust has a battle royal on its hands.

Plans for the formation of an anti-trust slaughter house and beef corporation, with a capital of $20,000,000, were adopted at a meeting of the Greater New York Butchers' Association, held in Bloomingdale Hall, Nos. 915 and 917 Eighth avenue.

Of this big capitalization $700,000 was subscribed at once by those at the meeting, and it was announced that John D. Rockefeller and other capitalists, whose names are withheld for the present, were prepared to lend their millions to the butchers in their fight against the meat trust.

London to Klondike in 17 Days.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 23.—A despatch to the "Tribune" from Victoria, B. C., says: "From London, England, to Dawson City, on the Klondike, in seventeen days is the record made by a mining engineer from South Africa. He left London for Southampton by train, caught an Atlantic liner, in which he crossed the ocean in about six days. The trip from New York to Vancouver was made in four days, from Seattle to Skaguay in less than three days. Close connections were made with the White Pass and Yukon Railroad and the lake and river steamships, and he was landed in Dawson seventeen days from London."

Counsel Says Carter is Innocent.

Washington, D. C., Aug 23.—The reply of Colonel Thomas F. Barr to the claims of the counsel for Captain Oberlin M. Carter met with an equally emphatic response from the attorneys of the accused. In the brief filed by Wayne MacVeagh and Attorneys Walter G. Charlton, Frank P Blair, Abram J. Rose and William W. Mackall, it is declared that Captain Carter is absolutely innocent, while Colonel Barr is accused of over-zealousness in his defence of the members of the court-martial that tried Captain Carter.

Nebraskans Declare for Bryan.

Omaha Neb., Aug. 23.—Democrats, Populists and Free Silver Republicans, met in convention here yesterday and nominated former Governor Silas Holcombe for supreme judge. The other two nominations—for university regents went one to the Populists and the other to the Silver Republicans. The convention declared for Bryan for President in 1900 and endorsed the Chicago platform. Colonel Bryan was one of the delegates.

Glass Factory Enters Union.

Bridgeton, N. J., Aug. 23.—The Cohansie Glass Works, which have been closed for some time, owing to strikes, will be started as a union establishment. An agreement to that effect has been signed by the officials of the company and by President Hayes of the Glass Workers' Association. This will put 800 men to work.

The Boers Are Prepared.

Johannesburg, Aug. 23.—The war situation in the Transvaal seems to have reached a most critical stage and the Boers are prepared for whatever may come. It is not considered unlikely that the threatened trouble with Great Britain will be precipitated within a very short time.

Rejected Lover Sues Widow.

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 23.—C. B. Parker, of Guilford Center, has sued his sweetheart, Mrs. Ida Booth, for services rendered in splitting her kindling wood. Mrs. Booth, not to be outdone, has sued for services rendered in teaching the complainant to read and write.

Root Returns to Washington.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Secretary Root returned to Washington last evening after being in consultation with the President here in the afternoon. It is understood that the new plans of the War Department in carrying on the campaign in the Philippines was gone over in detail.

Burglars Rob the Reid Home.

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 23.—Two men were arraigned here charged with having burglarized the residence of Whitelaw Reid. They were taken at New Haven with a wheel supposed to be the one missing from the Reid home. A large sum of money was also taken by the burglars.

Help For Storm Victims.

Philadelphia, Penn., Aug. 23.—The cruiser Panther, loaded with 800 tons of food and clothing for the storm sufferers in Porto Rico, has sailed from here. The fund for the sufferers amounts to $100,000, but $50,000 has already been spent by the committee.

PRICE OF SUGAR REDUCED.

The War Between Rival Companies Gives Consumers a Little Benefit.

BIG CUT IS ANNOUNCED.

American Sugar Refining Company Opens the War and the Arbuckles Go Still Lower

Looks as Though Trust May be Trying to Put Rivals Out of Business—A Reduction of Sixty Cents a Barrel is Announced—Outbreak Not an Unexpected One.

New York, Aug. 23.—The war between the American Sugar Refining Company and its competitors has unexpectedly broke out anew, and developed into a decidedly interesting fight, which promises to grow more bitter with time.

The American Company started in by reducing the prices of all grades of refined sugar, excepting No. XXXX., 3-16 cent per pound. The other refining companies promptly met the reduction, and within a very short time the Arbuckle Company lowered the price still further by 1-16 cent per pound, making a total reduction of ¼ cent per pound within a few hours.

It was stated in some quarters that it was not unlikely that the recent visit of the Western wholesale grocers, who asked the American Sugar Company to enforce the factor agreement, had something to do with the unexpected reduction in price. This, however, was not generally credited. Speaking of the situation, James H. Post, who represents the Mollenhauer and the National Companies, said:

"It seems to me that the real reason for the cut by the American Company is to make the business so unprofitable that some of the companies will be forced out of existence. In my opinion, however, it will take some years to accomplish this. That the cut by the American Company took all the independent companies by surprise we must admit. So far as we are concerned, we do not see anything to warrant the cut.

"It is a mystery why the American Sugar Refining Company is willing to reduce its guaranteed contracts by 3-16 cent per pound when it is supposed to have at least 1,250,000 barrels sold, on which it will have to make this reduction. The four independent refineries of New York and the one in Philadelphia have, on the other hand, only about 250,000 barrels thus sold. What the reduction signifies can best be seen by saying that it means lowering the price 60 cents per barrel, which, for 1,500,000 barrels, is $900,000.

"Probably the same reason which induced the American to drop the price 3-16 cent will induce the company to drop the price still further, which signifies a good war. As to what the independent companies will do—well, I think you will find that we shall meet any reductions.

"This reopening of the war has greatly demoralized business. Of course the reductions by all the refiners to 5.31 applies to the undelivered portion of old contracts, under the guarantee to Jan. 1, 1900, but there is no disposition to enter new contracts under present conditions. Orders for prompt delivery would go to Arbuckle naturally at 5.25 cents instead of to the others at 5.31 cents. We fear that all the old bitterness will be revived."

Pennsylvanians Start Home.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 23.—The Pennsylvania Regiment has started eastward. There was no parade. The train order was as originally planned by the committee, in three divisions, Col. Bennett in charge of the first, Major Cuthbertson of the second and Major Barry of the third. The Nebraska Regiment will be mustered out to-day and start home on Friday morning, August 25.

Plague Riots in Portugal.

Oporto, Aug. 23.—The demonstrations which the police were called on to break up in this city were caused by the strong popular feeling against Dr. Jorge, the director of the bacteriological institute here. The police also dispersed a crowd which had collected owing to a member of the chamber of deputies having attacked Dr. Jorge.

Ask the Mayor to Resign.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 23.—By a vote of 6 to 1 the City Council of South Omaha passed a resolution demanding that Mayor Ensor immediately resign his office. For some time past the Mayor has compelled the saloons to shut up on Sunday and the other officials and the Council have resented his action.

Has Not Returned to Havana.

Havana, Aug. 23.—The "Heraldo" publishes an important story, stating that Jiminez, the pretender to the Presidency of Santo Domingo, was taken off the yacht Polaria by a tug, at sea, and returned to Havana. The son of Jiminez gives his word of honor that his father has not returned.

Convention in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—The towns of southwestern Alaska have issued a call for a territorial convention to be held at Juneau October 9. The object is to promote unity in all demands made by Alaska in Congress and to frame bills which Congress will be urged to pass.

A Lightship Ashore.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—The Lighthouse Board has received confirmation of the report that the Diamond Shoals lightship off Cape Hatteras broke away from her moorings during the recent hurricane and drifted ashore.

Revival of French Claim.

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—The Chinese authorities here say the French have revived their claim to the right of forming a settlement at Nanking, based upon the treaty of 1858.

WANT CHEAPER FUNERALS.

An Association Formed at Buffalo to Fight Coffin Trust.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 23.—An organization which is unique in this state was perfected at a meeting held at 483 William street. The association is called the Co-operative Funeral Association of the State of New York. The objects of the Association are announced as follows:

"First. To secure the burial of our dead in the most appropriate and inexpensive manner.

"Second. To defend ourselves against the extortion and injustice of any and all combinations formed to control and monopolize the manufacture and sale of funeral supplies.

"Third. To protect ourselves against the tyranny of fashions, which degrades funeral occasions into vain and ostentatious art exhibitions, floral displays and costly street parades, and into occasions for the display of conspicuous apparel."

The Association, through its executive committee, will confer with coffin manufacturers who are members of the Association and will publish an annual price list of coffins, and will make contracts for supplying coffins and trimmings to members of the Association. All local chapters are obliged to get supplies from the contractors so designated, and all undertakers employed must be members of the Association. Any head of a family may become a member of the Association upon payment of $3, and all members of his family shall be entitled to the benefits of the Association.

Tanner's Condition Serious.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 23.—The condition of Gov. Tanner is slightly improved, but with the best that can be hoped for he will be confined to his bed for several days more. It is evident that the failure of the Governor to recognize the serious nature of his illness in its incipiency is largely responsible for his suffering at the present time.

Warrant Out For Mrs. Eyler.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 23.—Arthur W. Bishop, president of the Passaic County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon and took the first steps toward a criminal prosecution of Mrs. Myrle B. Eyler of the State Industrial School for Girls, as a result of the testimony taken in the Governor's investigation of the management of the school. The warrant issued for Mrs. Eyler's arrest was not served on account of the fact that she is ill at present and under a physician's care.

Writing Paper Prices Advanced.

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 23.—The rise in the price of writing paper, anticipated owing to the formation of the writing paper trust, has come. Jobbers have been notified by the American Writing Paper Company that the price of all cheap grades of papers is to be advanced one-half cent. The advance is said to be necessary on account of a scarcity of raw material. It is said that there is practically no roda and suphite pulp in the market.

Victor's Loss is Over a Million.

Victor, Col., Aug. 23.—The total number of buildings destroyed by the fire which broke out here is estimated at 800. Nine-tenths of these were wooden and the fire spread with great rapidity. Fourteen blocks, comprising almost the entire business section of the city, are in ashes. The total loss is variously estimated from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000 and the insurance at $400,000 to $800,000.

Favors Lease to the Central.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 23.—At a special meeting held here, the Chamber of Commerce unanimously adopted a report in favor of ratifying the lease of the Boston and Albany Railroad to the New York Central.

Telegraph to the Klondike.

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 15, via Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 23.—A subsidy has been raised here for the construction of a telegraph line to Skaguay, there to connect with the line to Dawson. It is hoped to have the line in operation by Oct. 1.

Andrew Overall Takes a Wife.

New Albany, Ind., Aug. 23.—Andrew Overall and Mrs. Gillie Ammons were married here. Overall is 78 years old, and this is his eighth matrimonial venture. He has twenty-four children now living at his home.

Boy Murderer Hanged.

Easton, Pa., Aug. 23.—Llewellyn Stout, who Jan. 6 last killed Harvey H. Wurster, a telegraph operator and station agent on the Philadelphia and Reading Railway, was hanged in the jail here yesterday.

More Police For St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 23.—The reorganization of the police department, under an enactment of the last legislature, has been effected. Five hundred new patrolmen were sworn in and added to the present force.

Reed Sends in His Resignation.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 23.—The resignation of Hon. Thomas B. Reed as Congressman in the First District has been received by Gov. Powers.

R·I·P·A·N·S

A widow sixty-eight years old, living in New York City, had been dosing for nine years. She was constantly troubled with pains on her right side, which seemed to be caused by the liver. Up to last June she had been treated by a number of physicians, one of whom claimed she had catarrh of the stomach; another stated that it was ordinary dyspepsia, and still another pronounced it biliary calculus, or gall stones, for which he treated her several months without good results. At times the pains were so severe that hypodermic injections of morphine were resorted to. The patient weighed 109 pounds; was completely run down, and had very little appetite. Early in June a neighbor induced her to try Ripans Tabules. After using them two weeks the pains and bloating of the stomach and colic ceased and nausea entirely disappeared. The patient had practically recovered by September 11th. She had gained eleven pounds, and could eat baked beans, among other dishes, without ill result.

WANTED: A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send five cents to Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce street, New York for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, or 12 packets for 48 cents, may be had of all druggists who are willing to sell a standard medicine at a moderate profit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the packet. Accept no substitute.

DEMOCRATS AT SARATOGA.

To Solidify and Unite Those Who Believe in Chicago Platform.

Saratoga, Aug. 23.—The object of the conference of Chicago platform Democrats in session here is to solidify and unite Democrats who believe in the platform implicity, indorse Bryan for President and oppose party factions and "boss rule." It is the sequel of the conference in Troy last September.

"We feel that the great Empire State should be properly represented at the next National Convention," says the statement, "and not misrepresented or unrepresented as at the last one, and we are sure from past experience that the machinery of our party is in control of men who prefer personal gain to party success."

In the statement both Richard Croker and ex-Senator Hill are arraigned, the former as a man who prefers to take chances on a horse race in Europe to settling vital public questions, and the latter as a "skulker."

Bryanites of all factions at the Springs are discussing the rumors of the silver leader's wealth. All agree that the statement that he is very rich is absurd.

A close friend of Mr. Bryan says that the first profits from his book amounted to $34,000, of which he gave one-half to free silver clubs and $4,500 to endow prize essays on the Science of Government in eighteen colleges.

He owns his home in Lincoln, which cost him $6,000, a farm near the city for which he paid $4,000, another small farm near his birthplace, Salem, Ill., and a small house in which his mother lived during her last years.

Rumors of his vast wealth, they say, probably arose from the fact that he honestly declared his personal property for the purpose of taxation.

A Counter Proposal.

Pretoria, Aug. 23.—It is ascertained on the highest authority that no definite reply has been sent to the proposal of the British Secretary of State for the Colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, to submit to a joint commission of inquiry the effect upon the Outlanders of the recent franchise reforms. The precise situation is that as a result of the pourparlers a communication was dispatched to Sir Alfred Milner, British High Commissioner in South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, which embodies certain proposals.

Official circles at present regard the situation as tending to improve.

The war ammunition consigned to the South African Republic still is detained by the Portuguese authorities in Delagoa Bay.

Freight Wreck on N. Y. Central.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Three persons were seriously injured and a freight train badly smashed in the wreck on the New York Central tracks. The engineer and fireman were taken from under the wreck unconscious and badly scalded. Dennis J. Long, a section foreman, was also pinned down. Many hundreds of tons of freight were destroyed. Traffic was long delayed.

Fourteen Fishermen Drowned.

Beaufort, N. C., Aug. 23—Fourteen out of sixteen fishermen who were camping on Swan Island near the mouth of the Neuse River during the recent storm have been drowned. The island was overflowed, compelling them to seek the mainland. In the attempt all their boats were capsized except one, and fourteen of them were drowned, including four Smith and four Salter brothers and six others.

Got Ahead of the Slot Machines.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 23.—The proprietors of places in which nickel-in-the-slot machines are in operation here have been swindled out of several hundred dollars by two young men who came here and who, by means of leaden slugs, to which the machines responded as promptly as to nickels, cleaned out the combinations.

Tramps Kill Brakemen.

Marshalltown, Ia., Aug. 23.—Three tramps stealing a ride on a Chicago and Great Western freight train that left here shortly after midnight shot and killed Brakemen J. L. Wilson and Conney Matthews and threw their bodies under the wheels. The murderers escaped, but an armed posse at once started in pursuit.

Dewey's Progress.

Paris, Aug. 23.—Admiral Dewey arrived at Villefranche to-day to remain a week. He refused to answer questions put to him by newspaper correspondents, saying he had come to rest, not to talk.

Death of the Oldest Woman.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Lucy Williams, who was believed to be the oldest woman in the state, died at Uncasville, aged one hundred and three years.

Boston Traveler's Editor Dead.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 23.—Reuben F. Cooke, for many years managing editor of the Traveler, of this city, died at his home here, aged seventy-four years.

Judge Hilton Better.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 23.—There is a perceptible improvement in ex-Judge Hilton's condition.

Progress Passes Darwin.

Admirers of the late Mr. Charles Darwin will hear with regret that his old home at Down, where he lived from 1842 to the time of his death, is to be given up and the contents dispersed. Those who desire to refresh their memory regarding the kind of country house that it was, both inside and out, should refer to the admirable drawings of Mr. Alfred Parsons. "My life goes on like clockwork, and I am fixed to the spot where I shall end it," wrote Darwin, in 1846, and his prophecy was strictly fulfilled. Down was certainly a retired place, but hardly so as to warrant the statement which once appeared in a German periodical, that it could only be approached by a mule track. It stands, indeed, off two highroads, one leading to Tunbridge and the other to Westerham, and the little hamlet, from the number and eminence of its visiting pilgrims, is, perhaps, one of the most interesting in Kent.—London News.

LABORI WAS APPLAUDED.

Re-appearance of Capt. Dreyfus' Chief Counsel Creates Enthusiasm.

HE QUESTIONS MERCIER.

The Ex-Secretary of War Finds His Position Rather Perilous and Declines to Answer.

Another Witness Declares That Dreyfus Was Indiscreet, Because He Would Not Work With Anybody Else—This the Prisoner Arose In Court and Denied.

Rennes, Aug. 23.—It was a great day in the Dreyfus court-martial. M. Labori appeared to defend Dreyfus. There was a scene of extraordinary enthusiasm when he entered the court room. He was pale and evidently weak. The audience broke out into cheers and President Jouaust, in a warm greeting, expressed the indignation of the tribunal at the attempt upon his life. Dreyfus greeted his defender affectionately.

In the meantime the assemblage was calling for a speech from Labori. Finally he made a gesture for silence and delivered a clever and eloquent little address.

He said he had been struck down on the eve of battle, but the assassin had succeeded only in delaying, not in preventing, the fight. The significance of this remark was realized a few minutes later when Maitre Labori took General Mercier in hand.

Labori's speech was greeted with hearty applause. When the Judges entered, Colonel Jouaust, addressing Maitre Labori, congratulated him on his escape from the assassin's bullet and expressed his own and his colleagues' detestation of the dastardly crime of which he had been the victim.

Maitre Labori replied briefly and feelingly, thanking Colonel Jouaust for his kind expressions.

Then he promptly plunged into the work that the assasin's shot had kept him for a week.

Major Grenier was the first witness called. His testimony was favorable to Dreyfus.

He said that Esterhazy was known as a man of bad character. Witness had heard Esterhazy say that Dreyfus was innocent.

Major Rollin, of the intelligence Bureau, then took the stand.

He ws scarcely seated when Labori demanded if witness was responsible for the Schneider forgery, which Mercer and other generals declared was most important evidence against Dreyfus.

Judge Advocate Carriere objected on the ground that the Schneider letter was a secret document.

Labori replied: "It was not we who brought this letter into the trial, but Mercer, and he used it against the defendant. We have every right to know all."

Labori then put the question to General Mercer.

Mercer replied: "I have no right to answer."

"You have no right to hide the truth behind a pretext of secrecy," announced Labori fiercely. "I insist on an answer. General Mercer, are you yourself the author of this translation?"

General Mercer—I have no right to answer.

Labori—We let it stand then, General, that you refuse to answer. I am not surprised if we encounter similar refusals during the trial.

He demanded to know from General Mercer by what right, while he was no longer Minister of War or an officer of the Government, he had part of the secret dossier in his possession.

Mercer opened his mouth as if to reply, stopped, stammered, turned red in his confusion and then refused to answer the question. The greatest excitement prevailed throughout the court room.

Labori then announced that he desired to recall certain witnesses, probably meaning Generals Boisdeffre, Billot and Gonse.

Colonel Jouaust assented, but stipulated that he, as President of the Court, must be allowed to determine the order in which they should appear.

Lieutenant-Colonel Bertin Mourot, who was the superior officer of Captain Dreyfus in 1894, was next called to the witness chair.

He testified that he gave to Captain Dreyfus the keys of all the cabinets in which the military records were kept. The witness declared that Dreyfus was certainly extremely indiscreet, if nothing more, for he refused to work with anybody else and always insisted on being alone.

After Lieutenant-Colonel Berlin Mourot had finished his testimony Colonel Jouaust asked the prisoner if he had any remarks to make upon it.

Dreyfus rose, and in a firm voice emphatically denied the charges, which, he said, were a medley of gossip and baseless suspicions due to partisan army influence.

In still more vigorous tones, which thrilled his auditors, he declared: "I love the profession of arms. I love the army!"

The audience seemed magnetized by the ringing of sencerity in his voice.

Were Filled With Gun Cotton.

Paris, Aug. 23.—The Rennes correspondent of a Paris newspaper telegraphs that the infernal machines sent to M. Labori have been opened in the military labatory at that place, and have been found to be filled with guncotton.

Mayor Jones Defeated.

Columbus, Ohio., Aug. 23.—After a bitter fight the Union Reform State convention here refused to indorse the candidacy of Mayor Jones of Toledo for Governor by leaving the head of the ticket blank.

Genesee Wins at Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 23.—In the first of the yacht races between the Beaver and the Genesee, the latter won, defeating the Beaver by one minute and twenty seconds.

For a week, or a month, or the whole summer, there is nothing more welcome than the news from home. There is only one way to get this news in the right shape, and that is by having The Daily Press sent to you at your vacation stopping place. When leaving town for a season be sure to order The Daily Press to follow you by mail. The address will be changed as often as desired. Ten cents a week will cover all expenses.

COMING EVENTS.

August 27—Rev. Thomas Houston will again speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. men's rally at 4:15 p. m.

Jersey is Watching.

What at first seemed to be only New York's concern in respect to the proposed Ramapo water contract jobbery is already forcing itself upon New Jersey as of considerable significance and importance to this State. The names of many prominent Jerseymen have been connected with the Ramapo job—not, however, as being directly associated with the present gang who are trying to get the best of the metropolis, but who were identified with the scheme in its embryo state.

The fact that there is an evident close bond of sympathy and mutual interest between the Ramapo jobbers and the East Jersey Water Company is now generally accepted by many as the truth. Identified with the East Jersey Water Company are a handful of powerful Jersey politicians. They will be carefully watched, and if there is any attempt to sacrifice New Jersey's interests to complete the piece of jobbery, and put several millions of undeserved dollars into the pockets of the promoters, something will probably be heard to drop in the proximity of the involved ones; and it will not be a pleasant thud, either.

M. PAUL DEROULEDE.

Next to the Dreyfus case, including the shooting of M. Labori, the arrest of M. Paul Deroulede and a score of other prominent citizens has been the sensation of sensational France. Deroulede and his colleagues are charged with high treason.

Who Would Buy It Anyhow?

Concerning the possibility of the old Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield being sold for delinquent taxes by the borough collector in accordance with what may be a strict construction of the law, the Newark News says:

The announcement that the collector of North Plainfield has given notice that he intends to sell the Presbyterian cemetery for unpaid assessments has prompted numerous editorial—legal experts to inform the collector that cemeteries are exempt from taxation, and that he had beter go slow or he will get into trouble. This advice would be pertinent if the money due had been assessed under the general taxation laws, but it happens in this case that the assessment is for street improvements, and the general law as to exemptions does not apply. Unless the trustees want to see their cemetery sold they had better pay up.

One of the essentials of sale of any sort is to find a customer. As it will be a long time before anyone cares to buy a cemetery, there is not much need of serious apprehension about the threatened sale of the property in question.

A Michigan correspondent who waxes worth because of the forced retirement of his fellow citizen, the Hon. Russell A. Alger, from the War Department, indulges in this bit of sarcasm:

If General Alger was President of the United States, he would be the President and not Mark Hanna—and the Attorney General would not hail from New Jersey, but from some one of the United States.

Whew! The gentleman must be a political "come-on" who doesn't know how to take his bunco in a graceful spirit.

Washingtonville is now trying to secure a post office of its own. Its prospects have certainly brightened during the last year and this is one of the many signs that the peaceful little village is waking up. The effort to get a post office located there is a commendable one and viewing the place as compared with Warrenville and Mt Bethel, Washingtonville it certainly seems entitled to a distributing centre of its own.

The word "hospital" is repelling to many. Why not let Plainfield take the iniative in a change of appelation for the comuntty sick room? Suppose we call it the "Muhlenberg Invalid Home," which it really is. It has a pleasant sound.

The people of New York refuse to have the Ramapo job rammed.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Sewell prefers to see all the retiring Republican State Senators returned. If all are renominated the General's desire will be gratified, for there is a disposition to elect every Republican who aspires to the Legislature; but there are indications that these men will not all have it their own way in the county conventions. Johnson, of Camden, and Reed, of Somerset, although supported by General Sewell, have opponents, and it is not yet settled that Essex is free of a contest. If Senator Ketchem wants a third term he can have it; but this is not certain. Either William Riker or Franklin Murphy could have the nomination for the asking. The other Republican Senators to be renominated are Miller, of Salem, Stanzer, of Gloucester, Cross, of Union and Franeis, of Monmouth.—New York Press.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Miss Kate Erskine, of Third place has a most interesting story in this week's Independent entitled "As Yesterday." The story is a vivid description of life on a poor farm, but it must have been situated in New England, as there is nothing to indicate the poor farm in Plainfield. The troubles and trials of Abner's widow, Marthy Sprague, an aged inmate of the Home for twenty years, is most pathetically told. For instance, in referring to the husband of her youth, the story reads: "Perhaps he did feel tired all the time. Perhaps he wa'nt quite well. Perhaps he was born kind o' loose—twisted, an' couldn't help himself. Anyhow, he was kind, an' he was lovin' to his babies, too." She hesitated. "I'm glad I married Abner," she said at last, "real glad." And in the closing paragraph of the story: "The sun streaming in at the east window touched the little wrinkled face lying on the pillow and the restless fingers plucking at the sheet. 'I'm here, Abner,' she whispered. 'Can you hear me, dear. Here in our own room, where they was all born, an' you first took 'em in your arms, an' * * * * why, why Abner.'" Miss Erskine's wide circle of friends will be much interested in this story, which if we had space we would like to reproduce.

* * * * *

Chief of Police George W. Grant relates an interesting incident in connection with his recent trip to McConnellsburg, Pa., for William Darling. He was returning with Detective Ferguson and the prisoner, and when the trio reached Chambersburg, Pa., the Captain was surprised to meet a young woman who addressed him by name. For a few minutes the official could not think who the person was, but presently remembered that she was formerly Miss Amelia Kister, of the borough, who sometime ago was married and moved to Chambersburg. She had heard that the Captain was going after Darling and knowing that he would have to change cars at her town she went to the railroad station to meet him.

Full Dress Suitings

Double-faced plaid golf suiting will be almost universally worn. Splendid, warm, durable and economical goods they are. Require no lining. We are showing some exceedingly choice patterns already, with many others to come as the mills are able to fill orders. Heavy Plaid Sackings also for Golf Capes. They make remarkably stylish garments and are not extravagantly expensive.

Black Crepons

In our opinion no more beautiful goods were ever made from Mohair. Heavy, rich patterns, bright lustre, absolutely fast color, elegant beyond description. The patterns we are showing were selected early and are the best obtainable. Prices 75c to $1.98, the last mentioned we will guarantee to be worth $2.50, or money will be refunded.

Black Goods

Our line of black goods is always complete. Ladies who desire black goods should by all means see our goods. We have a special 46-inch Black Henrietta at $1 per yard, that is exceptional value. French Serges, Broad Cloths, Cheviots, Cashmeres, Velours and Fancy Weaves in variety. Extreme novelties in colored dress goods we carefully avoid, but Broadcloths, Cashmeres, Coverts, Henriettas, Granite Cloths, Cheviots, Storm Serges, Diagonals, etc., we have in the best shades.

New Wash Goods

Flannelettes. The name is very attractive, but the goods are far more so. Rich, warm colors, fine, soft fabrics. We predict for them a very large sale; certainly we know of nothing else so beautiful for inexpensive house dresses.

Outing Flannels

More perfectly finished than ever, and two beautiful to describe. They are pre-eminently the goods for the masses, for everybody from the most humble to the grandest people use them.

About Table Linens

The last large purchase of ours has served simply to whet the appetite of our people for more and has stimulated us to greater efforts along this line. Another large purchase of these goods includes five patterns of 70-inch pure linen damask the actual value of which is 75c per yard. While they last we shall sell them at 50c per yard. We are not sure of being able to get more of the same. If interested BUY NOW. In the same purchase we secured 51 dozen, all hemmed, Huck Towels, 17 x 35. They are selling at 10c each. They are worth 15c each. We show a line of Plaid Glass Towelings that rivals that of any we have seen.

All Summer Goods including Shirt Waists, Crash Skirts, Pique Skirts, and wash goods in general are being shamefully sacrificed to get them out of the way. We have no further use for them and need the room for newer goods.

Come in and get acquainted with us. This is your store as well as ours. With your help we are going to make it an establishment that we may all be proud of.

DUNELLEN

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Aug. 23.—Two street fakirs held forth on Front street near the postoffice Monday night. They succeeded in selling to the incredulous a preparation of corn salve, for which they claimed great things. Some of the natives have not got as much money as they had before the appearance ot the fakirs, but they are considerably wiser.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, Aug. 21—When the Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company started to boom the advantages of a home site at Fanwood a few years ago, and when the little borough began to have a promising future before it, a clubhouse was built on South avenue. Nearly all the residents of the place were associated with it and for a number of years the club thrived. But the continued success and building up of Fanwood seemed to be the death of the club. Some who had been instrumental in organizing the affair moved away and the new comers did not seem to take the interest in it and the club was allowed to collapse for want of financial support. The property was taken back by the Land Improvement Company. During the last year or two Fanwood has been gradually increasing by a number of young people who desire a place where they can meet socially. A number of them have become interested in a plan by which the club can be resurrected or a new one organized. A meeting has been called for tonight in the clubhouse hall and inducements which have been offered by the Land Improvement Company will be presented and talked over, and out of the meeting will probably be born a new Fanwood club and prominent factor in the social life of the place.

Eben W. Goodwin, of Fanwood, is the possessor of a remarkable horse. Mr. Goodwin's hired man William hitched the horse up to the surrey last evening preparatory to Mr. Goodwin taking his usual evening drive. The rig was tied and left standing in the stable. The horse seemed to dislike the tieing post, for he untied the knot and walked out of the open door and started on a run toward Westfield. It took William an hour to catch the animal again. No damage was done.

Fanwood Council, R. A., held an interesting meeting in their rooms last evening. Notwithstanding the warm weather the interest in the council meetings are being kept up. Two applications are in the hands of the secretary, and the "little giant" is keeping up its reputation for work in that fraternity.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—For building lots, Somerset Park.

—In making the improvements at the corner of Madison avenue and West Second street, the sidewalk is brought nearer to the street.

—Some fine improvements are being made to the sidewalk and curbing at the corner of West Second street and Madison avenue.

—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Sutphen, of this city, died on Tuesday of convulsions. Mrs. Sutphen is in a very critical condition.

—Any person troubled with worms on cabbage plants are advised to make free use of flour on the plants. This chokes the worm and is sure death.

—Next week most of the city and borough school teachers will return from their vacations and be ready to resume work when school opens next month.

—M. C. VanArsdale, the East Front street shoe dealer, has completed some improvements to his store giving him more shelf room and a better place for his cashier's office.

—Mechanics have been busy of late making ready the Watchung School for the opening next month. It was found necessary to do quite a little work after school closed last June.

—Rev. and Mrs. Karner, of Albany, N. Y., buried their infant child in this city yesterday. The little one died at Albany Tuesday, and was a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cadmus, of Plainfield avenue.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Anna B. Clarke and son, Fred, of 10 Craig place, left this morning to visit friends at Mt. Kisco, for three weeks.

Miss Mabel VanMiddlesworth, of Elmwood place, has returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Chas Foster, of Jersey City.

Jacob Wagoner, assistant baggagemaster at the North Avenue station, enjoying a well-earned vacation. His place if being taken by Henry Hansen, the night baggagemaster.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at L. W. Randolph's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Die Umfrage, die der hiesige Handelsverein betreffs der Einführung der sogenannten Durcharbeitungszeit in Kanzlei und Komptoir hier veranstaltete, hat ein negatives Ergebniß gehabt. Die meisten der befragten Firmen erklärten sich für Beibehaltung der bestehenden Einrichtung (Arbeitszeit mit Mittagspause).—Dieser Tage wurde auf dem 1014 Meter hohen Lemberg, der höchsten Erhebung der schwäbischen Alb, unter großer Theilnahme des Albvereins sowie der umwohnenden Bevölkerung der neuerbaute Aussichtsthurm eingeweiht. Der Thurm ist aus Eisen konstruirt, 30 Meter hoch und kostet 11,000 Mark, die größtentheils vom Schwäbischen Albverein aufgebracht worden sind. Man genießt von der Spitze einen prächtigen Ausblick über die Alb, die Schweizeralpen und den Schwarzwald.

Friedrichshafen. Die Bahnstrecke Lindau-Friedrichshafen ist von Friedrichshafen bis zur bayerischen Landesgrenze schon seit längerer Zeit sowohl im Bahnkörper als in den Bahnhöfen fertig gestellt. Auf bayerischer Seite ist man wegen der oftmaligen Dammsenkungen noch nicht so weit, auch sehen die Bahnhofgebäude und Wärterhäuschen erst ihrer Vollendung entgegen. Die Bahnverwaltung Friedrichshafen wird nun demnächst täglich drei Züge zwischen Friedrichshafen und Hemigkofen (an der bayerischen Grenze) und zurück verkehren lassen.

Heidenheim. Jüngst ist durch Anbringung einer gußeisernen Gedenktafel an das Geburtshaus eines früheren Mitbürgers, des Kürschnersohnes und späteren Generals Friedrichs des Großen, v. Wunsch, das Gedächtniß dieses Helden des siebenjährigen Krieges wieder erneuert worden. Friedrich der Große zählte diesen schlagfertigen, tapferen General, der von der Pike auf gedient und durch glorreiche Heldenthaten sich immer höher hinaufgeschwungen hatte, zu seinen verdientesten Heerführern.

Heilbronn. Hier tagte unter dem Vorsitz des Freiherrn v. Plato-Stuttgart der württembergische Landesfischereiverein. Unter den Punkten, die zur Berathung standen, war der wichtigste ein Antrag auf Einführung einer Schonzeit für Weißfische. Der Antrag wurde abgelehnt und es bleibt bei der seitherigen Bestimmung, wonach diese Fischgattung nicht verwendet werden darf, wenn sie das Mindestmaß von 20 Centimeter noch nicht erreicht hat.

Maulbronn. Neulich Nachmittags war ein Bauer mit seiner Ehefrau während eines Gewitters auf dem Felde, als Beide vom Blitz getroffen wurden. Der Mann war sofort todt, die Frau ist wieder zum Bewußtsein gekommen.

Baden.

Kehl. Beim Baden im Rhein ist der Pionier Sommer aus Katzenbach (Amt Mosbach), sowie der Maurer Ph. Moser aus Mechtersheim ertrunken.

Mannheim. Ein alter Achtundvierziger, der frühere Oekonom Privatmann Valentin Keller, stadtbekannt unter dem Namen „Schinkenkeller," wurde neulich von der Nebenbahn Mannheim-Weinheim überfahren und ist an den Folgen des erlittenen Unfalles gestorben, ohne wieder zum Bewußtsein gekommen zu sein. Keller erreichte ein Alter von 78 Jahren.—Julius Pister, der Vertreter der hiesigen Filiale der Adlerfahrradwerke, ist unter dem Verdacht der Unterschlagung verhaftet worden.

Malsch. Der Großherzog übernahm zu dem siebenten Sohn des Isidor Deubel hier die Pathenstelle und überwies ihm ein Geschenk von 30 Mark.

Sumpfohren. Mäher fanden unter einem Baume die Leiche der 67jährigen Wittwe Rosa Hall; dieselbe war vom Blitz erschlagen worden.

Elsaß-Lothringen.
